An ordained minister, Dodds was one of the best among the milers in 1943 when he won the Sullivan award as the outstanding United States amateur athlete of the year . . . Gil has indicated he will come out of retirement at Wheaton College in Illinois where he is studying for his doctorate. He has his eye on the two-mile honors this year and if he has any of his old form left, there should be some interesting indoor clashes . . .

The Nebraska runner places a great measure of his past success on his glasses. Far-sighted Gil says wearing glasses actually increases his speed . . . "On my way around the track without spectacles I discovered an optical illusion was slowing me up," he explains . . . "I got the impression I was taking longer strides than I really was. That was because the track seemed farther away than it was. So I'd cut down my pace thinking I was going too fast to run my best race.

"But with glasses on I can judge my speed almost to the split second."

Kick in the Pants.

How Dodds became acquainted with his coach, Lloyd Hahan, a great runner who between 1924 and 1929, held five indoor world records, is an interesting yarn . . . Dodds, a lean lad of 13, had learned to run while baiting and tending his traps . . . His school had no track team so he used to run alone, covering the 10 miles between traplines "on the double" . . . One day he was on his way home from a fishing trip with some friends when he picked up a rock and hurled it at a farmer passing in an automobile . . . The car stopped suddenly and young Dodds took off as quickly . . . But the farmer overtook the gasping boy, grabbed him by the neck and planted a swift kick where it really hurt . . . That farmer was Lloyd Hahan, the lad's future coach who in later years developed him into a topnotch miler.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Bill Dennis' Belleville "Bees" juniors are having their trials and tribulations. It seems as though the youngsters have been jinxed by some sort of a hex in their scheduled Junior "B" games. For the second time in a row the games with the Trenton Juniors have been postponed due it was claimed by Trenton team officials to "no ice". Yet last night, when the Trenton-Bees tilt was scheduled, there was a good sheet of ice here. Surely 11 miles doesn't place Trenton in the tropical zone.

* * *

Meanwhile the kids are champing at the hockey bits and are craving action. They will see plenty of that next Thursday night when they play hosts to the fast-travelling Kingston Victorias, who come highly touted as one of the best junior "B" aggregations in Eastern Ontario. However, the Bees will get in plenty of practice next week, and the tilt should be a good one to view from the pews.

* * *

Trenton appears to be the centre of all sorts of hockey mixups. Latest word from the grapevine is that the officials of teams in the town to the west of us (Get it, Mike?) are not satisfied with the arbiting of one Speedy St. Louis. The Trenton howl is that the honorable Speedy awarded a goal to Kingston Vics a few nights ago when Trenton claims was not a goal. Speedy said the Vics earned it — and that was that. In any event St. Louis is not welcome up around Ken Couch's town — in fact they say they want no part of him as a referee.

* * *

Back to those bumping belligerent "B's" we go, come Monday eventide, and the hockey fans at the Memorial Arena will take the form of a double entree. The rampaging undefeated Trenton Flyers will face the acid test when they clash with the flashy Bloomfield Sky Chiefs in the first half of the twin-offering, and that joust should be the battle of the evening.

* * *

The Chiefs, however, will be without the services of their ace defenceman, Kitty Abbott, who fractured a wrist during a recent game in Wellington and who will be out of the game for the next two or three weeks at least. However, Coach Mosley, who by the way is a veteran of the hockey wars with a touch of pro in his style and rightly so, claims his squad will be at full strength and he has an able substitute for the injured Kitty.

* * *

"These squads should give the fans a regular thrill when they take the ice for the Chiefs' first line is as fast as any in the loop and Messrs. Sargent, Miller and Brackenbury the Flyers' forward stars will have to be on their toes to match the swooping Chiefs' attacking lines.

* * *

"Doc" Lyon's Mountain View Bombers, who played a vastly improved game in their tilt the other night against Flyers are out to increase their loop points at the expense of the Picton Combines. But word from "Spain" has it that the Yanover-Fraser crew has added some shock troops to its roster and a few surprises might be in store. In any event the whole should provide a good evening's entertainment for the faithful. First game at 7:45.

* * *

The golden arm of Rapid Robert Feller, Cleveland Indians' pitching ace, will dig deep into the coffers of baseballdom next season, and, it is reported, will come up with a bag of shekels that will exceed the fabulous sums collected by the immortal Babe Ruth in his heyday as a battering ram for the Yankees.

* * *

Although the prospective terms have not been revealed, President Bill Veeck, Indian chief, has admitted that Feller will have an "excellent chance" to surpass the $80,000 baseball income which Ruth collected from the Yankees in 1930 and again in 1931 as high pay man of the game up to the present time.

* * *

The game's famous strikeout champion will sign a bonus contract which insiders are guessing will call for a basic salary of $50,000 with his extra earnings depending on attendance. Under a similar arrangement last year, Rapid Robert garnered more than $70,000. And that ain't hay, brother.

* * *

Ted Williams, slugging sliver of the Boston Red Sox and Mr. Disappointment in last year's World Series, who was said last fall to have set the Ruthian $80,000 as his goal for 1947 undoubtedly will decide definitely on this reported goal when he reads Feller's prospects. Hal Newhouser, Tiger star, is one of many others who may be expected to use the Feller contract as a lever in negotiations with their owners.

* * *

Coach George Faulkner's basketball "B's" are hosts to Picton on Monday night in search of their second straight victory in the hoop loop. The game scheduled for last night was cancelled due to Picton's inability to secure the floor.

* * *

The Belleville crew have perfected a powerful attacking system and they loom up as the class of the league... Mountain View defeated the Trenton Flyers in a close-fought court set-to on Thursday night, while Picton absorbed a 39-34 defeat at the hands of the Flyers on Tuesday. As a curtain-raiser the Picton junior girls' team will clash with Ed Shortt's "Y" junior cage colleens on Monday evening starting at 7.45. Basketball fans who are not taking in these games are missing a treat. There is Ontario championship timber in this district "B" loop. And don't say you weren't told.

Toronto, Jan. 18 —(CP)—The retirement of Bob Pearce as undefeated sculling champion of the world does not mean that the name Pearce will be lost to rowing.

On the contrary, the retired titleholder, confidently expects his name to be emblazoned in new glory in a few short years when his son Jack gains the maturity necessary for competition.

The fourth generation of rowing Pearces is well on its way as nine-year-old Jackie trains arduously for that day half-dozen years hence when he rows a shell competitively.

Young Jackie already is an able oarsman. With a full season of training behind him, the young oarsman has been thoroughly schooled in a Gladstone skiff, a type of boat used in the fundamental training of scullers and toward the end of last Autumn he had been getting advanced instruction while rowing a doubles shell with his illustrious dad.

The Pearce saga goes back a long time, 1860, to be exact, when Bob's grandfather, "Footy" Pearce, landed in Australia from England. Footy dominated Australian rowing immediately and soon took that Dominion's title. He was followed by Bob's father, Harry who won both the amateur and professional crowns and built a record of victories that surpassed only by Bob himself, six on the Parromatta River. At 19 he entered his first competition winning the first of his many triumphs. Winning the Australian title, he went on to the British Empire championship, which he took in Hamilton in 1930, and then the famous Diamond Sculls, followed by the professional championship of the world.

Following in such footsteps makes a tough goal to shoot at for Young Jackie.

Whether the boy will come through like his father, grandfather and great-grand-father is a question that can only be answered in years to come.

LLOYD MANGRUM LEADING PACK IN GOLF TOURNEY

One Stroke Ahead of George Schoux Who Carded 132 for Two Rounds

Richmond, Calif., Jan. 18 (AP).—United States open golf champion Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, whose sensational 64 tied the Richmond Country Club golf course record Thursday, led the pack in the $10,000 Richmond open golf tournament today as leading scorers teed off for the third round of the 72-hole medal play contest.

Mangrum added a second-round 67 to his first-round 64 to post a 36-hole score of 131, one stroke ahead of George Schoux of San Bruno, Calif., with 132.

The two paced one of the hottest scoring fields of golfers in history as 54 players equalled or bettered par 142 for the 36 holes. Forty-six were under par.

Pressing the second round leaders, Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., and Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., closed the rounds with 133. Demaret cut his first day's 67 to a 66 while Hogan, leading money winner among the touring pros in 1946, added a stroke to wind up with 66-67 rounds.

A brisk cross-wind which sprang up overnight whipped the short 6,209-yard Richmond course during the second round, cutting the scoring among the 62 who qualified to remain in the tournament.

With the first 30 scorers all checking out in 139 or better, none of the top contestants had difficulty in staying in the running, however — although only scores of 144 or better were posted for the pairings in the third rounds.

Ben Colk, Vancouver pro, posted 145. His cards were 71 and 74.

THIRTEEN NAMED IN $10,000 RACE

Miami, Fla., Jan. 18 — (AP) — Thirteen three-year-old sprinters were named for $10,000 Hibiscus Handicap at Hialeah race course today while grooms and exercise boys continued a strike begun on the track's opening day yesterday.

A crowd of 19,691 turned out for the colorful opening day, marred only by a dispute between stable workers who demanded continuance of a $10 fee for leading entries from the paddock and a $10 award for a winning horse, and owners who refused the awards.

Few of the 1,400 workers showed up for the opening and owners, trainers and jockeys, flanked by track policemen, led their own mounts to the track.

Track officials predicted an early settlement of the groom strike when a spokesman for the grooms asked owners to name a committee to meet with them for a discussion of a minimum wage.

Barney Ross Pleads to Take Him off Page One

By SID FEDER

New York, Jan. 18 — (AP) — Two young up-and-coming welterweights had a fight in Madison Square Garden last night, but the best welterweight in town was a little fellow named Barney Ross who hasn't had a glove on in eight years and has just finished a four-month stretch beating the narcotic habit.

This is not to suggest that Barney is about to start a comeback, although the chances are he could take on both the young upstarts who did their stuff in the Garden last night without stopping to comb his hair.

But the flat-nosed little man from Chicago came back to town to report to his new boss, find out about his job, and — remarkable for a man who's going into the advertising business—tell his newspaper pals to forget about him.

"Look fellas," pleaded the ex-welterweight and lightweight king, fresh from the Lexington, Ky., hospital where he beat the toughest rap of his career, "Just get me off page one, will you? Put me back on page 10 now, or 'way back with the want ads. I'm just a working man."

Cured of the narcotics habit he acquired "by accident" while recovering from malaria and wounds he picked up on Guadalcanal, Barney looked more like the old Windy City whiz-bang than at any time since he lost his welterweight crown to Henry Armstrong back in '38 and called it a career.

He stepped off a plane tanned, weighing about 160 and, except for the grey streaks in his hair, looked ready to put on a pair of gloves.

He's here to report to Milton Blackstone, his old friend and new boss. Sunday night, he'll fly west again to California, to straighten out some loose business ends.

Then he'll come back here to take up his job, which has to do with labor relations.

Jet Pilot Favored To Win Handicap

Arcadia, Calif., Jan. 18—(AP)—Jet Pilot an outstanding juvenile of the 1946 turf season, goes postward today favored to win the $50,000 San Felipe Stakes in his first race of the year, but the Main Chance farm colt faced powerful opposition from a fine array of three-year-olds in the seven-furlong event at Santa Anita Park.

Handicappers picked him as the standout of the race, but many observers strung with Milkwagon Joe, owned by Louis Schlosser of Chicago, the Elobee farms' Yankee Valor, or John D. Hertz' Owner's Choice, galloping winner of his two starts at Santa Anita this season.

The race was viewed as a preliminary test for possible contenders in the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby and the Kentuck Derby.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A precautious bridge player collects dividends. By starting out with an advance plan, he can keep his eyes peeled for danger. Or for a switcheroo that pays off in extra tricks.

My south hand was declarer at six spades in this deal:

NORTH
♥Q 10 9 8 6 3
♣9 2

WEST
♠9 7 6
♥K 7
♦K 9
♣K Q J 8 7 5

EAST
♠3
♥J 5 4 2
♦J 10 4 3
♣10 6 4

SOUTH
♠K J 10 8 5
♣A 3

West led the club king and when north spread the dummy hand, I had a study coming. Taking 12 tricks needed some good plan. A cross-ruff looked best without knowing who held which and what red kings.

My three side aces could be counted on. To take the other nine tricks, red suits could be trumped back and forth. Using all nine trumps separately this way would answer my needs.

Of course, there was danger of an early over-ruff by one of the opponents. That and a second club would kill my contract fast. If he then led a trump, my defeat might be more than one trick.

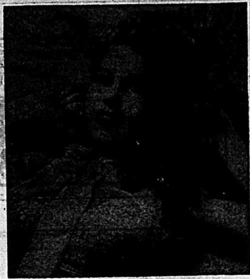
On the other hand, there was also the chance that a red king may drop early. No telling which red king. Or which red suit will stand up, if either. This told me not to lead trumps at the start.

Of these plans, an early drop of heart king would suit me best. Then the trumps could be pulled after trumping a diamond or two. The dummy hearts could be used for the final needed tricks.

So, club and heart and diamond aces were taken first. A dummy heart was ruffed in south. Lo the king dropped in west. A small diamond was led. Jeepers, the sparkling king fell as dummy ruffed.

A third heart was trumped high by south and diamond queen led. West ruffed and dummy overruffed. South won a trump lead and dummy ace took the next spade lead, exhausting opponent trumps.

The three dummy hearts are now good. On these, the club and remaining diamonds were thrown from south. Dummy club was trumped for the 13er trick. Looks zif this was one of my lucky nights.



AT THE McCARTHY — Gorgeous Evelyn Keyes is the woman in Al Jolson's life in Columbia's Technicolor "The Jolson Story," now at the McCarthy Theatre. Larry Parks plays Jolson in the film.

AT THE CAPITOL — Maureen O'Hara is the centre of both the musical and romantic attentions of Dick Haymes and Harry James, in "Do You Love Me," the gay new 20th. Century-Fox Technicolor musical opening Monday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program, the first city run comedy, "G. I. War Brides," starring Anna Lee and James Ellison.

AT THE BELLE — Betty Hutton and Sonny Tufts are very much "that way" in their new co-starring comedy-romance, Paramount's "Cross My Heart," which comes today to the Belle Theatre. Betty portrays a chronic liar — Sonny a too honest lawyer. Michael Chekhov is featured.

The Movie Column

By HELEN BANNERMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Marlene Dietrich can make even doughnuts glamorous. The star who brought glamor to the screen and still outranks her followers in the art told how she whipped up a batch of Austrian-style doughnuts—with jelly in the centre—for occupation troops in Germany.

Before she finished describing the operation on former film star Jinx Falkenburg's radio program she had her listeners' mouths watering.

"You beat them for a long time," said the sultry Dietrich voice, "and then you have to put them to sleep and after a while wake them up again and do more things. It takes a long time but the G. I.'s helped me so nobody got blisters."

Canadians Abroad

Lois Mexwell, 19-year-old Kitchener actress, who went to London with the Canadian army show and stayed to study dramatic art and seek a stage career, has signed a seven-year contract with Worner Brothers and will go to Hollywood soon.

Joanne Stout of Guelph wants to stay in Canada to pursue her dramatic career. The grand prize winner of the Whitehall Stars To Be contest says she's "tremendously impressed with New York but my heart's at home." She is a graduate of the Toronto Conservatory of Music's speech, art and drama course.

Accident

For the first time in the history of British movies, a naked girl has appeared on the screen — by accident.

The girl rode on a float marked "for export only" at the Chelsea Arts Ball at Albert Hall. Nobody knows whether her appearance was planned or impromptu but her performance was filmed by British Movietone News and included in a newsreel distributed through the country.

"Unfortunately, this shot was overlooked," said George Sanger, Movietone's new editor.

Two Bright Musical Productions Enliven Broadway Theatrical Season

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 18 — (CP) — Two of the brightest musical productions Broadway has seen in years have come to enliven a hitherto ordinary theatrical season — "Finian's Rainbow" and 'Street Scene."

The former is a satirical fantasy and the latter a musical adaptation of Elmer Rice's stark tragedy of life and death in a New York tenement. Though "Finian's Rainbow" is lighthearted and gay, in contrast to the grimness of 'Street Scene,' both touch on timely political, social and economic issues.

Loot from Deprechaun

"Finian's Rainbow" is set in the southern state of "Missitucky" in Rainbow Valley where share-croppers' land is to be auctioned to meet tax payments. Senator Billboard Rawkins, a rabid defender of white supremacy who wants the land for himself, is behind the move.

But his plans go awry when an elderly Irishman named Finian arrives on the scene, with his daughter, and with startling plans for making a fortune in the new world. He bears a pot of gold which he has "borrowed" from the Leprechauns of his native land. His idea is that, planted in the ground like the government gold at Fort Knox, Ky., his treasure will enrich the soil and make him wealthy as a tobacco grower. Finian is followed to America by a Leprechaun whose mission it is to recover the stolen crock of gold.

Finian secretes his loot when no one but the audience is watching. The buried gold has this magic power — anyone who stands over its hiding place while uttering a wish may have it granted.

The plot quickly develops. Wish one, uttered by Finian's daughter, Sharon, turns the white-supremacy Senator Black. Wish two enables Susan, a hill-billy girl born dumb, to speak. Wish three, uttered by the Leprechaun, saves Finian and his daughter from a lynching.

The denouement comes just in time. For the crock — as the Leprechaun solemnly explains — is good for three wishes only.

Horror and Pity!

"Street Scene" has been faithfully adapted as a musical. Kurt Weill's music and Langston Hughes' lyrics, with the book by playwright Rice left virtually intact, are combined into a moving drama. The leading roles are beautifully sung by a cast mostly recruited from opera.

Big Two!

In "The Big Two," a romantic comedy starring Claire Trevor and Philip Dorn, Miss Trevor is accomplished and entertaining as an American newspaperwoman hunting a scoop in the Rusian-occupied zone of Austria. Dutch-born Philip Dorn is almost as good as a stolid Russian Army captain sent to keep tab on her.

Air Wave Fantasy!

Two former Torontonians, Morris Surdin and Ray Darby, are the authors of "Once Upon a Tune," just launched as a weekly program story-feature over the Columbia Broadcasting System network. This fantasy in song and words revolves around the adventures of a ambitious tugboat named Danny.

Romance, Preferred

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

CHAPTER 9

Renny was due Sunday morning. Walking down Fifth avenue Saturday afternoon in the damp cool air, Arlen caught herself staring at children tugging at their parent's hands, peering out of car windows, looking excitedly from atop a bus, and wondering what kind of child Allison Maynard was. There was much in her that wanted to pity Renny, but she knew how he would hate the sentimental pity that Fanny had for him.

Arlen knew that the New York venture was far from successful. It had doubled her problems, drawn her into the lives of many people who were all too willing to thrust their burdens on her, and it had changed the whole scope and plan of her life. While Louise was kind, in time she would unleash her jagged nerves on her as she did on the servants. It was only the presence of Richard that spared her. It was to Louise and Richard, living an unreal life, rather than to Renny, who had a gift for living, that she directed her pity.

What would be the outcome of it, she asked herself, going into a store as the first drops of cold rain fell. The answer was far from satisfying. The future offered a vague friendship with Renny and perhaps marriage with Toby. She shuddered at the thought of going into marriage with so many doors in her that Toby, for all his sweet adoration, could never open.

She remembered words her mother had said to her: "Know yourself." Going about the daily business of living, she had often paused to heed those words. It was impossible to live as one wanted to. This selling of oneself to business, to society, to people who for many reasons had to be tolerated and respected brought about contradictions in oneself. Arlen was all for honesty and truth, but people were not interested in hearing the truth about themselves. They wanted their flaws fawned upon and flattered. She had a recollection of an experience in school when a girl appeared one day with a startling hair-cut. The girl in the next seat had admired the startling hair-cut and then turned to Arlen and said, "It looks terrible, doesn't it?" Arlen with quick anger had exclaimed, "Then why did you tell her it looked nice?"

It would be that way if she married Toby.

Renny was coming tomorrow. But the future offered only a vague friendship with Renny, she reminded herself. If she married Toby she would forever have to be telling him that what he did was "nice," find excuses for his shortcomings, and reassure him when he failed. There would be moments when her moods would shut him off from her, for he could never understand any one's desiring to be alone.

If she married Toby, she would be giving that side of herself for which she had only contempt, the Arlen Leeds whose manners were beyond reproach, who had a flair for wearing clothes, whose scant talk did not bore.

It was the other girl, the Arlen who had been nurtured on fine things by a fine mother, the girl with a deep awareness not only for people she passed on a crowded street, but an awareness of shadows thrown between buildings, the dusty blue of twilight, the Arlen who stepped from a room hazy with smoke to look into the night with wondering eyes, who walked in rain because she liked to taste it on her lips, and who listened to good music that touched deep, responsive chords in her—it was as that girl she wanted to go to a man in love and in marriage.

The meditative mood brought on by the thought of Renny, his daughter, and his mother looking through train windows upon which the rain was falling took her to a tea shop in the basement of a brownstone house. She had never drunk hotter, stronger tea. A parade of hurrying feet went by the window.

Coming out, she passed a shop and seeing a green velvet frock of monklike simplicity went in, tried it on, and came out with it under her arm. A frock for Renny !"He doesn't know," she thought, "with little Allison climbing over his knees, that I brought a dress for him. And some evening next week we'll go out together and I'll make myself as lovely as I can and hold myself in leash, feeling both pleasure and pain to be with him."

Seven o'clock, after a movie and dinner, found Arlen tapping against Elissa's door. Elissa, looking like a schoolgirl in a brilliantly plaided dress, her bangs stirring on her forehead, opened it.

Her room was as small as she had described it, its furnishings consisting of a dresser, a day-bed, and one chair. On the dresser were two photographs, one a snapshot of a scowling Renny in yatching clothes, the other a studio portrait of Elissa.

Elissa curled up on the day-bed. "I just got in, too. I tried my French on a customer today and it didn't go off badly. What's in the box you have?"

"A green velvet dinner dress," said Arlen, "that I couldn't resist. It begged me to buy it."

"For Renny?"

Their eyes met in perfect understanding. "Dear," said Elissa, "I know. You can lower your eyes when his name is mentioned but guilt is in every other feature. You shouldn't be ashamed of loving Renny."

"I'm not," Arlen said quickly. "I don't want to complicate his life more than it is already. He doesn't love me. If he knew I am in love with him, he'd treat me with such gentleness and tenderness that it would kill me. And it would embarrass him."

"Renny loves an ideal, my dear, not Christa. In his imagination he gave her qualities she could never live up to. I think perhaps that's one reason why their marriage failed."

Arlen smiled. "All my ideals came alive in him." She looked out the window, saw the rain beating down on the next-door roof. "To me, marriage seems more than preparing a man's breakfast and looking pretty when he comes home in the evening. I can't make it very clear what I do mean . . . but I want to share every thought with the man I marry. I want him to understand every flicker of my elelash. I don't want to keep any of myself from him. I don't want to be aloof and mysterious. And when I'm fifty and hear him coming in, I want to be breathless with excitement. I want," she hesitated and gave a low laugh. "I want Renny. All this afternoon I've been walking and bumping into people and arguing with myself . . . but I still want him. That's all I want," she said, looking up, "just Renny."

"You don't want me to lie to you," said Elissa. "You'd know if I did. Renny will have to see his ideal of Christa smashed into fine pieces before he can love any woman again. Her absence has probably enlarged the ideal. He'll have to be hurt more than she's already hurt him. Do you see?"

Arlen nodded. "And it will take a long time before he'll get over it, and a still longer time before he can look at a woman and not hate all women."

There was a knock on the door. Elissa said, "Come in," and a dark-haired boy who looked like a football giant from some rugged western university came in.

"This is Julian Heywood, my neighbor and co-cook," said Elissa, brightening. "We do amazing things with left-over potatoes and cheese. Julian, this is Arlen Leeds of whom you've heard me speak so often. She was the key to my independence and, except for her, I should be practicing my shorthand by the light of the moon on some park bench."

Julian Heywood was awkward and shy, but Arlen always found in shy awkward people a definite charm.

Elissa laughed. "Arlen, the boys are having a party tonight. All their stray fraternity brothers always come with their girls and we dine royally on the delicatessen's best. By twelve o'clock there are so many people there aren't enough chairs for half of them."

"Won't you join us?" Julian asked.

"Thank you, but I can't. Not tonight."

"But you must come some Saturday night," Elissa urged. "We have a marvelous time on about two dollars. Nobody dresses up because nobody has anything to dress up in."

"Convention for the unemployed," grinned Julian Heywood.

"But you will get something soon," said Elissa encouragingly. "I know it!"

Arlen pulled on her gloves. "I won't keep you from the party any longer. Richard and Louise have gone to a party, too, to which I was not invited. I'm going to read myself to sleep."

She went out into the rain and decided to walk. The avenue was like a slippery mirror and the motor cars like so many black bugs with giant eyes. Some contained women in ermine and orchids and men in tall silk hats. Taxis, darting here and there, were like truant children. Under a shop window, where diamonds were extravagantly displayed, a twisted beggar sat on the wet pavement. Lights from restaurants gleamed on the street. People seemed to be hurrying toward light and warmth.

Arlen looked up from the brim of her hat. Two more blocks to go. Her brown coat was wet and rain dripped from the brim of her hat. She hoped the rain had not soaked through the cardboard box and ruined the green velvet dress. The dress, since the first time she saw it, had been associated with the promised evening with Renny. Foolishly, she thought, it was as if her life depended upon that promised evening—but no more could come of it than dinner and dancing. But just thinking of it destroyed the thought of being alone tonight, with Renny speeding here on a train, Louise and Richard at a party, and Elissa dancing with Julian Heywood in a small smoky room with a dozen other people.

The elevator boy said, "Nasty evein', Miss Leeds."

"I don't mind it at all," said Arlen brightly.

When she stepped off the elevator, opened the sliding door and entered the drawing-room, her strength seemed to leave her. And as suddenly as it had left, it seemed to return. It was not her strength but Renny's, who got up and came to her, leading a little child by the hand.

She felt horribly ashamed of the way she looked and yet Renny, coming toward her with a look on his face that made it look stronger than ever, thought she had never looked lovelier. Sparkling rain was in her yellow hair. Her face was cool and moist and radiant. Seeing her like this made him feel happy and for some unknown reason—grateful.

Plans to be aloof dropped from her. In surprise and delight to find him here, her mouth curved into a smile and her eyes that were dark and soft looked at him with honesty unveiled—with love unashamed and undenied. She felt both content and physically disturbed, for his presence seemed to draw her up from the pit of dullness and doubt. A long time seemed to pass while she just stood there and looked at him and by her eyes and her smile tried to make clear to him more than words or touch could possibly say. In the world there were only Renny and she. But suddenly she looked down into the bright eyes of Allison Maynard. Arlen drew herself up, feeling no jealousy but again that aching loneliness of futility, knowing that a few feet of room did not separate Renny from her, but the ocean that Christa had put between them . . . and also this beautiful little girl with eyes like laughing stars.

* * *

"Letters from home, Madame," said Christa's buxom American maid and put the letters on her mistress' breakfast tray.

It was a clear windy day in Paris. Christa's boudoir, a high narrow room, was charactertistic of her in that furniture, clothes, books, cold cream jars, and jewelry enjoyed a careless proximity. Nothing in the room was neat. Her clothes were just as she had stepped from them the night before, and in the sunlight the toes of her dancing slippers were scuffled and the new satin gown had a wine spot on the bodice.

In the disorder of the room only Christa herself, enthroned in pillows, dressed for sleeping in blue satin, presented a pretty picture. She liked people to tell her she had an unusual face. That was not true, for her features and the texture of her skin were quite ordinary. People really meant that her eyes were unusual because they were long narrow eyes with short dark lashes. Her hair was dark and abundant. It was close cropped shining hair. Her teeth were small and perfect.

Drinking her orange juice, she opened a letter addressed to her in Elissa's round childish scrawl. Christa frowned and then smiled at the letter punctuated mostly by exclamation points. Drinking her coffee, she then read Fanny's letter, ten pages long and written in small close letters.

Nancy Starr found Christa breakfasting in bed, leaning expectantly over Fanny Sannor's long letter, forgetting that she held a small cup of coffee in her hand. Nancy Starr was a stylist who hid her homesickness by cryptic remarks and brutal honesty.

"News from home. I can tell it," said Nancy, throwing off her furs. "And just oozing with juicy gossip! What is it?"

Christa told her about Elissa in a troubled angry voice.

"Now wait," said Nancy. "You had a lot to do with what happened to Elissa. You bossed her, told her how to wear her hair, and selected her boy friends for her. Besides she believed that your marriage to Renny was made in heaven. A lot of her young ideals went up in smoke when you left Renny. I wouldn't judge her too much if I were you."

MAY BE SHUTDOWN

Glace Bay, N.S., Jan. 18 —(CP) —There will be a "major shutdown" in the Nova Scotia and New Brunswick coal fields if next Tuesday's Ottawa conference with the Federal Labor Department and Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation representatives fails to meet wage demands of the United Mine Workers (C.C.L.), Freemen Jenkins, U.M.W. District 26 president, said in an interview here last night.

"All local unions," he said, "are being advised that unless otherwise notified the existing contract will expire at midnight Jan. 31."

Army and Navy Veterans Win First Game of Int. A. Schedule By Defeating Queen's 6-4

First Line of Williams, L. Goyer and Gerow Score All the Tallies

The 1947 edition of the Belleville Intermediate "A" squad who wear the colors of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans of Canada, will do.

At least so thought upwards of thirteen hundred hockey addicts in the Memorial Arena Friday night as the big red team, showing plenty of signs of good coaching, defeated the highly touted Queen's University Seconds in the opening game of the "A" loop by a 6-4 score.

And they should have won by a larger margin. Their attacks were clicking despite the fact that the ice was anything but conducive to good hockey due to the mild weather. It was heavy going from the opening whistle and both sides overskated the puck or lost it when trying to stickhandle through the opposing defence.

Showed Plenty of Power.

The red team showed plenty of power on the attack and clearly outskated the students going both ways. The ace line of Leo Goyer, Timmy Williams and Walt Gerow carried plenty of scoring punch while the kid line of Bastedo and the Meagher brothers, Al and Bernie, carried the torch for their big brothers when they were on the ice. Vern Goyer and Clare Williamson, Mark Storms and Cal Yorke gave Gordie Cook plenty of protection and the whole team in its first performance before the home town crowd was a distinct "better" than the squad that wore the Redmen colors a year ago.

The Belleville team carried the attack to the students from the opening whistle and those who predicted a third period let-up due to condition were plainly disappointed. The Belleville squad was travelling at the same high speed during the last minutes of the game as it was during the opening ones.

The red-and-yellow garbed squad showed quite plainly the effects of their hard practice drills of the past few weeks. Both lines swept in on Queen's defence exhibiting fine passing plays and being particularly effective in front of the nets.

Made No Mistake

The game was only three minutes old when Leo Goyer, Timmy Williams and Walt Gerow raced down the ice abreast on one of Coach Shiels' power plays. Goyer whistled the puck over the blue line to Gerow and the flashy left winger darting in from the boards shot a perfect pass to Timmy Williams and the right winger made no mistake.

Five minutes later Cal Yorke, ex-junior star and one of the most improved players of the season, carried the rubber from his blue line, slung a pass over to Timmy Williams and the winger racing in close along the right boards tobied the rubber over to Leo Goyer who sank it to put the Vets two up.

Queen's, however, were battling hard and their forays carried them well inside the Belleville territory despite the hard checking of the Red defence. Ross, flashy right winger of the students scored the first Queen's goal at the eleven minute mark and that is the way the period ended.

Had Slight Edge

Queen's took the play to the Belleville team at the start of the second period and held an edge in territorial play for the first few minutes. W. McCafferty, one of the students' stars of the evening, tied the score at the four minute mark when he dashed in close to Cook and scored after taking a neat pass from his brother Pete.

The tally appeared to spark the Belleville team and six minutes later as Walt Gerow dashed in single-handed and scored the Reds' third goal. Seconds later the crowd stood up and roared as Timmy Williams on a combined power play took Vern Goyer's pass to put the Reds two up.

Queen's hurled themselves back into the picture five minutes later when the starry McCafferty brothers again combined for the students' third goal, but that was nullified ten seconds later when Cal Yorke again engineered an attack from his blue line, swept down the ice and relayed the rubber to Williams who slid it over to Walt Gerow and again the tall winger made no mistake.

The third period wa sa nip and tuck affair with Queen's counting on another smart effort by the McCaffertys and Belleville getting the goal back in the dying moments of the game when Walt Gerow scored his third goal of the game with assists going to Leo Goyer and Tim Williams.

Game Held Up.

The game was held up for nearly three-quarters of an hour due to transportation difficulties on the part of the visitors. The "A" season was officially opened with Mayor Frank Follwell dropping the puck between the sticks of President Bill McKenna and Sports Chairman Rex Young of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Branch here who are sponsoring the Belleville team.

The McCaffertys, Mercier and Ross were the best for Queen's. And while the first line of Leo Goyer, Williams and Gerow stole the scoring thunder, the rest of the team deserve pats on the back for a good job with an extra one going to Cal Yorke, Williamson and Vern Goyer.

The teams:

Belleville ANAFS—Goal, Cook; defence, Yorke, V. Goyer; centre, L. Goyer; wings, Williams, Gerow; Subs, Storms, Williamson, Bastedo, Al Meagher, B. Meagher, B. Gerow.

Queen's University—Goal, MacDonald; defence, Stevens, Pownall; centre, Morisette; wings, Fletcher, J. Ross; subs, Hamilton, Headley, Simmons, P. McCafferty, W. McCafferty, Mercier, Kent.

ALL TEAMS, PLAY TWO GAMES THIS N.H.L. WEEKEND

Leafs Meet Detroit This Saturday Night and Play in Boston Sunday

(By The Canadian Press)

Every team in the National Hockey League plays two games this weekend, and probably none of them melt as complacent as the Toronto Maple Leafs, safely over their two-game series with Montreal Canadiens in which they garnered three points out of a possible four.

The Leafs and Canadiens tied 1-1 in Montreal Thursday after Leafs had won 2-1 in Toronto Wednesday. That leaves the Leafs starting the weekend fray with a nine-point advantage over Canadiens, and the four other teams way behind. This long lead of Leafs over Canadiens hasn't happened in years.

Leafs got through the mid-week warfare against Canadiens with a sadly-reduced staff. Four regulars were out of commission. But Harry Watson is expected back on the ice shortly, leaving Vic Lynn, Bob Goldup and Garth Boesch in the invalid ward. Goldham may be out for the rest of the season.

Tonight Jack Adams and his Detroit Red Wings invade Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto and few Toronto fans were worrying about the outcome.

The New York Rangers were scheduled at the Montreal Forum, where the Canadiens were out for blood. Apart from the series against Leafs this wek, Canadiens have seen five games go by without their appearance in the win column.

Tonight's third game has Chicago Black Hawks at Boston Gardens, and the cellar-dwelling Hawks are in the mood to upset things. If they do, and if Canadiens knock off the Rangers, the Hawks will be within fighting distance of the Detroit Red Wings.

On Sunday night the Leafs travel to Boston, Canadiens go to Detroit and Chicago are at New York.

"Lil" Arthur King, Joey Bagnato Are Ready For Fray

Weight conditions are expected to have a big bearing on the outcome of the waited-for return battle between the sensational young "Lil Arthur" King and the hard punching Joey Bagnato, scheduled for Monday night at Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto.

In their previous hectic battle, Bagnato was required to make a poundage of 132 at two o'clock on the day of the fight.

At the official weighing Bagnato missed the mark a good pound and a half, scaling 133½ pounds.

Given two hours to take off the extra poundage, did some impromptu road work and succeeded in shedding one half a pound.

The net result being that he lost a $200.00 weight forfeit, but wound up the winner in the fight.

Women Invade Last Sports Stand by Taking Part In Billiard and Snooker Tourneys

Will Open Championship Series in London at End of February

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

By JACK SULLIVAN

London, Jan. 18. (CP)—Lay that cue down, gents, the jig is up. And remember, when the black ball defies gravity and hovers on the lip of the pocket, there are ladies present.

In short, women have invaded what is probably our last sports stand—around the billiards and snooker table. Gone are the days when the men adjourn to the "play room" while the girls attend to shiny noses.

The latest, so help us, is a women's amateur snooker and billiards championship in London at the end of February, open to players of England, Scotland, Wales, Northern Ireland and Eire.

"And we have hopes some day, in the near future, of an Empire championship," says Bessie Wright, joint secretary, with Joy White, of the Women's Billiards Association of Britain.

Bessie, born in Toronto, "a few years ago" (we'd hazard about 25, ma'am) came to Britain at the age of six. She says the men aren't very co-operative, but it must be admitted these pulchritudinous proponents of the green-topped table have made a pretty good "break".

The W.B.A. was formed nearly 15 years ago but it's been snookered plumb behind the eight-ball until this year when Bessie and Joy decided to make it an active organization. Neither plays the game "because we have not the time."

Bessie and Joy are secretaries with the B.A.C.C. and all this talk of "centuries" and "breaks" and "in-offs" and "caroms" gave them ideas. Being efficient secretaries and endowed with their share of feminine charm, they got around the bosses easily.

It isn't known how many women players there are and the organizers won't even hazard a guess. They admit, though, the stanoard of play doesn't threaten the male cue experts.

"We have all the necessary attributes—the fine touch, sensitiveness and so on—but our temperament beats us."

An entry list of 75 to 100 is expected for the first annual tournament. Bessie and Joy now are asking billiards-hall proprietors all over the country— with the backing of the control council—to set aside "Ladies' Nights" and in 1948 they hope to conduct regional championships with the winners competing in London.

PRISONERS VERY HAPPY

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 18 (AP).—A jailer noted that the 16 prisoners in the east wing of the Sangamon County jail appeared happy as larks the last three days. Frequently one would burst out into a care-free song and the others would join in.

Paul Hannon, jail committee chairman, disclosed the reason for the musical enthusiasm. Hannon, on a visit, heard an off-note buzzing sound during a lull.

Now they are looking for another little boy to keep Timothy company, and make an even division—two girls, two boys. They are pictured as they appeared in court to sign the adoption papers.

Byrnes Signs Treaties With Italy, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria

Washington, Jan. 20 — (AP) — United States State Secretary Byrnes, as a final-official act, today signed the Second World war peace treaties with Italy, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

Chairman Arthur Vandenberg (Rep. Mich.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Senator Tom Connally (Dem.-Tex.), who took part in the 16 months of negotiations on the compacts, were at Byrnes' side in the ceremony at the State Department.

There will be a second signing of the treaties at Paris Feb. 10 when representatives of the enemy satellite states will affix their signatures.

Other Allies will sign the treaties at the same time. Ambassador Jefferson Caffery will act then for the United States.

Today's ceremony was arranged chiefly to permit Byrnes to sign the treaties before turning over his office to Gen. Marshall.

Talmadge Refuses To Yield Post To Lieut.-Governor

Atlanta, Jan. 20. (AP)—In a face-to-face encounter across the executive desk, Herman Talmadge refused to yield the governorship of Georgia to Lieutenant-Governor M. E. Thompson, who claims to be "acting governor".

Thompson immediately announced he would occupy the office of Senate President on the second floor of the State Capitol "until this matter is fully adjudicated by the Courts of Georgia".

Talmadge told Thompson "you have no right to claim this office. There is no vacancy. The General Assembly of Georgia has elected me as governor:"

Thompson said "I take issue with you on that. If the court decide that I am lawful governor I call on you to co-operate with me full in the best interests of the state. By the same token, if you are declared governor it is my purpose to co-operate with you."

Thompson said "Then there is no argument between us but that this shall go to a decision in the courts?"

Talmadge answered in the affirmative and Thompson arose to leave, saying he would occupy offices of the Senate President until the matter is adjudicated.

Talmadge rose and said "There will be no objection from me."

Will Defend By Force

At the same time Attorney-General Eugene Cook was ready to announce details of additional litigation against the 33-year-old son of the late Eugene Talmadge, this time to prevent his use of State funds and property.

In a rapid-fire exchange of statements yesterday, Talmadge, elected chief executive by the General Assembly last week, accused Thompson of threatening use of force in gaining the executive chambers, adding that "we are amply able to defend the governor's office and will do so if necessary".

The 43-year-old Thompson, laying claim to the post as Acting Governor since taking the oath as Lieutenant-Governor Saturday and Ellis Arnall's subsequent resignation as governor, promptly retorted he had never contemplated using force.

"I am perfectly willing, as always, to trust my case entirely to the courts," he sand.

He said that should he be denied entrance to the offices, he planned to work as acting governor from a desk in the chamber of the Senate President.

Three Passengers Injured as T.T.C. Car Hits Switch

Toronto, Jan. 20 —(CP)— Three passengers and a motorman were injured today when a Toronto Transportation Commission street car hit an open swith on Lansdowne Avenue near Bloor Street in West Toronto. The car plunged into the Lansdowne Street car barns, tore down telephone poles on the way. Part of the barn roof collapsed on the street car.

The passengers were shaken up but able to leave. Fire which broke out in the car was quickly extinguished.

Injured were motorman Herbert Hale; George Varley, 36; Albert Dunford, 20; and Ralph Petherwick, 33. Hale suffered a leg injury, the others injuries to leg and shoulders.

T.T.C. officials said the accident tied up transportation services in the area for 32 minutes.

BURNED TO DEATH IN FIRE

Hawke Junction, Ont., Jan. 20—(CP)—Herbert H. Garland, 30, was burned to weath early Sunday in a $5,000 fire that demolished the bungalow home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Owens. Garland, an R.C.A.F. war veteran, was Algoma Central Railway conductor on the north run to Hearst, Ont.

BRUCE SAUNDERS, FUGITIVE CONVICT, IS RECAPTURED

Surrounded by Posse on Sunday Night and Gives Up Without Struggle

Tillsonburg, Jan. 20 —(CP)— Bruce Saunders, 21-year-old convicted car thief who escaped police custody at Woodstock late Friday, was cold and hungry and offered no resistance when he was surrounded by a posse Sunday night in bush near Tillsonburg, 20 miles south of Woodstock.

Police said that Saunders was in possession of a pistol taken from police chief Roy Corbett of Tillsonburg on the steps of the Woodstock County jail when he made his get away Friday night in the chief's car, easily out-distancing slower cars in which police took up the chase. The fugitive also possessed a revolver and both weapons were loaded, police said.

But Saunders merely remarked "Okay boys" as he surrendered when the posse finally caught up with him after missing him by only a few minutes at a deserted house earlier in the same neighborhood, near Cultus, 15 miles from here. He was tracked swiftly from the house, on the Norfolk-Elgin county line, to the spot in the bush where he surrendered.

Saunders was brought to Tillsonburg in handcuffs and was searched before being taken under heavy guard to Woodstock County jail. He had been convicted at Tillsonburg Friday for car theft and remanded in custody until Jan. 31 in connection with investigation of a robbery.

In Tillsonburg somcone slipped an automatic to him, and he pointed the weapon at Chief Corbett Friday night when the officer had taken him right to the front door of the Woodstock jail.

Saunders had marched the chief to a park, trussed him up and then fled in the Chief's car. Provincial Police started the hunt almost immediately and sighted the fugitive car going through Tillsonburg, where police shots were fired, but they temporarily lost track of him.

14 Million Trees Will be Available For Reforestation to Ontario in 1947

Toronto, Jan. 20 —(CP)— Some 12,000,000 to 14,000,000 trees will be available for reforestation purposes in Ontario in 1947, E. J. Zavitz reported today at the opening of a week-long conference of 75 senior officials of the Ontario Forestry Branch, comprising district and regional foresters from all parts of the province and senior men in the department's head office here.

Mr. Zavitz, who directs the reforestation program, said that some of the trees were miscellaneous hardwood but most were red and white pine and white spruce. He added that private tree planting normally requires 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 trees a year and that another 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 are needed for crown and municipal tree planting projects.

Actually, reforestation projects in Southern Ontario could make use of all the trees grown by the department. However, trees would be allotted to Northern Ontario districts also, mostly spruce and pine.

Mr. Zavitz said a new nursery opened at Fort William in 1946 but would not be producing trees in time for planting this year.

Both Mr. Zavitz and I. X. Marrit, Lake Huron district forester from Galt explained the operation of a tree-planting machine which was developed in the United States and improved by an Ontario engineer.

Hon. Harold R. Scott, recently appointed minister of lands and forests, welcomed the officials and paid tribute to the administrative skill of his predecessor, W. G. Thompson, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Kent East who resigned the portfolio recently to devote his time to private business.

Mr. Scott, recalling that he spent 16 years as a lumberman, promised the officials that he would devote all possible time to the office.

COST FOR MEALS, USED CARS, SHOES UPPED BY BOARD

10 Per Cent Increase Allowed Restaurants And up to 11 For Men's Shoes

Ottawa, Jan. 20 — (CP)—Living costs jumped ahead today, particularly for Canadians who eat in restaurants, as ceiling boosts on three important items became effective.

The increases, announced by the Prices Board last night, were:

1. A 10-per-cent increase in prices of restaurant meals containing meat, poultry, eggs or fish.
2. Used automobiles and used trucks increased by 10 and seven per cent respectively.
3. Increases of 11 and nine per cent respectively in prices of men's and women's shoes.

Restaurant increases will apply also to sandwiches containing hot cooked meat, poultry or eggs, which may be raised by five cents. Meals costing 50 cents yesterday may be raised to 55 cents, while a 10-per-cent increase will apply on meals between 50 cents and $1. The increase is limited to 10 cents on servings costing more than $1.

A rise of 16 per cent in the food index brought about the new adjustments, Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, said in a statement.

The Board's announcement concerning leather forecast a whole series of related increases, to be announced shortly, on all leather goods, such as purses, gloves, leather clothing and harness.

Reason behind the increases was an adjustment in the ceiling on cattle hides of three cents a pound, with corresponding increases for other types of hides.

The increases will range from 10 to 17½ per cent, and will probably increase the immediate supply of hides and skins from domestic sources, raising Canadian hide prices to a level more nearly competitive with foreign markets. Increased costs to the tanning industry also were taken into account in making the adjustments.

It was learned that the move will prevent the withholding of hides for speculation and increase their flow to tanners.

The increase in used car and truck prices followed a similar increase last month in the prices of new vehicles.

TRUCK DRIVER KILLED AS VEHICLE GOES THRU RAIL

Ernest Pope, Toronto, Burns in Vehicle After Dropping 75 Feet at Rouge Hill

Rouge Hill, Ont., Jan. 20—(CP)—Ernest Pope of Toronto was killed early today when the large transport truck-and-trailer he was driving plunged through the guard rail of the Rouge River bridge, 15 miles west of Toronto. The vehicle tore a 75-foot swath down the heavily-wooded west embankment before piling up in flames on the bank.

Two other automobiles also were involved in the accident and police said road conditions at the time were "impossible." A driving rain, which froze as it fell, rendered road conditions treacherous and visibility poor.

Pickering Fire Department was called and had to extinguish the blaze before Pope's body could be removed. It was later taken to Pickering, where Coroner Dr. V. E. Cartwright ordered an inquest.

The two other cars involved were driven by Jack Lyall, Toronto, and Nicholas Culetta of Scarboro Bluffs, a Toronto suburb.

Pope, a driver for Direct-Winters Transport of Toronto, left on an eastbound trip at 1.33 a.m. and the accident occurred just 27 minutes later.

Transport Jack-Knifed

Lyall, driving west along the highway with Mayo Hillier of Toronto as passenger, said he noticed Pope's transport approach the bridge. Suddenly, he told police, the transport jack-knifed and the swerving trailer smashed into his car, badly damaging it.

His car carried on some distance, he said, before he was able to stop it. By the time he was able to get out to see what had happened to the transport it had torn through 60 to 70 feet of guard-rail on the south side of the bridge and was in flames at the bottom of the embankment.

Marshall to Take Oath as Secretary Of State Tuesday

Washington, Jan. 20. (AP)—Gen. Marshall will take his oath as United States Secretary of State tomorrow at the White House.

Gen. Marshall originally was scheduled to be sworn in at 11 a.m. today but bad weather forced his plane to land at Chicago on a flight from the West Coast.

(At Chicago it could not be learned immediately whether Gen. Marshall would proceed to Washington by train or would wait for weather to clear permitting resumption of the flight.)

A crowded schedule had been lined up today for Marshall who will retire from the army as soon as he takes the oath as Secretary from Chief Justice Fred N. Vinson.

Included was an afternoon conference with President Truman and retiring State Secretary Byrnes. The latter had expected to leave for his Spartansburg, S.C., home tonight.

There is plenty of work ahead for Marshall, including preparation for the Big Four Foreign Ministers conference at Moscow in March on German and Austrian peace settlements. The United States delegation will leave in about a month for the Soviet capital.

Urge Drew To Stop Anti-Russian Propaganda

Toronto, Jan. 20. (CP)—The convention of the Ontario Provincial Federation of Labor (A.F.L.) yesterday passed resolutions urging Premier Drew of Ontario to stop "anti-Russian propaganda" and protesting charges laid in Quebec against Kent Rowley, Canadian director of the United Textile Workers (A.F.L.), and other union members as the result of a textile strike last Summer at Valleyfield.

Murray Friedman, representing Toronto retail clerks, said in support of the Drew resolution that the Ontario Premier's speeches criticizing Russia were "a smoke screen to hide his inaction for progressive legislation".

Mr. Rowley, who attended the convention representing some 100,000 Ontario workers, charged that Premier Duplessis of Quebec is destroying civil liberties.

DR. O. M. SOLANDT DECLARES ARCTIC RESEARCH VITAL

Thorough Knowledge Essential to Regional Defence and Development

Toronto, Jan. 20. (CP)—Dr. O. M. Solandt, director-general of Defence Research for Canada's three services — science post equal to that of a Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces—told the Association of Professional Engineers, Saturday, that a knowledge by Canadians of her own Arctic was imperative to the defence of the country.

"A thorough knowledge of the Arctic and its problems is essential both to the regional defence of North America and to the normal peaceful development of the Canadian North," he said. "This knowledge can only be obtained by a well-planned, long-term program of research and development."

Dr. Solandt insisted that a comprehensive knowledge of every department of Science as related to the north must be obtained. Accelerated mapping and charting, a study of snow conditions and densities, the geology, mineralogy, and terrain and the flora and fauna must be studied to gain a composite picture of the north.

"The Soviet Union has already established many meteorological station in the Arctic and is supplying the results of their observations to the world." There are many gaps in the system of weather stations in Canada's north, he said, and it is hoped they will be filled in shortly.

In outlining the type of defence research being planned by his department, Dr. Solandt said: "The fields of research should be chosen to make use of special Canadian resources and capabilities and should, where possible produce results of peacetime value. Such a program will make an important contribution to national strength but in no way will increase the likelihood of war."

DEATH TOLL IN SHIP DISASTER PLACED AT 437

Steamship Chimarra Sinks 20 Miles East Of Athens on Sunday After Hitting Mine

Athens, Jan. 20 (AP)— The Merchant Marine Ministry today increased to 437 the list of persons missing and believed dead in the sinking of the 1,800-ton Greek Steamship Chimarra, which went down 20 miles east of Athens yesterday after an explosion officially blamed on a mine.

Latest figures radioed here from shipping offices in Salonika indicated the doomed vessel was carrying 548 passengers and a crew of 87 when she left there Saturday.

Thus far, the Marine Ministry said, only 198 survivors are definitely known.

Officials of the Ministry, which said last night that the former German passenger ship had struck a mine, declined to comment on a report that the vessel was a victim of sabotage. There was no indication, however, that they gave any credence to the report.

Aristides Mytakis, 44-year-old school teacher who survived the disaster, estimated that almost 200 of the casualties were women and children.

"I am afraid every child aboard was lost and 95 per cent of the women," he said.

Mytakis said the ship sank so quickly that only two of her lifeboats could be launched. He described the vessel's decks as a "solid wall of cursing, fighting men" struggling frantically to save their lives.

The Chimarra, which sailed from Salonika Saturday, hit the mine a few miles off shore from Rafina. Mytakis said the ship's master attempted to beach the vessel, but was prevented from doing so by a broken rudder control.

Wireless Operator George Freris, the master of the ship and the first and second mates were the last to leave the sinking ship. They wore life belts.

"We swam for several hours before we managed to get a hold on some barrels," Freris said. "This helped save our lives. Later we were picked up by a caique. There were about 30 survivors on the caique, which was heavily loaded."

62.6 Ounces Gold To Ton 'Biggest Ever' in S. Africa

Johannesburg, South Africa, Jan. 20 (Reuters)—South African gold mining interests today are awaiting government confirmation that three mining leases had been granted in the Orange Free State, where the "biggest ever" gold strike—62.6 ounces to the ton—was made near the isolated township of Odenaalsrust last April.

The find caused a boom in gold shares and in land buying.

ALMOST DEMOLISHED IN GARAGE FIRE

Niagara Falls, Jan. 20 (CP)—One C.N.R. passenger bus was almost demolished and another partially burned in an $8,000 flash fire in the company garage here early today. The fire, firemen said was caused when gasoline fumes seeped into a natural gas heater while a mechanic was working on a bus engine.

Communist-Directed "Democratic Bloc" Ran Poland's Election--Munro

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Warsaw, Jan. 20 —(CP)—The powerful political and propaganda machine of the Communist-directed "Democratic Bloc" ran Poland's general election yesterday under gray, bleak skies.

At every polling station I visited in Warsaw and surrounding villages during a four-hour tour the operation of the machine was the most notable feature.

Poles experienced in the political complexities of this confused country say this sort of thing is typical in Poland. There is only one difference. In the years before 1935, when the last election was held, a semi-dictatorship ran the machine. Now it's the Communists.

The machine always wins in Poland, they cynically add.

There was not the slightest direct interference yesterday, however, with the actual voting. As far as I could see the polling stations were completely orderly.

But the Bloc's fierce and sometimes violent campaign during the last few weeks with police Hooligan action against the opposition Polish Peasant (P.S.L.) party did the job of fear suggestion among the electorate.

Few appeared to be taking charge of voting against the Bloc although it was estimated the majority of voters probably would normally support the P.S.L.

Opposition fighting for a lost cause against the Communists seemed to have given up the ghost, in fact.

While groups of enthusiastic Bloc agents stood in slushy streets near each polling station distributing white papers bearing the number 3, which was the Bloc's ballot to those who did not have one already I didn't spot a single P.S.L. representative handing out their number 4 papers.

One Pole said he cast his ballot: "This is a big three election."

Muncey Indian Says He Killed London Student

Claims Gun Was Discharged Accidentally in Motor Car

London, Ont., Jan. 20—(CP) — Lloyd Nicholas, Muncey Reserve Indian, told a Supreme Court jury today that he killed Eldon Meredith accidentally with a Luger pistol Aug. 24 last and he absolved his friend, Joseph French,. who is jointly charged with the murder of the University of Western Ontario medical student of any complicity.

Nicholas said he had hitch-hiked a ride with Meredith, who was en route home to Wallaceburg, and he was explaining the action of the weapon which Nicholas took from his suitcase. Meredith made a move to take the loaded pistol to examine it more closely and it fired suddenly when Nicholas tried to keep possession of the weapon.

A few second later as the car swerved into the ditch, Nicholas recounted that the pistol fired again while he and Meredith had their hands on it. Both shots pierced Meredith's right side.

After that, Nicholas claimed his mind "snapped" and after driving around sideroads his 'instinct' led him back to the Muncey Reserve, where he hid the body in the bushes. It was then that he met French for the first time that day and French asked for a ride to London. Nicholas persuaded French to drive him to Delhi, explaining "I wanted to first tell my sister, Fay, who worked in Delhi, and then I intended to give myself up."

Nicholas and French were arrested at Delhi the same night.

External injuries about Meredith's face and body were caused, Nicholas claimed, when the unconscious Meredith bounced against the dashboard as the car jolted over a railway crossing and also when he dragged him into the bushes at Muncey. Previous Crown evidence was that some of the injuries were probably caused before death.

This was the sixth day of the trial. Saturday's sittings ended with a dramatic adjournment after Nicholas broke down on the witness stand and said: "I've been locked in a death cell for four months for killing a man who did nothing to me."

May Adjourn Arms Reduction Plans Two Weeks

Lake Success, N.Y., Jan. 20 — (AP)— A United States motion to postpone United Nations discussion of world-wide arms reductions plans for two weeks appeared assured of passage today by the Security Council.

Only Russia stood opposed to the move on the basis of past arguments as the delegates assembled after a weekend recess.

Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate, asked the delay until Feb. 4 because of James F. Byrnes' resignation as secretary of state and to allow more time for studying a series of preliminary proposals tossed into the council hopper by Russia, France, Colombia and Australia.

He was represented as being opposed to any form of compromise which might provide for immediate establishment of a sub-committee to start the work of a suggested 11-nation disarmament commission.

Within a week Austin plans to meet Gen. Marshall, incoming state secretary, in a series of conferences expected to lay the groundwork for a basic American policy on the whole broad question of arms slashing.

The United States planned to resist setting up a disarmament commission even next month. However, it was expected that Austin would agree to such a body if other delegates insisted, but would demand that all weapons of mass destruction be considered by the currently functioning atomic energy commission and not by any new arms commission.

After disposal of the arms motion, the council will be ready to take up British charges that Albania was responsible for sowing mines in the Corfu Channel, leading to the damaging of two British destroyers with 44 casualties last Oct. 22.

Albania rejected the complaint and in turn accused Britain of violating territorial waters. The American delegation was reported weighing the possibility of suggesting that the case be referred to the international court of justice.

Nottingham Rallies About Out-of-Work V.C.

Nottingham, England, Jan. 20 (CP)—One of the first two British soldiers to receive the Victoria Cross in the Second World War—L. Cpl. Harry Nicholls—is out of work and destitute here, but Nottingham is rallying around to set him on his feet.

Nicholls, who suffers attacks of dizziness due to war wounds and has an ailing wife and seven-year-old daughter, recently applied for public assistance. The national union of shopkeepers is investigating his case and may set him up as a sports outfitter, financed by public subscription.

Nichols, one-time heavyweight boxing champion of the Imperial services, served with the Grenadier Guards. He won the V.C. for a single-handed attack on a German machine-gun nest during the Dunkerque retreat in May, 1940.

City and District News

VICTORIA AVENUE POOR PARKING LOT

As a parking lot Victoria Ave. has fallen considerably since Friday night in the estimation of Clayton Webb, 298½ Dufferin Ave.

During the evening Mr. Webb left his auto parked on Victoria Ave. in the John Street district and when he returned he discovered a ruined fender, victim of some unknown passing motorist's automobile. The fender was beyond repair and will have to be replaced. Anyway you look at it Mr. Webb is the loser.

ARREST FOLLOWS CRASH

Result of a head-on collision between two motor vehicles near Cannifton on Saturday night, Ella McFarlane Parry Sound, suffered minor injuries, while driver of the one motor, Harold B. Crossley, 367 Coleman Street, was arrested by police on charges of driving while intoxicated and of dangerous driving.

According to police the accident occurred when a southbound auto driven by Mr. Crossley was in collision with a northbound car driven by Eric Wright off Parry Sound. Mrs. McFarlane suffered an injured knee, and was the only person suffering injuries as a result of the accident. Cars were proceeding comparatively slowly at the time, it was stated.

ELECTED DIRECTORS TO BE INSTALLED

Newly elected directors of the Chamber of Commerce will be installed in office at the weekly luncheon of the directorate held in the chamber offices this Thursday. It is expected that the 1947 president will be elected by the body at that meeting. Mr. Lorne McDougall, who was re-elected as a director is the present head of the Chamber.

HON. THOS. L. KENNEDY TO BE GUEST SPEAKER AT FAREWELL BANQUET

Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, minister of agriculture for Ontario will be the guest speaker at a farewell banquet to be held at Stirling on Monday evening, Feb. 3rd, in honor of H. Lynn Fair, agriculture representative for Hastings who has been transferred to Ontario county.

The banquet is being held at the Stirling community hall and is to be sponsored by the various community groups in the county.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPT. WILL SUPPLY SAND

Like the old adage of water never being missed until the well runs dry, city residents never want sand until the streets are a mass of ice and then they all want it at the same time.

This, according to Alderman William Harvey, chairman of public works, was never more true than this morning when as result of the overnight rain sidewalks were in an extremely treacherous condition.

However, the public works department is willing to furnish sand to city householders and all they have to do is ask for it. Householders are advised to leave containers at the curb in which public works employees may leave the sand.

And just as a reminder. It might be a wise idea to keep a supply of sand on hand.

MAURICE CALLAGHAN SLASHES WRIST ON SAWING MACHINE

Suffering a deep gash in his wrist when his leather mitten got caught in the machinery as he reached to adjust the motor of his ice sawing machine, Mr. Maurice Callaghan, of Callaghan's Ice, was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday after having lost considerable blood. Members of the family reported this morning that although the gash had been fairly deep, the injury was not of a serious nature and Mr. Callaghan was expected out of the hospital in a few days.

NEW BARBER PRICES GO INTO EFFECT

The new scale of prices for Belleville barber shops went into effect today.

City barbers reported no great rush of business over the usual trade on Saturday, the last day of the old scale. Shops today went through the usual routine with the average number of customers in attendance. According to a number of Front Street barbers, there was little or no adverse comment on the scale increase in hair cuts.

I.O.O.F. Holds Annual 'At Home'

Madoc.—On Wednesday evening the members of Madoc I.O.O.F., held their annual "At Home" in the hall, having as their guests their wives, friends and members of the Oakdale Rebekah Lodge.

C. I. Ross, chairman, in a brief address welcomed the guests after which the following program was given: quartet, "Stars of the Summer Night" by the Messrs. Hawthorne, a father and three sons; greetings from District No. 45 were brought by D.D.G. Master Bro. Burkitt of Springbrook Lodge; solo, "The Cat Came Back", by Mr. Archie Kincaid; presentation of a 25-year jewel to Bro. Wm. Hawthorne by Dr. S. R. Beatty, P.D.D.G.M.; duet "Yours and Mine", Mrs. Kenneth Nicol and Mr. C. I. Ross; presentation of certificate to Bros. Harry Blakely, Bob Jones, Pete Stevens, Lloyd Blue, Herb Radner and Newt Kincaid by Rev. A. Poulter, P.N.G.

The highlight of the evening followed a brief resume of the history of the I.O.O.F. by E. T. Nayler, Noble Grand, at the time the block was purchased from Mr. Shaw of Belleville. The block was formerly known as the Weiss Block. The Burning of the Mortgage followed with Bro. (Rev.) A. Poulter, P.N.G., Bro. R. A. Woods holder of the mortgage and the two oldest members of Madoc Lodge. Bro. Gardiner Mitts, of Ivanhoe, 65 years a member and Bro. W. H. Brooks, of Belleville, 58 years a member. A solo "Wedding Bells" by C. I. Ross, dedicated to Jack and Jill Kincaid, concluded a very pleasant program. A bounteous buffet supper was served in the dining hall and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

City Workers Slither to Work On Icy Roads

City workers of office, plant, factory and shop slithered and slued to work this morning after a heavy night's rain had reduced pavement and highway to treacherous icy surfaces.

Sand and other anti-slip material was washed away by the rain and many pedestrians deserted the sidewalks to take the equally hazardous roadways.

Several falls were reported as rubber-shod pedestrians lost their footing. One man was injured when struck by a city taxi-cab when the vehicle skidded and was unable to avoid striking the pedestrian.

Highways, however, are reported to be in fairly good condition with the rights-of-way being bare in many places. Travel is said to have been fairly good although the roads were slippery in spots.

Local Club to Observe 32nd Anniversary Of Kiwanis International

Members of the Kiwanis Club of the city will observe the 32nd anniversary of Kiwanis International during the week of January 20 to 25 with a program based on the service organization's 1947 administrative theme, "Build for Peace—Patriotism—Opportunity."

Mr. Jack White, recently elected president of the local club, said today that plans for the anniversary meeting, to be held at noon on Tuesday, had been completed.

Outstanding features of the program will be the reading of a message from J. N. Emerson, Pullman, Wash., president of Kiwanis International, and announcement of this year's objective.

Mr. White revealed that 11 men attended the initial meeting, which created Kiwanis, in the winter of 1915 at Detroit. Since that time, the organization's membership has risen until today it stands at 170,000 in 2,550 clubs throughout the United States, Canada and Alaska.

During 1946, Kiwanis International threw its strength and resources behind the United Nations, endeavored to mould sound public opinion by keeping business and professional leaders informed on vital national and international issues, and sponsored thousands of worthwhile community projects ranging from aid to underprivileged children to support of churches in their spiritual aims.

"It's Not Quite Right," They Cry, "Nor Fair To Pay for Trims When Hair Ain't There"

Strange sounds are heard in many homes,
Whose heads sport shiny cue-ball domes,
They're wailing high to Heaven's blue
"Oh What," they cry," what can we do?"
It ain't our fault and it ain't quite fair
To tax us 'cause we're shy on hair
And now we're told these barber gents
Have upped the price to fifty cents
For cutting, trimming, clipping hair
No matter if, or not, it's there

Now take the guys with the bushy tops,
Whose close-grown hair resembles mops,
Who greet the barber with elation
With heads like new reforestation.
These are the birds, it's common sense
Who should be taxed the fifty cents.

But what of us, the thin-haired crew,
Minority, we'll admit it's true,
The butt of jokes, away, at home
Because we sport a shiny dome,
Or monkish pate with naught atop
Human surreys with fringe on top
Why should we be fully taxed
Because our heads are sparsely thatched.
No fairness has to us been shown
From this time on we'll cut our own.

Thick Ice Forces U.S. Submarine To Quit Research in Antarctic

Little America, Jan. 20 (AP)—Admiral Richard Cruzen announced Saturday night that the submarine Sennet will abandon its attempt to penetrate the ice pack guarding Little America and will start back to the United States about Feb. 1.

"There's just too much ice," Cruzen said.

The submarine tried unsuccessfully to get through the pack with the other ships of the central group of the United States Navy's expedition. But after five days of battling the ice the task proved too dangerous and the Sennet was led back to the vicinity of Scott Island by the icebreaker Northwind.

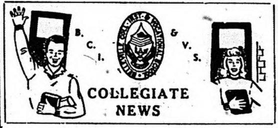
The Northwind then returned and led the flagship Mt. Olympus and the cargo ships Yancey and Merrick onto Little America.

The Sennet now is making underwater studies of temperatures salinity and microscopic life in the vicinity of Scott Island. Cruzen said it will make no under ice tests because they are "not particularly worthwhile in that neck of the woods."

Here at Little America the work of unloading 4,224 tons of cargo from the Yancey is progressing with men working around the clock.

The wind is blowing the ice floes out of the bay where the ships are anchored, making the harbor more tenable.

Reports rom the eastern and western groups on the rim of the Antarctic say the weather is still bad and they are unable to send aircraft out on photographic reconnaissance flights.



ASSEMBLY
By ROGER WHITE

Assembly this morning was very routine, and not very entertaining. After the usual preliminaries and announcements, a sing-song was presented on the screen, and the crowd responded enthusiastically to such songs as "Waltzing Matilda" and "Row, Row, Row Your Boat". The band played two nice selections, and then we were dismissed. Highly unexciting. I wonder what happened to those delightful assemblies that used to be held? Can they be "Passe"? I'm told we have a Dramatic Society in the school.

GIRLS' SPORTS
By RUTH MEADES

On Wednesday, January 15th. the new senior basketball team played a wonderful exhibition game against the new junior basketball team.

Betty Holway, the captain of the seniors played an excellent game and led her team well. The juniors did a great job of passing the ball and made some excellent shots. They also showed what good sports they are by taking with a big smile the grim score of 17-7 for the seniors.

Oh, well, all the juniors need is a teeny bit of practice and then just watch their smoke — eh what!

The game was refereed by V. Ketcheson and P. Kane; scored by E. Allen and timed by J. Thurston.

As yet there has not been any scheduled games but a list of them is coming out on Monday, January 20th . . . So, until then, adios my frans?

BOYS' SPORTS
By GEORGE WARD

For the last week the activity in the boys' gym has been going on steadily with the juniors and seniors practising. These two teams are working very hard to bring the championship to B.C.I. There are 4 teams entered in both leagues, junior and senior. Albert College, our old rival, will be playing as hard as ever to take the honors. Picton and Trenton are the other two teams to complete the league. The schedule is as follows:

Friday, Jan. 24—B. C. I. at Picton; Albert at Trenton.

Wednesday, Jan. 29—Picton at Albert; Trenton at B.C.I.

Monday, Feb. 3—Albert at B.C.I.; Picton at Trenton

Wednesday, Feb. 5 — Trenton at Albert

Thursday, Feb. 6 — Picton at B.C.I.

Thursday, Feb. 13 — B.C.I. at Trenton

Friday, Feb. 14—Albert at Picton

Wednesday, Feb. 19—B. C. I. at Albert

Friday, Feb. 21 — Trenton at Picton.

All these games are double headers so don't miss any home games anyway.

"Red's" announcement in assembly gave a chance for all boys wanting apparatus work to come to the gym on Thursday noon. He also mentioned house league hockey which should prove interesting.

Cuff Notes

Well students, here is a rag to chew. I noticed in the paper last Thursday night that starting today haircuts will cost fifty cents—students being considered as adults. This means a total boost of fifteen cents in the last six months. At this rate haircuts will cost a dollar this time next year. And the sad irony of it—the less hair you grow the more expensive it gets. I suppose the extra charge is for research.

Coming at a time when high school students are being laid off work downtown, due to a business slump, this is another nail in our financial coffins. It is bad enough scrounging money for the odd dance or hockey game, but how can a fellow break even on a fifty cent haircut?

Children will get clipped for thirty-five cents a head—some of the younges heads would look better stuffed than clipped. This now poses the problem of dressing fifth formers in knee pants. The only alternative is a general boycott of the barbershops, with the understanding that everyone will look like a sheepdog for the last two weeks of each month.

However, fellow sufferer, there is one note of consolation in this otherwise dreary bulletin. Shaves will remain at their former price of twenty-five cents each. To the lad who sprouts a light down about every six weeks this must be cheery indeed. Just think of it only twenty-five cents to get shaved. The general cents to get shaved. The general consensus is that the high school crowd is getting shaved, as well as clipped, at fifty cents a head.

The Junior Red Cross Club

The first meeting of the Red Cross after Christmas was held in room 218 at 4:15. There were 8 members present.

The purpose of the meeting was to pack some more boxes for foreign countries namely Holland. The first box was packed for Holland and weighed nine pounds. The second box was packed and weighed ten pounds.

A box for Bancroft will be packed and sent in a few weeks time.

The boxes were finished at 5:15 p.m. and the meeting adjourned.

Bergen Honored, 10th Anniversary Of Radio Show

Hollywood, Jan. 20 —(AP)—Dorothy Lamour lost her slip backstage at the broadcast, but otherwise Edgar Bergen's 10th anniversary on the radio was a lavish success.

NBC and the ventriloquist's sponsor threw an $8,000 party last night to celebrate the occasion. Edgar received a $4,000 automobile from his sponsor, and a $1,000 television receiver—with a screen as big as a bathroom window — from the network. With tears in his voice, Bergen told the 350 guests, including Greer Garson, Walter Pidgeon and Sydney Greenstreet:

"This is the nicest thing that ever happened to me.

'Except for one thing," cracked his dummy, Charlie McCarthy,—"the day you found me."

Earlier, Miss Lamour made a guest appearance on Bergen's broadcast, as did his other radio associates of the past decade, Don Ameche, Nelson Eddy and Rudy Vallee. Sensing that her slip was slipping, Dotty with quick presence of mind, stepped behind a curtain and kicked it off just before walking on stage.

Silverwoods Profits Set at $178,178 for '46

London, Ont., Jan. 20 —(C.P.)—A Windsor news item of Jan. 8, relating to the hearings of the Ontario Royal Commission on milk in that city, and in which profits of Silverwood Dairies, Ltd., were reported incorrectly, has caused many inquiries and certain embarrassment to the company, J. K. Duplan, executive vice-president, said today.

The erroneous report was carried by The Canadian Press, which is pleased to clarify the matter further.

The Jan. 8 item stated erroneously that Silverwood Dairies profits for six months, ending Sept. 30, 1936, were $13,707,556. As shown in the company's last audited statement, that figure represented total sales (not profits) for the 12 months (not six months) ending March 31, 1946. Net profits for the 12 months were $178,178, plus dividends from operating subsidiary companies, for a total of $247,257. Therefore, the net profit on the $13,707,556 sales for the 12-month period was $178,178.

Mr. Duplan said that, contrary to the Jan. 8 news item, no evidence in regard to the total sales and profits of Silverwood Dairies was presented at the Windsor hearings. However, the company's last audited statement was given to the commission for purposes of information by Windsor branch manager, George Douglas.

Mr. Duplan said that evidence on the over-all operations of the company would be offered the commission by head office executives at a future hearing in Toronto.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARGARET ROACH

Mrs. Margaret Roach, wife of Patrick Roach, died suddenly at her home, 25 Alexander Street, shortly after noon on Sunday. She had attended Mass at St. Michael's Church and was apparently well when she returned home and had dinner, following which she attended her husband, who is seriously ill, and upon returning downstairs she suffered a heart attack and died almost immediately.

The late Mrs. Roach, who was in her 68th. year, was born at Napanee and was a daughter of the late Peter Marsh and his wife Mary MacDonald. For some time she lived in Peterborough and for the past twenty-six years she resided in this city. She was well known and held a high place in the regard of many friends to whom her sudden death has brought sincere feelings of regret. In religion she was a faithful member of St. Michael's Church and in connection with the parish she was a member of The League of the Sacred Heart and the Catholic Women's League.

Surviving her are her husband; two sisters, Mrs. Edward Embury, Napanee, and Mrs. Annie Spencer, Toronto; two brothers, James Marsh of Miami, Florida, and Joseph B. Marsh of Deseronto.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

LATE JAMES A. LAMB

Marmora — The funeral took place in Ottawa on Tuesday afternoon of James A. Lamb, who passed away on Sunday evening in his eightieth year. He was born in Jesmond Dene in the north of England and had resided in Ontario for many years. For some years he was employed in the general office of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company, Limited. Later he was on the office staff at Cordova Mines.

While a resident of Marmora he attended St. Paul's Church and was leader of its choir. He was Worshipful Master of Marmora A. F. and A. M. 22 in the year 1907. For the past ten years he had paid periodical visits to Marmora friends to whom news of his passing has come with feelings of deepest regret.

(Campbellford)

Mrs. Lillian Casselman, wife of Mr. John Casselman, Campbellford, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Sunday. She was twenty three years of age and was a patient in the hospital since Jan. 11th.

LATE FRANCIS W. H. EVANS

The funeral of Francis William Hitchon Evans was held Saturday afternoon from his late residence, 47 Alexander Street. The service there and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. H. O. Eastman, pastor of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church.

The bearers were Harold Sanders, Joseph Blackburn, John Lloyd, John Davidson, E. Rutherford and W. H. Dowsett.

LATE MRS. EMMA I. WILLIAMS

Saturday morning the funeral of Mrs. Emma Ida (Barriage) Williams, wife of Mr. William Williams, 299 Pinnacle Street, was held from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson, V. G.

Interment took place at St. James' Cemetery and the committal prayers were said by the Rev. Father C. E. Baker.

The bearers were William Lindsay, John Semark, James Semark, Clifford Barriage, Charles Lyons and Leonard Fry.

LATE MICHAEL A. LEPORTE

The funeral of Michael Antonio Lepore, late residence, 34 Brassey Street, was held Saturday afternoon from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, to St. Michael's Church where the Libera was sung by the Rev. Father J. F. Carley, who also said the committal prayers at the graveside in St. James' Cemetery.

The bearers were: George Clarke, Fred Ashley, William Fairhead, George Webb, Walter Neal and Felix Cummings.

ALBRO COLE

(Thurlow Township)

Albro Cole, 3rd. concession of Thurlow township, died suddenly at his home early Monday morning as the result of a heart seizure. He was engaged since June of last year as radio transmitter operator at the CJBQ radio tower in Thurlow township, adjacent to the Foxboro highway, and discharged his duties until closing time Sunday night.

The late Mr. Cole, who was in his 68th year, was born in Prince Edward County and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Cole. Up to seven months ago he lived at Doxsee's Corners in Prince Edward County and was a member of the Doxsee United Church.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Bertha May Welsh whom he married forty-eight years ago; two daughters, Mrs. William Archibald, Cannifton, and Mrs. Thomas Wilkinson, Belleville.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition. (Picton papers please copy.)

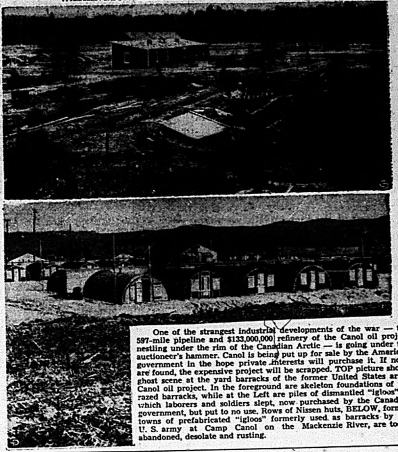
SEEK CURE FOR COMMON COLD

Mrs. Lesly Adamson, 20, of Salisbury, Eng., receives nasal drops containing codl virus. She and her husband, David, 24, a university student, volunteered to risk induced colds in exchange for two weeks of "easy living" in an attractive prefabricated hut at Harvard hospital. Medical experts, seeking a cure for the common cold, appealed for additional human guinea pigs. Twenty-four volunteers are brought in every two weeks.

WELCOMING HAND EXTENDED TO NEW U.N. DELEGATE

Former Senator Warren R. Austin, of Vermont, is shown in New York being welcomed to the council table as he takes his post for the first time as the American delegate on the United Nation's Security Council. Sir Alexander Cadogan, at LEFT, the British representative on the council, extends the welcoming hand.

WASHINGTON MAY SCRAP COMPLETE CANOL PROJECT



One of the strangest industrial developments of the war — the 597-mile pipeline and $133,000,000 refinery of the Canol oil project nestling under the rim of the Canadian Arctic — is going under the auctioneer's hammer. Canol is being put up for sale by the American government in the hope private interests will purchase it. If none are found, the expensive project will be scrapped. TOP picture shows ghost scene at the yard barracks of the former United States army Canol oil project. In the foreground are skeleton foundations of the razed barracks, while at the Left are piles of dismantled "igloos" in which laborers and soldiers slept, now purchased by the Canadian government, but put to no use. Rows of Nissen huts, BELOW, formed towns of prefabricated "igloos" formerly used as barracks by the U. S. army at Camp Canol on the Mackenzie River, are today abandoned, desolate and rusting.

CAPITALS MOVE INTO TIE FOR LOOP'S TOP RUNG

Defeat Providence and Cleveland Barons Over the Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Tommy Ivan, coach of Indianapolis Capitols, never played professional hockey but he is rated one of the best judges of hockey talent in the game. After a slow start the Caps, under Ivan's careful coaching, have rounded out into the American hockey league's top scoring team with an average of better than 4.6 goals a game which is beginning to pay dividends.

Playing on home ice, the Caps swept weekend games with Cleveland Barons and Providence Reds to move into a tie for first place in the league's western division-spot that the Barons seemed to be running away with two weeks ago.

In whipping the Reds 4-2 Sunday night after their 7-4 victory over Cleveland Saturday Indianapolis put on a whirlwind finish with three goals in the last period by Dan Summers, Bob Wiest and Enio Sclisizzi. Roger Bedard's second period goal had put Providence ahead 2-1 after Jerry Couture had tallied for the Caps and Tommy Burlington for the Reds in the first period.

But Buffalo Bisons, last year's Calder Cup winners in the A.H.L. play-offs, also have their eye on the western section's top rung. Strengthened by the addition of Ottawa Stars Les Hickey and Jimmy McFadden, the Bisons have been beaten but twice since Dec. 15.

Buffalo Now Third

Although they split their weekend series, their 5-2 victory over Cleveland enabled them to take possession of the division's third spot and move within four points of first place. Playing at home before a capacity crowd of 9,843 the Bisons staged a third-period rally to whip Cleveland for the third straight time.

Hub Macey scored his second goal in the session, Hickey added another, and Johnny Mahaffy tallied 13 seconds before the buzzer. It was the 16th straight game the Mahaffy-Tommy Cooper-Jerry Brown line has made at least one goal. Murdo McKay notched the other Buffalo point while Johnny Holota the league's leading goalgetter, notched his 30th of the season and roly McLenahan added the other for Cleveland. The Bison dropped a 5-4 decision to Pittsburgh Saturday.

Strengthen Hold

In the league's other Saturday night game New Haven's Ramblers strengthened their hold on second place in the Eastern Division by nipping the lowly Philadelphia Rockets 4-3.

Jack Church's shot late in the period provided the winning margin after Scotty Cameron, Joe Bell and Alex Shibicky scored the first three Rambler markers. Playing manager Phil Hergesheimer, Leo Richard and Billy Warwick tallied for the Rockets who went down to their 34th defeat of the season.

Saturday the Ramblers were victims of the eastern division leading Hershey Bears 8-4, while the Rockets gained their fifth tie of the season by holding Springfield even 4-4. In the other Saturday contest Providence took the measure of St. Louis 4-1.

RURAL LEAGUE FEATURED BY CLOSE GAMES

Two closely fought games again featured the Centre Hastings Rural Hockey League when Zion-Bethel and Foxboro fought to a two-all draw and Corbyville nosed out West Huntingdon by a 4-3 count.

The first game was nip and tuck all the way the score being 1-1 at the end of the second period with both squads notching markers in the last heat. Stewart and Spencer scored for Foxboro with Ray and A. Tummon counting for Zion-Bethel.

West Huntingdon was down 4-1 at one time in the second game but a strong second period rally netted them two goals and they came within striking distance with another in the third. Sheffield, Martin, Hart and Empson scored for the Distillers with Pyear with two and Sills tallying for the losers.

U.S. Navy Plans To Tow 'Hot Ships' To Mainland

By ROBERT M. FARRINGTON

Washington, Jan. 20 —(AP)— The navy is planning to tow some of the Bikini atom bomb target fleet without crews to Hawaii and the west coast for thorough radiological and mechanical examination.

This will require seamanship of the highest order since no man can live aboard the still radioactive ships and set their courses.

Bad weather could break the tow lines and leave the empty warships at large in the Pacific.

No Scuttling

Rear Admiral William S. Parsons disclosed that navy yards at Pearl Harbor, San Francisco and Puget Sound, will be given experience in handling ships that survive atomic bombardment.

Some "sample" ships will remain at Kwajalein, where the fleet now is anchored, he said.

The admiral denied reports that some of the ships which rode out two atom blasts last summer at Bikini will be scuttled soon as too "hot" to handle.

"These ships are very valuable as radiological studies," he said.

"We can't expect to get ships and atom bombs together every year, and it is up to us to make maximum use of these target ships."

"No decision will be made as to scuttling or final disposal of any of the ships for quite a few months—six, anyway, and probably longer."

Admiral Parsons as chairman of the joint "Crossroads" committee handling follow-ups on the atom bomb test operation conducted under that code name.

How to haul the stricken ships across thousands of miles of the Pacific ocean will be quite a problem, he acknowledged.

"We may have to put inspecting parties on from time to time," he said, "but no one will be living aboard."

The bulk of the technical report on the atom-bombed ships has been completed and given to the joint Chiefs of Staff Evaluation Board, Parsons said.

What steps will be taken to protect the United States fleet from A-bombs will be decided by this board.

Some Fire Causes

Classification of causes of the 4,985 fires in Ontario in the last quarter of 1946 shows that smoking was the cause of 1,803 for a loss of $245,789. Electricity was given as the cause in the next highest, 533 fires. Third cause was connected with stoves and furnaces, namely 396 fires. Matches were recorded in connection with 233 fires and hot ashes, coals and open fires in 146. Chimneys and flues figured in 126 with loss of $46,767.

How fire strikes is shown in the classification of property affected. Dwellings as might be expected made by far the greatest total of fires, there being 1,598 in brick dwellings (protected) with loss of $213,014 while fires in frame buildings (protected) numbered 1,726 for $239,978. In addition there were 238 brick and frame dwellings (unprotected) for a total loss of $127,777. On farm risks there were 480 fires for a loss of $928,375 on which insurance paid amounted to $609,973. There was a long list of other types of property visited by fires.

Talks on Burma

Talks on Burma have been planned to be held in London at this time. Following is a view of the recent history of that country:

Burma was separated from India in 1937 and was governed under the Government of Burma Act of 1935 by a Governor with a Cabinet composed of a Premier and Ministers—all Burman, and a Senate and a House of Representatives elected on a fairly wide franchise. The Government was on the United Kingdom model, the cabinet being dependent on the Legislature. The ministers had complete control of all matters affecting internal administration in Burma proper, subject to certain safeguards which the Governor could exercise in emergency. Defence, External Affairs and monetary policy were in the personal control of the Governor and not subject to the Legislature, though they could be discussed there. The "Scheduled" or Frontier Areas were outside the purview of the Ministers and Legislature.

During the five years from 1937 to the Japanese invasion in 1942, the Burman ministers discharged their responsibilities with considerable success. A large number of measures were passed, notably a series of Agrarian Bills, the country's finances were conducted on sound lines, and keen interest was shown in educational and health developments.

The constitution, under the 1935 Act, admittedly did not satisfy Burman political aspirations, all political parties being united in desiring further constitutional advance. But the demand for self-government was in the main put forward in a legtiimate constitutional manner.

On January 1st, 1944, the Supreme Allied Commander for Southeast Asia assumed responsibility for all areas of Burma. Military Government ended and Civil Government was restored in October 1945.

But such was the havoc wrought by the Japanese occupation that it was utterly impracticable immediately to resume parliamentary government as under the 1935 Act. It was first necessary to restore the elementray conditions of civil life.

Plans for the civil administration of Burma during the transitional period in accordance with the emergency provisions of the 1935 Act had already been laid and were set out in the White Paper of May 1945.

Soon after the return of civil government to Burma in October 1945, the Governor, Sir Reginald Dorman Smith, set up an Executive Council and at the end of 1945 a Legislative Council in accordance with the White Paper plan.

At that time the Anti-ascist People's Freedom League (AFPFL), whose leader is Mr. U. Aung San, was virtually the only Burmese political party, representing as it did the disarmed Burmese forces which turned on the Japanese after the fall of Mandalay. Dr. Ba Maw, Head of the state under the Japanese, had fled to Japan and Mr. U. Sah, pre-invasion Premier, was in internment.

The AFPFL refused to enter the Executive or Legislative Councils except on conditions which were unacceptable at the time, and began an agitation which gradually increased the demands for the scrapping of the White Paper procedure and the substitution for it of a greatly accelerated advance to self-government.

The demands of AFPFL have widened. They now are, firstly, the establishment of an interim national government with full powers and with the Governor as constitutional head. Secondly, the coming General Election should be held no for the restoration of the 1935 Act but to elect a Constituent Assembly for all Burma. Thirdly, an immediate declaration by the United Kingdom Government that Burma would secure complete independence by January 1948.

The events in India, the Dutch East Indies and the Indo China have not been lost on the Burmese. It is probably true to say that all Burmese support at least the first of the AFPFL demands. The Communists go even further than AFPFL, which no doubt feels compelled in formulating its program to have an eye to the coming elections.

Such was the position when Mr. Attlee made his statement in the Commons on the eve of the parliamentary recess. The main points in the United Kingdom Prime Minister's statement were firstly, the United Kingdom Government do not regard the White Paper plan as unchangeable. Secondly, the United Kingdom Government are determined to fulfil the pledge given in 1931 that the constitutional advance of Burma would not compare prejudicially with that in India. Thirdly, Burma would be free to remain within or without the British Commonwealth, though the United Kingdom Government were certain that it would be to Burma's interest to remain within. Fourthly, the coming elections should be for a Constituent Assembly.

Mr. Attlee concluded, "It is the desire and intention of His Majesty's Government to hasten forward the time when Burma shall realise her independence either within or without the Commonwealth, but for the sake of the Burmese people it is of the utmost importance that this should be an orderly though rapid process. It is to help the people of Burma in that progress that His Majesty's Government have invited the Burmese leaders to come here for discussions."

Luxuries of Air Travel

The latest aircraft put into service by the British Overseas Airways affords an excellent example of luxury in modern air travel. In addition to the main cabin with its deep seats (convertible into bunks) there are promenade lounges providing ample room for movement, a cocktail bar, a ladies powder room, decorated in white and pink and a men's dressing room in white and grey. The color scheme is of blue and fawn grey and the walls are lined throughout with plastic leather cloth. Ceiling lights, operated by "bright", "dim" and "off" switches are reinforced by individual lamps mounted on the back of each seat. The seats all facing forward have hinged flaps which let down to form a table or a book rest. The window curtains are of cream nylon embroidered with designs in blue, gold and grey. As a finishing touch the lining cloth has been specially tested for its capacity to keep out strong moonlight which might otherwise keep passengers awake.

HOME CONCERT

I was fashioned deaf to music, and I'm sorry it is so.
To an opera or a concert I'd not leave my books to go.
But there's singing I am fond of — bad or good, I think it fine—
For it sets to faster beating this old battered heart of mine.
It's that rich, impromptu chorus on which happiness depends;
Someone playing the piano for the children and their friends.

You can have your diamond horseshoe and the gathering of the rich.
I'll take good, old, home-style singing, whether on or off the pitch.
The tall ones over shoulders bending down to see the notes,
And all the glad assembly pouring music from their throats.
It's the finest kind of concert—and I'm sorry when it ends—
The program that is offered by the children and their friends.

There is nothing planned about it. It just happens now and then.
When they strike a tune they fancy they will sing it through again.
Be it something from the hymn book or the latest catchy air,
Home is better for such singing. Sneer, you critics, if you dare!
It is music that is solace for the hurt that life attends—
The care-free style of singing by the children and their friends.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

(By the Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Jan. 20 (CP)—Retirement of Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, clerk of the House of Commons for more than 20 years and noted authority on parliamentary rules and procedure, is reported in parliamentary circles to be only a matter of a few more months.

One report has it that the 70-year-old house official will give up the post during the approaching session of parliament and go into semi-retirement as a special advisor to the Speaker, Dr. Gaspard Fauteux. These reports say the change will take place March 31, end of the current fiscal year.

Dr. Beauchesne is known to have expressed a wish for retirement but just who will succeed him is not known.

Dr. Beauchesne has been clerk of the House since 1925, when he was appointed to that post after serving for nine years. A former newspaperman, he is the author of Beauchesne's Parliamentary Rules and Forms, standard for Canadian parliamentary procedure, and a number of other publications.

New Chairman: Another resignation in government circles around March 31 also is reported to be pending.

It is that of Donald Gordon, burly chairman of the Prices Board, who is said to be eager to return to his pre-war job as Deputy Governor of the Bank of Canada.

Most likely successor to Mr. Gordon is Ken Taylor, foods administrator and Deputy Chairman for the Board, who long has been regarded as a candidate for the chairmanship.

March 31 has been chosen as a possible date for Mr. Gordon's departure because that is the time at which the Emergency Powers Act, under which many controls were continued from the war period.

Assets: War Assets Corporation, the crown company which has been disposing of surplus war material, is expected to have to remain in business another two years before it folds....

Informed sources estimate that it will take the corporation, which already has hundreds of millions of dollars of business on the books, another two years before it can dispose of smaller items and call it a day.

WONDERS IF THERE'S JINX

London, Jan. 20—(CP) — The grease-paint circuit wonders if there's a jinx at London, long centre of Ontario threatrical activity. Last week the Trudi Schoop Ballet was unable to play when it found its props and costumes had been misrouted to Maine. Now John Gielgud and his Shakespearean company have arrived after being delayed three hours at Buffalo by a derailment.

51 PEASANTS KILLED

Manila, Jan. 20 (AP)—Fifty-one Hukbalahaps (armed, anti-administration peasants) were killed and many others wounded by Filipino Military Police in a weekend skirmish 50 miles southeast of Manila, Military police officers reported today. They did not announce Military police casualties.

The Manila Times aid today that scores of former guerillas who failed to receive pay for wartime services were joining Huk ranks.

Mercy Ships Unable to Reach Anticosti Island

By ROSS TRUEMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Seven Islands, Que., Jan. 20 — (CP) — The supply ship North Voyageur and the Dominion government icebreaker Ernest Lapointe prepared to set sail for their home port of Quebec today, following an unsuccessful attempt yesterday to break through the Gulf of St. Lawrence ice and land food and supplies at the tiny village of Port Meunier on Anticosti Island, last stop for the two ships on their 500-mile mercy mission.

The 1,200-ton North Voyageur, following closely behind the Lapointe, plowed to within 5 miles of Port Meunier, but impassable fields of ice several inches thick forced both ships to turn back.

The captains of both ships decided it would be too dangerous to make another attempt to break through to the village which has been without delivery of essential supplies since early December.

It was believed that an airplane operating from the Seven Islands airport would have to be used to drop supplies to the inhabitants.

The two ships have delivered much-needed supplies to 17 other isolated St. Lawrence River hamlets since leaving Quebec two weeks ago. Last stops were at Kegaska, a north shore settlement more than 400 miles below Quebec, and Baie Johan Beetz, 70 miles along the shore, which was reached Saturday.

At Kegaska, fisherfolk whose supplies had gone without replenishment for 10 weeks ran out over the ice to greet the Lapointe when it came into sight Friday. Supplies were unloaded on the ice two miles off shore and hauled in by dog sled.

The 20 families of the village, who had eaten codfish instead of turkey at Christmas, then sat down to their first steak dinner in more than a month.

Fewer Persons Unemployed And More Jobs Open

Ottawa, Jan. 20 (CP)—Despite a seasonal decline in employment during December, fewer persons were unemployed and more jobs were open at the start of 1947 than a year ago, the Labor Department reports.

The department's monthly survey of the manpower situation shows that unfilled vacancies at Jan. 1 stood at 90,000 compared with 80,000 a year ago, while the total number of unplaced aplicants for jobs was 165,000—a drop of 26,000.

Due to a seasonal decline which was felt particularly in the manufacturing, logging and construction industries in Ontario and Quebec, unplaced workers increased by 22,000 from the department's previous survey in November, while the number off unfilled vacancies dropped by 31,000.

The call for unskilled labor fell off sharply, the report said, but in many areas off-season construction work continued at a high level and there was a brisk demand for electricians plumbers finish carpenters and plasters.

An over-all shortage of women workers continued, and was felt particularly in clothing, textile rubber goods and electrical apparatus industries.

Unplaced applicants on Jan. 2 by districts, with unfilled vacancies shown in brackets: Maritimes 23,000 (4,000): Quebec 43,000 (38,000) Ontario 46,000 (34,000); Prairies 30,000 (11,000); British Columbia 23,000 (3,000).

Five Fatalities In East Canada During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Death toll of fatal accidents in Eastern Canada during the weekend was low, with only five deaths — four in Ontario and one in Nova Scotia, recorded in a Canadian Press survey.

Four of the deaths resulted from traffic accidents and one person was burned to death in the fire which destroyed an Ontario home.

Nine-year-old Donald Garrod died in a Windsor, Ont., hospital Saturday from injuries received when he was struck by a car the previous day.

On the outskirts of New Liskeard, Alfred P. McCoy, 75, was struck and killed by a motorbus Saturday, while in Toronto the same day another 75-year-old man, Dennis Kelley, was hit by a truck and died of injuries.

Rollance Dalrymple, three-year-old Shubenacadie, N.S., child was killed Sunday when he fell under the wheels of a skidding truck.

In Hawke Junction, Ont., Herbert H. Garland, 30, was burned to death Sunday when flames destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Owens.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

OH, MY ACHING BACK.

Backache may be due to a thousand and one causes, in the space available here we can consider just one cause of backache, namely nutritional deficiency. This is the backache of osteoporosis. We all get a touch of it if we live long enough.

You may have noticed that grandma or grandpa seems to be shrinking in stature, is not so tall now as she or he was ten or twenty years ago. That's it—osteoporosis. Bones undergoing atrophy, becoming porous, from depletion of the calcium (and phosphorus) they formerly contained.

Osteoporosis may not give rise to any special symptom or complaint until it has become pretty extensive, involving the spine as well as the rest of the skeleton. The greater fragility or brittleness of the bones of elderly persons is due to osteoporosis — depletion or loss of calcium from the bones—and not to "too much lime" (calcium) as people generally believe and even some physicians still imagine.

Due to the osteoporosis in the spinal vertebrae compression fracture of one or more of the vertebrae may occur from slight and almost unnoticed injury, perhaps with displacement of "herniation" of the discs of cartilege between the vertebrae. Such fracture and disc displacement is sometimes unrecognized as the actual condition which is improperly treated as "lumbago", "sciatica" or "sprain". It is a good idea to make X-ray pictures in cases of low back pain in elderly persons.

Treatment of such aching back involves support of the spine with belt, cast or brace that does not prevent the patient from walking at least to the corner grocery and back once or twice every day—I said the grocery, not the tavern.

Prevention, not treatment, is the purpose of this personal health service. Not that any one who should heed it will give it a second thought now—before he or she has some symptoms that call for relief—but in line of duty I quote further from a modern medical classic—Boa's "Treatment of the Patient Past Fifty" (Year Book Publishers, '44.)

"Treatment involves support of the spine" (as already mentioned) . . "a diet rich in calcium and supplementary administration of calcium and vitamin D."

By way of prophylaxis such treatment should be taken by every adult who feels, seems or looks too old for his or her years. It is preventive treatment, not curative, and if one takes it at all one must take it from now on.

This high calcium diet and calcium and vitamin D supplementation of the ordinary everyday diet is nutritional, not medicinal, and one can derive benefit from it only by following it regularly, day by day, month by month, from now on. So many old or prematurely old persons fail to comprehend this and, as though in their dotage, "try" taking something the clerk persuades them to take, and, of course, notice no immediate improvement and give it up as the wrong medicine.

"The Calcium Shortage" is the name of the booklet available on written request (no clippings, please) if you enclose ten cents and a stamped envelope of regular size bearing your address.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Modern Treatment of Piles

Nearly ten years ago the best doctor here had me practically booked for operation for hemorrhoids in . . . . Hospital. You came through with an article about the ambulant (injection) method—I wrote you, and shortly afterward received the injection treatment from Dr. . . . . whom you recommended. I visited the doctor four or five times, never suffered any pain or interference with my work, and have never had any further trouble with piles. A friend of mine would not listen to my advice, underwent the operation, was laid up three weeks, suffered tortures all the time, and has had one serious hemorrhage since the operation. He wishes now he had banked on your advice. (O. C. . . . .).

Answer—Well, this is a free country, so your friend is entitled to shed his blood for the old Spanish tradition. I may be dumb about the fine points involved—but I can't for the life of me understand why any doctor who has enough skill to master the difficult technique of ambulant (injection) treatment of piles condemns a patient to the clamp and cautery.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

SOS, often used figuratively to denote any urgent appeal for help, is the international radio distress signal and has no verbal significance. There is a popular, but erroneous notion that these letters represent "Save Our Ship," "Save Our Souls" or "Stop Other Signals" and it is a common error to regard them as abbreviations of some such phase and in writing to follow each letter with a period; as, S.O.S.

The Italian delegates at the preliminary conference on wireless telegraphy at Berlin in 1903 suggested that ships should use SSSDDD as a distress signal, but no action was taken. About that time the Marconi International Marine Communications Company, Ltd., adopted CQ as a "procedence signal" for ships wishing to communicate with shore stations or other ships. In 1904 the Marconi company substituted CD for CQ as the general inquiry and distress call at sea. Later D was inserted and the call became CDQ. Popular fancy insisted the CDQ stood for "Come Quick, Danger" but the signal had no verbal significance except in the imagination of the public.

German ships used as a distress signal the letters SOE (three dots, three dashes and one dot in the telegraph code), but this signal was unsatisfactory because the final dot was easily obliterated by interference. At the International Radio Telegraph Convention at Berlin in 1906 the German delegates proposed SOS (three dots, three dashes and three dots) as the universal distress signal, and it was adopted as of July 1, 1908.

All such signals are based on the speed and clarity with which they can be transmitted and SOS was chosen because it is easily sent and understood CDQ was so firmly established that some operators even after 1908 continued to use it as well as SOS to make sure their signals were recognized but CDQ was gradually abandoned, and since the International Radio Telegraph Convention at London in 1912 SOS has been used exclusively as the official international radio signal.

During the First and Second World Wars the Allies used SSSS (three dots repeated four times) when a ship wanted to warn other ships that an enemy submarine was near or actually threatening. A popular notion spread that these letters stood for "Submarine Sighted."

An international distress call for use in radio telephony was suggested by the British delegates at the Berlin conference in 1906, but a spoken word for this purpose was not approved until the International Radio Telegraph Convention met at Washington in 1907. Selection of "Mayday" for this purpose appears to have been influenced by the fact that the English pronunciation approximates that of the French phrase "M'aider," help me.

Domestic and international regulations prescribe how SOS in radio telegraphy and "Mayday" in radio telephony are to be used.

"RUMORS ARE FLYING"

Betty Hensel, former Powers model, shown at a Hollywood night club with screen star Carey Grant, was wearing a diamond ring given to her by Grant. When asked about rumors that she may be engaged to the star, Miss Hensel smiled evasively as she said, "I go out with him to parties in Hollywood, but everyone knows that." Grant is in Mexico vacationing with Howard Hughes and Miss Hensel is visiting friends in St. Louis, Miss.

Pastor Re-united With Wife After Cross-Country Jaunt With Choir Singer

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 18 — (AP)—A mild-mannered Methodist minister and an attractive choir singer, objects of a widespread police search after they disappeared together Wednesday, were back in their home town today apparently headed towards reconciliation with their spouses.

Rev. Daniel L. Reedy, 54-year-old grandfather and a clergyman for 27 years, and his companion of the cross-country jaunt, brunette Mrs. Mary Marguerite Cowles, 40, surrendered to police late yesterday.

The slightly-built pastor was given preliminary hearing on an adultery charge and demanded further examination. He was taken to jail in default of $1,000 bond, but less than three hours later his wife posted the bond and took him home from his cell.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Cowles, wife of a salesman, was taken to hospital in what police termed "a very nervous condition." Her appearance on a similar charge was deferred.

Mrs. Cowles' first and only visitor was her husband, Paul, who was closeted with her for more than an hour in their private hospital room. He later told reporters he didn't "blame" Mrs. Cowles for the episode but that it "was mostly the minister's fault."

Members of the minister's family said he would not discuss the case with newspapermen, but Cowles freely told reporters his version of how the minister developed a friendship with Mrs. Cowles.

Met on Hunting Trip

Cowles, a husky six-footer, told of meeting Reedy a few years ago on a deer hunting trip. The friendship between the two men developed and soon their wives became acquaintances.

The families became fairly close friends, said Cowles, who charged the minister became too friendly with Mrs. Cowles, leading to a cooling-off of the friendship between the families late last fall.

Kent county prosecutor Menso R. Bolt, who took statements from the minister and his choir singer, quoted them as saying yesterday their decision to run away together Wednesday came "on an impulse."

Reedy, pastor of the Plainfield Ave. Methodist Church, left a brief note for his wife saying only that he was leaving.

Mrs. Cowles, the prosecutor said, left no message for her husband, who was attending a Chicago furniture convention on the day the couple fled.

Their itinerary included stops at Kalamazoo, Mich., Huntington, Ind., Cairo, Ill., Little Rock, Ark. and Dallas, Tex., and Bolt said the couple admitted registering as man and wife at a Huntington, Ind., hotel.

On arrival in Dallas, the minister and the woman who sang in his choir for nearly three years learned from friends that a warrant had been sworn out here against them.

After telephoning their respective mates from Sherman, Tex., the two drove back to Michigan, ultimately surrendering into police custody at Kalamazoo yesterday.

Baby-Farming Too Prevalent Say Officials

By JACK SMYTH

London, Jan. 18 (Reuters). — Societies charged with the welfare of Britain's illegitimate children feel that baby farming is still too prevalent in Britain.

They base their allegation on the fact that childless couples who would otherwise be placed at the bottom of local council housing lists have been adopting children and using them as a pawn in order to get preferential treatment in obtaining houses.

Officials of the National Children Adoption Association, the Children's Aid Society, the Waifs and Strays Society, the National Council of Associated Children's Homes, the National Council for the Unmarried Mother and her Child and the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children are all agreed that "there are still far too many under the counter adoptions." Only a drastic reform, they say, will be any use.

The problem now is under official survey following publication of statistics showing that during the six years of war, the number of illegitimate births "rocketed skywards". In 1939 there were 25,873 illegitimate births in Britain; in 1944 there were 55,173, and in 1945, 62,900.

The only means of preventing haphazard adoption of these children, said a spokesman of the National Children Adoption Association, is by the establishment of a central body to control adoption.

"Although there are many excellent individual adoption societies," he added, "there is nothing at the moment to prevent a mother from giving her baby to whomsoever she likes."

An official of the Children's Aid Society said that the National Council of Associated Children's Homes was thrashing out the whole matter.

"Between us we have 41,000 children in voluntary homes," he said. "Of these the percentage of illegitimate children is very small compared with the number of illegitimate births. Where are the rest? We are trying to get the law tightened and a committee is sitting to make proposals on the subject."

16 Dutch Soldiers Die When Shells Explode

Mulden, Holland, Jan. 18—(AP)—A truck loaded with 150-pound German shells exploded today, killing 14 Dutch soldiers and two civilians. The blast was so terrific it drove the bodies of some victims deep into the ground and shattered windows in every home in this town of 3,000, near Amsterdam.

The blast caused a crater 150 feet in diameter.

The 14 soldiers were unloading the truck, and one was believed to have dropped a shell.

WANT LOUNGES LIGHTED

Toronto, Jan. 18. (CP)—When the new cocktail lounges come to Toronto, the civic legislation committee wants them brightly lighted and at least 200 feet away from churches, schools, universities or other cultural centres. The committee yesterday endorsed proposals to this effect from Alderman Harold Fisnleigh and these are to be passed on to the Ontario Government, which recently proclaimed legislation providing for cocktail lounges in Toronto, London, Hamilton, Windsor and Ottawa. The resolution about lighting asks that there be one 60-watt bulb for every 14 square feet of lounge.

Workers Can Do Much to Reduce Accident Rate

The regular monthly meeting of the Belleville section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association was held Wednesday evening at Y.M.C.A. with 52 members representing 17 firms attending.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mr. Dave McDonald, personnel manager of the Bata Shoe Company, who spoke on the workers' moral obligation with regard to the prevention of accidents.

Mr. McDonald declared that each person employed in industry has an accident prevention obligation, an obligation to his fellow worker, to his employer and to society. Mental reaction of the worker following his hearing of an accident resulted in lower efficiency with a consequent increase of his own accident hazard.

Time lost as a result of accidents, increased insurance rates and the lowering of efficiency all have a tendency to keep overhead costs high and at the same time limits the employer's ability to pay a higher wage.

Causes of industrial accidents and the methods by which they may be lessened were dealt with at some length by the speaker who pointed out the responsibility of the plant supervisor in constantly seeking to reduce accidents among workers under his direction.

The guest speaker was introduced by Mr. William Moore, Deacons Brothers and a vote of thanks extended by Reg. Hinchey of the same firm. Entertainment was supplied by Bill Navin with Frank Lang as song leader.

Vice Premier Of Greece Resigns

Athens, Jan. 18. (AP)—Vice-Premier Stylianos Gonatas resigned from the Greek Cabinet today, causing speculation whether he would align his party's strength with the opposition in parliament, a move which might cause the downfall of Premier Constantin Tsaldaris' government.

Gonatas' National Liberal Party, which has consistently supported Tsaldaris, controls 32 seats in parliament. These votes, plus the 142 held by the recognized opposition, would give the Premier's opponents exactly half the votes in parliament.

Concurrent with the news of Gonatas' resignation came the report that Apostle Alexandris had resigned as minister without portfolio. Before the formation of the new cabinet, Alexandris had been minister of National Economy.

Earlier today Tsaldaris, following a conference with King George II, had announced that he would resign his post and accept a co-five-premiership with Liberal Themistokles Sophoulis in order to form a coalition government under a third person named by them as Premier.

The aging Sophoulis, a former premier, flatly rejected the offer, describing it as "a deceitful trick to misguide public opinion".

Tsaldaris said in his announcement that his offer was made to end disorders in Greece, which he said had been provoked "from without".

Chinese Communists Reject an Offer To Send Emissary

Nanking, Jan. 18 (AP). — The Chinese Communists today rejected a government offer to send an emissary to Yenan to re-open Truce negotiations.

The government proposal, announced in mid-week, had been relayed to Communist party leaders at their Yenan headquarters for a decision.

The government did not report on what basis it proposed reopening negotiations, broken off several months ago after both sides had violated a January, 1946 truce agreement.

The Communist Central Committee notified the Chinese government, through United States Ambassador Stuart, that the Yenan high command is not interested in a resumption of negotiations without prior acceptance of the Communists' two demands: restoration of the military situation of January, 1946, and nullification of the revised constitution adopted recently by the Communist-spurned national assembly.

CAUGHT SECOND TIME

Toronto, Jan. 18. (CP)—Unlike lightning, police often strike twice in the same place. That's what Toronto morality officers did last night, pulling two raids on a Chinatown gambling spot arresting 20 persons on the first try and 13 on the second.

Moreover, the second time they found the lookout, posted at the door to watch for any such interference, sound asleep and were able to slip into the gambling room unnoticed. Some of the 20 nabbed in the first raid had returned to the spot after being released on bail and were caught a second time.

Madoc Junior Farmers' Meet

A meeting of the Madoc Junior Farmers was held in the Town Hall, Madoc, on Tuesday, Jan. 14. The president, Rex Rollins, was in the chair. Mr. Ken Broad and Tom Moorcroft gave an account of the short course which they attended at Guelph, Lorne Irwin a report on the short course at Kingston on "Co-operation and Rural Leadership". Mr. John Thompson and Claude Comerford spoke on the feeding and management of work horses during the winter. Dr. Lapp, veterinary of Madoc, gave a very interesting talk on Bot Flies and their control. Stewart Elliott of Tweed gave a very interesting account of his trip to the Royal Winter Fair at which he represented Ontario in the Dominion potato judging finals for boys' and girls' club work.

The program for the February meeting was drawn up. Speakers will be Allan Ketcheson on Swine Breeding and Advanced Registry; Warren Hill on Swine Rations; and Elliott Burris on Internal and External Parasites of Swine.

It was decided to have a debate for the March meeting, the topic to be "Rural life for the young people today is more advantageous than urban living". The affirmative will be taken by Allan Ketcheson and Miss Sadie Tumelty, the negative by John Thompson and Elliott Burris.

A luncheon was served by the Junior Institute.

Electrical Club Sees Film on Indoor Lighting

The Bay of Quinte District Electrical Maintenance Club held their monthly meeting in the Quinte Hotel on Wednesday evening.

The Canadian General Electric Company sponsored the meeting for the evening illustrating the intracies in fluorescent lighting with slides and films.

Five representatives of this company, engineers and technicians of the illumination department, were present to answer all questions that were brought up by the members.

Out-of-town guests from as far east as Kingston were present. Approximately 60 members and guests attended the meeting.

Club members were pleased to welcome local contractors. It is hoped that they were impressed to want to join and also to encourage electricians working for them, who have as yet not joined, so as to benefit also by the splendid and educational evenings spent at these meetings.

BETTOR PAID OFF

Toronto, Jan. 18 —(CP)— A horse called Useless came in for some questionable fame in court here yesterday. THE LUMBERMAN

THE NICKEL WORKER

depend on each other

IN ONE YEAR more than 77,000,000 board feet of lumber and timber have been used by the Canadian Nickel industry. It would take 4000 freight cars—an average of more than ten every day in the year—to transport this material. Producing this timber means a lot of jobs for Canadians in the woods and in the sawmills.

The lumber industry, in turn, uses a great deal of equipment containing Nickel. The tractors and hoisting equipment up in the bush; the machinery and equipment in the sawmills; are tough and strong because of Nickel. The purchase of such equipment means jobs for men in the Canadian Nickel mines, smelters and refineries.

So the Canadian Nickel industry needs Canadian lumber; the lumber industry needs Canadian Nickel. To some extent at least the lumberman owes his job to the Nickel industry and in turn he helps to keep the Nickel worker busy. No matter how we earn a living, we are all one family, each depending on the others.

Jack Thomas, of Montreal, arrived in the city on Saturday evening. On Sunday his mother, Mrs. Woodman Thomas, returned with him to Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pybus and son, Bobby, of Fredericton, N.B., are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Claude D. Tice, of this city.

Miss Elizabeth Johns, student nurse at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, is spending a four weeks vacation with her parents, West Moira Street.

Friends and relatives of Mrs. Eva Davidson, of Bannockburn, Ont., will be happy to learn she is progressing favorably following a recent operation in the Belleville General Hospital.

WEDDINGS

TAYLOR—BATEMAN

Christ Church was the setting for a lovely wedding on the afternoon of January 18, at 3·30 o'clock, when Margaret Frances, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bateman, of Stirling, was united in marriage with William Lieutier Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Taylor, of Montreal, Que. Rev. J. Grant Sparling was the officiating clergyman.

Entering the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin played on the organ by Mr. A. Evans, the bride made a charming picture in her white bridal gown with shirred bodice, full skirt and long sleeves. Her full-length veil of beautifully embroidered net was draped from a heart-shaped halo. She carried a Colonial bouquet of red roses and buddleia.

The bridesmaid, Miss Betty Goldthwaite, of Montreal, wore a princess styled gown of sheer metallic blue, with a tiny hat trimmed with curled blue ostrich plumes and she carried a nosegay of pink roses and forget-me-nots.

Mr. Roy Bateman, brother of the bride was the groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. C. Arthur Bateman and Mr. Don MacDonald of Montreal.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bateman, 219 Foster Ave., where the bride's mother received wearing a grey gown with black accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. H. L. Taylor, mother of the groom, wore a light grey suit with matching hat and a corsage of roses.

The tea table was attractively decorated with tall white tapers in silver holders and a centrepiece of roses and smilax. Assisting with the serving were Misses Ella Keon and Katharine Wright and Mrs. John Sheridan.

For a wedding trip to Toronto, the bride wore a navy pin-stripe dressmaker suit, under a fur coat, with a winter-white sequin trimmed hat.

Guests from out of town were present from Kingston, Montreal, Stirling, Frankford and Bobcaygeon. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will reside in Cornwall, Ont., where the groom is connected with radio station CKSF.

Presentations Made On 25th Anniversary

Tyendinaga.—Mr. and Mrs. Earl Whiteman, 2nd of Tyendinaga, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary recently. They were married by Rev. Solomon Cleaver, in Belleville. Mrs. Whiteman was formerly Ellen Kimmett, of Roblin. They have two children, Jane, (Mrs. Armour Colden), of Campbellford and Arthur, of Ebenezer.

During the evening they were taken by surprise when gradually sixty relatives and close friends arrived to spend a few hours with them.

Just before lunch a cabinet of silver was presented to the happy couple from the Whiteman and Kimmett families.

Both thanked their guests for remembering them on this important occasion.

They had received a table lamp and silver dish from Jane and Armour, Arthur and Ruth.

The wedding cake decorated the dining table. Delicious refreshments were served.

Everyone thanked Mr. and Mrs. Whiteman for the enjoyable evening and wished them many more happy years of married life.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Weather-Proofing The Complexion

"The North wind doth blow"—you know the rest of it. You may also know that something is likely to happen to that sacred face of yours. Cold, nipping winds may create lovely pink cheeks, but they may also irritate the delicate skin surface, causing it to form tiny flakes. You'll feel as if your countenance has been washed, starched and ironed. Not a pleasant condition, that. Chapped skin means that powder goes on in patches; make-up is no help at all.

Every woman must be a complexion nurse. It is a job that she must carry on throughout the year with no time off. It is a paying job, because it brings rich rewards and combats the devastating efforts of old man Time. Weather we always have with us and there is no season when it can't take a mean crack at your facial coating.

Every beauty-defect battler should face the fact that she must do a certain number of chores every day. There's no such thing as giving the complexion too much creaming attentions when the air is chill and houses and offices and often overheated. The hot, dry air robs the skin of its natural lubricant. The older one gets, the slower become the activities of the sebaceous glands, so there must be no let up. Also, oiling often keeps away those discolorations that come with advancing birthdays.

Never remove make-up with soap and water; apply a thin cream. Be fussy about the soap you use. What may be most agreeable to one skin may not be friendly to another. If your face feels drawn after the facial tubbing, try another cleansing agent. Possibly a cosmetic meal might serve; you can find these at cosmetic counters; they are compounded especially for dry skins that rebel against lather. Dip a washcloth in warm water, sprinkle the meal over it, pass over the the flesh lightly.

If soap is used, it must be rinsed away thoroughly with warm water. Before cream is applied, the surface should be dry; moisture interferes with the full effect of lubrication. A heavy emolient is best for this purpose, should remain on over night. If you cherish that old fear about creams causing a growth of superfluous hair, discard it. Nothing in it. Electrolysis operators report that the worst cases of fuzzers are on the faces of women who have never used cosmetics.

A foundation cream acts as a protective element against cold air and flaying winds. Whatever you use, friction it it until it practically disappears. A heavy powder, with an oily base, is helpful.

Never use soap and water just before going out of doors or directly after coming in, when the skin surface is chilled.

Keep water containers on all radiators, so the air in the house will be moist.

ALL DRESSED UP and going to the smartest spots are frocks of lightweight woolens in beautiful colors and pastels. Wool jersey, in a white-smoke shade, is used for a nice frock made with lantern sleeves. High neckline has soft club collar. Frock also boasts a broad red leather belt that is gilt-nail-studded.

GROWING IN INTEREST is the cape-stole of fur, popular in evening as well as daytime furs. Snowy ermine is used for a handsome cape-stole made with double-tiered, rippling cape, and stole ends that fall below the knee.

SHOWER GIVEN BRIDE

OOn Friday evening last, Mrs. J. T. Ross, Geddes Street, was hostess for a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mrs. Leslie Benedict, (nee Betty Abrahams, of England), a recent bride. Cards were enjoyed during the early evening, prizes being won by Mrs. George Patrick, Mrs. K. Broadworth and Miss Marie Huffman.

The gifts were wrapped in silver and white and were presented in a basket, decorated in attractive pastel shades, by Mrs. Jim McDonald. After opening the packages Mrs. Benedict graciously thanked her new friends for their gifts.

Buffet refreshments were served by Mrs. Chas. Coleman, Mrs. Harry Quincey and Mrs. Jim McDonald, and a social time brought another enjoyable evening to a close.

Tabernacle Ch. Sunday School Elects Officers

Following the Sunday evening service, officers and teachers of the Tabernacle United Church School met in the ladies' parlor of the church to present reports for the year 1946, to elect members of the Board of Management for the year 1947, and to discuss possible improvements in class curriculum and assembly worship.

At the conclusion of the business meeting refreshments were served by a number of the gentlemen present.

The following is a list of the officers and teachers for the year 1947:

Superintendent, A. D. Archibald; Secretary, Mr. J. Walmsley; Treasurer, Mr. C. A. Moore; Assistant Secretary-Treasurer — Mr. W. Mifflin; Missionary Superintendent, Mrs. S. L. CARMEL COMRADE CLUB

The Carmel Comrade Club met in the church on Thursday evening under the leadership of Miss Iva Horton and Mr. Harold Howes.

The meeting opened with a song service led by Mrs. B. A. Clarke. The worship service began with a piano and violin selection by Miss Iva Horton and Mrs. Clarence Chambers. A poem "Today" was read by Mr. Harold Howes followed by a solo by Mr. Jack Clarke and the Scripture Lesson from the 25th Chapter of St. Matthews was read by Mr. Vernal Prindle.

A reading by Miss Mildred Jones was followed by a hymn and prayer by Mr. Harold Howes closed this part of the service.

A solo by Mr. Garth McCreary which was much enjoyed, opened the program.

Miss Iva Horton introduced the guest speaker, Miss Nora Dane, a teacher from England, who is on the exchange with Canadian teachers for one year. Miss Dane spoke on the hardships that the British people endured during the war years. She also expressed appreciation to the Canadian people for their share in sending eggs, bacon, and butter to England during these years.

A vote of thanks was tendered Miss Dane for her inspiring address.

A solo by Mrs. Earl Dafoe and a guitar duet by Mr. Harold and Miss Hilda Howes were much enjoyed.

Two colored films were shown one on "Early Life in Quebec", and the other on the "Life of Tom Thompson", the artist.

The Mizpah benediction closed the meeting and refreshments were served by the group in charge.

90th Birthday Celebrated by Mrs. R. Huffman

Little did the winsome bride of nineteen years, who made her new home on the 5th Concession of Thurlow, 71 years ago realize that some day she would celebrate her 90th birthday in the same locality. Such has been the fate of Mrs. Rhoda Huffman, who on Friday, January 17, reached the remarkable age of 90 years.

The only daughter of Robert and Susan Walker, early settlers of the 4th Concession of Thurlow, she was born in January 1857. She married John Huffman, a son of another pioneer family on March 15, 1876, and settled on a farm just south of the Bronk Cheese factory. To this union five children were born, Mrs. Billa Ketcheson, (Emma), Holloway; Miss Florence Huffman, Reg.N., who lives with her mother; Ernest, whose death occurred suddenly one year ago on his mother's birthday; Charles and James, of the 5th Concession.

Thirty-three years ago, her husband died, and since then she has made her home most of the time in part of the brick house which she and her husband built on their original homestead, where her son, Charles, now lives.

Eight years ago with her daughter, Florence, they moved a short distance down the road to keep house for another son, Ernest. Since his death, one year ago, they have continued to reside in the same place with a grandson, Carman Huffman.

Enjoys Good Health

She has always enjoyed unusually good health and at the present time is still very active. During the last few years her hearing has been affected, but she still enjoys nothing better than a visit with her friends. A couple of years ago she fell and fractured her hip, but recovered so that she gets around in a wheel chair, and helps do the household tasks she can. She is still able to go to visit her neighbors with assistance in the car, and is present at church and all the community activities as often as possible. She has always possessed a very pleasing personality and in spite of her advanced years, she still retains those qualities which have endeared her to all. Her splendid Christian character and kindly ways have won for her, a host of friends, during her long useful life.

Honored by Family

On Friday evening her immediate family of children, thirteen grandchildren and six great grandchildren of the Huffman family, along with the nieces and nephews of the Walker family, a few of the older neighbors of the community, and the minister, Rev. Trumpour, gathered at the home of her son, James O. Huffman to do her honor. Two grandchildren, Garnet Huffman, of Toronto and Miss Georgina Huffman, who is attending Peterboro Normal School were unable to attend. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed. Mrs. Huffman enjoyed opening a large number of gifts which were presented to her. After dainty refreshments were served, the guests departed wishing Gilead's "grand old lady" many more happy birthdays.

I.O.D.E. Enrolls New Members

Marmora. (Special.) — The January meeting of Marmora Chapter, I.O.D.E. was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Regan recently, with 22 members in attendance.

The meeting opened with the prayer of the order and the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mrs. D. P. Marett, who had been appointed to secure information regarding the financial assistance to be given to some worthy student in furthering his or her education, reported on her interview with Mr. Loucks, Public School Inspector, who is to advise the Chapter on the result of his investigation in this connection.

An application for membership in the Chapter from Mrs. J. L. Shannon was received and unanimously approved. Mrs J. M. Brownlie, Mrs. S. Bennett and Mrs. Robert Scott were formally enrolled in the Chapter

Election of officers for the coming year were held with the following results:

Regent, Mrs. J. R. Reynolds; 1s Vice Regent, Miss Rita Deason; 2nd Vice Regent, Mrs. M. H. Borland; Secretary, Mrs. Chas. Brady; Treasurer, Mrs. H. D. Forbes; Standard Bearer, Miss Kaye Gaffney; Educational Secretary, Mrs. P. Eamer; Echoes Secretary, Mrs. W. L. Dickson.

Plans were laid for the annual dinner meeting to be held in February.

Mrs. A. G. Scoble then gave a most interesting and educational talk to the meeting on the high points of interest of Flin Flon where she and her husband lived for four years prior to coming to Deloro.

The meeting closed with the presentation of the flag and the singing of the National Anthem.

TAKES TITLE — Four years of perseverance were rewarded at the Toronto Skating Club on Saturday night, when Toronto's 18-year-old Marilyn Ruth Take was crowned queen of Canadian women figure skaters. Marilyn, shown here, holds the coveted Devonshire Cup, emblematie of the Canadian Senior Ladies' Singles Canadian championship. Toronto Skating Club's Gloria Lillico, who finished fourth to Miss Take, skated a full five-minute free skating performance expertly with a trailing shoelace, which caused her to fall once.

SEA VULTURES KILL WHALE

Manteo, N.C., Jan. 20 (AP)—Coast Guardsmen who rushed through fog and rough seas to the rescue of what was first reported to be an "overturned ship with survivors clinging to it" were given ringside seats Saturday to a losing battle by a monster whale against a flock of sea vultures.

The whale, described by Coast Guardsmen as the largest ever sighted off this section's shores, was wallowing in shallow water, helpless to defend itself against the flesh-ripping beaks of the huge birds.

Good Health is First Step To a Lovely Complexion

Movie star Brenda Joyce's lovely complexion shows she leads a healthy life

By HELEN FOLLETT

"SUCH war of white and red within her cheeks" wrote Shakespeare. As that was in the era before the general use of rouge and lipstick, it must be that the lady flaunted home grown blushes. Considering how we have stepped along the health-and-hygiene way it would seem that we might be blessed with rosy cheeks. You'll see them on the teen-agers, but along about the age of twenty there is recourse to the factory glow. Well, it is nice that there are substitutes for our beauty losses.

Your great-grandmother, showing you the family album, will be sure to say "That is your great aunt Sarah. She had the most glorious rose petal skin and not a grain of powder ever touched it." Aunt Sarah wasn't wolfing down vitamins or mineral salts. She wore corsets that choked the life out of her. The idea of taking exercise would have caused her to faint. What business did she have possessing rosy cheeks? Why are we short-changed? You answer if you can.

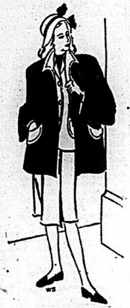
Enough Sleep Important

No doubt it is the delirious life we live and fewer hours of sleep. You may have noticed that when you have slept well, and longer than usual, you awaken with a complexion that is fresh looking and colorful.

There are women who can't get to bed at a reasonable hour. Along about eleven o'clock they get a yen to change the furniture around, or to shampoo their hair, or write all those letters they should have written weeks ago.

They never think that the body must have rest, that it is during sleep that the processes of repair and renewal goes on in every cell of the body.

Good Threesome



Suit with companion coat.

By VERA WINSTON

THE SUIT with its companion topper, especially if it is the soft of coat that goes well with other things, is a wardrobe wonder, kind to budgeteers, and available in various designs and fabrics, of course, in all price brackets. Which shows that it is universally popular. This little suit of greige tweed has a companion topper of black wool lined in the greige tweed, which stamps it as good cold weather fare. Tweed is used for the turned-back collar and pocket flaps. The skirt has a wide box pleat front and back.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

"Thank You" From Gird And Her Date

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

There is a question I have wondered about for a long time, but I find it awkward to ask a friend far the answer. Should a girl thank her date for the good time she has had, or is this his place?

Betty

Both her date and the girl should do some thanking for the evening's entertainment. The mannerly young man thanks the girl for going to the dance with him, and the girl makes him feel that she appreciates his generous hospitality by saying, for example, "I have had a wonderful time tonight, Bob....enjoyed every minute. Thank you, so much, for asking me."

"You're Welcome" Not Enough

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My brother and I went to a school dance together last week. He overheard me say "You're welcome" to a boy who had just thanked me for a dance. He razzed me about this at the dinner table this evening, and said that this was a "silly reply" to make. I wouldn't give him the satisfaction of asking him why, but I wish you would tell me.

Jean

If you say "You're welcome" to your dance partner's "Thank you for the dance," it suggests that the pleasure of the dance is entirely on the boy's side. In these words there's nothing about your enjoying the dance, and so you should say something that indicates this. "It was a delightful dance, Bob" or "I enjoyed that dance so much" something like that, to assure him you enjoyed it also.

Formal Name on Envelope

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me the correct form of name for a married woman to use when she writes her name and return-address on an envelope?

A. N.

Since this name written on the envelope is for information and identification, she should use her formal name..Mrs. John Smith.

When a Child Answers The Telephone

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My new position takes me away from home a good deal these days, and my children answer the telephone. I don't want them to answer it the way some children answer me when I telephone to their mothers. (It's usually, "Hello, what do you want?" or just "No, she isn't home now.") What should I teach my children to say?

Mother

First teach them that answering the telephone should be a polite greeting, that they should use "a polite voice," that they should identify themselves, answer the telephoner's question, and ask if there is a message. This is an important lesson in good manners, well worth your effort and patience.

Your child might say, for example, "This is Jean. Mother isn't at home, but we expect her about five o'clock. I'll tell her you called. And she might add, "May I give her a message?", or "Would you like to have her call you?"

And do remember to keep a pad with a pencil..tied to the pad!..near the telephone.

To Sit At The Speaker's Table

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been invited to sit at the speaker's table at a dinner to be given by a large organization. Will you please tell me what this means, and what my duties are? Would I be asked to speak?

-Bill

At a public dinner of this kind the speaker's table is at one end of the room, usually on a dais. At this table the guests sit only on one side of the table, facing the room. The toastmaster sits at the middle and the guest of honor is at his right, with the next most important guest at his left.

Customarily, the chairman introduces each guest at the speaker's table, and usually the guest rises to acknowledge the introduction. If the guest at the speaker's table are to be asked to speak, the chairman should notify them of this before the dinner, but usually all guests at this table, except perhaps the guest of honor, are not expected to speak. If the guest of honor is to speak, he or she is the last to speak, after the other introductions are made.

Fashion Flashes

WON'T IT BE FUN to wear pleated dresses once more? With the lapse of controls, Spring showings almost unanimously feature frocks in monotone and printed silk, in wool and rayon, all with pleated skirts, or inset pleated sections in sleeves, collars or bodices.

VERY FINE DETAIL marks many of the new Spring suits. Soft yellow tweed is used for a town suit made with a cutaway, scalloped front to the long, fitted jacket—the line curving high to the side seams and sloping in back. Fold-over pockets follow the hemline and precise waist darts release soft bodice fullness.

HANDS OUT for handsome, festive gloves, designed for gala occasions. Brown suede is used for a soft glove that has puffs at the wrist and a full, puffed cuff which is decorated with a bursting rocket motif in iridescent gold and silver beads with a shower of gold sequins spilling onto the glove back.

CARD ADDICTS should go "all out" for a group of black satin evening bags shaped in suits — diamonds, hearts and clubs. Red sequins or green are used for the suit motifs embroidered all over the bags.

Brilliants for Fashion

A NEW trend, another reason, for the handsome fake-stone jewelry which you see everywhere, lies in the facts of insurance. It used to be the smart thing to have faithful copies of your priceless heirlooms made, with which to deck yourself and fool the public, while the McCoy stuff lay safely in the vaults.

It is much less expensive, far more fun and variety, to choose your mock jewelry for itself alone, skipping the arduous and [illegible] job of [illegible] for beautiful adornments which are precious looking in their own right. The wreathe necklace, the brace of bracelets, the earrings, shown here....all of imported rhinestones set in silver finished to ape platinum, are tokens in hand. They sparkle like diamonds, are designed and set with the care given to diamonds, and in general take the place of diamonds until someone has to settle for the expensive protection of diamonds.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Fiance Who is Careless About Writing

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am engaged to a fellow who lives in another province. For a month now, I have neither heard from him nor seen him. He generally writes me, and has always let me know when he is coming down for a weekend. I have written quite a few letters to him to find out if anything is wrong, and have also written to his mother, but have received no letter from either of them.

I love him, but I don't know whether I am wrong to give him another chance. This isn't the first time he has neglected to write me. It's the third time he's let it go for weeks at a time, but this is the longest yet.

"Bewildered."

I hardly think I'd break an engagement solely because my fiance was dilatory about writing, "Bewildered." Letter-writing is a terrific chore for some people, even sometimes for those in love, strange as it may seem. And evidently you see him fairly often on weekends.

On the other hand, of course, it might be that this young man's neglect is due to waning interest in you, which would be something else again.

Right now, since you've written so many letters to him, and have also written his mother, without receiving any reply, I suggest you do nothing further until you hear from him. Possibly there is some perfectly reasonable explanation why you haven't heard, but in any event, you've done your full share of keeping in touch, and the next move is definitely up to him.

There Are Three Ahead of Her—She Wants to Be No. 1

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I like a certain boy very much, but he likes some other girl, and when he doesn't like her, he has a second and a third girl.

I am not exactly ugly or shy, but I'm not forward either. I'm just an ordinary girl who has been whistled at quite a few times. My problem is, how can I be this boy's No. 1 girl?

"A Reader"

You may be neither ugly, shy nor forward, "Reader," but you certainly are ambitious, to put it mildly!

Is it the challenge of the competition for this boy's attention, and the thought of the triumph it would be to win out over a trio of other girls, that intrigues you and makes you want to chase him? It seems to me it would be a lot smarter for you to at least pretend indifference to a boy who apparently hasn't considered you even for further place in his affections, than to make it perfectly plain that you'd like to add yourself to his string of admirers. Better wait till he starts whistling at you before giving him melting glances. Don't you think so yourself?

I Think You're Wasting Your Time "Sender"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 20 years old and in love with a girl 17. The first time I met her, I was 17 and she was 14. I went out with her for a year and a half before I went into the navy.

I wrote to her frequently while in boot camp, but got only one letter from her. I was in the Pacific eight months and wrote to my girl friend often, but she never answered my letters. So I got disgusted and wrote her a sarcastic letter and told her I wouldn't see her any more.

When I had a 15-day leave after coming back from overseas, I didn't go near her at first. But I couldn't stand it, so went to see her on the ninth day and went out and had a good time. She said she had been just lazy about writing. When I went back, everything was all right with us again, and she promised to write and it looked like she really would. But it was still the same old story. I've been discharged for four months now, and have never gone to see her. I accidentally met her on the street once, and she said hello, but I ignored her. I heard she was very mad about that. Do you think it is possible she might be in love with me, and that I should see her and maybe after awhile get engaged?

"A Sender"

No, "Sender," I don't think it's possible that she's in love with you or she wouldn't have behaved so indifferently. And I think you're wasting your time to keep on brooding about her.

My advice is to get yourself another girl and let this one go. After all, she's very young still, and evidently wants to look around awhile before picking a permanent boy friend.

Certainly 14 is Too Young For 20

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl 14 years old. A few days ago I met a boy of 20, who is handsome and doesn't drink or smoke. He asked me if I would like to go steady with him. Am I too young to go steady with a boy of 20?

"L. A."

It is very flattering to a 14-year-old girl, of course, to be taken seriously by a young man of 20. But as I see it, there's something wrong with a 20-year-old who turns to an early teen-ager for steady companionship. Most young people of that age consider themselves extremely mature and sophisticated, and usually regard those in your age group as children, "L. A."

Be a wise girl and stick to friends closer to your own age. Association with older ones won't get you anywhere and may make your own friends lose interest in you.

You're Too Old to be Bossed Around

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 30 years old. How can I get my aunt to let me be like other girls? I don't have many friends, and things did not go so well when I was about 17, so now she will not let me do anything or go any place. She wants me just to stay home and read. She doesn't like me to date, and if I go to a show with any of my friends, I can't let the boy come home with me.

My aunt is good in other ways. My mother has been dead for many years and my dad, too. I have a step-dad, but I don't want to write to him about this.

"R. S."

It sounds ridiculous for a young woman 30 years old to complain that she isn't allowed to go out and have normal good times with her friends. You're much too old to let anyone boss you around like that.

Is it because of something that happened when you were 17 that your aunt is afraid to trust you? Or what do you think is the reason for her attitude? You don't give me facts enough to figure out an explanation.

Even though you may have had some unfortunate experience when you were very young, you surely must have gained some commonsense by this time so that you would know how to conduct yourself.

It would be too bad to have any difficulty with your aunt if she is in the main, good to you. But at the same time it is nonsense for you to be completely under her thumb. At 30, you should be independent, have a job, many friends, and plenty of interesting activities to keep you busy. I suggest you start in on such a program immediately.

HANK GREENBERG SOLD TO PIRATES FOR $50,000

Pittsburgh Will be Dangerous Club With Two Real Sluggers in Lineup

By ELAINE KAHN

Pittsburgh, Jan. 20 —(AP)— The most dangerous club in the Major Leagues this year may well be the lowly seventh-place Pittsburgh Pirates, now owners of the two 1946 home run kings.

The Pirates already had the National League's home run champion in rookie outfielder Ralph Kiner, who slugged out 23 circuit blows. The purchase of Hank Greenberg, from Detroit—who topped American League swatters with 44—gives a one-two punch that bodes no good for rivals.

The Pittsburgh outfield also has Jim Russell, making it the hardest-hitting fielders' crew seen here since the 1927 days of the two Waners and Woody Jenson.

Purchase of the 36-year-old Greenberg from the Tigers—the price was understood to be $50,000—gives the Pirates one of the game's biggest drawing cards. The seven other American League clubs waived all rights to Greenberg.

The handsome first baseman—outfielder was reported to have received $60,000 from the Tigers last seaon and planned to ask $75,000 this year.

Roy Hamey, Pirate general manager, said:

"I guess outside of (Bob) Feller, Greenberg has been the highest priced fellow in the major Leagues. We're certainly going to try to satisfy him."

Asked if the Pirates had any plans to move the left field scoreboard in Forbes Field to benefit Greenberg, Hamely replied:

"No, not this season at least."

The left field line distance at Forbes Field is 365 feet compared with 340 at Briggs Stadium in Detroit where Greenberg hammered out most of his 311 home runs in eight seasons.

Regarding the sale, Tiger president Walter O. Briggs said "In the light of recent happenings, it was felt that a change of scenery might prove highly beneficial to player Henry Greenberg and the Detroit club."

Intermediate "A" Revised Schedule

Jan. 17—Queen's U. (4) at Belleville (6).
Jan. 22—Belleville A. and N. Veterans at Kingston Lions.
Jan. 27—Lions at Queen's University, Kingston.
Jan. 29—Belleville A & N's at Queen's University.
Jan. 31—Lions at Belleville.
Feb. 3—Queens at Lions
Feb. 5—Belleville at Lions.
Feb. 10—Queen's U. at Belleville.
Feb. 12—Lions at Queen's.
Feb. 14—Lions at Belleville.
Feb. 24—Queen's at Lions.
Feb. 26—Belleville at Queens

The first and second teams will play off for the group championship and the right to go on into the playdowns in a two-of-three series.

Don. Barrett, starry centre ice player, formerly with the Stratford Kroehler Junior "A" squad, who has been declared ineligible to perform with the Belleville Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans team. Barrett secured his release from the Stratford squad and returned home but the OHA moguls clamped down and ordered "no soap" as far as playing with the Intermediate "A's" here is concerned. Hiss loss was a distinct blow to the Red team here.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Montreal Canadiens ace sharpshooter Maurice Richard snapped out of his mid-season scoring slump in the Habitants' two weekend games, collecting three goal to maintain a comfortable margin at the top of the National Hockey League scoring parade with 26 markers and 17 assists for 43 points. Ted Kennedy of Toronto held on to the second slot by garnering a goal and an assist leaving him six points behind Richard with 18 goals and 19 assists. Detroit's Billy Taylor was right behind with 36 points after a weekend harvest of three counters and one assist. Grouped in fourth place with 33 points apiece are linemates Milt Schmidt and Bobby Bauer of Boston and Chicago's Max Bentley while Sid Abel of Detroit comes next with 31.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Trenton's withdrawal from the Intermediate "A" hockey race hereabouts has thrown the well-known monkey wrench into the schedule machinery. On Friday night after the announcement of Trenton's fadeout Convener Lorne Cook of Kingston hurriedly drafted a new schedule on the back of a used envelope in a secluded corner of the Memorial Arena.

* * *

The new set-up which appears elsewhere on this page gives the Belleville Anafs an extra game at home, but there is plenty of vacancy space between some of their fixtures. For instance they have a 12-day lay-off between Feb. 14 when they meet Kingston Lions here and Feb. 26 when they again play hosts to Queen's U. Coach Shiels will likely jam in a couple of exhibition games in these lengthy rest spots to keep the Reds on edge.

* * *

The first and second teams will play off in the group according to Convener Cook, but whether the wind-up will be home and home games or a two-of-three series has not yet been decided. Quite possible the series will be home and home as the OHA demands all group winners to be declared on March 1. Usually there is a bit of leeway granted in this respect, and if so, the series could be played as a best two-of-three.

* * *

Jackie Wardhaugh, who played a grand game on the Anafs' second line the other night, was inadvertently left off the press report of the line-up. Jack flashes plenty of speed and attacking power and is headed for places in the hockey picture. He played with Doug. Bastedo and one of the Meagher brothers on the second attacking division, and the kids did a grand job in carrying the torch for their big brothers of the first line.

* * *

Walt. Gerow, Jr., Leo Goyer and Tim Williams were up to their old scoring tricks the other night gathering 13 points between them. Timmy led the point parade getting two goals and three assists with Walt. Gerow scoring three goals and one assist. Leo Goyer donated one goal and two assists with brother Vern getting an assist and youthful Cal. Yorke helping himself to two assists.

* * *

The Anafs face a stiff test in Kingston on Wednesday night when they meet the highly-rated Lions of that city in their first clash away from home. The Lions were eased out of the Kingston City League finals by Queen's University, but, Kingston claims, the studes iced a stronger team to accomplish that chore, than the one that bowed to Belleville here last Friday.

* * *

However, Coach Shiels said today that the team is in good shape and came out of their first tussle with no serious injuries. Cal. Yorke stopped a lofting puck with the back of his head during a Queen's attack on Friday night, but nothing serious other than a slight headache resulted. The coach was satisfied with the way the Reds went at it on the opening night, but felt their passing plays were hampered somewhat by the heavy sticky ice. Wednesday night will tell.

* * *

The Anafs suffered a keen disappointment when the O.H.A. moguls ruled that Don Barrett was ineligible to play for them on Friday night, or on any other night as far as that is concerned. Barrett stated that he has his release from the Stratford Kroehlers Junior "A" squad with which he played part of the season—but there is such a thing as OHA regulations, residence rules etc. Efforts are being made to have the starry young centre iceman brought back into the Belleville fold—but it is doubtful if such will happen.

* * *

Barrett centred the Jackie Wardhaugh, Doug Bastedo line, second string of the Anafs during the practice sessions and the kids were going great guns. However those stout lil fellas of hockey Al. and Bernie Meagher are also travelling at top speed and their efforts in the first game were on a par with those of their mates.

* * *

The announcement of the game scheduled between St. Michael's College junior "A" squad and a Quinte All-Star aggregation here on Friday night is causing plenty of hockey gab along the sports rialtos hereabouts. Interest is steadily mounting in the clash and the starry Irish will no doubt be greeted with a sell-out crowd. The game's proceeds will be given to the Benevolent Fund of the RCAF and the game is being sponsored by the Trenton Air Station sports department.

* * *

St. Mike's rate among the cream of the junior "A" hockey crop and at present are easing along at the top of their loop. The flashy youngsters who went to the Dominion finals last year, being nudged out of the final picture by the ultimate champions the Winnipeg Monarchs, form one of the most powerful hockey aggregations ever assembled in hockey ranks and their visit here is being looked forward to with eager anticipation by the hockey faithful. Tickets will go on sale at Cook's Cigar Store, Front Street.

* * *

Tonight, these battling buckaroos of the Intermediate "B" loop stage another of their double-header features at Memorial Arena. The piece-de-resistance of the hockey fare appears to be the clash between Bloomfield's Sky Chiefs and the league-leading Trenton Flyers, while the second tussle sees the Picton Combines joust with Doc Lyon's Bomber crew from Mountain View.

* * *

CHIPS FOUR .... s ....

While the Chiefs will be minus Kitty Abbott star defenceman, they will be all out to tack the first defeat on the fast-travelling Flyers. They have plenty of power on the defence and offence and this tilt should be an eye-catcher. Picton's Combines, are not the weak sisters of the loop as some of their recent scores might indicate. In fact 'tis reported that manager Lou Yanover has strengthened his squad quite a bit since its last appearance here and tonight might see an upset. However Bombers are confident they can take the Combines — but that remains to be seen. First game, 7:45.

* * *

Back to the Trenton "A" question. Rome Taylor of that town informed us a few minutes ago, that it was a lack of key players that caused the Trenton withdrawal from the Intermediate "A" loop. It appears that there are no less than four hockey leagues operating in or about Trenton and teams of these loops have acquired the cream of the hockey crop. Trenton, did not or could not form the nucleus of an "A" team and rather than go on and withdraw later, officials decide to step out of the picture now. That's the story from the horse's mouth, other reports to the contrary.

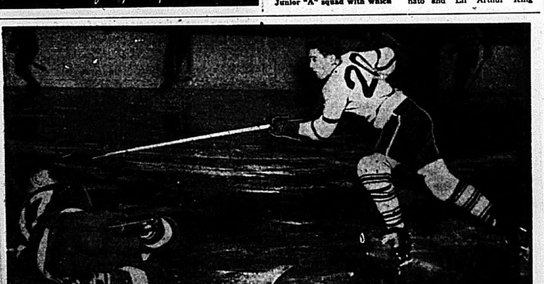
Chiplets—

The fight between Joey Bagnato and Lil Arthur King scheduled for tonight at Maple Leaf Gardens has been postponed due to an injury to Bagnato . . . Getting to be a habit . . . A few weeks ago Danny Webb, colored fistic star, sidestepped a fight with Gus Mell, after plenty of the pasteboards had been in the hands of the customers . . . Bagnato, 'tis reported, strained a muscle during a workout and will be unable to appear this evening . . . George Faulkner's Intermediate "B" basketeers are at home tonight in the Y gym to Picton's Club "36", whatever that means . . . Looks like a tidy tilt, as these Belleville hoopsters can really throw that ball around . . . Don't miss it . . . This Intermediate "B" hockey loop is at least providing the pewsters with plenty of goals . . . To date in four games the four teams haye tallied 190 goals between them, or an average of nearly twelve tallies per game . . . . Wide open stuff, wot? . . . Trenton Flyers, undefeated and untied lead the parade with four straight wins . . . Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson, Canada's dean of sports writers once parlayed $150 into a quarter-million simoleons, then blew it in the crash of '29 . . . Read Trent Frayne's story anent the saga of the Hot Stove League in this week's Liberty . . . You will like it . . . Johnny Greco is called to win over Freddie Archer in their fistic clash in the Montreal Forum tonight . . . Greco, Canadian welterweight champion, has Montreal sports writers wondering why he avoids such logical Canadian opposition as Harry Hurst . . . . They are also agog over what they term Branch Rickey's "passing the onus to the fans" because he has ordered Jackie Robinson, colored baseball star and International League leading hitsmith in 1946, to the Royals for 1947 instead of the Brooklyn Dodgers . . . . They predict M'Sieu Rickey will be the centre of a sportspage storm come Spring when the scribes demand that Robinson be given the major league chance he was promised . . . Here's the latest fishing record — Bill Kappel, Westmount, N. J., bagged three tuna down Nova Scotia way last Sept. 22. They weighed 827, 546 and 514 pounds respectively . . . Howinell did he ever get 'em home? . . . And that is the end of the Sunday chore. P.S.—"Lil" Arthur King meets Walter Cagnell of New England who is subbing for the injured Bagnato.



A ROOKIE DUEL!—Toronto Maple Leafs' hustling young rookie defence stalwart, Jimmy Thomson (20), thrusts his stick forward like a fencer, prepared to defend his honor to the death, as Detroit Red Wings' ace fledgling forward, Gordon Howe (17), sprawls on the ice. This little sideplay took place at the start of the second period of Saturday's NHL game at Maple Leaf Gardens, which Leafs won, 7-4. Referee Bill Chadwick did not appreciate Thomson's artistry and he was thumbed to the penalty bench for a two-minute rest.

$10,000 Richmond Golf Tourney Won By George Schoux

(By The Canadian Press)

The $10,000 Richmond, Cal. Open Golf Tournament, which attracted some of the greatest stars in professional golf, was won yesterday by dark horse George Schoux of San Bruno, Cal., with a 72-hole total of 268. He posted a final 37-34-71 to go with previous rounds of 66-66-65 to win the $2,000 first money. Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., rapped in a four under par 67 which brought him second money with a 269. United States Open Champion Lloyd Mangrum, who led the first half of the tournament, finished in a 271 tie with P.G.A. titleholder and leading money winner Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., and with Chick Harbert of Farmington, Mich.

George Fazlo of Los Angeles, Canadian Open Champion, finished with a 277.

Two new clubs—from Geneva, N.Y. and Ottawa, Ont.—were admitted yesterday to tne clubs "C" border baseball league. The announcement was made following a meeting of league officials at Kingston. The two teams replace Sherbrooke and Granby, Quebec.

With a record jump of 230 feet on the Fox River Grove slide outside Chicago, Art Devlin of Lake Placid, N.Y., yesterday won the Governor's Cup in the 41st annual Norge Ski Club tournament.

In a week-end hockey double-header at Lake Placid, N.Y., Lake Placid Roamers yesterday blanked the Valleyfield, Que., Braves 5-0 after a 6-6 tie Saturday night.

Bill Dickey, who served a short term as manager of the New York Yankees last year, yesterday signed a one-year contract to act as player-manager of the Little Rock travellers of the Southern Association.

Johnny Longden, 36-year-old Jockey Drom Calgary, guided owner's choice to a half-length victory Saturday in the $50,000 San Felipe stakes at Santa Anita, Arcadia, Cal.

At Miami, Imperator, a Canadian-owned three-year-old colt, which raced on Ontario tracks last Spring, went to the past Saturday in the $10,000 Hibiscus Stakes at 20-1 and lost by half a length to Michael B. after leading most of the way.

ST. MIKES HOLD 12-POINT LEAD IN JUNIOR RACE

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto St. Michael's Majors extended their lead in the O.H.A. Junior "A" circuit to 12 clear points over Galt Red Wings as a result of the weekend games.

While St Mikes were gathering an easy four points in a 6-1 victory over Toronto Young Rangers the Red Wings were defeated by Toronto Marlboros 6-5. In the two other games, Oshawa Generals showed no mercy as they piled up a 13-0 score on Hamilton Szabos, while St. Catharines Falcons and Barrie Flyers fought overtime to a 5-5 deadlock.

The result leaves St. Mikes heading the parade with 50 points and Galt alone in second place at 38. Oshawa and Marlboros are tied for third at 36 each, with Barrie in fifth place at 34. Stratford comes next with 30. Then there's a long gap in front of the four other teams—St. Catharines, Hamilton, Windsor, Spitfires and Young Rangers.

There's only one game on the card tonight, a junior tilt between Windsor and Szabos at Hamilton.

Scored at Will

At Oshawa Saturday night Reddoch in the Generals' nets had the easiest shut-out of his career as the Oshawa puckmen scored virtually at will. Among the total of 29 scoring points Ceresino, Blair and Milliard each scored three goals, and Scholes got two. The other goals went to Bauer, McKay, Gamble and Curik.

It was a different story at St. Catharines, where Flyers and Falcons were tied 2-2 in the first and 4-4 in the second, with the third period scoreless. In the overtime each team got a single. Falcons' scorers were McOustra, Kodatsky, Geoghan, Currie and MacDonald. St. Pierre had two for Barrie, Fife, Barrett and Favero getting the others.

In the Toronto double-header St. Mikes were never in danger and their goals were evenly divided between Sandford, Hannigan, Psutka, Harrison, Paul and Costello, while Pidherney got the sole young Rangers' counter.

Galt Red Wings and Marlies were even at 1-1 in the first and the Wings took a 3-2 lead after the second period, but Marlies ran in four more in the final frame while Galt could add only two. Naylor and Kent each scored twice for Marlboros, Timgren and Ford getting the others. Uniac scored three of the Galt counters, the others coming from Anderson and Wylie.

Sports Roundup

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 20. (CP)—The deal sending Hank Greenberg from Detroit Tigers to Pittsburgh Pirates involves some of the most complex factors of any recent baseball dickering. . . The American League's home-run king is unique in that he represents a potentially powerful management group as well as being a star player . . . It's said that Hank, with his eye on the future, wants to buy Hollywood Stars of the AAA Class Pacific Coast League. . . .That was one reason why he didn't want to go to New York Yankees, who were most anxious for his services . . . Reliable sources here say that Greenberg favored the move to Pittsburg because Bing Crosby is one of the BUC owners . . . Hank feels that The Groaner's connections on the coast would help acquire the stars for about $1,000,000 . . .Greenberg, who was paid about $60,000 last season by the Tigers, has a tidy sum of his own and in addition, his wife is Carol Gimbel, daughter of the New York department store tycoon who, presumably, would be behind Hank's baseball business. . . .

Brain Trust

Greenberg's ownership aspirations present a much more involved situation than most "beef-on-the-hoof" baseball deals. . . When stars like Bobby Feller or Ted Williams are sold, their prestige is one of the big things taken into account . . . But few ball players are as shrewd as Greenberg, have as big a bankroll personally, or have as much backing. . . . So Hank literally is a triple threat in the baseball picture of the future. . .

Costly Sentence

When fiery Phil Watson of New York Rangers solemnly advised sports writers early this year that "you don't win hockey games sitting in the penalty box" he wasn't saying anything news. . . .But the truth of the bromide was underlined last night when the Rangers downed Chicago Hawks 5-3 in a National Hockey League tilt. . . .In the first period, big John Mariucci of Chicago was thumbed for vigorously elbowing Bill Moe. . .While Mariucci watched in state, Grant Warwick fired in two Ranger goals in 42 seconds . . . Those goals spelled the difference between a tie and a loss . . .Maybe Mariucci's brilliant career as an end with Minnesota University's Football Gophers gave him the wrong idea of his function as a hockey defenceman . . .Incidentally, his penalty was the only one of the game. . .

Calling Dr. Stevens

Baseball folk in New York are puzzled by Dr. Mal Stevens' decision to join the baseball Yankees and pro football Brooklyn Dodgers as full-time club doctor . . . Stevens, a noted surgeon, also has doubled as na ace football coach with Yale New York University and the Dodgers . . . He also was an all-American halfback at Yale in 1924. . . . It is pointed out that under the new set-up Stevens will give up his medical practice. . . . No salary figure for the doctor has been announced but it must be in a fairly high bracket to make it worth his while to leave the field of medicine.

PLA-MORS PACED BY DICK BUTLER

(By The Canadian Press)

Kansas City Pla-Mors, paced by Dick Butler, gained against Northern Division competition in the United States Hockey League during the weekend by battling Minneapolis Millers to a 3-3 tie Saturday and whipping Omaha Knights 3-2 Sunday.

Butler tallied a pair of goals against the Knights in the first and second periods and Ray Powell added the other. Omaha's goals getters were Sullivan and Homenuke.

In the league's only other Sunday night contest Houston Skippers, playing their fifth game in six days, bowed to St. Paul Saints 4-2. Gus Schwartz, Gil Nordin and Nakina Smith set the pace for the Saints and gave them a three-goal opening period lead. Alex Sandalack notched their fourth goal in the final period. Ducky Skinner and George Agar tallied the Houston points.

The weekend proved disastrous for the Skippers who were beaten 3-1 in Dallas Saturday night. In other Saturday games Scotty McPherson's goal in the last 46 seconds of play gave Fort Worth a 4-3 triumph over St. Paul and Omaha tripped Tulsa 4-3.

WEEKEND STARS

Billy Reay Montreal pivotman, fired home three goals as Canadiens bested New York 6-2 Saturday.

Jimmy Peters, Reay's linemate who scored one goal himself and assisted on three others in the same game.

Joe Klukay, Toronto, who garnered two goals and one assist as Leaf's walloped Detroit 7-4 Saturday.

Woody Dumart, Boston, who connected twice Saturday as Bruins defeated Chicago 3-1.

Maurice Richard, Montreal, who scored both his team's goals as Canadiens drew 2-2 with Detroit Sunday.

Don Gallinger, Boston, who assisted on all three Bruin tallies Sunday as the Hub team beat Toronto 3-2.

Grant Warwick New York, who scored twice and helped on another Sunday as Rangers whipped Chicago 5-3.

Dispel any doubts you may have about no-trump bidding. Confusion about them comes from using a cumbersome measuring stick. Like honor tricks, half tricks, plus values, point counts, and such.

Base your no-trump bidding entirely on nothing but aces and kings and queens. They are known as high cards. There are 12 of them in a pack. They represent 12 no-trump tricks.

If you hold five high cards and partner has four, nine highs are in your pair. They are nine no-trump tricks. These are enough for a game at three no-trump.

If you have six and partner has three high cards, you have the nine needed for a no-trump game. With seven high cards in one hand and two in the other, there is a no-trump game. Ketchon?

Let me remind you that an opening of one in a suit shows five suit tricks. Four of these must be high cards. So. such an opener promises a minimum of four no-trump tricks.

This opener can later raise once in no-trump for each additional high card he holds. Partner adds his high cards to these. They tell him the total number of no-trump tricks in their pair.

To an opening of one in a suit, a responding suit bidder must have at least two high cards. He can raise once in no-trump for each additional high card he has not previously used up.

This method is so simple, you may be lulled into a feeling that it is not accurate. Try it out in your next few deals. See if it is not better than any of the bigshot counts ever proposed.

Partner opens with one diamond when you have this hand:

♠ Q 7 6 5
♥ A Q 9
♦ K 7
♣ K 9 7 4

He shows at least four no-trump tricks. You have five. Unless it ends in a trump suit bid, your pair must have three no-trump.

A game has more attractions when you understand your actions.

Michael Redgrave's recipe for success is simple: "Be choosy, but know how to choose."

In assessing a suggested film story he applies a simple formula which so far has not let him down. If the central idea can be summed up in one concise sentence and that idea is immediately interesting, then the finished film has a good chance of being good.

"It always comes back to the script in the end," he said.

Redgrave, 39, served as an ordinary seaman on the aircraft carrier Illustrious before being invalided out of the navy in 1942.

He arrives soon in Hollwood to co-star with Joan Bennett in Fritz Lang's "The Secret Beyond The Door," and immediately will return to Britain to play "Macbeth" on the London stage.

Ray Milland will have the starring role in the latest of "The Big . . ." series, Paramount's "The Big Clock." He will play a crime magazine editor who becomes involved in the murder of a beautiful girl. On its completion he will go to London to make "For Her to See" in which Ann Todd may co-star with him.

James Warren, who has been appearing in Zane Grey westerns, is to have a change of pace. He has been cast as a young millionaire artist in "Indian Summer" completing a cast headed by Alexander Knox (from Strathroy, Ont.) and Ann Sothern. Warren now is being seen in "Bad Man's Territory" and recently completed "trail Street."

MARILYN R. TAKE WILL MAKE BID FOR WORLD TITLE

By WILF GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 20 —(CP)— Marilyn Ruth Take, shy, 18-year-old figure skater who excels also at ballot dancing and diving, laced on her skates again today to follow a gruelling practice schedule until she leaves early next month for Stockholm, where she'll be one of the two girls representing Canada in the world championship figure skating meet.

Dark-haired Miss Take will be listed as Canada's 1947 senior women's figure skating champion, a title she won Saturday night as the three-day Canadian figure skating championships ended with new titleholders declared in every contested event.

The Toronto Skating Club member succeeded to the title won the last three years by 18-year-old Barbara Ann Scott of the Minto Skating Club, Ottawa, the other Canadian girl who will be competing at Stockholm, Feb. 14-16. Miss Scott, holder of the North American biennial championship won at New York in 1945, already is in Europe training for the event.

The other premier Canadian figure skating title — the senior men's championship — was won by slim Norris Bowden of the Toronto Skating Club. As in the women's singles, the 28-year-old University of Toronto student was named champion after contesting the free skating competition, the scoring of which is combined with that obtained in compulsory figures to determine the winners in the singles events.

Defeats Three Others.

For her crown Miss Take, runner-up to Miss Scott for the last three years, defeated three other members of the Toronto Skating Club. Golden-haired, 19-year-old Nadine Phillips came second, 16-year-old Suzanne Morrow, last year's junior women's champion, placed third and Gloria Lillico, 17, trailed in fourth position.

Bowden, second last year to Ralph McCreath of Toronto, who has retired from active competition, scored his victory over two other entries — Wallace Diestelmeyer, 23-year-old navy veteran from Toronto and Kitchener, and stocky Gerrard Blair of the University Skating Club, Toronto, who has been training in Cleveland.

The 23-year-old Blair placed last in the senior event but in the junior men's competition he was named champion over three other contestants. Bill Lewis, 18-year-old member of the Vancouver Skating Club and a high school student in New Westminster, B. C., came second, with Alaine George Pinard of the Minto Club third and Thornton Opie of the Toronto Skating Club fourth.

Only Upset.

Blair's title-winning effort was the only upset. Lewis led at the end of the compulsory figures competition with Pinard second and Blair in third place. But in the free skating Lewis performed poorly and Blair came through with an outstanding performance to alter what appeared to be a certain win for the West Coast skater.

So close was the result officials were forced to confer again Saturday before naming Blair as the new champion and successor to Diestelmeyer, who won the crown in 1946 at Schumacher.

Diestelmeyer teamed up with Miss Morrow to win the senior pair's title, defeating the only other entry, Mrs. Margaret Roberts and Bruce Hyland who like the winners are members of the Toronto Skating Club.

Wins Dance Title.

The dance championship was won by Mrs. Roberts and Hyland who also took first place in the waltzing and 10 step competition. Miss Joyce Perkins and W. A. DeNance came second in all three events.

For the crowd of nearly 1,000 in the Toronto Skating Club's rink the biggest thrill was provided by a girl who failed to win any title. As Miss Lillico performed in the free skating part of the senior women's singles in which she came fourth and last, the shoelace of one of her boots came undone.

Disregarding the trailing lace and her open boot, the pretty, golden-haired skater leaped and twirled to draw bursts of applause from the crowd in a breath-taking exhibition. She fell only once and at the conclusion of her brilliant showing the crowd stood and cheered.

Montreal, Jan. 20 — (CP) — Around millionaires row in the Forum here that old, wintertime ailment —refereeitis—is plaguing the cuss-tomers in the upper tiers.

The millionaires, that valiant band of characters who used to inhabit the north-end bleacher section before it was turned over to the season ticket holders, are sure that the referees aren't doing right by "our boys" and they're quite vocal about it.

So, when King Clancy handed out 20 penalties here Thursday night—even though 11 went to Toronto Leafs—there was great wrath. The millionaires practically dared the King to come and get them when he got tired of chasing the players to the box, and tried to eject an unruly customer in one of the rinkside boxes.

Some think the reason the refs are so strict here is that they are under the eagle eye of league president Clarence Campbell. General manager Frank Selke of the Habs was even so unkind as to wish prexy Campbell would take some nice long out-of-town trips so the officials could relax.

Boston Bruins Make Biggest Gain Over Weekend Thumping Black Hawks and Maple Leafs

By JACK MITCHELL,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With a pair of sparkling victories that headlined the National Hockey League's six-game weekend, the refurbished Boston Bruins ably demonstrated their ability to take a hint — even to what (they hope) should be the satisfaction of maestro Art Ross.

Those victories — a 3-1 triumph over Chicago Black Hawks followed by a 3-2 decision over the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs — made it three-in-a-row for the once-faltering Bostonians. On that happy note, the Bruins had good reason for hoping the "general upheaval" threatened by manager Ross would remain at the mild shake-up which sent two veterans to the minors.

The Bruins' weekend wins left them still nine points behind the second-place Montreal Canadiens who turned in the next best showing by picking up three of a possible four points, but stretched their third-place margin over New York Rangers to three points

Rangers Break Even

The Rangers broke even in their two matches, losing 6-2 to the Canadiens at Montreal but whipping the last-place Black Hawks, 5-3, at New York.

The Canadiens were held to a 2-2 draw by the fifth-place Detroit Red Wings Sunday night following the victory over Rangers but even so picked up a point on the leading Maple Leafs. The Leafs walloped Detroit 7-4 in Toronto Saturday night and their tumble to Boston Sunday night gave them a split on four weekend points.

The Bruins, turning in their 3rd straight victory on home ice, took a 1-0 lead on Bobby Bauer's opening-period goal, only to see unassisted tallies by Syl Apps and Gaye Stewart give Toronto a 2-1 edge. But the Leafs' legs ran out and Bep Guidolin and Pat Egan shot Boston ahead in the final frame.

Detroit Lucky to Tie

Don Gallinger, lanky Boston centre, had the best point-getting night, assisting on all three Bruin tallies.

At Detroit, the Canadiens meanwhile picked up a point on the strength of two goals by Maurice (Rocket) Richard, his 25th and 26th of the season. The Red Wings out in front early on Jim Conacher's counter, were lucky to tie it up in the closing minutes when Billy Taylor scored on a 10-foot drive.

Kenny Mosdell of the Canadiens drew the ire of referee George Hayes — and a 10-minute misconduct — in the second period for trying to trip him up.

Grant (Knobby) Warwick, winger, paced the Rangers to victory over Chicago at New York with a brace of goals in 41 seconds. Church Russell, Edgar Laprade and Alfie Pike notched the other three. Doug Bentley sank two and Bill Mosienko one for Chicago.

Reay Picks up 4 Points

At Montreal Saturday night, the Rangers felt the full force of a Canadien team determined to end their worst slump since January, 1942 — a string of three losses and a tie. Playing before a home crowd, the Canucks notched four tallies before the New Yorkers replied.

Billy Reay, Montreal forward, picked up four points on the night with three goals and an assist with the other goals going to Jimmy Peters, Murph Chamberlain and Richard. Pike and Bill Juzda scored for the Rangers.

Rookie Joe Klukay fired two counters to pace the Maple Leafs to an easy win over Detroit at Toronto, Bud Poile, Gaye Stewart, Nick Metz, Ted Kennedy and Bill Ezinicki each added one for the Leafs while Billy Taylor got two and Jim and Roy Conacher one each for Detroit.

CHAPTER 10

"Oh, but she'll be miserable," Christa protested. "She'll probably marry a clerk."

Nancy smiled. "Nobody writes you books like that but Fanny Sanner. What does she say? Is handsome Toby still tied to her apron-strings?"

Christa looked as if she did not know whether to smile or be angry. Her mouth curved into an insincere smile and she lowered her eyes to Fanny's letter again. She was annoyed by Nancy's inopportune visit, wanting to think about what Fanny had written before she committed her thoughts to any one. Nancy, who had an uncanny instinct, had caught her off guard.

"It's about Renny," she said.

Nancy queried with malicious satisfaction, "A woman?"

Christa flung her a withering look. Heat pricked at her temples. "its ridiculous, of course. It's nothing but Fanny's inflated — inflated imaginings. She says that Renny picked up a girl at Ocean City, Maryland, and stuck Louise with her as secretary. Oh, but it isn't true! And it isn't Renny that Fanny is concerned about. It's Toby. He's fallen in love with the girl."

"What—again!"

"But this is serious," said Christa. "Fanny says the girl is in love with Renny and is concealing it very well indeed. Fanny's taking Toby to Virginia this winter." She drew a deep breath. "What a mess! Of course, it's all Fanny's lies and imagination ..."

"How do you know it is?" Nancy asked, lifting her brows. "However, I didn't come over to give you one of my lectures. I came to tell you where you can get a marvelous dress at a bargain. But, Christa, you talk about Renny and Fanny and this girl, and you never say anything about your child. It's unnatural!"

"I've told you before that I think motherhood is greatly overrated. I'll love Allison when she grows up and I can understand her and tell her things. I'm at a loss with children. I can't talk their language, and their whining and crying nearly drives me crazy. Renny knows more what to do for her than I shall ever know."

"Are you going home — now?" Nancy asked.

Christa jerked her head up. "No! Must I go back to keep Renny away from an adventuress? I'm not going back until he sends for me."

"And you know he'll never do that."

Christa lighted a cigarette and smoked with nervous pleasure.

"Nancy, my dear, do run along now. It's eleven and I've got to rush before Jake comes." She gave a deep mirthless chuckle as Nancy put on her furs. "Oh, I'm sorry if I offended you. But you can't possibly know my affairs as well as I do."

Nancy Starr got up stiffly. "You're running around in circles, Christa. You don't know what you want. You've left Renny, and what have you done—fallen in love with a boy enough like him to be his twin! Jake McLean is Renny five years ago!"

Christa shrugged wearily. "You'd feel smug with pleasure, Nancy, if Renny wouldn't take me back, wouldn't you? But he will." She got out of bed, put on slippers and negligee, and said, "Don't be so tiresome and frigid. I never asked you to solve my love affairs. Just because you haven't been fortunate to have one man to manage is not saying I can't manage two."

Nancy's retort was a decisive slamming of the bedroom door.

Christa sat before her cluttered dressing table and with one angry sweep pushed everything to one corner. Oh, it was messy, messy! The sight of the room, the breakfast tray, the unmade bed, the scattered clothes and ash trays—it was all sickening. She thought she would read Fanny's letter again but dismissed the thought. Fanny's malicious lies! And Elissa, her dear friend, who knew all about this girl Renny had "picked up" at a seashore resort, had not mentioned it in her letter. Friends!

There was no one to whom she had explained why she left Renny. There was no one she respected more, and the thought of his loving another woman was as if cold hands were laid upon her. The underlying reason for all her actions and her attitude of superiority was the deep inferiority complex of a girl raised on borrowed luxury and groomed to make a marriage for money. Christa did not understand the contradictions in herself. When she was being admired, she liked herself tremendously. This morning in this dusty disorderly room, with the one part of her life that had been a harbor for her, her one link with security being shattered by an unknown girl named Arlen Leeds, Christa Maynard liked herself not at all.

She had married Renny because his adoration made her proud, and because her socially ambitious mother's hands had shaped her into being Renny Maynard's wife. As Mrs. Maynard, she had had power and means. Christa was a dazzled girl wife, with a love lavished upon her too deep and fine for her understanding. With the freedom that Renny gave to all things that belonged to him, and with the luxuries he showered on her, her world had broadened far beyond her belief, and after seven years in a country house and having borne a child toward whom she felt nothing but a cool detachment, Christa had lifted her arrogant dark head to peer into more glamorous horizons.

She comforted herself by thinking that it was because she knew she could not make Renny happy, that intellectually and spiritually he was far above her, she had left him. But that was only a comforting subterfuge to hide her natural fickleness. Nancy had often flung at her: "You want Renny's love, his security, and his money, but you need a dozen men to feed your vanity."

The Irishman Jake McLean was twenty-five, handsome, and not discouraged that his sophisticated comedies failed to impress London producers. He was poor but he was accepted everywhere. He was four years younger than Christa. She did not want to yield to loving Jake McLean, who had mistaken her lack of spontaneity, her selfishness and her strange eyes for subtle sophistication. Christa did not want to love any one because in love a woman has to give, and after eight years of marriage with Renny she had given nothing except the unwilling bearing of a child.

Like a princess in exile, she wanted only admiration. Now and then, as this morning, it occurred to her that she was twenty-nine years old, that she had left havoc and heartbreak in the path of self-gratification, and that in time younger women would replace her in the exclusive little circle which a year ago had received her with open arms. She shuddered at the thought, finding consolation in Jake's love and constancy.

It was a puzzled uncertain face she saw in the mirror. "I'll divorce Renny," she thought boldly, but the boldness was immediately tempered by the thought of small alimony and no alimony at all if she married Jake. "Go back" she thought, "to skimping as I did before I was married!" Christa cherished her name and the respected place in the world that being Renny's wife gave her. "Oh, if only," she thought, "I could go on living as I'm living now, and being as young and good looking as I am now, with Jake loving me and seeing me as perfect as Renny once thought me!"

She shuddered as she thought of what the passage of time meant.

Her maid found her leaning on her elbows, looking desperately at herself in the mirror. The maid spoke quietly, knowing that the look of rebellion in her mistress's eyes might be unleashed by the sudden angry hurling of a glass or an ash tray to the floor.

"Mr. McLean is here, Madame."

"Oh, tell him," said Christa irritably.... " tell him ... I'll be ready shortly....Tell him anything."

She bathed and dressed with efficiency. Her dislike of herself and her fear for the future were considerably lessened when she gave the last look into the mirror before going into the sitting room to meet Jake. Careful grooming, a businesslike application of make-up, and the dark green dress with which she wore a short mink cape reassured her that Christa Maynard was still an attractive woman and that no one seeing her lunch with Jake would guess she was older than her admirer. Her slenderness was a perfect frame for her gowns purchased from the best salons, and all her incredibly smart hats were bought with the view of showing off her unusual eyes to the best advantage.

Christa put the mink cape around her shoulders and flung a challenge at time.

Jake was sitting at the piano. She went up to him and put her arms around his neck. He took his hands from the keys, took her hands, and kissed them.

"I'm sorry to be late. Nancy stopped in."

She went over and sat on the divan.

"You look worried," he said.

She nodded. "Letters from home."

Jake leaned on the piano and looked at her soberly.

"Divorce is ugly, Christa. It's particularly ugly when there's a child to consider. Children of divorce begin life with an inferiority complex and a big question mark in their minds about love. It distorts things for them at the outset. You can't go on living like this. You can't expect your husband to keep you in this elegant style of living indefinitely."

"I've been reminded of all that before."

He was amazed at the authority he was taking. "Have I asked you to marry me. Ch[illegible]'t I haven't, I'm asking you now."

"So bluntly, [illegible]"

"I think most proposals are blunt, my dear. You don't have to make up your mind today." He smiled boyishly at her. "I suppose I asked you because I wanted the right to say something about—about your child. If, after you've settled your affairs with your husband, you'd like to take a chance with me, a chance that I'll be famous and make money, there's one thing I'd insist upon, Christa. Am I taking too much for granted to 'insist' at this state of things?"

"No. Please go on, Jake."

"I'd insist, Christa," Jake McLean repeated, "that your little girl be given either wholly to you or her father, and that there'd be no six months with you and six months with him. I expect to make my home either here in Paris or in London. You wouldn't want to subject your daughter to an ocean voyage twice a year."

He struck a chord on the piano.

"I've known you for a year and I've been in love with you for a year. And I've asked a woman who is already married to a man, who must be pretty decent to marry me. And I've asked a woman to lunch when I've got scarcely enough money to pay for a lunch." He looked up. "Christa, what is your answer?"

"I didn't make Renny happy, Jake."

He smiled again. "We could try. But what I wonder about is if I can make you happy."

She got up and stood over the piano.

"Jake, do you know how old I am? This morning, if I can, I'd like to get one thing straight."

"I know you will never be older or less lovely than you are at this minute." He took her in his arms and kissed her. "I've kissed you only once before," he said. "I don't like to kiss another man's wife."

"I'm going home, Jake," she said as they walked.

"You're making me happy, my dear."

The morning of indecision and even his blunt proposal had brought her no nearer to a solution. If only Jake had money! Then the path would be clear. She would return home, have a dignified talk with Renny, establish a Reno residence, and remain unmarried only as long as it took the next boat to reach Cherbourg. But Jake had no money, and marriage with him meant living in small, musty rooms while he wrote plays producers would not buy.

"When are you going?" he asked.

"Oh, I don't know, Jake, let's not talk about it any more."

* * *

The fog was like an enveloping blanket this evening—the promised evening with Renny.

Arlen smoothed down the green velvet dress across her slim hips and looked at her shining eyes in the mirror. In the drawing-room she could hear Renny's voice mingling with the voices of Louise and Richard.

Since Renny had come back it had taken most of his time to find an apartment with enough light, warmth, and space for the comfort of his mother and Allison. Louise, her pleasures curtailed by the advent of her mother and niece, was in a state of nervous collapse. The household walked on tiptoe lest she be disturbed, the physician having left strict orders that she be quiet.

Once and once only had Arlen seen small Allison. It had been that night of his premature arrival when Allison, fascinated by the towering city and blinking lights, had insisted upon accompanying him.

A rich happiness surged through her, dispelling all other doubts and worries. Arlen smiled at the ridiculous hopes she had attached to this evening. It would be memorable to Renny only because it was his first public appearance with a young woman since Christa had gone away. "He doesn't know," she thought, "that all day I could think of nothing else except tonight. How foolish I am! In a few hours I will be back in this room and everything will be quite the same."

He was standing by the fireplace when she came out.

"All this beauty for me?" Renny asked.

Melbourne Hunters 'Blitz' Scores of Rabbits

Melbourne, Jan. 20 — (CP) — Besides "scores" of jack rabbits, 300 hunters from nearby communities blitzed half a dozen foxes and five great horned owls. It was the biggest district drive in years and was sponsored by the Melbourne Young Men's Club who don't like rabbits anyway.

TRUCK DRIVER

estimated to be 75 feet deep.

He and his passenger received head injuries, described as not serious.

Luckier were Mr. and Mrs. Culetta and their daughter, Marie. They were also travelling toward Toronto when Mr. Culetta saw the transport out of control. His vehicle skidded when the brakes were applied and, after swinging completely around, halted halfway over the bridge where the guard-rail had been torn. None in his car was hurt.

Today's victim was the discoverer, last Oct. 28, of an accident identical to his at the same spot when a fellow-employee of Direct-Winters transport, George Humphrys was killed. Pope's accident was the fourth such in the same spot in three years.

Pope, 29, is survived by his wife and two young sons.

He said his research organization would be small, would make available to the forces in peacetime all the scientific resources of Canada and of other friendly nations and will be prepared to undertake the rapid mobilization of all these resources should war occur.

Not all research will be applied to eventual peace-time uses, Dr. Solandt pointed out. There would be tests made of weapons, explosives and military equipment.

BRUCE SAUNDERS,

Police forces of the entire area, with various posses, took up the search which ended late last night. One posse which had scoured a wild area of country fringing the Lake Erie shore throughout Sunday were told by a farmer that smoke was coming from an empty house and that's where they found that Saunders had just left. The search of the nearby bushland soon uncovered the fugitive.

Police said they believed Saunders was responsible for several break-ins during the weekend flight. Police said it was Saunders who left a blue suit in the empty home of Ray Halmer at Straffordville, taking in exchange a brown suit, shirt and tie.

An armed man was spotted gathering up a bundle of food at the home of Rene Nobels on R.R. 5 at Glen Meyer, Saturday evening, but fled.

When captured, Saunders wore only a brown suit, without hat or overcoat.

Further investigation resulted in police charging Leo Chenier Jr., of Tillsonburg, with assisting an escape from custody, alleging that he provided Saunders with the pistol for his escape. A 14-year-old boy was also held for questioning.

Powers Check On Liquidation Nazi War Plants

. . . . By ERIC BOURNE . . N. .

Berlin, Jan. 20. (Reuters)— In a detailed survey of Germany's remaining war potential, "back rooom boys" from the four Allied Occupation Powers are checking and cataloguing some 900 war plants throughout Germany.

For the remainder of the year investigating teams will be fanning out from Berlin, checking up on how the United States, Britain, Russia and France are carrying out the Potsdam plan to destroy German war power.

A number of the factories for inspection are vast underground bomb proof vaults, hewn out by German-supervised gangs of foreign deportees and concentration camp victims.

One of the great underground factories, at Ahrweiler, in the French zone, where rocket components were made, will be investigated as well as 36 plants, zone in each zone. Each team is to inspect a list of concerns in a zone of one of the other occupying powers. Russian, American and French teams, for instance, are examining plants in the British zone.

Krupp Plant Liquidation .. ..

The Krupp concern in the British zone is not within the scope of the present investigation, but is the subject of a separate four-power liquidation plan on which negotiations have long been in progress.

Officials believe that though a final settlement has not yet been reached, discussion about Germany's most concentrated arms centre, with its 26 heavy units, is proceeding satisfactorily.

Otherwise, it is thought, either the United States, Russia or France would have asked for its inclusion in the present proram.

The job of the inspection teams is to check on the extent of liquidation already carried out and to determine whether the Occupation Powers' plan for the remainder of the work is adequate and effective.

Some observers consider that the four-power inspection scheme, designed to hasten the end of Germany's war potential, also may help to speed the final breakdown of the present geographical bars to an economic and administrative unification of Germany.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Jan. 20 —(CP)— The upward move in prices failed to hold for industrials in the early session when these issues slipped back from the opening to register a .09 loss on Toronto stock exchange's noon index today. Volume for the first three hours was 648,000 shares.

Golds were gainers in nearly all issues traded, with some stocks posting substantial rises. Senior golds were strong with MacLeod up 1, Lake Shore 3-8 at 14 1-8, Dome 1-8 at 19, Central Patricia 14.

Base metals held for overall gains and holding companies held firm.

Industrial issues generally moved around Friday's close with a slight shading on the loss side. Liquors weakened on fractional losses as did papers generally.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 20 —(AP)— The recent recovery inspired light profit cashing in today's stock market and leaders generally were depressed fractions to 2 or more points.

While a few comebacks appeared, declines were numerous near the fourth hour.

Canadian stocks were easy at mid-day. Dome Mines and Hiram Walker each lost 3-8. Distillers Seagrams was off 1-2 and Canadian Pacific 1-8.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 20 —(CP)—No settled bacon-hog quotations were reported by markets early today.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Welsh Evangelist To Tour States

London, Jan. 20 (Reuters)— A dynamic 36-year-old Welsh Evangelist, Thomas B. Rees, plans to leave Britain in April for a six weeks' visit to the United States, where he intends to carry out "Youth for Christ" campaigns in New York, Chicago and other centres.

Rees, who has attracted vast audiences of young people during more than 12 months non-stop campaigning in London, threw up a good job in real estate to devote himself to evangelism.

He began by preaching in the provinces, then raised $172 to hire the Methodist Central Hall, Westminister, London for one night to launch his "Youth For Christ" campaign. That was 14 months ago, and ever since he has filled that hall or the still bigger Albert Hall several times a week, enlisting the support of leading churchmen of all Protestant denominations.

A stoutish, clean-shaven man with fair hair, eRes has none of the tricks of the stump orator and no use for mass hysteria, but he has a flair for whipping up enthusiasm among crowds, and can dominate the biggest audience with his fiery Welsh personality.

Between his big meetings, ees conducts revivalist campaigns in London's outskirts and organizes his squads of "contacts groups" to keep in touch with his youthful followers, estimated at 100,000.

Wartime Flier Pals Killed in Plane Crash—This pile of wreckage on a field near St. Francis Xavier, Man., was all that remained of a TCA plane which crashed Friday killing two Winnipeg pilots who trained and served together during the war, FO Gerald R. Symington and Capt. Gordon E. Brown. The plane ploughed along the ground for 75 yards.

Maritime Coal Fields May Close If Talks Fail

Glace Bay N.S., Jan. 20 (CP)—Last hope of averting a major shut -down in Maritime coal fields was being placed in Tuesday's three-way conference of representatives of government, union and company today as the full impact of what a shut-down effect would be began to impress itself on the minds of residents of the three seaside provinces.

Shifting of the spotlight to parliament hill began with the announcement that Freeman Jenkins, President of District 26 United Mine Workers (C.C.L.) and his district board were en route to the capital for the conference with Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation representatives and Labor Minister Mitchell.

Mr. Jenkins left behind a warning that the "Major shutdown" in Maritime coal fields would come Jan. 31 if the Ottawa talks failed to result in accession to the Union's wage demands. He said Faiday that all coal operations, "big and small, under contract with the U.M.W. in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick" would be included.

(Union membership rolls include 13,000 workers in all major collieries of the Maritimes. Miners in the Pictou County district of Westville, largest group outside of the U.M.W., are voting today to decide their affiliation. The 500 Westville miners, members of an independent union, voted in favor of joining the U.M.W. last fall but the margin of only two votes was considered indecisive and no action was taken.)

The wage dispute hinges on the miners' chief demand of an increase of $2.50 above current basic rates of $5.84 a day. Negotiations for renewal of the contract expiring Jan. 31, broke down when Dosco, largest employer of the 13,000 U.M.W. members, countered with an offer of $1 a day conditional upon increased production. The Union withdrew from the talks, terming the company offer "an incentive bonus."

Already some observers have begun calculating the effects of a possible shut-down. If the coal production halt lasts for any length of time, they see a fold-up of many public utilities in the Maritimes, highly dependent upon coal-consuming steam power.

Soon the observers say, the Dosco Steel Plant at Sydney, producing slightly less than one-third of Canada's basic steel, would be compelled to close down. The plant employs 4,000 men.

Possible effect of a coal clamp on railroads in the Maritimes—also highly dependent on local coal—has not yet been estimated.

Most home-owners in the Maritimes would become acutely aware of the consequent shortage, since most Maritime homes use Maritime coal.

Murder Trial Resumed After Dramatic Halt

London, Ont., Jan. 20—(CP) —The murder trial of Lloyd Nichlas, 25, and Joseph French, 36, went into its sixth day today after dramatic adjournment Saturday afternoon when Nicholas broke down in the witness box and said "I've been locked in a death cell for four months for killing a man who did nothing to me."

The two Muncey Reserve Indians are charged with murder in the slaying of Eldon Meredith, young student at the University of Western Ontario here, whose body was found on the Muncey Reserve last August after the two accused were arrested allegedly in possession of the slain man's car.

French, in the box earlier in his own defence, denied any complicity in the shooting. He said he had no knowledge of Meredith's death until he was formally charged on Sept. 9.

The younger of the accused, Nicholas first came to the stand Saturday afternoon and several times tears came to his eyes as he told of meeting Meredith. He had met the student at least once previously, he said.

Offered a Ride

Nicholas said that Meredith offered him a ride from London to Melbourne and he accepted. Meredith got behind the wheel, French entered the car and Nicholas also entered, placing between his feet his suitcase in which he told the court there was a German Luger revolver. Nicholas is a war veteran with an artificial leg.

During the ride the conversation switched to army medical treatment, after Meredith asked him how he was getting along with his artificial leg, said Nicholas.

"I was spell-bound listening to him. There was no enmity between us. I didn't hate that boy."

Witness was coming to what his counsed termed "the crucial point" when he broke down again and Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow adjourned the trial until today.

Coal Allocations For Steel Industry To be Cut 25 P.C.

London, Jan. 20 —(AP)— An official of the British Iron and Steel Federation said today that coal allocations for the steel industry would be cut 25 per cent immediately as a result of Britain's critical coal shortage.

The government previously had aonnounced a cut in non-priority industry coal allocations of 50 per cent effective today, but the slash to iron and steel plants came as a surprise to the industry, aiming at a record steel production of 13,500,000 tons this year.

Stating the 25 per cent coal cut "will have a most serious effect on the industry," the federation spokesman predicted that several steel factories would have to cut their work week. Some observers estimated the cut might reduce steel output by 1,000,000 tons in 1947.

Government coal board officials have said the British fuel situation will be critical for at least another six to eight weeks. No further reduction in rations for household use is contemplated, however.

Quebec Hamlet Receives Food By Ice Breaker

Kegaska, Que., Jan. 18. (CP)—Bucking through ice 14 inches thick in places, the government ice breaker Ernest LaPointe yesterday brought seven tons of provisions to the stranded inhabitants of this tiny Quebec hamlet, some 425 miles below Quebec city on the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

The arrival of the LaPointe, greeted with joy by the handful of inhabitants, marked the first time that food and supplies had been received in ten weeks. While they were not facing starvation, food stocks were pitifully low.

The LaPointe, which generally cuts a way through the icefields for the freighter North Voyageur, supplying a number of isolated communities, made a special 110-mile trip down river from Havre St. Pierre when word was received of the plight of the people here.

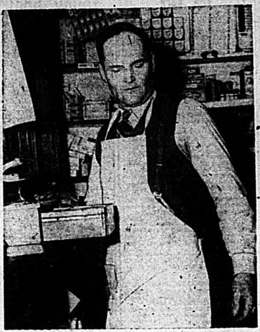
Her mission finished, the LaPointe headed back up river with supplies for Baie Johan Bertz, whose residents are believed to be in the same plight as were those here.

New Passenger Car Output Still Far From Needs

Ottawa, Jan. 18 (CP). — Production of new passenger cars in Canada is slowly climbing back to pre-war figures, but it may be some time yet before Canadians can walk into a showroom and point out the model they want.

The Bureau of Statistics reported today Canada's factories turned out 83,331 passenger units in the first 11 months of 1946, a far cry from the peak 1929 figure of 203,307 and the 1940 total of 109,911. The 1946 11-month output of trucks was 71,571.

For the first time since 1939, car production exceeded that of trucks. Passenger models were sharply curtailed in 1940, and output of trucks and special vehicles for military purposes advanced at a rapid rate. The bureau reported new cars "disappeared entirely" in 1943 and 1944 while the trucks and military vehicles totalled 178,064 and 158,038 respectively. The peak year was 1942, which saw 216,057 trucks and 12,236 cars turned out.



Loses Life Savings to Swindler — Mike Buchyk, 40, of Crowland, Ont., sadly surveys his empty pockets and till after being swindled out of his life savings of $14,500 by a man and woman who persuaded him to draw out his money to buy a larger store in Timmins. —AND OCCUPANTS WALKED AWAY UNHURT!

Completely—but very completely—wrapped around a telephone pole at Belmont, California, is this heap of twisted metal that once was an automobile. It was hit by the northbound "Daylight Limited" train at a bouvelard crossing and hurled 250 feet to land where you see it. The occupants of the car, Mr. and Mrs. H. Schlam, escaped unhurt because they had the foresight to jump from the car before the train got in the haymaker.

Melrose Junior Farmers Meet

The Melrose Junior Farmers held their January meeting in the Township hall, Melrose, on Friday, January 17th. The president, Earl Badgley, was in the chair. The secretary treasurer, Bill English, called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting which was held in December.

An account of the Kemptville Conference was given by George Blatherwick and Ken McMechan, while that of the Short Course at Guelph was given by Charles Bates and Bill English.

A discussion followed in connection with a project club f 1947. The Club decided to spo sor a Calf Club and to org ize the club at their March mee ing.

The play that is being prepare by the club was discussed a it was decided to have the op ening night about the secon week in February.

Lack of Motive For Slaying Cited Reason for Re-trial

Judgment Says Statement By Mrs. Dick Inadmissible

Toronto, Jan. 21 (CP). — The Ontario Court of Appeal, in a judgment handed down by Chief Justice R. S. Robertson in the appeal of Mrs. Evelyn Dick of Hamilton against her conviction of the torso murder of her husband, John Dick, held that the evidence revealed no motive for the slaying and that the main statement Mrs. Dick made to police was inadmissible.

The appeal court last week granted Mrs. Dick's appeal, set aside her conviction and ordered a new trial but it did not give reasons for its decision until today. The pudgment was signed by Chief Justice Robertson and concurred in by the other members of the five-man court.

The judgment said there was evidence of differences and animosity between Donald MacLean, father of Mrs. Dick, William Bohozuk, Mrs. Dick's friend, and John Dick prior to Dick's death but apart from those differences nothing appeared in evidence to indicate any motive on the part of Mrs. Dick for desiring her husband's death.

"It is difficult to see anything in the relations between the appellant and John Dick as disclosed in evidence to explain the murder only five months after the marriage."

Matters Considered

The judgment said the court had to consider whether the appellant had a fair and proper trial and in particular whether her statements to police while in custody were properly admitted at the hearing and whether there was mis-direction or non-direction of the jury in the judge's charge.

"I think it may be said with accuracy that while in none of these statements does the appellant expressly admit participation by her in the actual killing of John Dick, in all of them are admissions tending to some degree to involve her in the crime.

"I do not think it is necessary to discuss the admissibility of these several statements individually. The last of these statements, that made April 12 during the course of a drive taken by detectives with the appellant in a motorcar, is the only one mainly relied upon by the Crown as containing the account of what really occurred, the other statements being regarded mainly as fiction.

"The trial judge did not make that distinction in his charge nor confine his references to that statement alone in commenting on evidence tending to establish the appellant's guilt. I am strongly of the opinion that what was said in the course of the drive to which the police invited the appellant was inadmissible in evidence.

Invitation "Shrewd Device"

"The invitation to a drive, following upon the opening given by the morning's conversation, has the appearance of a shrewd device on the part of the police to get the appellant to make unguarded statements contrary to the advice of her solicitor which she had told them plainly it was her intention to follow.

"A real burden rests upon the Crown, when it proposed to introduce in evidence a statement of the accused made while in custody to a police officer and that is in the nature of a confession, to first establish that the statement is voluntary in the sense in which that term is used in the rules.

"Whatever may be the character of this appellant and the iniquity of her conduct, there is the presumption of innocence of this crime with which she is charged until she is proven guilty by due process of law and after a fair trial.

"To deny her the fair trial that every prisoner is entitled to is to make the right to a fair trial dependent upon the pre-conceived notion of the court in the particular case."

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Jan. 21 (CP)—Synopsis: A fresh outbreak of polar air pushing down the middle of the continent has reached the central Mississippi Valley this morning and by tonight it will bring freezing temperatures as far north as the Gulf of Mexico. This cold air covers northern Ontario and most of Quebec and this morning it is advancing rapidly into southern Ontario. Before noon it will cover all of the Great Lakes region bringing with it northerly winds and falling temperatures.

Co-ed Undisturbed By Cleric's Criticism Of Undue Leg Display

Vancouver, Jan. 21 (CP).—Father Francis Chaloner, St. Paul's Hospital chaplain, last night denounced the display of "Female Leg" exhibited by University of British Columbia girl students.

He referred to published photographs of Joanne Bowell and Willa MacKinnon, U.B.C. co-eds, in the Balinese and Chinese costumes they said they intended to wear at the U.B.C. annual Mardi Gras ball Jan. 23 in aid of veterans in Shaughnessy Hospital.

Father Chaloner said that "neither the Chinese nor the Balinese will feel complimented by the spurious imitation." He deplored the lack of "costume," saying he could not see any from the hips down and on one of the girls it was even scanty in the "upper reaches".

He said "the young ladies of the undemocratic sororities" should have been warned "that their ideas of costume in China and Bali are the product of their weak imagination and not based on fact."

But one of the conveners of the Mardi Gras ball, Lillian Mjos, was not disturbed by Father Chaloner's criticism. Her answer was: "Show too much leg? Are you kidding? They're more covered up than they've ever been."

Quotes Sources Showing Dr. Harrison's Death Not Due to Violence

Shanghai, Jan. 21. (AP)—The English language newspaper, China press, today quoted reliable sources that the death Jan. 10 of Dr. Tilson L. Harrison, Canadian-born UNRRA physician, was not due to violence.

The paper said the cause had not been determined but the Canadian physician, who was 63, was known to have been suffering from fatigue and exposure on a long mercy mission to the southern Hopeh-Western Shantung province area.

Tilson, who served with the Royal Navy in the war, voluntarily was taking a caravan of supplies into the destitute area.

CONTRACT FOR 45 HOUSES AT OSHAWA

Oshawa, Jan. 21 —(CP)— A contract signed yesterday calls for construction of 45 houses under the National Housing Act in East Whitby township, just outside the Oshawa city limits. Total expenditure is estimated at $300,000 and work is to start as soon as possible. It is planned to construct an additional 61 houses under the plan before the end of the year.

"Lost Wax Process" of Egyptians Helped Allies Fight World War

Ottawa, Jan. 21 (CP)— An Egyptian wax process of prevision casting first known in the time of the Pharaohs was revived to help the Allies fight the Second World War and now is aiding in construction of precision parts of jet propulsion engines.

The annual convention of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy got the story of the "lost wax process" today in a paper presented by N. C. MacPhee and E. Davis who told of developments in precision casting at the Physical Metallurgy Research Laboratories.

Egyptians in the time of the Pharaohs cast perfect statuettes and other objects in bronze with the wax process, but it was lost except for a brief revival in medieval times. Later dentists and jewelers re-developed the method until it now has become "invaluable in industry and the scope of its usefulness is increasing rapidly," the paper said.

Object of the process is to make possible the mass production of accurately-dimensioned metal parts that are non-machinable, non-forgeable or of an intricate shape that is expensive to machine.

"It was the use of corrosion-resistant, high-temperature alloys in the turbo superchargers used on high-altitude airplanes that inspired wartime researchers along this line. Now it is, in part, the use of such alloys in jet propulsion engines that gives added keenness to the researcher."

The process involves molds into which wax is poured and then melted out to give the cavity to be filled with metal. nineteenth century ingenuity has improved on the process in the matter of the molds which originally were made of plaster of Paris.

It was found the plaster of Paris would not withstand the high temperature at which stainless steel and similar modern alloys are melted and recently it was found that pure silica sand, bonded with silica gel, made an equally perfect mold which would withstand a high temperature.

Another modern method was to bond the silica sand with a suitable phosphate and the paper termed this "the greatest single advance in the whole process since ancient times, because they give freedom to cast any metal or alloy."

NEW TAX FORMULA AVAILABLE TO ALL ABBOTT DECLARES

No New Developments In Taxation Issue, Says Minister, With Ontario and Quebec

Ottawa, —(CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said today that details of the new formula offered some of the provinces as a basis for taxation agreements will not be made public at least until after he meets Premier Manning of Alberta tomorrow. He added that there have been no recent developments in taxation relations with Ontario and Quebec.

However it was learned later that Ontario and Quebec likely will be given an outline in writing of the new formula before Mr. Abbott makes the details public.

No Comment on Dispatch

Mr. Abbott said he did not wish to make any comment whatsoever on a Toronto Globe and Mail dispatch from Ottawa which said that the new formula would mean an additional $22,500,000 in revenue for the provinces and raise minimum payments to them to a total of $204,000,000.

He referred to a statement he made Friday after concluding negotiations with New Brunswick, Manitoba, and Saskatchewan. In that statement he had said he would not disclose the details of the new formula until after his meeting with Premier Manning.

The new formula would be available to all provinces wishing to negotiate an agreement. So far the formula has been outlined to six of the nine provinces—New Brunswick, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia. There remains only Alberta, Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. Abbott commenting on a Montreal Herald report that Ontario and Quebec were scheduled to meet him today to negotiate tax agreements, said the report was news to him.

The Herald report said Hon. Leslie Frost and Hon. Onesime Gagnon, provincial treasures of Ontario and Quebec, were to meet Mr. Abbott during the day.

OWES LIFE TO SURVEY

North Bay, Jan. 21—(CP)—Illa Claridge, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Claridge, probably owes her life to a mass x-ray survey carried out among the city's school children last September by the North Bay Lions Club.

Illa, it was discovered, had an unsuspected tumor between her heart and lungs which, had it not been otherwise discovered, would have been fatal within 6 months or a year, doctors said. Slight pains the little girl had complained of had been dismissed as rheumatism.

A delicate operation in Toronto removed the growth two weeks ago, and she now is back in North Bay convalescing. A special Toronto clinic of 60 doctors discussed Illa's case, considered unusual at any time, let alone among children.

Never Can be Drafted For Political Office, States Gen. Marshall

Washington, Jan. 21 — (AP)— Gen. George C. Marshall took the oath today as United States Secretary of State in the presence of President Truman and then pledged, "I'll do my best."

To a group gathered in Mr. Truman's office to witness the ceremony Marshall said:

"I appreciate sincerely the honor and the compliment of your confidence. I'll do my best."

The wartime chief of staff was assured by Truman that he felt the duties of secretary of state are in "safe hands."

Earlier, on his arrival from Chicago to take office, Marshall declared that he "never could be drafted" for any political office.

"I am being explicit and emphatic in order to terminate once and for all any discussion of my name with regard to political matters." Marshall said as he left a train which brought him here from Chicago.

Since his selection to succeed James F. Byrnes as Secretary of State, Marshall's name has been mentioned as a possibility for a presidential nomination in 1948. Reporters asked whether he had the presidency in mind in making his statement.

Marshall replied "No" — that he was talking about "political office."

Volunteers Comments

Marshall volunteered his comments on politics and the job of running American foreign policy to reporters who met his early morning train. They questioned him for more than five minutes on a great variety of subjects but had not specifically asked him about politics.

Marshall declined to discuss details of foreign policy saying that he knew nothing about them at the moment. In response to a specific question as to whether he would go to Moscow for the conference on the peace treaty for Germany he replied:

"I don't know a thing about it —you see, I have not transacted any business with the state department."

STANDUP DRINKING AT COCKTAIL BARS WILL BE ALLOWED

Free Lunches Can Also be Served With Beer if Management Desires

Toronto, Jan. 21 — (CP) — There's nothing to prevent standup drinking at cocktail bars and free lunches with beer under Ontario's new cocktail bar law.

The Ontario Liquor Control Board made this clear yesterday as William Griesinger, chairman of the Board, and Judge T. S. Robb, chairman of the Liquor Licence Board, answered a two-hour barrage of questions at the annual meeting of the Hotel Association of Ontario.

They made these points:

1. Drinkers would be allowed to stand up to bars in cocktail lounges to drink. No one had to sit down to imbibe except those in hotel dining rooms.

2. "In a very short time" beverage rooms (beer rooms or public houses) would be authorized to purvey light meals. When one hotelman asked if free lunches could be given, Judge Robb replied: "If you want to give the food away, that's all right with us."

3. Municipal councils were powerless under the law to order the early closing of public houses. All licences must remain open until midnight.

4. It will probably be five years before those who like imported Scotch whisky will be able to buy more than one bottle a month of it.

5. The home consumer would get the preference over the hotels in supplies of bottled beer. Hotels would have enough draft beer but bottled supplies would have to be apportioned.

Earlier the convention was told by Attorney - General Leslie Blackwell that there "is not a corporal's guard of out-and-out prohibitionists" in the province. He declared the government's policy with relation to liquor and beer was one of control but that control did not necessarily mean restrictions.

Restrictions would make control impossible because the average citizen would not support a system which imposed undue restriction upon him.

MOST OF TORONTO RESTAURANTS PREPARE TO INCREASE PRICES

Toronto, Jan. 21 —(CP)—Most Toronto restaurants are preparing to increase their prices immediately, a survey showed today. Large-scale sellers of hot dogs and hamburgers here say that on Wednesday they will up their prices to 15 cents—an increase of five cents and larger dispensers of cooked foods are prepared to go the limit allowed by a recent Prices Board order.

SAYS BULLET PASSED THROUGH HAT

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Jan. 21 (CP)—An unidentified man reported by telephnoe that a bullet passed through his hat, two residents said they heard gunshots last night—but police said today they had found no trace of anyone who fired the shots or was struck by the bullets.

BRANTORD MUNICIPAL DELIVERY OF MILK IS PLANNED

Brantford, Jan. 21—(CP)—City council last night decided to instruct the city solicitor to prepare a bill for introduction in the Ontario legislature giving the city permission to institute a municipal system of milk delivery.

FORMER FRENCH RESISTANCE MAN FIGHTS FOR LIFE

Charged With Informing on Comrades Who Were Arrested and Shot or Deported.

Paris, Jan. 21 (Reuters). — Wearing British battle dress with Fighting French shoulder patches and several decorations, Rene Hardy, 36-year-old French resistance worker, appeared before the Paris assize court yesterday charged with intelligence with the enemy and accused of "betraying his friends to save his own life".

Described as one of the first to join the Free French forces of Gen. de Gaulle in 1940, Hardy formed the "iron resistance" organization said to have been one of the most valuable aids to allied plans for the invasion of Normandy through its activities in sabotaging German rolling stock. He was called by the president of the court "one of the bravest men in France."

The prosecution alleges that Hardy, after serving 15 months in a Vichy prison, was arrested by the Gestapo on a Paris-Lyons train but was released as a result of a bargain with the Nazis which led to the arrests of his resistance comrades.

Georgia Assembly To be Addressed By New Governor

Atlanta, Jan. 21. (AP)—The Georgia legislature scheduled a joint session today to hear an address by Herman Talmadge, the man they elected governor, while student groups marshalled their forces for a march on the capitol to ask him to "step down".

The march, if carried out, will mark the second time since 1941 that students have paraded against a member of the Talmadge family. They once hung Herman's father, Eugene, in effigy on the capitol steps while the elder Talmadge was governor, charging "dictatorship" in educational affairs.

Supporters of Lieutenant-Governor M. E. Thompson, rival claimant to the disputed governorship, sought unsuccessfully to have him address the legislature also. During heated debate yesterday, Representative Adie Durden shouted that Talmadge was a man "who has only squatters' rights to the governorship".

The House, however, voted 88 to 64 for a concurrent resolution inviting Talmadge to speak and the Senate concurred, 29-20.

Talmadge, elected by the legislature last Wednesday to take over the four-year term of his father, yesterday rebuffed Thompson in a brief encounter when the latter demanded surrender of the executive offices and governor's mansion.

Thompson said he was taking over as acting governor. Talmadge told him he had "no right to the office. There is no vacancy. The General Assembly of Georgia elected me governor."

A suit to decide the dispute has been filed in Georgia courts by Attorney-General Eugene Cook and both Thompson and Talmadge have said they will abide by the court's decision.

BRITONS WARNED COUNTRY FACES GRAVE SITUATION

Govt. White Paper Says Inflation Threat And Shortages Are Menace To Economy

London, Jan. 21 —(AP)— The government highlighted the reopening of a momentous session of parliament today with an appeal to Britain's workers and employers to work harder and more efficiently for post-war recovery.

Facing a bitter fight in the House of Commons on such measures as the nationalization of transport and electricity, the government warned that Britain's economic situation is "extremely serious" and called for a renewed drive to increase production.

A grave picture of manpower shortages, worn-out factories and threats of inflation was presented in a White Paper issued last night as a prelude to parliamentary debate on government economic plans to be presented within the next few weeks.

The government report warned that Britain still is piling up debts abroad and added: "American and Canadian loans give us only a short breathing space."

Declaring there was no danger "for many years" of the unemployment which haunted Britain's workers after the First Great War the government said employers must improve production methods and workers must abolish "slow-downs" hampering the export drive.

The report advocated increased production to combat the threat of inflation but avoided any mention of a national wages policy, backed in many circles to prevent a recurrence of "wildcat" strikes such as the recent transport stoppage which forced the government to call out troops to keep food supplies moving.

What the government wants, the White Paper says in effect, is a voluntary industrial speed-up—an adaptation of the Russian incentive system. To accomplish this, the government would like:

1. Higher wages and better conditions in under-manned industries, mainly manufacturing.

Propose Votes For Women Of Isle of Malta

London, Jan. 21 — (Reuters) — Women of Malta, Britain's island fortress in the Mediterranean, will be able to vote for the first time in history if constitutional proposals made by the British government in a white paper are put into effect.

The proposals, made public yesterday, are the first concrete step toward fulfillment of a promise made to Malta at the end of the Second World War that responsible government "within the same sphere as between 1921 and 1933" would be restored.

Malta, whose constitution was suspended in 1933 and finally revoked in 1936 following friction between Italian Catholic leaders and the British governor has since been ruled by a governor with executive power and a council of 30.

After the Second World war when Malta was awarded the George Cross for heroism during three years of aerial bombardment from Sicily and Italy, a National Assembly was set up unofficially to frame proposals for a new constitution.

Snow-Maker is Snowed Under With Requests to 'Make it Snow'

Schenectady, N.Y., Jan. 21 — (AP) — So you don't like snow, eh? You find it a hazard to driving and a slushy annoyance to walking? You groan at the thought of the back-breaking chore of clearing the sidewalk?

"Snow-maker" Vincent J. Schaefer says plenty of folks in many parts of the world are fond of nature's white fluff — and for many reasons.

Schaefer is the research scientist who last November succeeded in manufacturing an artificial snowfall by dropping dry-ice pellets from an airplane into a moisture-laden cloud.

Since the initial experiment Schaefer has been "snowed under" with requests to "make it snow."

A class of school children in Long Beach, Calif., some of whom never have seen snow, forwarded a bundle of postcards asking, "Would you please make us a snowstorm?"

St. Moritz, Swiss ski resort, asked about chances of obtaining more snow than it has and a score of ski centres in the United States put in similar bids.

A cane-sugar manufacturer in Hawaii and the governments of Chile and Australia inquired about the possibilities of precipitating rain over moisture-scarce areas. Similar letters came from the Arizona Chamber of Commerce and an Oregon irrigation company.

A motion picture company wired that it would like a blizzard over one of its movie lots.

About the only ones who didn't want snow were several residents of Buffalo, N.Y., on Lake Erie. They implored Schaefer to see what he could do about dropping their usual winter share of snow and blizzards into the lake instead of the city.

Lifting of More Controls Expected In Ottawa Circles

Predict Action Would Boost Prices of Bread and Butter

Ottawa, Jan. 21 — (CP) — Rumors persisted on Parliament Hill today that the government planned further relaxation of controls over Canadian economy, including such things as bread and butter, but there was no confirmation from official quarters.

At the same time Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, clarified an order which granted increases of 11 and nine per cent in men's and women's shoes, respectively. The boost does not apply to inventory stock.

"These increases will apply only to new stock coming in from the manufacturer," Mr. Gordon said in an interview.

Under the order the retailer will base his ceiling on the manufacturer's price, or on a basic period retail price, whichever is the lower. The Board's order applies only to boots and shoes received from manufacturers after Jan. 20, when the order became effective.

But as the rumors continued of further relaxation, the Board today re - imposed price ceilings, removed Jan. 13, on used bags, used bagging and baling material because of indications that "extreme and disorderly" prices increased for the products.

In re-imposing the ceilings the Board will adjust the prices of used bags from 1½ to three cents above their former maximum prices.

An increase in bread and butter prices was predicted in some quarters which said the government would remove subsidies holding down retail prices. These reports said the elimination of the payments would result in bread advancing 15 to 25 per cent a loaf and the price of butter 8 cents a pound.

Government sources declined comment, but it was recalled that Agriculture Minister Gardiner told a press conference that milk going into the production of butter and similar products would be reviewed before April 1, the date they are due to expire.

U.S. Has Rejected Russian Request To Give up Alekseen

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP).—The United States has rejected Soviet Russia's request to surrender Kyrill Alekseev, former Soviet trade official who criticized "dictatorship" in his homeland. The Russians are seeking his arrest in this country.

The State Department announced today that the rejection, handed to the Soviet Embassy yesterday, was based on the absence of an extradition treaty between Russia and the United States.

The Russians said he is a former employee of their embassy in Mexico City and charged him with embezzlement.

Because of this and the absence of an extradition treaty the government lacked power to surrender Alekseev.

The Russian's criticism of his home government was contained in a statement issued recently by his lawyer in New York.

In asking Alekseev's surrender Jan. 4, the Russian Embassy asserted that he had embezzled state funds when he was an employee on the trade section of the Soviet Embassy in Mexico City, and was wanted for trial on this charge.

Actress and Durocher Hurry Plans to Marry

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 21—(AP)—Movie actress Laraine Day conferred today with an El Paso lawyer regarding a quick divorce in Juarez, across the International bridge in Mexico, so that she might marry Leo Durocher, manager of Brooklyn Dodgers.

The lawyer, W. C. Roche, said Judge Jesus Barba Cornejo of the Juarez civil court was scheduled to act on the divorce petition later in the day.

Miss Day received a California divorce yesterday from Ray Hendricks, but that decree would force her to wait a year before remarrying. A Mexican divorce would enable her to marry Durocher at once. There was a possibility that her marriage to Durocher would take place in El Paso immediately after the divorce in Juarez.

But as to plans for the ceremony the demure actress and the usually talkative "Lip' were silent.

Miss Day and Durocher flew here from Hollywood and checked in at an hotel.

Arriving at the hotel, Durocher told the actress to "run like hell" while he paid off the driver. She did, and secluded herself on the mezzanine while he arranged for quarters. The hotel clerk declined to say what rooming arrangements had been made, but added that they would be going out shortly.

They booked passage back to Hollywood, American Airlines said, on a flight leaving here this afternoon.

The actress was granted a California divorce yesterday from Ray Hendricks and left Hollywood with Durocher last night.

The California divorce is interlocutory and can be made final only after a year, on petition of either party involved.

35-Ton Transformer Topples on Miner

Timmins, Jan. 21—(CP)—Ross Latta, 20, Malagash, N.S., died in hospital last night after being crushed by a 35-ton hydro transformer which toppled over him when the flat car on which he was working was struck by a yard engine in the McIntyre Mine yesterday.

The youth, member of a special rigging crew employed by the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario to unload the huge transformers, was sweeping snow from the transformer on the flat car when the yard engine struck the stopped flat cars, upsetting the transformer, which pinned Latta to the car.

William Hindley estimated the speed of the yard engine at between 20 and 30 miles an hour. William Barry, construction foreman, said that Latta and George MacNeill, another Nova Scotian, were detailed to prepare the transformers for unloading from the cars.

"The two flat cars were sitting in a siding protected, we thought, by a closed switch," he said. "The yard engine had gone into the mine itself and was returning at a fast clip but instead of going by it entered the siding and smashed into the two cars.

"Force of the impact threw MacNeill clear but Latta was not so unfortunate."

Mr. Barry said construction crews went immediately into action using hydraulic jacks to lift the 35-ton weight from the lower part of the youth's body. "It took about 20 minutes to free him," he said.

Prayer For All 'Our Governors!'

Merietta, Ga., Jan. 21—(AP)—Rev. J. C. Collum opened Superior Court yesterday with the usual prayer for divine guidance of the leaders of the country and state. Then in conclusion he added:

"And God bless all our governors!"

City and District News

SEVEN NEW MEMBERS IN COUNTY COUNCIL

Hastings County Council with seven new members on the roster convened today in Shire Hall on the occasion of its regular January session. The most important business on the agenda today was the election of the 1947 warden. While no appointment had been made at the time of going to press the names of Reeves A. A. Harvie, Mayo, and Bartley Welsh, Tyendinaga, were freely mentioned.

SEVENTY WOLVES KILLED IN COUNTY

Over seventy wolves which raided farmlands of the southern part of the district were killed in Hastings County in 1946, County Treasurer Ross Bailey said today. Bounties were paid by township and county on all these animals, the majority of which were killed in the northern townships. Tyendinaga, in the south, produced more wolves than any of its sister townships.

BRIEF POLICE COURT

City police court was of brief duration Tuesday morning with only five cases listed for disposal and several of those being settled out of court.

One motorist paid $7.50 for speeding on city streets, while another contributed a like amount to city coffers on a careless driving charge. A vagrant was given suspended sentence, while another resident was fined $50 plus costs on a second offence drunk charge, or in default will spend a month in jail.

SOME RESTAURANTS INCREASE PRICES

Although several restaurants in the city have already increased their prices in accordance with the schedule of eased Prices Board regulations, members of local branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association are meeting today at the Hotel Quinte to discuss price increases, among other matters of business.

President of the local branch of the association, Mr. George DeVuyst today confirmed that several of the city restaurants had increased prices and that today's meeting was being staged in an effort to attain some uniformity of price increase.

Martin-Senour Company Holds Dealers' Banquet

The Martin-Senour Co. Limited, Montreal, played host last evening to a large enthusiastic gathering of its Dealers at a dinner meeting in the Hotel Quinte.

The meeting, sponsored in conjunction with the company's Dealer Promotion Program, was the fifth of this nature scheduled for Ontario cities during the present month.

Dealers from Belleville and the surrounding area heard Mr. H. C. Culley, General Manager of the company, announce the completion of a full scale expansion program of plant and warehouse facilities. The improvements will avail the Dealer of the most up-to-date production potential in Canada. In addition Mr. Culley reviewed formulative plans for the reorganization and extension of distribution services.

One of the features of the evening was the presentation of Cash Prizes in connection with the Martin-Senour "Small Essay" contest—a contest open to clerks in stores where company product are sold. The winners were—Philip Coathup, Napanee; Clarence A. Vestervelt, Picton; Betty Potter, Deseronto.

A question and answer period closed out a well rounded and successful meeting.

Bridge Street Church Reports Active Year

The annual congregational meeting of Bridge Street United Church was held Friday evening in the Sunday School rooms with the various departments of the Church being well represented. Rev. Donald C. Amos pastor presided over the meeting, with printed details of the Church's activities being distributed to each person present.

The year's work of the various departments was reviewed by Mr. Amos with the leaders being asked to say a few words. W. H. Finkle voiced the appreciation of the congregation to the pastor for his outstanding leadership and inspiring sermons during the year; to the choir members for their faithful services and to all department leaders for keen and watchful leadership.

88 New Members

All Church departments reported a good year but an appeal for more additional teachers was made on behalf of the Sunday School by Superintendent H. L. Croll. Eighty-eight new members added to the Church during the year.

The report of the nominating committee was presented by the Recording Steward followed with the reading of the names by Mr. William Blatherwick. As there were no further nominations from the floor and upon motion of Mr. P.C.McGuire, seconded by H. B. Fetterly that nominations be closed, the pastor instructed the secretary to cast a ballot for the following Elders. Messrs. Arthur Clare, Everett Fairman, H. M. Francis, H. L. Croll, J. J. Bowden, James Musgrove, John Deacon, Wilbur Sherry, G. E. Currie, Clinton McDonald, J. M. Wood, Bryson Leslie, F. D. Pringle, all of whom were added to the original list of members of session.

The Stewards who are elected annually were nominated as follows:—C. B. Morgan, H. J. Clarke, J. H. Mather, H. W. Ackerman, H. S. Robbins, Jas. Allan, Fred Sprague, F. H. Deacon, J. O. R. McCurdy, L. Langlois, C. W. Burr, M. P. Duff, Newt Thompson, Enos David, Ken Reid, C. L. Hyde, P. C. McGuire, Bruce Lattimer, F. R. Wotten, Ray Arnott, Harold Seldon, Douglas Burr, Thos. Colden, S. J. Hibbard, Ross Schryver, I. G. Hefkey.

Upon motion of C. E. Meyers seconded by J. M. Wood, nominations were declared closed and the secretary was instructed to cast a ballot for the election of the nominees.

The Pastor read the names of those who had passed to their final reward after which the congregation stood in reverent silence, followed with prayer by Mr. Amos. The Ladies Chorus rendered a suitable song in their memory. Mr. James Bankier gave three vocal numbers in his usual pleasing manner.

The report of the every member canvass showed 62 new envelope contributors for 1947. An especially gratifying feature being the guaranteed monthly missionary givings for 1947 of slightly over $5,000. This over and above the givings of the different Women's Missionary organizations, which in 1946 reached the sum of $1202 for home and overseas missions.

A letter of appreciation for duties performed over the years was read to Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Ackerman and presented by the Pastor. Both responded suitably.

After the singing of a hymn Mr. Amos closed the business session with the benediction.

Then followed a social period with the ladies serving delicious refreshments, an essential feature for a congregational meeting providing an opportunity for getting better acquainted.

Purchase of New Fire Fighting Equipment to Cost $50,000 Referred to Special Committee

Recommended That New Aerial Ladder and Pumper be Obtained

Recommended purchase of two new fire fighting units for the Belleville Fire Department costing approximately $50,000 failed to get past open council Monday evening with the matter eventually being referred back to committee for further consideration.

The two new units recommended purchased by a special committee of Chairman of Fire Alderman Wilbur, Aldermen Chamberlain and Butler including a second pumper and an aerial ladder. The recommendation had been made by the committee as result of advice from the Fire Marshal's Department and following the determination that present fire fighting equipment used by the department was obsolete.

"I am definitely opposed to the purchase of this new equipment as we have no place to put it," stated Alderman Hyde, by way of opening discussion on the matter.

To this Alderman Follwell agreed and suggested the matter be referred back for further consideration, while Alderman Harvey wanted to know how the cost would be financed.

"I would like to know how you would raise the $50,000" stated Alderman Clarke. "For once I agree with Alderman Follwell and think it should be referred back to committee. The council could not pass a by-law authorizing debentures for the money without going to the people."

Must Wait Year.

Alderman Chamberlain interjected that the required equipment would not be obtainable for another year and by that time the city assessment would be raised another million dollars. "If this city is to progress we must afford fire protection for both present industry and industry which would locate here. Our present equipment is obsolete."

Alderman Butler admitted the $50,000 looked like a lot of money, but as one of the special committee making the recommendation stated that the important thing to consider was whether or not it would be wise to continue on with present equipment and trust to luck.

"The department now has not enough equipment and in many ways the equipment which it has is antiquated," he said.

Chairman of Fire, Alderman Wilbur, stated a new fire hall was needed and that the present hook and ladder equipment was obsolete.

"We could go on as we have been for another 15 years but it would be foolish to do so in light of the advice we received from the Fire Marshal's Department. We would need no more men as the new equipment would be more efficient."

Mayor Follwell was of the same opinion and stated that the new equipment actually could be operated with fewer men. He also assured that the proposed new equipment could be housed at the present fire hall.

Need New Equipment.

"We need the new equipment first of all," he said. "We should be prepared to protect present industry and also expected industry. We may be accused of being "spending" council but I do not care if we are. We must provide adequate fire protection."

"If you are prepared to levy for it this year and raise the tax rate three or four mills you can purchase the equipment," said Alderman Clarke.

"I think debentures should be issued and let the equipment be paid for while it is being used," returned the Mayor.

At this point Alderman Chamberlain again suggested laying the matter over and to contact the Department of Municipal Affairs as to the best way of financing the purchase of the equipment.

Advised to Look for Site.

Before the recommendation was voted on however, Alderman Clarke wanted to know if the committee had been advised that Belleville needed a new fire hall. To this Alderman Wilbur stated the Fire Marshal had advised that the city should look for a new site for a fire hall.

The matter of employing seven "school guides" to direct traffic on streets adjacent to city schools while children are crossing streets on their way to and from school was briefly discussed before the recommendation was passed by council.

The original recommendation called for the new system being tried for one month but there was some objection to this with Alderman Lazenby claiming that it was the wrong time of year.

"No veteran is going to stand around for one month in the slush and snow and then be told he is not wanted any more," he contended.

Alderman Tice stated the system was operating with good success in Kingston and when the motion was put to vote the original recommendation carried calling for the system to be tried until the end of the school term.

Contracts Awarded.

Contracts for the plumbing and heating for the public lavatory on the market square were awarded, the plumbing going to Charles Hyde and Son, Ltd., and the heating to Howe and Hagerman. The heating contract was for $1,193, while the plumbing will cost $1,175. Council also gave approval to the purchase of a jeep at $3,036.65 with air compressor and snowplow.

Council concurred in a resolution from London, Ontario, asking the Part III of the voters' list be eliminated. Here Alderman Follwell told council that deputy returning officers should be more fully instructed as to their respective duties on election day, but City Clerk Wilfred Holmes stated that returning officers each year were issued with complete instructions.

Ex-Alderman Lorne McDougall, Ex-Alderman J. J. Trudeau, and Alderman Harold Armstrong, chairman of regional planning, were named representatives on the Belleville, Thurlow and Sidney Planning Board.

Referred Back.

A recommendation from Chairman of Public Works, Ald. Harvey asking that public works employees be given a straight ten cents per hour increase was referred back to the estimates committee. The increase in wages was asked as result of the increased cost of living.

Alderman Chamberlain asked if there had been any answer to the request asking for the government boathouse to be removed from city property. Mayor Follwell replied there had been no reply to the communication.

Alderman Allin wanted to know if the "roving kitchen" had been given a licence to operate, and also as what the city's financial position was. Alderman Clarke replied that there was a current bank overdraft of approximately $42,000 but Ald. Tice asked if unpaid taxes would amount to slightly over this amount and the Chairman of Finance agreed.

The matter of lights at the various open air rinks was brought up by Alderman Follwell who also asked when the new lights would be installed on the Bay Bridge Road. The Mayor replied that it was expected the Bay Bridge Road lights were expected to be installed this year.

No Invitation Yet Sent.

Alderman Follwell also wanted to know if the invitation had been sent to the Governor General to attend the Veterans' Day celebration at Belleville this coming summer. Mayor Follwell replied that when the day of the celebration was definitely set the invitation would be forwarded.

Alderman Clarke inquired as to the use which outdoor rinks were being put by children, claiming that if the city was going to supply free skating for children it should be in the arena. Alderman Follwell replied that the outdoor rinks were being freely used by the children and that he would be in favor of them regardless of whether the arena was opened for free skating for the children.

Wants Names Placed.

Alderman Lazenby wanted to see the names of servicemen who paid the supreme sacrifice in the last war placed on the Cenotaph. Mayor Follwell advised that a recommendation to this effect be placed before council.

Under motions Alderman Allin introduced a motion asking that no licence be given to "rolling kitchens" at any time. A second motion was introduced by Alderman Butler asking that the city receive application from any persons desirous of dispensing food of any kind from a stationary location or moving vehicle. The motion declared that to prohibit any individual from earning a livelihood in this manner would be undemocratic and not in keeping with the recognized reputation of the city of Belleville.

Neither of the above two motions were dealt with as council members voted against extension of time to enable council business to be completed.

20 PER CENT OF FEES

Toronto, Jan. 21 —(CP)— Despite objections that the share was not large enough, city council decided yesterday to accept an Ontario Liquor Licence Board proposal to grant the municipality 20 per cent of fees collected in Toronto from the sale of liquor licences here. The city will also receive all the fines derived through prosecutions in enforcement of the new Liquor Licence Act, the agreement stipulated.

Vestry Meeting Of St. Thomas' Church Held

The annual meeting of the vestry of St. Thomas' Church was held in the Parish House Monday evening and many parishioners were present. The rector, the Rev. Arthur Smith, presided and in an interesting and informative address he gave a highly encouraging report on the general state of the parish. The reports submitted by the officers of the various organizations were most satisfactory and showed marked advance in every department.

Special reference was made to the departure of Miss Grace V. Gillard for Moose Factory, James Bay, where she will assume important duties in connection with the Church of England Mission. She has been for a considerable time an enthusiastic and efficient worker in the parish, especially in the activities of the Sunday school and the choir. A motion expressing the regret of the congregation at her departure and also wishing her success in her worthy undertaking was unanimously passed.

The rector reappointed Mr. J. V. White as his warden and the vestry re-elected Mr. R. A. Pringle as people's warden. The other officers are: Vestry clerk, Mr. Norman Edwards; secretary-treasurer, Mr. H. F. Alford; envelope secretary, Mr. H. W. Dillnutt; executive council, Messrs. W. E. Burrowes, Harold Carruthers, P. W. Geen, H. R. Gibson, Dr. John Clarke, Mac Smith, L. C. Pattrick and Geo. N. Gorman.

Mr. Norman Edwards and Mr. J. V. White were elected representatives to the Diocesan Synod for a term of three years. Alternate delegates, Mr. R. B. Cooper and Mr. Norman Garbutt. The delegates, whose terms have not expired are Mr. Ernest Wheatley, Mr. H. W. Dillnutt, Mr. Frank Potter and Col. E. A. Geen. Auditors, Mr. Norman Edwards and Mr. Frank Clarke.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the members of the Parochial Guild assisted by members of the A. Y. P. A.

Quinte District Police Assoc. Holds Meeting

Trenton — The Quinte District Police Association held a well-attended banquet on Sunday afternoon at the "Old Dutch Mill Inn" Trenton, where an elegant chicken dinner was served by Captain and Mrs. R. E. Bernier.

Sergt. Doug. Ellis of the Belleville Police Dept. and President of the Association was master of ceremonies. The guest speakers were Capt. the Reverend A. S. McConnell, M.B.E., Rector of St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton, His Worship Mayor Kenneth J. Couch of Trenton, Chief of Police Walter Probert, Belleville, Inspector of Police, Clare Hayes, Belleville, Magistrate J. L. Lloyd and Miss Mary Lloyd, Northbrook. Mr. J. H. Ormiston, editor of the Courier-Advocate, Trenton, and Mr. Jack Ball.

GETS AWAY WITH $118

Hamilton, Jan. 21 —(CP)— A lone bandit who handed the night manager of Frank's Bar-B-Q here a note and then gestured toward a bulge in his pocket early today robbed the firm of $118 and apparently escaped on foot. The note, handed to manager Stanley Smith, read: "This is a holdup—no fooling—hand it over."

Interment was at Lakeview Cemetery, Madoc.

Inspiring Message Given Members Fellowship Group

An inspiring Gospel message brought by the Reverend R. L. LeRoy of Toronto, and brilliant offerings by the Young People's choir featured the meeting of the Belleville Christian Youth Fellowship, held in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Monday night, under the chairmanship of Mr. Don Williams.

The speaker stated that on the momentous voyage of life, youth needed a vessel that is sound, a captain who could be trusted and anchors that would hold. "Make no mistake, as we sail on life's way, there will not always be sunshine," he warned. "It will mean something to have an anchor of the soul when storms rage. Spiritual anchors are mentioned often in the Bible. The Apostle Paul knew something about anchors, for he had been shipwrecked.

"There are those who choose to sail on the vessel of pleasure; but this is not a good ship to sail on as far as spiritual things are concerned. We need something more stable. The vessel of morality, good enough though it may be, is not enough. The rich young ruler was a fine moral man and Jesus loved him, but he failed because he was not willing to relinquish his worldly wealth to follow Christ and trust in Him alone.

One Sound Vessel

"There is one vessel that is sound. That is the safe and strong ship Zion, piloted by the great Captain of our Salvation, our sure guide through the voyage of life. We need the Word of God as our compass to give us our direction and lead us into the port of safety."

Mr. LeRoy listed four anchors that needed to be taken on life's voyage. "We need the anchor of faith, a vital, living faith that makes you feel the presence of God. We need the anchor of a conscience that is pure and clean in the sight of God. The anchor of prayer has taken many a child of God safely through the rough waters. Our Lord knew the value of this anchor and He spent much time alone with God in prayer. The anchor of witness is needful to strengthen us against the buffeting waves. The individual who has Christ in his heart has vital spiritual things to talk about and he is not afraid to show what he believes in."

Under the able leadership of Mr. Stan Lessels the C.Y.F. chorus gave two beautiful anthems "Jesus Set the Music Ringing" and "Fairest Lord Jesus." Mr. Bob Willoughby contributed a fine vocal solo and little David Benn sang the chorus of "Beulah Land." Leader of the song service was Eric C. Naylor and pianist of the evening Miss Dorothy Mitchell. Don Williams read the scripture lesson and gave the evening prayer. The benediction was pronounced by Major Earl of the Salvation Army.

'We've Got to Have Men and Capital,' Says Hammel, Urging Ottawa For Relief in Taxation of Mines

Ottawa, Jan. 21 (CP)—J. E. Hammell of Toronto, who got his start in mining as a prospector in 1905 in the Cobalt rush, said in an interview that the future of mining in Canada "is doomed unless the federal government gives the industry some measure of relief in taxation."

Here to attend the annual convention of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy the man who helped open up the mining area between Labrador and the Arctic Circle by use of the airplane, claimed there was no pioneering spirit among the younger generation today. The government, he said, was partly to blame.

"We've got to have men and capital. Since the government brought the dollar value down to par with the U.S. dollar we haven't been able to attract outside capital for development," said Mr. Hammell who mushed dogs and broke trail for 25 years in the northland and in 1915 made a gold strike in Manitoba's Flin Flon area.

"We are at the cross-roads now. I think the government is beginning to realize we have had a rough deal and will do something about it. Ootherwise the mining industry will collapse."

Fleming Mackell Suspended For Poor Standings

Toronto, Jan. 21 — (CP)—An official of the Toronto St. Michael's College Ontario Hockey Association junior "A" team said today Fleming Mackell, the club's star forward and leading scorer in the league, had been suspended from the squad since last Thursday for poor academic standings.

The officials added, however, the matter was being thrashed out and that the player would be reinstated soon. Mackell, a native of Montreal, did not play Saturday when the collegians defeated Toronto Young Rangers 6-1 in a regular scheduled game.

It was also revealed that forward Ray Hannigan was suspended for the same reason but he was reinstated in time to play in Saturday's contest.

Allan's Mills

Allan Mills—Friends in this community were sorry to learn of the death of Mrs. John Webb of Belleville. The late Mrs. Webb lived for many years at Bonarlaw and the sympathy of this vicinity is extended to the bereaved husband and two sons.

The Girls' Club under the leadership of Mrs. W. J. Barlow met at the home of Mrs. Bert Anderson on Thursday evening with fifteen girls present. At the close of the meeting Mrs. Anderson served dainty refreshments.

The young people held a very enjoyable sleigh riding party on Thursday evening, after which they met at the home of Mrs. Geo. Williams for a treat of wieners, buns and coffee.

Mr. Reg McKeown is much improved from his recent illness.

A large crowd attended the dance sponsored by the W. I. on Friday evening last. During the evening the lucky card on a blanket was drawn with Mrs. Johnson of Stirling holding the lucky ticket.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McKeown were guests of Mrs. Stiles and Ernest on Thursday evening.

Mr. R. Wellman and Mr. Cyril McKeown motored to Coe Hill on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Mason have moved into Mr. Harry Bateman's house.

Mr. Bert Anderson spent Saturday with friends at Queensboro, Ont.

Says Man Admits He Set Two Fires

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 21 (AP)—John O'Malley, 27, who police said told investigators he enjoyed watching women flee in their night clothings, was held yesterday on charges of arson.

One detective said O'Malley had confessed orally to setting two fires during the last five years—one in which two women died.

Booked on two counts of arson and one count of attempted arson, O'Malley was taken into custody Sunday after a torn telephone book was found burning in the hallway of a 14-family Irving Street apartment house. The flames were extinguished before they could spread.

Detectives said O'Malley told investigators of setting fires here July 27, 1941, and June 3, 1945. Two sisters—Eleanor Kelley, 23, and Ruth Kelley, 12—died in the later fire.

COMPULSORY X-RAY EXAMINATION

Toronto, Jan. 21. (CP)—Hon. Russell T. Kelley, Ontario Minister of Health, said yesterday, he knew of one Ontario General Hospital which was going to introduce compulsory X-ray chest examination of all patients admitted and that he hoped others would follow suit.

Subway Shunners Avoid the Crush, They Prefer Bus

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York (CP)—The veteran New Yorker has no compunction about attempting to beat a frail, elderly woman to a subway seat. He's not accustomed to having one and he yields with stoney-faced equanimity when he loses. All he asks is a strap from which to hang. His complaint is the inability to gain a strap.

The proverbial sardine has more room in its spacious sealed can than has a denizen of Manhattan's underground during the rush hours. That thought was in the mind of Middleton Rose one day as he saw his son aboard the morning school but and he fought his way, as usual, into the subway for the daily battle to get to work. Rose did something about it.

Rose noted that his son's bus was comfortable and roomy. Why couldn't there be a bus for business men? The brokerage firm official who for years had endured the crush of the subway on his way to Wall Street got busy on the idea. Now a "business bus" takes Rose and his friends each weekday morning to the Wall Street district where they work.

The hired bus sets out from Fifth Avenue and 36th Street at 8:40 a.m., makes seven pick-up stops for 43 passengers and proceeds to Broadway and the north end of Trinity Churchyard, thence to Bowling Green, dropping off a vice-president here and a cashier there. Each man pays $7.50 a month, avoiding the discomfort of the subway and saving taxi fares.

Vice-Presidents Emancipated

The National Labor Relations Board ruled the other day that even vice-presidents and presidents of companies are guaranteed collective bargaining rights. The news was taken with serenity by a half-dozen rank-and-file vice-presidents but one president—General Motors' Charles E. Wilson—was delighted with the idea.

A number of vice-presidents felt that a union for downtrodden executives would fill a great need—though there was universal doubt that the millennium would arrive within the lifetime of vice-presidents now extant. One of General Motors' 16 vice-presidents, who preferred to remain unidentified, expressed the cautious view:

"One's first impression is that this is an emotional gesture designed to restore the morale of a suppressed minority. But it would be unfair to comment until the organization work is done, the regulations established and we attend a few meetings."

Forthright was Wilson:

"I'll want to be in the ranks of the president's union. It would suit me right down to the ground—especially if I get double time for overtime."

Organizational matters fired the imagination of I. W. Horning, vice-president of the New York Central Railroad:

"I can see it now. A bargaining table with everybody on one side and nobody on the other to bargain with. I could sit down at a typewriter and write myself a letter asking me for an increase in salary. And then I'd send one back to myself denying the request."

Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, won't have any part of a Presidents and Vice-Presidents' Union, though. "That's one thing I'd stay out of," he told an interviewer.

When a King Spoke

No single event ever transfixed so many persons at a single moment in time. It was 10 p.m., in London, 5 p.m., in New York City, 4 p.m. in Winnipeg, 3:30 a.m., in Bombay, 8 a.m., in Sydney, Australia. A hush fell over much of the world as it listened to a voice from the radio.

At least 250,000,000 persons, still the world's greatest radio audience, heard a King speak Dec. 13, 1936. They heard Edward VIII who had just abdicated, in his unforgettable broadcost: "....But you must believe me when I tell you that I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and to discharge my duties as King as I would wish to do without the help and support of the woman I love...."

Recently, Edward, Duke of Windsor, delivered another radio address, the first since his abdication speech. It was a routine piece of oratory, an appeal for public support of the Salvation Army drive. He spoke from New York where he had spent almost three months.

Officials of the American Broadcasting Company said they had no idea how many persons heard it. They admitted that it was doubtful that His Royal Highness had attracted many listeners. In fact, the network couldn't say how many, if any, of its stations outside of New York carried the appeal.

NEW MASTER OF LINER

Capt. Charles M. Ford (above) the new master of the Cunard liner Queen Elizabeth, plagued by bad weather in a voyage across the Atlantic from Southampton, guided the huge ship into New York one day late. "Despite the fact that we were 24 hours late, everybody aboard was comfortable, and there was very little seasickness," the six feet, five-inch, 275-pound skipper said.

Liberal Says No Election Until 1950

Brantford, Jan. 21 (CP)— The opinion that there would probably be no federal election until 1950 was expressed here Saturday by W. Ross Macdonald, Liberal member of parliament for Brantford City and Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons.

He told the annual meeting of the Brantford Liberal Association that "we have an over-all majority of nine" in the present parliament.

Hughes Cleaver, Liberal M.P. for Halton, said that an old-age pension of $30 per month to every Canadian is being considered by the federal government.

LOW CAST PRODUCTION NECESSARY

Toronto, Jan. 21. (CP)—If Canada is to compete in the foreign market she must maintain a low cost of production economy, J. S. Duncan, president of Massey-Harris Company said here last night in an address before the Board of Trade Club.

Canada's Flying Clubs Are Having Growing Pains

Ottawa, Jan. 21 (CP)— Canada's flying clubs, which did a big job in training pilots during the war, are having post-war growing pains—a convincing symptom of a strong Canadian future in the air.

Generally regarded as the backbone of any country's aviation, the clubs carried a heavy share of British Commonwealth Air Training Plan training and emerged from the war as the Royal Canadian Flying Clubs Association, under patronage of the Governor-General.

Today the 25 clubs which operated 22 elementary flying training schools across the country in wartime have grown to a membership of 41. And new flying groups, largely organized by former R.C.A.F. personnel are continuing to swell the membership.

The association, a non-profit corporation whose membership consists of non-profit organizations, will survey its recent growth and lay plans for the future of the flying club movement in Canada at its annual meeting here Jan. 27-29 inclusive.

It is expected, too, that discussions will be held with government officials aimed at fixing the peacetime relationship of the association to the Departments of Transport and Defence and the Air Transport Board.

A number of early landing fields originally developed by the clubs have blossomed into large airports now considered essential to the economy and defence of Canada. Among these are Uplands Airport at Ottawa, Stephenson Field at Winnipeg, Regina Municipal Airport and Windsor Airport at Windsor, Ont.

In addition to their defence value in training pilots, the clubs have long been a source of trained flying personnel for the entire aviation industry.

It is estimated that 80 per cent of the pilots employed by Trans-Canada Air Lines prior to the war and during its early years received their early training at flying clubs. Many more were employed by other commercial companies and bush operators.

The clubs also claim a safety record credited with "selling" aviation to the public on a large scale. During 1946, when more flying hours were logged than in any previous year in their history, they reported a perfect record of no fatal accidents.

Mrs. Evelyn Dick Social Leader Hamilton Jail

Hamilton, Jan. 21—(CP)—Mrs. Evelyn Dick, granted a new trial by the Ontario Court of Appeal after her conviction in the torso murder of her husband John, is once more the social leader and chief adviser to the women's wing prisoners of Barton Street jail.

Her counsel, John Sullivan, said Monday that Mrs. Dick, in solitary confinement for three months after she was sentenced to death at her first trial, is happy to be back to the normal routine of jail life.

Mr. Sullivan said that even in solitary confinement she managed to keep informed on jail "doings" through the grapevine.

"She was able to tell me everything I had done the day before, even to the details of a case I had attended in police court," Mr. Sullivan added wryly.

ALL KINDS OF NEW INSTRUMENTS

Toronto, Jan. 21. (CP)—Composers of the future will be provided with an entirely new range of instruments capable of producing new colors and techniques for expression in composition, Professor Bernard Henze, conductor of the Melbourne Symphony orchestra, yesterday told the Canadian Club. He said that new electronic instruments will induce further originality.

Plan to Convert Highway Into Federal System

Winnipeg, Jan. 21 (CP) —Initial steps now are being taken by military personnel to convert the 1,250-mile Northwest Highway from Edmonton to Alaska into an integral part of the Canadian highway system, it was learned here Monday

Seven hundred Canadian soldiers are responsible for the road, handling maintenance, technical details and store problems.

Direct responsibility for maintenance and for operation of power plants at the Whitehorse and Fort Nelson bases falls upon the Royal Canadian Engineers. Repairs to equipment are handled by the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps and the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, while the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps is in charge of supplies.

Details as to when the northern route would be classed as a basic part of Canadian highways were not revealed. It was learned that "first steps" towards conversion were underway.

Cardinal Villeneuve

Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec, is mourned across Canada as a great spiritual leader of his people and a great Canadian. In Quebec his death is felt very keenly and the esteem and high regard he enjoyed have been shown by expressions of sorrow and by tributes which have been made by heads of other communions throughout the Dominion in memory of the life and work of the late Cardinal.

Election to the office of Cardinal of the Roman Catholic Church made him a public figure because of the leadership it requires and his duties in this office brought him to the attention of the nation by reason of the high and devoted service he gave. His influence is felt and will remain with the people of his own Province especially while at the same time it is felt by Canadians everywhere.

His life will remain an inspiring example of service. A native of Quebec he rose to a place of great prominence and honor as one of the Princes of the Church. After his ordination he taught philosophy and later became a parish priest. While in a parish in Western Canada he was made bishop, and a little later he became Archbishop of Quebec. In 1933 he was elevated to the College of Cardinals. So highly was he regarded that he was considered as a possible successor in the pontificate when the Holy See was vacant some years ago.

Cardinal Villeneuve gave a life of devotion to his Church and his Province and of service to Canada. To his native province he leaves the precious memory of a devoted son and to Canada he leaves a record of service which will not be forgotten but live enshrined in the people's hearts. His passing after a life of tireless activity brings up the thought how much a nation owes to her great men in every walk of life and how the cause of religion serves to elevate the life and labor of the people and bless them. In his passing the Roman Catholic Church has lost one of her greatest sons and Canada a great citizen who knew tolerance and good will.

Heating And Science

Heating and its problems, one of the matters of perennial interest in this northern clime are discussed in the Port Arthur News Chronicle recently. "Everywhere people are looking for some way to get more heat out of their fuel or to eliminate the carrying of ashes into the backyard, to say nothing of shoveling of coal that has long been the householder's dread," a writer says, adding that it is the same question that men and science are pursuing, for "as the atomic age begins people are looking more and more for some new and better way to keep their houses warm and comfortable and science is lending its aid." The paper goes on, to remark that "experimentation is proceeding with a new form of oil burner jet. The basic principle is said to be that of jet propulsion as used in airplanes. There appears to be quite a possibility that as a result of these experiments it will be possible to get more heat from less fuel."

The article attacks the "great waste of heat through the chimneys. Some say it is sufficient to affect the temperature by several degrees in the open air of a city the size of Port Arthur. How to hold and keep this heat for the interior of the home is the job on which science is in part engaged." Naturally there comes up the question of "getting all the heat out of the fuel," all going to show that man is yet far from making full use of the natural resources. Along the same line is the effort to get more miles out of a gallon of gasoline for cars. One of the oil companies has announced that it is now possible to produce a higher octane gas which will raise the motorists' mileage by 40 to 50 per cent, thus reducing costs.

"The same company, through its science department, says that conversion of natural gas to gasoline is now on an economically competitive basis and that conversion processes are continuing to be developed."

Man is making strenuous efforts under the influence of the amazing progress of scientific discovery to find new facts. Results cannot but be intriguing as new discoveries are made and pile up one upon another.

Fire Research in Britain

Britain has organized a new Fire Research Organization representing the Government, science and industry, and thus is unique in its structure. The cost will be shared between them. In conjunction with the Fire Offices Committee—which represents fire insurance companies—it will conduct research into methods of preventing and extinguishing fires, on equipment, fire resistance of buildings, materials, and on means of escape. It will also investigate the special fire hazards on ships and aircraft.

The Island Dream

(Christian Science Monitor)

The recent announcement in the English press that one of the smallest of the Channel Islands is for sale will no doubt have given rise to some romantic day dreams. For, if one may judge from the interest that similar announcements have aroused in the past, there is a widespread desire to play Robinson Crusoe—with, of course, the necessary modern "props."

The romantics are apt to forget, however, that one has to be an extremely accomplished craftsman to live comfortably on an island; unless, indeed, one is able to import a number of assistants—in which case the island's chief attraction of solitude is gone. And few of us are quite so "handy" as Crusoe or so fertile in expedients as the members of the Swiss Family Robinson.

We'll Take Comfort

(Windsor Star)

These cold days inevitably start a flood of reminiscences of weather in the past. They inspire, too, nostalgic recollections of the "good old days" of the base-burner and the big kitchen coal range. These things loom through the mists of time with a romantic glow, but we may be excused if we are a bit skeptical.

Perhaps there is not so much glamor in a hot water radiator, a gas or electric cooking range, but there is a deal more of solid comfort. We at least do not have to climb gingerly out of bed today into a temperature that freezes water in a china jug on the bureau and dash madly for the one small heated area in the house, where our clothes have been hung against the evil hour of rising. Neither do we have to await breakfast while a fire is coaxed into a balky behemoth in the kitchen.

As for us, we will take the turn of a valve which within a few moments, brings the bedroom to livable temperature, and the flick of a switch or the application of a match to a burner, which within minutes will have coffee bubbling and ham and eggs frying. Keep the romance; we'll take comfort.

Hatless Fad

(The Pathfinder)

Baltimore called Thomas Shearer "the happy doctor". He was always helping people—by dispensing good humor as well as by doctoring.

But Baltimore buzzed when Dr. Shearer, in 1907, decided to go hatless. His theory: Air, moving freely through the hair, would benefit the scalp.

The startled nation debated. Hatless men were a rare sight those days, even in summer. And in winter! "He'll die of galloping consumption," friends predicted darkly. But Shearer persisted. Whether from his influence, as claimed, or not, the hatless fad reached its peak in the collegiate raccooncoat era of the '20s. All around the country men and women timidly emerged bareheaded, and liked it fine.

Dr. Shearer, hatless to the last, died last month at the age of 87.

WAIL OF A MONOTONE

It is a very curious thing,
But every time I start to sing,
And let 'er go with might and main,
The neighbors bitterly complain
And telephone to the police
Of some disturber of the peace.

I love the songs my mother sang,
I love the music of the gang.
And, when with joy my heart is filled,
In song I want the rapture spilled,
But when I let my voice ring out,
"Some cat's in pain!" the children shout

When hymns in church I sing, I see
Strange ladies look askance at me.
When singing to the shower I run,
Because a game of golf I've won,
My fellow members ask to know
What it can be that hurts me so.

I would not at any lot complain;
But, if I'm ever born again
And given the privilege of choice,
I'll ask to have a singing voice;
The kind that can in tune reveal
At times the joy of life I feel.

Organ recitals have come over the air from Chicago station recently and the player was announced as Mr. Leo. B. Riggs. Friends, who knew he was in town at the time, communicated with him and he said they must be mistaken. However, he listened in and discovered that selections which he had played for the Welte-Mignon Philharmonic Organ Company of New York were being broadcast from their Chicago station. Thus the mystery was solved.

Dr. J. J. Robertson has returned home from Montreal where he spent several days.

Maine is Her Frosty Self Once More

(By John Gould, in Christian Science Monitor).

To all those folks who think winter in Maine is always a little tougher than anywhere else, I now send the pleasant news that the season is upon us. So far, we haven't had any winter, but have had to read about those terrible snowstorms in the West, about how the dew stood up on end and was very wet in California, and how folks in the sub-tropics were buying gloves for the first time in history. All the time we were enjoying ourselves in a most salubrious extension of autumn, but we didn't say anything.

We didn't dare, because the least bit of bragging might have brought a change. We are peculiar about such things. Our politics are crooked and our weather is mean—and we admit it. This spares us the absurd appearance of those in other States where they claim things are on a more noble plane. Not us—we just admit it, and when we have something good going on, we keep quiet about it lest publicity should break the charm.

So here it has been a wonderful season. Water ran in the fields right up to Christmas. Our only snow was a mistake. It really was warm enough to rain, but something went wrong and in an hour we got a thick mush of snow. It rained again after that, and then cleared off balmy. We had that much of a white Christmas, but we still went all up through the woods with wheels, and the children scarcely bothered with the sleds.

Nobody in Maine ever remembers another such fall. The leaves hung on the trees, and then turned color, and still hung long after they should have been down. Birds stayed on and sang like nesting time. I left the hens running around and they got their water outside until late in December. Usually, we tote hot water down and thaw their drinking-dish every morning after October comes in. We didn't let down the pump in the barn until after Thanksgiving And our first chickadee showed up on the window-sill on Christmas day. Usually, these birds come out of the woods and haunt our dooryard between September and May.

"Great day for working outdoors!" people called to each other. Long after the summer and fall work was done, people kept thinking up new things to do, and a tremendous industry seized the area. People shingled houses, and went on trips, and laid out gardens, and painted sheds—and still the nice weather hung on. Folks with pigs ready for dressing-off kept waiting for a cold snap, and hogs were never bigger than this year. A man brought me a ham just before Christmas with 36 pounds of meat on it, and said he lost money in the last five weeks of feeding.

Now this is not like our State. It certainly is not like the reputation she has abroad, the one we have to live up to. We got ready for winter the same as always, and felt let down. We got the wood under cover, the tools put away, the turnips cut and packed, the front doors nailed shut, and banking around the houses, and then were disappointed when the wind stayed calm and warm.

We were looking for cold weather, a lot of snow, and crackly days when the sun hangs low in a slate sky and that beautiful winter blue color hangs over the hills and the valley between. We felt we weren't getting our money's worth when the thermometer stayed up, and the children came in with mud on their boots and asked could they go down to the brook and play with a water wheel.

But we are glad at last. The day after Christmas the gay and balmy morning was routed by a sudden spurt of temperate air from the northwest. The southerly sink spout stopped singing of honeysuckle and roses, and we got a wailing by the North Pole window. Somebody tried to tell me the wind blew 60 miles an hour that night. Our thermometer was down to 12 below zero when we stoked the Round Oak and went to bed.

We even asked the dog if he wanted to come in that night. Gelert is a farm dog and seldom comes in the house. His favorite bed is a snowbank, but he has the haymow in the barn if he wishes. That night he crept in and sounded the rug by the heater, settled gratefully, and dynamite wouldn't have put him out again.

Since then, Maine has been doing all right. We don't let the range out between meals any more, and mittens hang over it at night. Everybody is in flannel shirts and wool stockings, and the wash freezes before you can hang it out. The blue is on the hills, and a lovely sight it is, and the snow crunches like old times when you go out after the eggs and take some hot water to thaw the hen's pan. And yesterday I heard a man say, "This is good weather to set inside and burn wood."

It is, and I think after the past fall most of us up here are glad it's come. For the first time in the memory of man, Maine has had some of this unusual weather the other States apologize for. For my part, I don't like it, either.

MUST SUBMIT SUBSTANCE OF NEW EVIDENCE

Likely Mrs. Dick, Her Father and Bohozuk To Appear Together For Dick's Slaying

Hamilton, Jan. 21 — (CP) — Scenes were being shifted today for another tense act in the grim drama of the Dick torso slaying as counsel for three persons charged with John Dick's murder pointed toward the time — possibly Jan. 27 — when their clients go on trial for their lives.

Hands of counsel for two of the accused were strengthened yesterday with a ruling believed rare in Canadian jurisprudence when Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay directed that the Crown must reveal to counsel for William Bohozuk and Donald MacLean the substance of new evidence in the case.

This would appear to mean that the Crown cannot bring forward any surprise testimony after the trial opens. At that trial a possibility is seen that Evelyn Dick, widow of the slain man and granted a new hearing after being sentenced to hang for the slaying, also would face a Supreme Court jury with her friend Bohozuk and her father, MacLean.

Start on Monday

Indications yesterday that the trial date for the two men was near — some said Jan. 27—were strengthened by the addition of 80 prospective jurors to the present Supreme Court jury panel upon receipt of an order from Mr. Justice Mackay. If the three accused were tried together each would have 20 challenges on jury selection.

Mr. Justice Mackay's ruling was disclosed by William Schreiber, associated with Henry Schreiber and with G. A. Martin of Toronto, in the defence of Bohozuk, who was seeking in chambers to have the Crown disclose the names of two witnesses who did not appear at the trial of Mrs. Dick.

That trial ended with her conviction and a sentence of death — a sentence which the Ontario Court of Appeal set aside last week to grant her a new hearing.

Mr. Justice Mackay said: "In accordance with authorities submitted to me, I am of the opinion after careful study that the defence is entitled to the substance of the evidence of those witnesses whose names did not appear on the indictment."

Mr. Justice Mackay did not feel he could direct the Crown to divulge the names of the new witnesses, Mr. Schreiber said.

Partridge Zooms Through Window

West Summerland, B.C. Jan. 21. (CP)—It just goes to show—you never know where your next meal is coming from.

Mrs. Racicot and her baby were sitting at breakfast here when they had a partridge delivered right to their table—by air mail. The bird zoomed through the window, showering them with broken glass and falling to the table with a broken neck.

TO BE PUT INTO OPERATION

St. Catharines, Jan. 21 —(CP)—City council decided last night that 200 parking meters in the business section are to go into operation next Monday. The meters already are installed.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

YOUR ARTERIES OR YOUR NERVES?

Arteries are the tubes or pipes that carry freshly "purified" (oxygenated) blood from the heart to all parts of the body—muscles, organs, nerves, glands and the walls of the heart and the arteries themselves. It is only from the very finest branches of the arteries, so fine that they are visible only through the microscope, called arterioles, that the blood finally reaches the cells fibres or tissues where its load of oxygen is to be delivered and a load of carbon dioxide picked up to be carried first through the finest branches of the veins, called venules, and on through larger and larger veins into the great veins, upper and lower, called venae cavae, which empty into the right side of the heart. From there the impure venous blood is pumped directly into the lungs, where the load of carbon dioxide (carbonic acid gas)—the same gas as that formed when anything burns or that dissolved in a carbonated or "sparkling" beverage or that formed in the stomach when bicarbonate or saleratus is taken—is blown off into the air and a fresh load of oxygen is taken up to be carried back the left side of the heart and round and round she goes and where she'll stop no mortal knows.

What has all this to do with nerves?

Upon the integrity or the efficiency of this transportation of O and CO2 depends the functioning of the nerves as well as the functioning of all other tissues, organs, glands.

Functioning of nerves, however, requires only an insignificant amount of energy as compared with functioning of arteries, heart, stomach, hand. Nerves merely convey or transmit impulses, messages so there is practically no combustion of fuel involved as compared with the fuel consumption involved with the work of the heart, the churning of food in the stomach, the act of writing, painting or playing piano, or the maintenance of muscle tone, tension, elasticity even just in the artery walls—which is essential to maintain normal blood pressure to keep blood flowing through the finest arterial branches (arterioles) so that it can reach the capillary bed—the ultimate spaces between cells and fibres, where the vital exchange of oxygen and carbon dioxide, the combustion process called metabolism goes on.

So far as we know, other than the insignificant amount of energy required or expended by functioning of nerves—comparable with the energy used by telephone or telegraph wire carrying a message—there is no basis for the concept of "weak" or "strong" nerves, "nervous exhaustion" or "nerve strain." These are purely fanciful ideas conceived by old timers who had but few of the precision methods of diagnosis that doctors have today.

I hope this provokes you into reconsideration and a change to a more wholesome way of life:

1. Persons with real brain, spinal cord or nerve lesions or diseases are no more "nervous" in the popular sense of the term than are patients with pulmonary tuberculosis or, chronic rheumatiz or Bright's disease.
2. Any invalid or valetudinarian, regardless of the nature of his or her trouble or worry, is as likely to be peevish cranky or unstable, as one with real or imaginary nervous trouble of any kind.
3. Except in the fancy of gullible people and quack doctors, nerve centres or brain centres do not produce energy of any kind, and indeed medical science recognizes only one kind of energy — ordinary physical energy, and according to the most careful scientific tests a person derives enough energy from eating a single peanut to supply the brain and nervous system for two hours of intense concentration on problem, as in students taking an examination.
4. So my advice to every reader who may be trying to deceive himself or herself that thon's trouble is just "nerves" or "nervous breakdown" is this: Quit fooling around and invest in a thorough medical examination to see if the doctor can't find out what really ails you.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why do Chinese in America send their dead to China?

Many conservative Chinese in the United States and other foreign lands return their dead to China because of their belief in ancestor worship. They want to be reunited in death to their ansentral clan and to receive the reverence paid by descendants to ancestors twice a year.

Transportation of bodies to the homeland has no religious significance other than its relation to the tradition respect for ancestors. China has no indigenous religion. Confucianism and Taoism are moral and political philosophies rather than religions. Buddhism, Islam and Christianity were all introduced from abroad.

According to Chinese mythology, the word was shaped out of chaos by Pan-Ku, the first conscious being. Ancestor worship in China dates back to pre-historic times and has been practiced by Chinese regardless of their particular faith.

The dead are generally interred in the fairest spots in their native land. Custom requires that no matter where a Chinese may die he must be returned to his place of birth and buried among his people. If this is not done his spirit cannot join the spirits of his forefathers but will wander unknown among strangers.

As a rule Chinese who die abroad are not sent to China at once but are buried in cemeteries or placed in vaults. Generally a body is sent back to China only when the deceased has so requested. Otherwise the original burial is permanent. Many Chinese, especially those born abroad, become so thoroughly naturalized that they do not observe this ancient burial custom.

The removals are not made by relatives or by religious sects, but by the deceased's tong, clan or social organization. All expenses are borne by the organization with funds raised by voluntary offerings. After the bodies have lain in cemeteries or vaults for a time, usually seven or ten years, they are exhumed and shipped in large numbers by special arrangements with steamship companies. Sometimes shipment is made 10, 20 or even 30 years after death, in which case only the bones are gathered and sent in small containers.

Formerly when Chinese coolies were brought to the United States each labor contract provided that in case of death the body should be returned to China. In the 1860's many ships sailed from San Francisco to China with cargoes composed entirely of the bones of Chinese. Only the bodies of Chinese who are Buddhists are cremated before shipment. Chinese are not supposed to be buried at sea and China has understandings with other nations whereby the bodies of Chinese who die on the ocean are kept on the ship in coffins and returned to China by the next vessel. Many Pacific ships carry coffins for this purpose. Formerly many wealthy Chinese bought their coffins long before death and some of them even carried coffins with them when travelling.

Magnetometer Method of Survey Outlined at Mining Convention

By H. L. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 21 (CP)—Canadian and United States development of a comparatively new method of geological survey—use of an instrument known as the magnetometer by which, it is claimed, ore bodies can be located quickly from the air—were described today to the annual convention of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

Two papers were presented to special technical sessions of the institute's convention, attended by more than 300 mining men from all parts of the Dominion. They described the fluxgate magnetometer now in use by the similar Canadian instrument developed by Hans Lundberg of Toronto.

G. Shaw of the Canadian Geological survey, speaking on the U.S.-developed machine, said it was hoped a similar instrument would be employed by the Canadian concern also was reported interested.

In reporting on his instrument Mr. Lundberg said in a ground survey made in Northern Quebec of an area some 12,000 feet by 10,000 feet in area, it required 70 days to prepare and complete magnetic observation. The same area was surveyed by a magnetometer flown low over the ground by helicopter in exactly one hour.

J.W. Meier and H. Livingstone, metallurgists of the Bureau of Mines, told of an experimental foundry set up in Ottawa to test new techniques in melting, refining and heat treatment in connection with magnesium.

Magnesium metal is so new that there has not yet been time to find out much about how to work it and what alloys are best for various purposes. It was expected results from the experiment would help Canada maintain the leading position she had taken in magnesium research up to the present.

W.B. Boggs, smelter superintendent of Noranda Mines, said in a paper that a large part of Noranda's output of copper went into shell cases during the war. Now the company has been asked to treat a considerable tonnage of shell cases to recover the copper. Several difficulties had been encountered, but now 50 tons of shell cases were added to a daily charge of 2,300 tons of ore and concentrate.

The convention opened yesterday and president R.J. Ennis of Timmins and Schumacher, set the theme with a presidential address calling for a "sound, constructive and far-reaching" national mining policy in Canada.

To Meet Difficulties

Mines Minister Glen, in a convention luncheon address, indicated he hoped that by this time next year he could tell Canada's mining men that "we (the government) have done a job" in meeting the industry's difficulties.

Mr. Shaw, in his paper on the U. S. -developed magnetometer said it had found on the average 100 miles of magnetic profile could be made per flying hour.

He added that the instrument "cannot replace the geologist or the prospector, but it can, used properly, be of great assistance to them and will help them accomplish better results than would otherwise be possible."

Mr. Lundberg told the convention in his paper that the complete control of position in the air made possible with a helicopter had made possible a close duplication of surveys made on the ground. Helicopter flights with his instrument could be made 25 to 50 feet above the the surface in bare areas and 100 to 150 feet in forest areas to clear the trees.

Communist-Backed Government Assured Victory

Warsaw, Jan. 21 (CP)—Complete unofficial reports from Poland's 6,726 voting districts today aparently assured the Communist- backed pro-government Bloc parties a smashing victory in Sunday's parliamentary elections giving them 324 seats out of a total of 444 or approximately 73 per cent.

Vice-Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, leader of the opposition Polish Peasant Party, (P.-S.L.) was himself elected to a parliament seat, but his party took a terrific beating, winning only an indicated 24 seats. It had 53 seats in the so-called pre-election Provisional Parliament.

Mikolajczyk was preparing an appeal to the Polish Supreme court to declare the elections invalid on grounds that the voting was neither free nor unfettered as guaranteed at Yalta and Potsdam.

Seventy-two seats were filled by election of candidates on what was called the "National List," which included president Boleslaw Bierut and practically every other official now holding top government positions.

The Labor Party captured 10 seats; the New Liberation Group of P.S.L.—A splinter of Mikolajczyk's party—got seven; and four went to smaller political groups.

(There was no imediate indication of the allotment of the other three seats.)

While Mikolajczyk reported that he was receiving a flood of complaints charging falsification of returns and irregularities during the voting, Karol Popiel, President of the Christian Labor Party, charged in a statement to the press that the Warsaw regime had denied his party oportunity to participate in the elections.

SETTING TORRID PACE

Montreal, Jan. 21 — (CP) — Smiley Meronek of Lachine Rapides with 59 points continues to set a torrid pace for the Provincial Hockey League snipers, according to league statistics released today.

The shifty Lachine forward has amassed 22 goals and 37 assists to take a four-point lead over Cornwall's Freddy Gardner and Sherbrooke's Herbie Carnegie, tied for second place with 55 points. Gardner has 28 goals and 27 assists while Carnegie scored 26 tallies and 29 assists.

Tony Demers holds down the third rung for Sherbrooke with 54 points while Ray Marshall of Cornwall follows three points behind.

Congregational Reports Are Read At Beulah Church

Ivanhoe (Special)—The congregation of Beulah United Church held its annual meeting in the church on Thursday evening. Rev. J. F. Everson conducted the devotions and presided, while Mr. Arthur Wood recorded the minutes. The session report was given by Mr. Frank Palmer who stated that the congregation serves 44 families. During the year there were four baptisms, and one marriage. Six persons were received into membership by profession of faith and five by certificate. The Missionary and Maintenance report, read by Miss Cora Prest, showed a total of $133.50 raised, an increase of $27.25 over 1945. Mr. Stanley Prest, chairman of the Pension Fund Committee reported $181.75 paid and pledges amounting to $60 remaining. Mrs. Arthur Wood treasurer of the Woman's Missionary Society, reported 29 annual members and two life members with an income of $131.96. Mr. Clifford Mitz, treasurer of the Sunday School, reported an income for local expenses of $64.79, with $4.96 given to the Ontario Religious Educational Council and $4.60 to the Rally Day Fund. There are 98 scholars and teachers enrolled. Mr. Arthur Wood was re-elected congregational secretary. Mr. Harry Lovibond and Mr. Frank Palmer were re-elected auditors for 1947. Miss Phylis Twiddy and Mrs. Stanley Prest were asked to continue as pianists. Ushers named were Messrs Harry Lovibond, Elymer Rollins, Earl McMaster and Ross Twiddy. The three retiring stewards, Messrs Goldie McInroy, Clifford Mitz and Arthur Wood were re-elected for another term of three years. Mr. Arthur Wood was elected Trustee Board representative; Mr. Stanley Prest, chairman of the Board of Stewards and Church treasurer and Mr. Elymer Rollins secretary of the Board of Stewards.

At the close of the congregational meeting the Sunday School was re-organized with the following results: Superintendent, Mr. George Wood, assistant, Mr. Frank Palmer. Treasurer, Mr. Clifford Mitz. Miss Beverly Palmer, Secretary. Missionary Secretaries, Larry Mitz and Marial Prest; Temperance Secretary, Mr. Arthur Wood; Missionary Treasurer, Miss Doris Twiddy; Auditor, Mr. Harry Lovibond; Cradle Roll Superintendent, Mrs. Arthur Wood; Pianists, Mrs. Stanley Prest to be assisted by Misses Eleanor Reid, Doris Twiddy and Margery Prest.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Mitz were named on the circuit Parsonage Committee, also Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wood. The church treasurer reported a favorable working balance on hand after all outstanding accounts had been paid.

Nail Care Isn't Difficult

By HELEN FOLLETT

EVERY girl should know how to give herself a fifteen minute manicure. One never knows when the telephone will clang, with a grand fellow doing the clanging, suggesting a date. And the pink shells at the finger tips may not be in apple pie order. It often happens that way.

Here is the system. Remove the polish and do not wash your hands as a starter for the treatment; if you do the nails will be too soft and pliable for shaping. Use a long, finely-grained steel file, working a neat oval outline. Pass the orange wood stick under the nail eavs. You will bring out little shreds of the lining of the nail; remove them with a beveling file or emery board.

Scrub The Nails

Now for a grand old scrubbing with warm soapy water. Rinse, dry and to each nail apply cuticle cream. Use the orange wood stick to lift the flesh surrounding the nails. As long as you keep it detached you'll never have hangnails. Don't press down heavily to so injure the matrix that a deformed nail will appear. Pass the white pencil under the eaves.

Now for a second scrubbing and you're all set to lay on the polish.

If one is a typist or a busy house keeper, the nails should have some attention every night if they are to keep in a healhy state, retain good coloring.

After creaming your complexion at bedtime, friction some cream into the cuticle surrounding the nails. Massage the nails themselves to bring a glow. These little sheaths are transparent; the color is created by the blood streams in the underlying flesh.

Winter Schools Power for Good In Increasing Horizons Says Dr. Bruce Gordon at Opening

Introducing Dr. Bruce Gordon, of Trinity United Church in Peterborough to the hundred or more young people present in the Bridge Street Church School Assembly room on Monday evening, Rev. D. C. Amos said in part—"Dr. Gordon was ordained in Manitoba Conference. He later went to Edinburgh, Scotland, for post graduate work, returning to Canada he spent considerable time at Chalk River, reading and writing to obtain the degree of Ph.D., following which he served in Toronto Conference in Northern Ontario. Dr. Gordon is now keenly interested in the young people of the Bay of Quinte Conference, and all who listen tonight have a real treat in store, as he speaks on the subject of "New Horizons".

Replying, Dr. Gordon expressed pleasure in being able to attend the Winter School in Bridge Street Church. He said, "I am happy to know Winter Schools are coming forward again. Formerly, Bay of Quinte Winter Schools had a reputation for constructive study and progress in religious education. "Speaking of Horizons", he began, "The Chinese have a way of expressing direction; they speak of five points of the compass as North, South, East, West and "where you are".

Important To Know

In life it is very important to know where we are, morally and spiritually, as well as geographically. Each age has a change of horizon—old things pass away. A man must look to these changes in his day as, where he stands is relative to his horizons. It is very significant that things on our horizons help us determine which way we shall go. This is particularly true of a group studying to enlarge its knowledge of some important subject. To gain religious knowledge we must have a broad sweep, a high aim and a definite goal. To gain a wider scope we must get above the world to where our vision includes far distances, so we can see that the past meets the present and mingles with it. Years ago people took many thing for granted, which have been submerged in this generation. We know that when the compass ceases to function, travellers become wanderers— and not all wanderers are refugees.

Divided in Two Groups

Continuing, he said —"Today people may be divided into two groups, i.e., those who dwell on things that are old; (they are conservative and slow) and those who dwell upon more modern things, (the steady-going Christian interested in neo-orthodoxy). There is a new interest in past history in various walks of life. People today are interested in 'The Reformation' as the source of modern religion and of spiritual motives. The church is facing a great challenge, and must go forward in the next ten years, with a vision reaching to far horizons on such questions as the relation of the church to the state, to individuals, to nations that have no spiritual compass for determining the right direction to follow. If we are to see our horizons plainly, we must put Christ in the centre of our vision".

Dr. Gordon continued, "There is the horizon where liberty and power meet. True, the challenge of Nazilsm is gone, but this meeting is still evident; and the infringement of power must be stopped. A man who does not govern himself will be governed by others. Many laws passed on this continent are restrictive—we, evidently, no longer govern ourselves individually. Liberty is not licence. Liberty is freedom to co-operate with others. Jesus Christ is the only One who can give a man Power to govern himself, so Liberty and Power meet.

Commandments Not Repealed

The ten commandments have not been repealed, but it is we who must make them fit into our age. A man may be too honest to steal in a small country store; but may not be conscientious enough to refrain from taking something in an intricate deal on the Stock Exchange. What we need today is an awareness of right and wrong. Even living according to the Golden Rule, without imagination, may cause turmoil because all people do not think alike, and what you would like to have done for you, another might not like at all."

Calling the 91st Psalm "The Aviators' Psalm", Dr. Gordon stressed the advantage of altitude to gain a wider scope of vision, saying—"The highest position is the place of most power; and the highest moral position is the altitude of our own conduct relative to individuals, to our community and to the nation. Man will reach the place of most spiritual power as he gains a place nearer Christ, which is the place where Power in the hands, meets Power of human hearts. The personality of Jesus called forth such titles as Master, Lord, Prince, yet He said, 'I am among you as One that serveth'. This is also true in the lives of Christians.

A Christian life exerts power 'for' rather than power 'over' others. As an example consider Japan's power over China, versus the power of Christian Missions. Which has been more lasting in its impact upon the nation?"

Only Progress

"The only progress in human history is along the Christ principle", continued the speaker. "To use power for the service of men will involve a change of human hearts among the nations. New horizons, opening, demand of every individual a new appraisal of himself in a world which will never again be what is called 'normal'. But we can see in life the secret of the whirlpool, which, because of the power beneath, draws into its centre everything thrown upon its surface. Thus the Power of God will draw all men to a common centre of life, worship and brotherhood. To meet life, we must take a high view, a long view and the Power of Christ. It is only thus we can go into every experience with confidence and assurance."

First Since 1938

The first Winter School of the Bay of Quinte Conference since 1938 opened in Bridge Street United Church on Monday, with Rev. W. G. Fletcher, of Yarker, as president; Rev. A. W. Seaton, of Sydenham, as vice president; Rev. Lloyd Shorten, of Foxboro, as dean and Rev. J. E. Beckel, president of the Conference, as honorary president. Other offices are filled by lay members of Young Peoples' Unions in the Cobourg, Kingston and Belleville Presbyteries. The school has a full program of worship and Bible study during morning and afternoon sessions each day from Monday till Friday inclusive, with open sessions every evening at eight o'clock, which include 'Radio Night,' 'Drama' and 'Movies', with an opportunity to hear Rev. Thomas Buchanan speak on "Missions in the India of Today".

Parents Entertained On 30th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Lovett, 193 West Moira Street, entertained at a dinner party last Friday, in honor of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Lovett, Carrying Place, Ont.

Covers were laid for sixteen guests, which included members of the immediate families of the bride and groom.

The bride and groom were the recipients of a beautiful dinner set, a chest of silver and a lace table cloth.

The groom's gift to the bride of thirty years was a string of pearls.

Guests were present from Consecon, Bowmanville and Colborne.

The groom's sister, Mrs. L. Heather, of Toronto, was unable to be present, but sent her best wishes.

Women's Activities

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

The January meeting of the Avondale Neighbors' Aid was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. Hermon, with a good attendance.

Mrs. S. Lough opened the meeting with the "Ode" followed by "O God Our Help in Ages Past" and Prayer. The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison.

Numerous cards and letters of appreciation were read from those who had been remembered at Christmas with fruit or candy. The various secretaries presented their annual reports and these showed an active and successful year.

Before vacating the chair, Mrs. Lough thanked the ladies for their splendid co-operation, during her term of office and stated that the past two years had been a happy experience for her. She asked for the same loyal support for the new president, and extended her best wishes to her. Mrs. Herman took the chair and graciously replied to Mrs. Lough's remarks, thanking the ladies of the Aid for the honor of being their president during this new year. "Standing at the Portals" was sung and Mrs. Windover read the Scripture lesson. Several items of business were discussed and in token of appreciation for their services, gifts were presented to the retiring officers, Mesdames S. Lough, A. Clare, A. Daniels, W. Rowsome, C. Winter, E. Windover.

prerestnedsofLtLece

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction. Mrs. F. Denyes and Mrs. P. Boulton were the prize winners in the games which followed.

The door prize donated by Mrs. Hermon was won by Mrs. C. Ling.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. E. Windover and Mrs. L. Reid.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN'S CLUB

The University Women's Club met on Thursday evening, at the home of Mrs. W. L. Langlois, 287 Foster Avenue.

The guest speaker, Mr. D. Bews, B.S.C., gave a talk on "The Labor Pattern", in which he traced the development of the labor movement from the early 18th century to the present day, following his talk there was a lively and informative discussion.

The remainder of the meeting was devoted to the business of the Club.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess.

CANNIFTON W.M.S.

The January meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society took place at the United Church parsonage with a good attendance.

The meeting opened with the hymn "Standing at the Portal of the Opening Year" and prayer.

The Treasurer, Mrs. H. Empson, reported that an amount well over the allocation had been sent to the Presbyterial Treasurer and the membership had been increased by four new members last year.

The Worship Service was in charge of the President on the theme "Fulfilling Our Church Membership in Witnessing for Christ", with three of the members assisting. Mrs. J. Trumpour conducted the Installation Service for the officers of 1947 which was very impressive. The officers read their duties from the Blue Book.

Readings and "Thoughts for the New Year" were given by Mrs. Mills, Mrs. Pound, Mrs. Loucks and Mrs. Williams.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Trumpour.

CARMEL W.M.S.

The January meeting of the Carmel W.M.S. was held at the home of the President, Mrs. Selden Homan, who opened with a worship service. The Scripture lessons were read from Acts by Mrs. Moorman, Mrs. Ross and Mrs. J. Homan. Prayer was offered by Mrs. John Patterson. A talk on "Friendship" was given by Mrs. J. Homan, Baby Band leader. She also reported 17 visits made on band members. Mrs. Percy Reynolds was appointed associate Baby Band leader. Mrs. B. Pitman gave a Temperance reading.

Mrs. Geo. Moorman, Mission Band leader, reported $37 raised during the year with a membership of 12. Much credit is due Mrs. Moorman for her efforts as leader of the Band. Mrs. M. Ross, treasurer, reported the allocation had been met. Mrs. S. Homan read a letter from her friend, Miss Ada Sandell, who is returning to her work in Korea. Mrs. Clare Horton contributed a reading on "India".

A story entitled "The Star in a Chinese City" was given jointly by several members and the meeting closed with a hymn and the benediction after which Mrs. Homan served refreshments.

VICTORIA W.A.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Dempsey was the scene of a pleasant gathering on the evening, Jan. 15, when the Victoria Church families met for a pot-luck supper and social evening. A short business meeting of the W.A. was held after which progressive games were enjoyed for the remainder of the evening. Winners of the games were Mr. Harmon Montgomery, Mr. Gerald Fox, Master John MacIntyre and Master Andrew Harnes. Proceeds for the evening amounted to $12.20. A hearty vote of thanks was extended Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey and Mr. Dempsey Sr., for their kind hospitality.

CENTENARY W.A.-W.M.S.

The January meeting of the Centenary United Church W.A. and W.M.S. was held in the home of Mrs. P. Sutherland on Jan. 15th., with a good attendance. The meeting opened with the theme song and a hymn. Mrs. G. Sills was in charge of the Devotional period, the 23rd Psalm being repeated in unison, and Mrs. Sills contributing an interesting reading on the Psalm, followed by a reading "Our Journey" by Mrs. Kelly. Mrs. Holton read an article on "Our Undiscovered To-morrows".

The financial report for 1946 was presented by Mrs. Sills, and it was felt that it had been a very successful year financially.

Mrs. B. Roblin, W.M.S. president took charge for the remainder of the program. Mrs. S. May spoke on "Christian Stewardship of Time". Mrs. Kelly brought a fine message on Temperance and Mrs. Aikens gave a reading on "The Youth of India".

The meeting closed with a hymn and the Mizpah benediction.

QUINTE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

2nd Thurlow. — The January meeting of the Quinte W.I. met at the home of Mrs. D. Leeming, on Tuesday afternoon. The President, Mrs. Douglas Atkins, was in charge. After the business period, Mrs. Eric Leeming, convener of Agriculture and Canadian Industries, presented a very interesting program and had prepared an excellent paper on "Agriculture". Mrs. D. Leeming led in prayer. Community singing was enjoyed. Mrs. Jack Parrott gave an interesting talk on her recent trip to Florida and Miami and passed around several snapshots of orange and lemon trees and of various places, enroute.

Mrs. F. Mitchell prepared a Livestock and Fowl Breed naming contest. Groups of three were arranged and Mesdames McGowan, Bradshaw and Greatrix had the most correct answers and received a box of candy as a prize.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. E. Leeming for the splendid program and to Mrs. D. Leeming for opening her home for the meeting, which closed with the National Anthem. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and conveners.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S LEAGUE

The Catholic Women's League held its first meeting of the New Year last Monday evening directly after the executive meeting. Mrs. Morsell, 3rd vice president, and Benevolent Society representative, reported milk has been supplied the school children; hampers of Christmas cheer were sent to needy families; tempting packages delivered to hospital patients, and to the Home For the Aged, and County Home. The Society too, at a special meeting were very glad to co-operate and assist the school nurse at St. Michael's. After Mrs. O'Brien gave the treasurer's report, Mrs. Bulger, Red Cross convener, reminded the ladies, the Red Cross workrooms re-opened this month, and urged them to take up the work again, which will be different from wartime needs, but the necessity for peacetime requirements still exists and is most urgent.

Mrs. Hudon, newly appointed corresponding secretary, read correspondence; after which a detailed account of procedure for V.O.N. as school nurse, was given by Mrs. B. Burley.

Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson was present, and commended strongly the efforts made to secure the services of a nurse for the school, ever true to the motto, "Fur God and Country".

The League was most fortunate in having Miss Johnson, representative from Toronto, present with Miss Adair, V.O.N., who spoke briefly on nurse activities, and answered many questions, explanatory and most interesting.

Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed after which it was decided to hold a Valentine Tea under the auspices of Coleman and Murney Wards with Mrs. Dan Doyle as convener; full announcement to be made later.

An adjournment followed.

TRINITY W.A.

Madoc.—For their first meeting of the New Year, the W.A. met at the home of Mrs. E. Moore. "Standing at the Portal" was chosen as the opening hymn, and a New Year message, emphasizing the "Crusade for Christ", and the part in it for W.A. members was read by Mrs. Bennett. Bible reading and prayer by Mrs. Caverly followed. Yearly reports were read and business items discussed. Readings were contributed by Mrs. Demorest and Mrs. Moon and humorous poems by Mrs. L, Ashley. Rev. A. Poulter conducted the election of officers. The executive for 1947: President, Mrs. B. Tanner; Vice President, Mrs. Bennett, Secretary, Mrs. L. Ashley; Treasurer, Mrs. E. Demorest.

MADOC WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Madoc, (Special.)—Mrs. George Hill, president of Madoc Women's Institute opened her home for the January meeting on Friday afternoon. A short time was spent in the singing of the old songs and Institute Ode. The roll call "My oldest possession", was responded to by some of the members exhibiting relics dating back over 150 years. Letters of thanks were received and read by the secretary from some of the older members and shut-ins for gifts received at Christmas. Plans were made for the February meeting on the 19th commemorating the 50th anniversary of the W.I. Also arrangements for a card party to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Hill early in February. Mrs. William Miller gave Current Events dealing particularly with the Canadian Citizen Act which came in force on January 1st. Mrs. Jas. Aylesworth, convener of Historical Research gave a very interesting paper on the "City of Jerusalem". A hearty vote of appreciation was extended to those who presented the program. Meeting closed with the National Anthem and a very pleasant hour was spent with the hostess who served afternoon tea assisted by Miss Van Kleek, Mrs. Jesse Reid, and Mrs. E. Moore.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

Belleville Chapter 435 the Women of the Moose held their regular meeting Tuesday, with Senior Regent Lena Connell presiding. The Sunshine prize was won by Co-Worker Mary Doran.

W.C.T.U. MEETING

On Friday of last week the January meeting of the W.C.T.U was held in the Y.M.C.A. parlors, with the President, Mrs. M. Denton, in charge. The hymn "O Come All Ye Faithful" opened the program, followed with prayer by the president.

During the business period secretarial reports were received and Miss M. Clazie, returned missionary from Japan, reported on the splendid W.C.T.U. work done in Tokyo, following which a committee was formed to canvass the members of the local union for children's clothing and donations of money to be forwarded to Japan for the relief of suffering at this time. Miss Clazie is the convener of this committee

Mrs. Earl, of the Salvation Army, led in an inspiring Worship Service using the theme "She hath done what she could". She based her remarks on the great love which Mary had for Jesus, exemplified when he visited her home by bathing His Feet and anointing them with the precious ointment. When Simon rebuked her for extravagance, Jesus spoke to him of his lack of devotion, and commended Mary for her great love and sacrifice

Arrangements were made for raising funds in the interest of the work of the local union, and it was decided to contact every member for assistance.

The Mizpah benediction closed a very profitable meeting.

WELLMAN'S W.I.

The regular meeting of Wellman's W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. L. Pollock on the evening of Jan. 17th., with a large attendance. The meeting opened with the Institute Ode followed by The Lord's Prayer. Miss Faye Fleming read an excellent paper on "The Fourth R, re Education". Mrs. Pollock gave a reading which was followed by the singing of "S-M-I-L-E". Kenneth Matthews contributed a guitar selection.

Mrs. Pollock, social convener, then took charge for the rest of the evening which was spent in games of progressive euchre; prizes were won as follows—ladies first, Mrs. Clarence Dunham, Men's, Mr. Robert Wallace, with the door prize going to Mr. John Rainie. Refreshments were served and the meeting adjourned.

..."And Then There Were None"
Harold was just an old sheep-counter. Every night, before he got to sleep, he counted thousands of sheep ...
Then one day an Experienced Friend suggested maybe it was the caffein in the Tea and Coffee he drank that kept the sheep jumping over the fence ...
So Harold STOPPED tea and coffee, and changed to POSTUM ...
And right away he only got a few hundred sheep over the fence before sleep overcame him ...
And in a few nights only a dozen ...
And then there were none!
Many people can safely drink tea and coffee. But others are upset by the caffein these beverages contain. If you find yourself sleepless, nervous, irritable—try changing to Postum. You'll like its rich, heart-warming flavor. Not like tea, not like coffee, just a grand flavor all its own.
Easy to fix—make Postum right in the cup just by adding boiling water or hot milk. Costs less than 1¢ a serving.

LIBBY'S BABY FOODS EXTRA EASY TO DIGEST
Homogenization, a Patented Process Developed by Libby's, Helps Reduce Baby's Digestive Upsets
Babies' first fruits and vegetables often cause digestive upsets, even when they are strained. This is because they contain coarse fibres, and cells which must be penetrated before nourishment can be assimilated.
Libby's exclusive Homogenization process explodes the food cells and breaks up the coarse fibres—makes it possible for baby to digest Libby's Foods in 30 minutes, while foods which have been only strained require about two hours.
Homogenization is a patented process developed by Libby's to safeguard your baby's health. Only Libby's Baby Foods are Homogenized.
When shopping for baby, don't forget Libby's Homogenized Evaporated Milk and Libby's "Gentle Press" Tomato Juice.

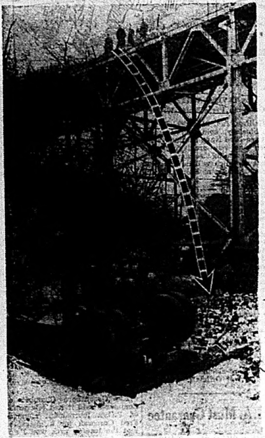
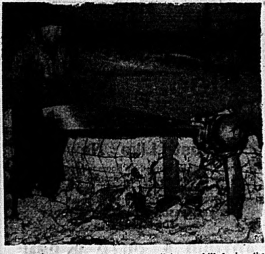
Shattered wreckage of the transport truck and cargo with torn-out section of the bridge guard-rail.



Following the truck, a second car skidded on the same spot and narrowly missed going through the broken guard rail, only its rear wheels preventing the car from toppling over. Passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Culetta of Scarboro Bluffs and their daughter Marie (above), scrambled to safety.

Ernest Pope, 29, of Toronto Island, was burned to death in the twisted wreckage of his transport truck cab early Monday when the truck went out of control on the slippery, rainswept highway, tore through the guard rail of the Rouge Hills bridge and hurtled 80 feet to the ground. Above is a view of the death scene with broken line indicating where truck and trailer broke through guard rail and the wrecked truck below.

PLANE CRASH DARKENS TOWN



Two young Trans-Canada Airlines pilots were killed when their twin-engined Lockheed crashed and burned in a snow-covered pasture near Headingley, Man. The crashing plane ripped down power lines, leaving the town of St. Francois Xavier in darkness. Propeller from the plane was thrown into a fence, ABOVE, while the sheared off wing and parts of the fuselage hit trees near the farmhouse of George and Oliver Richard. The dead are Gordon E. Brown, 24, and Gerald R. Symington, 25, both of Winnipeg.

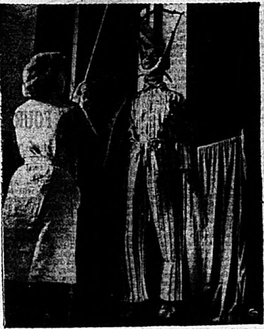
HANGING IS GOOD FOR HIM, DOCTORS SAY



For this patient, St. Thomas' Hospital, in London, is a regular "hangout." Eminent doctors have discovered that to cure the anonymous patient (pictured above) of a paralytic condition they have to keep him in suspense daily. As the saying goes, hanging may be too good for some men, but it makes this one feel extra fine.

AURIOL ELECTED PRESIDENT OF FRANCE

Vincent Auriol, LEFT, Socialist leader and Speaker of the National Assembly, has been elected president of the fourth French republic. As president, Auriol will appoint a premier to succeed Leon Blum, RIGHT, who accepted the office on an interim basis to tide the nation over a grave economic crisis. Auriol received 452 of the 983 votes cast, 10 more than the absolute majority required for election.

BRANDON ELKS MOVING UP IN MANITOBA LOOP

Now Hold Five-Point Lead Over Second Place Winnipeg Monarchs

Winnipeg, Jan. 21 —(CP)—A powerful Brandon Elks sextet has moved to the fore in the Manitoba Junior Hockey League standings with less than a month's play remaining.

Elks now hold a five -point lead over the second place Winnipeg Monarchs currently touring the West Coast on a series of exhibition games. Besides turning in sparkling performances in league play, Elks also showed considerable strength to turn back Oshawa Generals by identical 3-1 scores in two exhibition contests at Brandon. If it is any balm to the eastern club Elks swamped Portage La Prairie Terrier Juniors 21-9 in a later encounter—a seasonal scoring record if not an all-time league record.

Rangers remained in third spot, three points back of Monarchs, with Canadiens holding fourth place, five points back. Portage, with only one win in 12 starts, are hopelessly out of contention.

Monarchs, in five West Coast exhibition games, have won two, tied two and lost one. They played the five games in six nights.

The Manitoba Senior League has developed into a two team race between Winnipeg Flyers and Winnipeg Stylists with the third team, Selkirk Fishermen winless in nine starts.

Flyers On Top

Flyers paced by their high-scoring first-string of Barney O'Connell, Mike Yaschuk and Don (Red) McRae, have defeated their inter-city rivals three times in five games.

Stylists, four points back have used various combinations of forward lines in efforts to bolster the team, hard hit by injuries. Selkirk to date have been unable to find any semblance of a winning combination.

Flyers are scheduled to play two weekend exhibition games against Fort Frances Canadians of the Northern Hockey League at Fort Frances.

Port Arthur Bearcats and Fort William Legion are tied for first place in the three-team international senior league. Duluth is the third team in the loop, which has no bearing on the Allan Cup playdowns as Port Arthur and Fort William will play off in a series to decide the Lakehead representatives.

Sports Roundup

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 21 (CP)—Hank Greenberg's sale to Pittsburg Pirates had New York circles buzzing angrily today as the pillar pundits sought reasons why Detroit Tigers dropped the popular big first baseman . . . Greenberg, arriving in Manhattan, said the first he had heard of the sale was in a radio broadcast. . . . He added that he had not been in touch with the Tiger management but had sent telegrams to Pirate bosses. . .

The New York World-Telegram, which specialzies in baseball, devoted most of the first page of its sports section to the Greenberg waiver, . . .Dan Daniel, veteran diamond reporter, wrote that Hank had been sold because of a photograph taken of him several years ago wearing a New York Yankee sweater. . . Daniel said that the incident occurred when Hank, then in the army, came to New York for an all-star game. . . He lacked a uniform and was loaned a Yankee shirt, in which he posed for a picture . . . This, Daniel said, was not looked on kindly by the Detroit management. . . The sports writer added: "Detroit never really took Hank unto its bosom. It was willing to cheer him when he was delivering home runs. But it was quite ready to hoot him in less glorious moments. Now let us see how the 1947 Tigers get along without him." . . .

Willard Mullin, the World-Telegram sports cartoonist, said it even more pungently when he showed a worn, old Greenberg tottering to the National League's "Old Folks Home". . . Mullin added a foot-note: "Big Henry's R.B.I. Production last year (127) was well over double that of his nearest teammate? . . And they waive a war club like that out of the League!"

Jimmy (N.Y. News) Powers concentrated on Larry MacPhail, the New York Yankee boss . . . said Powers: " . . . He acted strangely when first telephoned by reporters and said, "I am not interested in Greenberg!" . . . Powers then added of Greenberg: "All New York writers are in Hank's corner and know him intimately. Hank is a clean-living gentleman a distinct asset to any baseball roster in any city. If the Detroit owners are starting an economy wave. . . That is their privilege. But to cut off a good and faithful servant in a cloud of 'best interests' inuendoes is something we find a little difficult to stomach at this time."

TAYLOR MAKES BIGGEST STRIDES IN SCORING RACE

Montreal, Jan. 21 — (CP) — Billy (The Kid) Taylor of Detroit Red Wings added five points made up of four goals and one assist to make the biggest strides last week in the National Hockey League scoring race, league statistics released today revealed.

The Detroit fleet centre jumped into third place, ousting Boston's Milt Schmidt who suffered a low week, sniping only two goals for a total of 34 points compared to Taylor's 36.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Les Canadiens continued to pace the league's goal-getters as he found the mark three times in two games to boost his total to 26 goals for the season and take a commanding six-point lead in the combined race with 43 points.

Toronto's Ted Kennedy follows in the runner-up position with 37 points made up of 18 goals and 19 assists while Boston's Bobby Bauer and Chicago's Max Bentley are tied for fifth honors with 33 points each. Taylor with 33 assists leads that department.

Durnan Heads Goalies

Canadiens' Bill Durnan heads the net custodians in the goals-against department with only 77 goals debited in 36 games. Turk Broda of Toronto Maple Leafs and Charlie Rayner of New York Rangers share the shutout department with three goose-eggs each.

Happy Day's Maple Leafs set a dizzy pace over the past week as they won twice and tied once in four outings to give them an 8-point lead over Montreal Canadiens in second place.

Leafs have 53 points made up of 24 wins, five ties and nine losses in 38 games while Canadiens have won 20, tied five and lost 11 in 36 contests. Boston Bruins are in third position with 36 points, followed by New York Rangers with 33 and Detroit Red Wings with 29. Chicago Black Hawks remain in the cellar with 24.

Gus Mortson, rookie defenceman of Maple Leafs, took over the role of "bad man" in the league with a total of 78 minutes spent in the penalty box. Johnny Mariucci of Chicago follows with 75 minutes.

L'IL ARTHUR KING DEFEATS LEWIS

Toronto, Jan. 21—(CP)—Walter (Cabby) Lewis couldn't drive fast enough to catch Lil Arthur King's bicycle last night and Toronto's young Negro boxing star won an eight-round decision in the main event of Promoter Frank Tunney's pro fistic offerings at Maple Leaf Gardens.

King won all right, but the manner of it stuck in the craw of a crowd estimated at 5,000. Weighing 129 to his Havana, Cuba, opponent's 133, the little Negro back-pedalled for six of the eight rounds, then closed briefly in the seventh and eighth, coring a second knockdown in the last round. The first, catching Lewis off balance, came in the third.

In the semi-final Teddy Swain of Toronto won an eight-round decision over Jean Richard, Montreal. From a crowd standpoint it was the best bbut of the night with both men swinging with all they had.

In one of the preliminaries Joey McPhee of Oshawa created a mild upset by winning a decision over Stan Stinson, the hard-hitting Hamiltonian.

AMERICAN LOOP CLUBS FAIL TO CLAIM GREENBERG

By JOE REICHLER

New York, Jan. 21 — (AP) — The mystery surrounding Hank Greenberg's sudden departure from the Detroit Tigers and the American League deepened today when it became known the league's seven other clubs had failed to obtain the home run king.

Only one waiver request could possibly have been made up to last Saturday, when Greenberg was sold to the Pittsburgh Pirates. This means that president Larry MacPhail of the New York Yankees and others in the American League did not even bother to put in a claim for him.

MacPhail, explaining why he let Greenberg be waived out of the league, said he had tried three times since last fall to land Greenberg, but that each time he was turned down. Yet when he might have had opportunity to get Greenberg for the $10,000 waiver price, he failed to take advantage of it.

MacPhail said the Tigers would not have allowed Greenberg to go to the Yankees, or any other potentially strong American League club. That might have been true, but neither MacPhail nor anybody else gave the Tigers a chance to prove or disprove it.

If the magnates had stuck to the letter of the law, president Walter E. Briggs of the Tigers would have had no recourse but either to recall the waiver or let Greenberg go.

Under a new ruling passed by both major leagues each club is allowed three cracks at any player put on the waiver list. A request for waivers on any player cannot be withdrawn by the same club more than twice in any calendar year.

Selke Signs 10-year Contract With Cincinnati

(By The Canadian Press)

Frank Selke, who spent twenty years with Toronto's Maple Leafs Gardens and left only last year to become general manager of the Montreal Forum, yesterday was signed to a 10-year contract as general manager of the Cincinatti Garden Inc., holder of an American Hockey League franchise. The announcement, made in Cincinnati by Charles Sawyer president of the Garden Enterprise, was unexpected. Sawyer said Selke would divide his time between Montreal and Cincinnati until a $2,000,000 sports arena is completed in the larger city in time for the 1948-49 hockey season.

Construction of the Cincinnati Garden arena, capable of seating 10,000 persons, will be started this summer.

Clark Griffith, owner of Washington Senators, was outspoken yesterday in brushing off reports that Senator's first baseman Mickey Vernon would be sold to New York Yankees for a rumored $150,000. "There isn't enough money in that bush league town of New York to buy Mickey Vernon," was his terse reply to questioners.

While Madison Square Garden fans derisively sang such ballads as "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," and "Home On The Range" highly-touted Red Priest, New England Middleweight champion last night barely outpointed Cowboy Ruben Shank in a slow 10-round bout.

14 HOCKEY PLAYERS INJURED IN BUS CRASH

Members of Brantford Team Taken to Stratford Hospital, Four Still Remain

Stratford, Jan. 21—(CP)—Fourteen players, officials and supporters of the Brantford Chiefs hockey club were injured, four of them remaining in hospital today, after the chartered bus in which they were riding missed a turn and crashed into an embankment.

The injured included Stanley Dye, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature for Brantford and manager of the junior 'B' Ontario Hockey Association team, which was travelling to a game here when the accident occurred.

In hospital with Mr. Dye are players Wally Kalichuk, severe face injuries; Vincent Lozicki, fractured nose and lacerations; Ross Smith, badly injured knees. Mr. Dye sufferéd lacerations and undetermined back injuries.

Others injured were John Peattie, back injuries; Robert Stacey, leg hurt; Russell Lehman, face cut; Ken Lazary, face cuts; Jack McGregor, face cuts; Jason Brennan, face cuts; Jack Good, broken nose; Michael Lozicki, cut face; Leonard Wilson, broken nose, cuts on legs; Emmett (Ray) Daughen, coach of the team, facial cuts.

The driver of the bus, Ted Wallace of Brantford, was shaken up. The accident happened nine miles outside Stratford near the hamlet of Wellesley around 7:30 p.m.

At 11 p.m. doctors and a crew of nurses from Stratford General Hospital were still patching up victims. George Chamberlain, chairman of the Brantford Public Utility Commission which furnished the new bus that made the trip and was wrecked, immediately dispatched another bus on hearing of the mishap.

However, the city of Stratford already had provided another bus to take the injured back to their home city.

The overcrowded Stratford hospital was unable to handle some of the accident victims and accepted only the four most seriously hurt.

Windsor Spitfires Defeat Hamilton

(By The Canadian Press)

Windsor Spitfires' chances of making the O.H.A. Junior "A" playoffs look pretty slim at the moment but the scrappy Western Ontario Club looked like a world-beater last night in trimming Hamilton Szabos 12-4 in their own backyard.

The Szabos, their injury-ridden ranks bolstered by five graduates from Junior "B" ranks, stayed within two goals of the Spitfires for two periods but fadded sadly in the stretch run as the Windsorites outscored them 7-1 in the final stanza. The loss dropped Szabos to ninth lace in the 10-team group as the winners picked up four points to advance within two of the seventh-place St. Catharines Falcons.

Mike Russ, Earl Keyes and Gord Haidy had three goals apiece with Astles, Long and Kavanagh getting singletons for Spitfires biggest score of the seascn. Pierre Cadieux had two and loader and Taylor one apiece for the losers.

Hamilton Tigers, leaders of the senior loop with 17 straight victories, tackle the fourth-place Mohawks in Owen Sound in tonight's only game.

TWELVE GAMES WILL BE PLAYED IN THE BIG FOUR

Ottawa and Hamilton Will Play Sunday Dates With Alouettes in Montreal

Montreal, Jan. 21 (CP) — Another 12-game schedule will be played this year by the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union, it was decided at the annual meeting of the league here Saturday.

A three-man committee was appointed to draw up tentative dates, which will include Sunday games at Montreal. Ottawa Rough Riders and Hamilton Tigers agreed to play Alouettes on Sunday, but Toronto Argonauts refrained, as they did last year.

Representatives of the Big Four teams made no change in the rules. Five American imports again will be permitted on each team, including any who played last year, even if they remained in the country after the season ended in November.

Post-season football gossip last year had it that there was a possibility that a Big Six or a Big Eight League might operate this year through a link-up between the I.R.F.U. and the Ontario Rugby Football Union. However, it was learned that no applications were received and that there was no discussion on the matter.

"That's out for this season at least," said a spokesman. "It's too early to say whether any applications will be received before the next meeting."

Dr. J. J. O'Connor of Toronto ahd Joe Ryan of Montreal were appointed delegates to the Canadian Rugby Union meeting next month in Montreal.

As in 1946, the teams finishing first and second will meet in a sudden death game at Toronto for the Union title and the right to advance into the C.R.U. playdowns. Winners of the Big Four and the Ontario Rugby Football Union would decide where the Dominion semi-final would be played.

It was understood that the Union agreed to a proposal whereby each team would contribute $300 from their home games to a pool which would be used to help alleviate any financial difficulties encountered by any of the entrants.

J. D. (Doug) Chilman of Hamilton was elected President, succeeding Fred Porter of Toronto. E. K. (Eddie) Emerson of Ottawa was named First Vice President and D. Wes Brown of Ottawa was re-appointed Secretary-Treasurer. W. C. Foulds of Toronto was re-elected chairman of the Board of Officials.

Halifax, Jan. 21 (CP)—It may be blustery, cold and January, but sea-bred Nova Scotian yachtsmen even now are laying plans for the coming season, stellar event of which will be the Marblehead, Mass., to Halifax racing classic.

Born to the sea, and with the unbeatable Bluenose in mind, it is only natural that the small-time skippers of the part-time fleet of miniature racers should feel that Canada be well represented at the starting line of the 366-mile course.

At least two Halifax entries will be on the gun-line July 19 to race against the best their sea-going American neighbors can offer.

It will be the first post-war revival of the successful 1939 initial event, jointly sponsored by the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron, oldest in North America, and the Boston Yacht Club, oldest in New England.

Because of the long distance involved it is not expected that Canadian craft, except those from the Halifax clubs, will be entered in an effort to wrest the coveted cup from the present American holder, Tioga Too, owned by Harry and Pike Noyes of Boston. The sleek yawl did the course in 59 hours, 2.3 minutes, a mark whihch the "white-pants" sailors think can be shattered this season.

The only Dominion entry in the initial event—The Eskisoni—is expected to start once again along with the other Canadians.

Out to greet the American guests as they enter Halifax will be the Armdale Yacht Club fleet of Bluenose-design yachts. From afar off, the little craft may well appear to be the sunken Bluenose rising out of the fog.

For the man who laid the plans for the all-time racing holder—W. J. Roue—also laid the blueprints for her tiny namesake class.

P.G.A. Must Guarantee Appearance of Leaders If Tourneys Held

Charlotte, N.C., Jan. 21 (CP)—The Professional Golfers' Association today faced cancellation of thee quarters of its March tournament schedule unless it can guarantee appearances of the leading money-winning professionals.

Four $10,000 tournaments—Miami, Jacksonville, Greenboro N.C., and Charlotte—were listed by the P.G.A. for March.

Sponsors of the Charlotte affair announced its cancellation yesterday saying they had been unable to get the P.G.A. to assure them that top name players would participate.

The Greensboro Chamber of Commerce said it had telegraphed P.G.A. tournament manager Fred Corcoran for a guarantee that the leading pros would appear. And at Jacksonville, manager Frank Taylor, Jr., said a similar request had been made regarding the Jacksonville Open.

Both the Greensboro and Jacksonville sponsors said the tournaments would be cancelled unless the guarantees were obtained

They appeared to be most interested in Ben Hogan, tops in the play-for-pay field in 1946, Sam Snead, and Lloyd Mangrum.

Hogan recently announced he was cutting down his tournament play because of the strain of constant competition. Snead, defending Champion at Greensboro, has announced plans for an early spring trip to South Africa.

West leads a small heart. It is evidently a fourth best from a suit of four or five cards. When dummy hand spreads, you must plan your future plays. Do it here in slow motion.

In a bridge game, take your time at it. If opponents object to it, they are unethical. You are entitled to a sufficient opportunity for figuring out a safe method of operation.

First look for your cinch tricks. This will tell you how many tricks it will be necessary to develop. Your future plan is laid on the basis of the safest possible plan.

Here you see seven that are sure without losing control. They are the four clubs and the other three aces. You must find a way of gathering two more tricks before opponents can defeat you.

These two or more can be picked up after a finesse in diamonds or spades. Which will you try? The one that is least likely to kill your contract. In this case it will be the spade finesse.

This finesse may lose to east. If he has no more hearts to lead, you are safe. So, holdup your heart ace until the third round. East may be out of hearts by that time.

You have lost two heart tricks. Another trick may lose to east in the spade finesse. Even if he has another heart, you are not hurt. This means that west started with no more than four, too.

Planning in advance shows the makings of a good bridge player. Some do it faster than others. Some do it better. But those without any plan may have a hard time proving they are alive.

Car Dealers, Restaurateurs and Shoe Merchants Follow Wait and See Policy

By The Canadian Press

Restauateurs, used car dealers and shoe merchants across Canada tended today to follow a "wait and see" policy before acting on Prices Board authority to raise their prices up to a maximum of 10 per cent or 11 per cent in the case of men's shoes, a coast-to-coast check by The Canadian Press revealed.

Even in Ottawa—where the announcement was made Sunday—dealers felt they would rather have more information about the order before putting it into effect. Especially did this apply to hotel and restaurant owners who, in many places, said they would abide by their local associations' decisions at meetings to be called shortly.

Though in some places meals received a blanket nickel increase, elsewhere caterers felt competition would leave prices unchanged unless such supplies as meat, poultry and fish in turn became more expensive.

Used Car Prices Up

Used car dealers reacted immediately to boost prices, claiming they felt better fortified to combat what they alleged to be a continuing black market in used cars. Assured of receiving prices more in line with their black-market value, they expected citizens now would bring in vehicles for disposal and sale in the normal way. One dealer said that at the moment so few used cars were being brought in that "it really doesn't make much difference."

Shoe dealers were almost unanimous in their agreement that retail prices will remain unchanged until manufacturers' prices to them go up.

From Halifax to Victoria here are the reactions:

Halifax—Some restaurants increased prices below the new permitted maximum; others, respecting competition, retained old levels. Used car dealers expected prices to rise almost immediately. Shoe increases would be gradual. Dealers expected resumption of lines manufacturers had had to drop as uneconomical under ceilings.

Montreal—Most restaurants plan to take advantage of the new ceiling but saw it will be a couple of days before increases can become effective. One chail (Murrays) increased prices on all meals five cents. Shoe dealers said it was too soon for a reaction. Car dealers too, were uncertain.

Ottawa— Both restaurateurs and shoe dealers said price increases in their fields depend on whether supplies to them, too, go up. A shoe retailer said prices have already risen 10 per cent in the last two months. Car dealers thought the difference wouldn't be appreciable now, but would ultimately discourage the used car market when the business gets on its feet again.

Toronto—Restaurants generally raised table d'hote meal prices by the permitted 10 per cent, though one chain, with headquarters in the United States, said its prices will remain unchanged "unless head office orders an increase." A la carte prices were unchanged. No change was reflected in the shoe retail trade. Car dealers looked to citizens to bring more cars to market.

Sarnia — Restaurateurs plan a meeting to ensure increases are uniform.

Winnipeg—Some restaurants increased tariffs, but most await next Wednesday's meeting of the Manitoba section of the Canadian Restaurant Association. Shoe prices are "unlikely" to rise, but used cars are already going up.

Saskatoon—Prices have remained unaltered in all three fields, but changes are expected.

Regina—Restaurants expected to lift prices today. Shoe dealers said prices will go up only when new stocks come in. Car salesmen said they would "be glad to sell even at the old price ceilings; trade being at a standstill because of blocked roads.

Moose Jaw—Meals will increase as soon as new menus can be printed, but shoes will sell at present levels until new stocks come in. As no used cars are available that market will not be affected.

Medicine Hat—Though restaurants and shoe dealers sell at unchanged prices, used cars were upped 10 per cent. and used trucks 7 per cent.

Edmonton—Meals were unchanged, with only full course meals likely to be altered shortly. Shoe stores and used car markets held to previous prices.

Vancouver — No immediate changes. Some restaurant dealers may raise prices, but others apparently intend to continue competition at present prices. Car dealers expect an immediate increase.

Victoria—No changes, perhaps, because the new orders have not arrived. Car dealers say they won't make much difference anyway because they've few cars and can't compete with black market prices.

The Movie Column

By HELEN BANNERMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Frank Capra, the distinguished director whose latest film, "It's a Wonderful Life," has helped pep up the cinema season, has an answer back to make his first post-war picture the changes were only too apparent to him while the regular inhabitants were so used to them they didn't notice.

"The whole attitude of the people on the set was terribly confusing to me when I first came back," he said. "In the old days everybody, including extras and technicians, was enthusiastic about trying to make a good picture. Now there is almost no enthusiasm, and everybody from top to bottom seems listless and disinterested.

"Why? Because, I think, everything made money in wartime. People began to stop caring, because there was no premium on quality. Producers just read the list of grosses, smiled and went to the races. Show business in Hollywood turned into a shoe business."

Another shot in the arm to the industry will be the return of 30 to 40 top movie names who have been away in uniform. James Stewart, who stars in Capra's current picture, is one of these.

Story Troubles

With "Duel in The Sun" incurring the displeasure of both Roman Catholic and Protestant churches—Most Rev. John J. Cantwell, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Los Angeles described it as "morally offensive and spiritually depressing" — Arthur Hornblow, producer of "The Hucksters," has gone to great lengths to clean up his story before it reaches the cameras.

Clark Gable, who will play "The Hucksters" hero, flatly refused to appear in the screen version when he read the book. "The novel," he said, "is filthy and it isn't entertainment," but he changed his mind when he saw the changed shooting script.

AT THE CAPITOL — Harry James, Maureen O'Hara and Dick Haymes are co-starred in 20th. Century-Fox's Technicolor musical romance "Do You Love Me," which is now showing at the Capitol Theatre. The hit was directed by Gregory Ratoff and produced by Geo. Jessel. On the same program the first city showing hit "G. I. War Brides," the timely story of English war brides seeking happiness in this country.

Romance, Preferred

CHAPTER 11

Richard smiled. "I live with it, Renny, breakfast with it, and drive it to school in the morning. Not only beauty, my good man, but unlimited energy and ambition."

"Is Louise asleep?" Arlen asked.

Renny shook his head. "Louise had to have a mild nervous breakdown before she'd quit the place."

The essence of those days at Ocean City was recaptured in no time when she was alone with him. She was so conscious of his personality that she forgot her own self-consciousness and forgot that people were passing to and fro in the hotel dining room. Dinner was perfect. They did not dance because they had entirely too much to say and while she talked, seriously about Elissa's life and amusingly about her own mistakes at the business school, Renny looked at her with eyes that were dark and contemplative. While he talked, Arlen sat still and tense, trying to smother that half finished song in her heart which wanted to start again, and she looked more poised and regal in the stunning dress than she really was.

Love, she thought, hearing the soft melody of gypsy music, was young and it was not confined to small smug places. It had no patience with false sophistication and false glamour.

After the theatre they went to one of the better places to dance. Close to him, Arlen experienced sensations so deep and new that tears started in her eyes. Renny danced as he did everything else, with sure strong grace. When the room was dim, he put his face close and said, "You're lovely tonight, Arlen. Not the brown unhappy child in a blue bathing suit, but a gracious lady." When she said nothing because she would not trust her voice, he said again, "Gracious lady, my dear."

When they went back to the table, he lifted his glass and said, "A toast to you, Arlen."

"To what?" Arlen asked.

"To what you are looking for."

He did not say what he felt or thought, and he tried to find excuses for the keen edge of his happiness tonight by thinking it was because Arlen was young and lovely and he had been lonely and depressed. It had been such a long time since he had sat across a table from a girl, a long time since he had danced with pleasure. He lied to himself, knowing that since the night he had come back and she had come in, damp with rain and as lovely as an unexpected gift, he had been thinking about her in quite a different way from that in which he had thought of her at first. All that day he had anticipated tonight and, like Arlen, ridiculed himself because he knew that nothing could come of it except charming company and routine amusement.

Renny ridiculed himself further. He was not in love with her. He would not be in love with this girl who somehow seemed to offer a light through the desparation of his affairs. It was Christa he loved, Christa whom he could not forget, and Christa with whom he compared all women.

He said, "There's a restaurant that's a particular place of mine where I go late at night. Shall we go there, Arlen, and talk? Talk is impossible in this bedlam. It's not a very nice place, nor even very clean, but the beer is good and there probably won't be any one there."

He stopped his car before a basement restaurant in a bohemian neighborhood. The fog was still thick. People on the street were only silhouettes in the milky mist. The restaurant was deserted and the proprietor, a rotund little Italian, was about ready to close up shop.

Renny asked, "Louis, how about some breakfast? We've driven half across the city to come here."

By his gestures rather than his language they knew he was grateful and delighted. As Renny and Arlen sat down, they heard a great commotion in the kitchen and a loud splutter of Italian.

Renny said, lighting a cigarette, "You must come up to see Allison. She's been asking for you. She calls you the lady with the shiny hair. There aren't many blondes in our family and your hair caught her eye." He smiled. "It seems to catch the eye of other people, too."

"I'll take her walking some afternoon," said Arlen.

"And teach her to peer longingly into shop windows? I'm afraid that will be an hereditary trait with her. Christa...."

"Renny, don't avoid mentioning her. It—it would be so much better if you'd say what you think than to keep it inside of you."

"I wonder if you do know." He looked up, frowning. "One reason I never talked about her is that I never talked about women on on general principles. One of the things my mother taught me. But I'm afraid I can talk only bitterly about Christa. And I don't want to talk bitterly about Allison's mother."

"I've got no right to ask it, Renny, but is she coming back?"

"I want her to come back."

Arlen lowered her eyes as Louis moved clumsily about, serving their breakfasts.

"I want her to come back," he said slowly, "because now I'm not sure that I still love her. If I could see her, I would know."

"You mean," said Arlen, "that distance lends enchantment."

He laughed. "But no more of this to you. It's not fair. I was determined to be the dashing Galahad tonight taking out the loveliest girl in Manhattan. And you've made me proud, Arlen, very proud."

"I'd rather be with you than with any one else."

"Than Toby? I like Toby. I envy him that he can take only what he wants and let the other alone. You know," he said more seriously, "there are people who take only the flowers from life and let other people plant the sseeds and do all the work. Christa and Toby pick the flowers." He touched her hand. "Arlen, you and I don't look at life as something we have to conquer, as something we must bend our way, as something we must fight so that we can progress."

She smiled. "I think that life is an adventure, Renny, though not a reckless one. It's too big for me to fight, and success and fame are too shallow. I like to touch life rather than fight, it. I'd rather be near the root and sap than the branches. I like to pick the flowers but I love them more for the care and work I've put into them."

He thought, "Christa, Christa, do you hear what she is saying? You would shrug your shoulders and your strange eyes would believe it incredible that a woman of Arlen's beauty believes and means what she is saying. The suffering in bringing a child into the world would make her love it the more."

Dawn was breaking through the fog when Arlen and Renny came out of the little Italian restaurant. The air was heavy and cold. Figures on the street were more distinguishable now and they all seemed groping in the mist. One could not see more than one city block.

As Renny cautiously picked his way, Arlen said, "There's something I wish you'd do for me, Renny. There's a boy who hasn't any work, a friend of Elissa's. If I send him to you, will you try to place him?"

"Send him to me tomorrow."

"Tomorrow is today," said Arlen, "and today is Sunday."

"Monday, then. I'll find something for him to do."

"It will make Elissa happy."

"Is she in love with him?"

"She is going to be," said Arlen.

The mixture of emotions he had felt tonight made saying good night a little embarrassing. Should he take a paternal attitude toward this young woman, all beauty and warmth? He inwardly scoffed. It would be no paternal kiss he would give her.

It was she who put his turbulent thoughts and emotions once more on the plane of friendship. Her smile, he thought, looking at her in the half light of early dawn, was as if painted on. Her mouth was trembling. Why the bravado, he wondered.

Arlen gave him her hands. "You drank a toast tonight to what I was looking for," she said with courage in her voice. "I can't drink a toast now, Renny, but I hope that paradise lost will be paradise regained for you. Good night. Our evening—this evening has been very wonderful."

He would never know, driving blindly through the fog, that she had lain down across the silk coverlet and cried until it was quite light, because Christa's paradise regained would be hers lost. Through tear and foolish hopes lost last night, Arlen made her decision.

• • •

Louise was looking better than she had ever seen her and was playing the role of a beautiful convalescent surrounded by flowers and thoughtful notes from her friends when Arlen went to her one afternoon and drew a footstool up beside her chaise-longue.

"Louise, I've made up my mind to look for another position." And the look of surprise on Louise's face did not stop her." It isn't because I'm not happy here or because you haven't been wonderfully good to me. But there isn't enough here for me to do. Being with you has given me confidence in myself I should never have had otherwise, and Richard's sending me to school has equipped me to take a position in an office. I shall be glad to come here in the evening and write letters for you and look after your accounts."

"Arlen, my dear," said Louise in her most sympathetic tone, "you make it too simple for me to tell you what I have dreaded to tell you. My physician suggests that I go to Florida for a month and, of course, I shall not need a secretary then. These doctors! They know I'm perfectly well and yet I'm to go on a diet and not smoke or drink any more cocktails till goodness knows when! I don't see how I'm ever going to go through with it."

"I shall never forget how kind you've been," said Arlen. "I've been screwing up my courage for days to tell you. It seems so ungrateful to come here, live with you, and accept Richard's money, and then leave."

"Richard wants you to stay." said Louise. "It's entirely up to you, my dear. If you think you'll be happier in a little apartment of your own and making your own friends, then we shall not oppose it."

"I think Elissa and I shall live together."

"Splendid. I've forgiven Elissa, darling, but I don't think I deserve to be ignored. I've been very good to her, you know." She put her soft hand on Arlen's. "Promise me if you ever need money, you'll come to me. I'm going away until Christmas and on New Year's Eve I'm going to give a party here in the apartment and invite—everybody! If I take good care of myself and don't touch a cigarette until then, the doctors can't possibly object."

Arlen said with relief, "This has worked out so much better than I thought it would.

When Mary Albert came in, gushing with sympathy, Arlen went back to her own room and stood by the window watching a light snow fall on the roof. She breathed with relief and was a little amused that Richard and Louise were wondering how they could tell her they no longer needed her while she was wondering how to tell them she was going.

Reasons were many why this position, given to her practically as charity, was unsatisfactory. The neurotic rich women who were Louise's friends were the type for which she had only pity and scorn. No real friends were to be had in women like Mary Albert and Fanny Sanner, and Arlen felt that they considered her only a servant with privileges. Even if she were happy here, her salary would by no means keep her moderately well dressed in comparison with Louise.

But the reason that precipitated the abrupt resignation was Renny. She thought, "I could stay and build hopes in nothing except my optimism. I've got to break away from him completely. He wouldn't understand, and he'd be hurt—but I must. I love a man who day and night prays that Christa will come back."

She had finished business school and had nearly a hundred dollars. That would keep her a month. During the holiday rush she could surely find a position, and if she were efficient, perhaps it would become permanent.

She had no feeling of worlds to be conquered as Elissa had had. Arlen knew that all she wanted and would ever want was Renny's love. When she left Louise, she would not be stepping into freedom. Wherever she was, a part of her would be wondering where he was and wanting to be with him. Freedom! There was none for her, knowing that some where there was Renny, wanting Christa to come back.

Before she went to tell Elissa her plans, she wrote to her father. Cheerfully she told him of her intention to leave the Brandons, and frankly told him why. She knew that when Karen read the letter (she would read it and then pass it to her father) she would consider her more eccentric than ever. "Can you imagine it, George," she could hear Karen's voice, "she's leaving a soft job like that to work all day in an office?" And George Leeds, knowing that Arlen was her mother's daughter, would smile a smile of wonderment at the strange ways of women.

Arlen dressed again, putting on a dark red tunic frock and a short black fur jacket. Because Louise and Richard did not dine until late and she was afraid Elissa might go out, she told Louise she would get dinner in a restaurant.

LACK OF MOTIVE

The judgment said the evidence at the trial did not indicate that examination of the torso of John Dick showed any evidence of the cause of his death.

It said that a caution given on a charge of vagrancy "cannot be admitted in the trial of the accused for an entirely different offence."

"It seems to me an abuse of the process of criminal law to use the purely formal charge of a trifling offence, upon which there is no real intention to proceed, for obtaining from the accused person incriminating evidence. . .and obtaining statements not in regard to that charge but in relation to a more serious and altogether different offence.

"In my opinion such of these statements admitted here as were taken without the giving of a preliminary caution or any statements taken before the laying of the charge of murder were improperly admitted in evidence as voluntary statements."

Turning to the other point of argument upon which the appeal was based—that concerning Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow's charge to the jury—the judgment said there was "material error".

Integrated Housing Scheme Will Be Investigated By Committee of City Council

City Council will again investigate the possibilities of integrated housing as a means to alleviate the current housing shortage in the city, it was decided Monday evening at the regular meeting of council.

Following a half hour talk on the part of Kenneth Smith, of Oshawa, representing Scofield Ltd., a financial firm interested in the construction of integrated housing units, council appointed a committee of Aldermen Armstrong, Duffy, Lazenby, Clarke, Allin, City Engineer Charles Mott, the Comptroller and Mayor Follwell to secure full information regarding the housing scheme; to decide on a suitable location; interview contracting firms interested and get full particulars regarding the installation of city services.

Mr. Smith pointed out that under the integrated housing scheme there is no subsidization by the city and the ultimate owner of the home pays the full allocation of taxes. Integrated housing had first been fostered in Oshawa in 1945. Today many cities in Ontario have adopted the plan, including Peterborough which will this year construct 125 units.

Explaining the integrated scheme Mr. Smith told the council that such housing units are built by contractors to sell at a fixed selling price. They are first offered for sale to veterans but if they remain unsold they will be offered to the general public. Contractors get the same material priorities as Wartime Housing Ltd. Units are moderate-priced homes with full basement and built to give satisfaction to the owner. They are paid for over a 20 to 25 year period.

Indicating that approximately 75 units were needed in Belleville, Mr. Smith stated the first requirement would be satisfactory land areas. Integrated housing could not prove successful where excavation costs were prohibitive and not over $200 to $250 could be paid for lots in developed areas. Lots would have to be in groups of ten or over to make a worthwhile project for the builder.

Assistance and co-operation of the city would be required in obtaining the required building lots, and in providing the necessary city services. The contractor purchased the lot, constructed and sold the house. In obtaining the necessary priorities and in other details the contractor was assisted by the agency which charged a fee for its services.

"There is not in any of the statements of the appellant an admission that she murdered John Dick in the sense that by any act of her own she caused him any physical injury".

Money Was Returned

Referring to the statement in which Mrs. Dick mentioned a $200 payment purportedly made to bring about the slaying of her husband, the judgment said that that plan, according to the statement, was abandoned and the money returned by Bohozuk to the appellant.

"However shocking an arrangement such as the appellant's statements set forth would be, it is almost incredible that the jury believed the statement and the trial judge himself earlier in his charge had spoken of it in terms of incredulity."

The judgment held that the evidence and argument of counsel called for a more "definite instruction" than was given to the jury by the trial judge.

"Nothing could be more foreign to the purposes of the administration of justice nor more destructive of the liberty of the subject than to permit any such conception of its duty," said the judgment with reference to what it called the "preconceived notions" that a court might take.

"Whether the appellant is innocent or guilty of the crime with which she is charged is a matter to be determined by a jury. The duty of this court is to see that there is a fair trial."

The reasons for judgment came five days before Mrs. Dick was scheduled to go on trial for the second time in Hamilton on a charge of murder in the slaying of John Dick, whose dismembered body was found on Hamilton Mountain last March.

Police Recover Car Before Owner Reports Loss

When Sirson Burns, age 18, Brockville, next takes a car without the owner's consent in all probability he will choose one which is better suited for highway travel than the one which he stole Monday night at Marysville.

Having but little success in his attempts to hitch-hike to Toronto, Burns stole a car owned by John Plews of Lonsdale. He got as far as Belleville and missed the turn to Toronto only to be stopped at the corner of Victoria avenue by Constable Balyx for driving with only one headlight and no tail light. Brakes on the car were also useless, it was reported.

As Burns could produce no driver's permit nor ownership card, he was brought to the station where checking revealed the car had been stolen.

Three hours after Burns had been apprehended the owner of the stolen car reported the incident to police, only to discover the car had already been recovered.

One other car was reported stolen in the city during the night as George Meads, 12 Queen street missed his car from where he had parked it near Christ Church. The auto was later recovered by Trenton police just east of Trenton.

FORMER FRENCH

The indictment charged Gestapo records found in Marseilles proved that Hardy informed the Germans of the secret meeting of the "Iron Resistance at Lyons, causing arrest of many of his comrades, who were later shot or deported to Germany."

Among those captured in the raid was Jean Moulin, Gen. de Gaulle's representative in France.

The prosecution charged that Hardy broke away from the Germans near the villa. "The Germans showed no great desire to pursue him, and afterwards Hardy wounded himself with a pistol to pretend the Germans had shot him," the indictment said.

Vehemently denying this, Hardy told the court: "Why should I betray my friends to save my own skin and afterwards put a bullet through it?"

Hardy maintained he was rearrested by the Vichy police, handed over to the Germans, and after weeks of torture escaped through the window of a Lyons hospital after breaking a padlock open with a nail file.

Gestapo documents were quoted by the prosecution with the object of proving that Hardy and four other resistance members were "double agents" (working for both sides).

"That's a lie," Hardy shouted. "A pack of lies made up by French traitors."

Facing the six jurymen, his face white with emotion, Hardy cried: "I sacrificed my health, my family and my money for my country, and would gladly give my life for her tomorrow, but I swear on all that is sacred I am not a traitor."

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 21 (CP)—A wide range of issues continued to slip narrowly through the early session of the Toronto Stock Exchange today to pile up in aggregate minor losses for all groups of the noon index.

Golds were the heaviest losers on a dull market with some pivotal issues dropping off fairly sharply as profit-taking from yesterday's rise took hold. Junior golds moved narrowly downward.

Industrials changed in fractions with the majority of changes downward.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 21 —(AP)— Stock market leaders generally remained in slightly lower ground today although pressure was slack and assorted issues managed to contest the shift with mild success.

Declines of fractions to a point or so were reduced in most cases near the fourth hour.

Canadian issues were slightly easier at mid-day. Dome Mines, C. P. R. and Hiram Walker registered losses of 1-8.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 21 — (CP) — Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today; Hull $22 delivered, Barrie $21.75 delivered.

BOMBERS, FLYERS DEFEAT PICTON AND BLOOMFIELD

Trenton Team Stretches Win Streak to Five by Downing Sky Chiefs 5 to 1

On ice that was more conducive to water polo than hockey, Trenton Flyers maintained their undefeated record and stretched their string of wins to five straight at the expense of the Bloomfield Sky Chiefs beating them 5-1 and Mountain View Bombers were pushed close to the wire and had to go all out to sink the Picton Combines 3-2 in closely - fought Intermediate "B" games at the Memorial Arena last night.

The ice was soggy and wet and the type of hockey dished up to a smaller-than-usual crowd of fans was of the hit-and-run variety. Any successful attempts at carrying the puck were conspicuous by their absence and there was more of a golfing trend to the pastime with a dash of basketball thrown in.

The breaks, more than team or individual efficiency spelled victory for one team or the other and there was much slashing and banging at a puck that was strictly inclined to stick to the ice.

Trenton 5; Bloomfield 1

Minus their star defenceman, Kitty Abbott, out of the game with a fractured wrist, and with a new goalkeeper, Walt. Fraser, Well-known Picton and Belleville athlete in the nets the Bloomfield Sky Chiefs put up a great battle against the undefeated Trenton Flyers and Lady Luck.

Both were definitely against the valiant gang from across the bay and although the better polish and passing play of the Flyers stood them in good stead, the Chiefs should have had at least three goals on their night's performance.

At that the fast-travelling front lines of the starry Flyers were held well in check by defending plays of the Chiefs and the score does not by any means indicate the difference between the teams on the night's play.

Martell opened the scoring for Flyers at the three-minute mark on a ganging attack batting in the puck after he had chased it up the ice. Fifteen minutes later Norris, who was one of the better players of the evening took a pass from the same player and sank the rubber to put the Flyers two in the lead. Hallett got an assist on the play.

Nicky Sargent paved the way for the Flyers' third goal at the halfway mark in the second period giving Miller a perfect golfing pass and that player made no mistake. The Hallett-Martell-Norris line flashed into the scoring limelight four minutes later with the former ramming home the rubber with assists being given his line-mates.

The Chiefs drove hard in the third period to whittle down the score and carried a driving offensive to the Flyers. Corke finally got the Chiefs' lone marker after eight minutes of play with assists going to Norris and Pike. Nicky Sargent teamed up with Middleton seven minutes later to dunk the fifth goal for the Flyers.

SUMMARY

Trenton—Martell	3:17
Trenton—Norris (Martell, Hallett)	17:30
Penalties: none.
2nd Period—
Trenton—Miller (Sargent)	10:30
Trenton—Hallett (Martell, Norris)	14.22
Penalties: none.
3rd Period—
Bloomfield—Corke (Morris, Pike)	8:53
Trenton—Sargent (Middleton)	15:36

Officials: Finnegan, Picton; St. Louis, Belleville.

Mountain View Bombers 3, Picton 2.

The first game between Picton Combines and the Mountain View Bombers was a forerunner of the hit-and-run shinny type of hockey that featured both games. Like the Flyers-Bloomfield crew Bombers and Picton could do little else with the puck than bang it in the general direction of the net and go in with the wings and a prayer.

Picton, who appear to be good mud-horses, with a few of the breaks, should have defeated the Bomber crew for on occasions they clearly outskated and outplayed the opposition on the heavy ice. At that the game was anybody's up to the last whistle with the Picton crew driving hard for the equalizer and a desperate Bomber gang going all out to keep the Pictonians from scoring.

The Combines tallied the first goal at the five-minute mark in the first period when Lavender took Dyer's rolling pass to dunk the rubber behind the Bomber goalie. The Picton crew sensing their advantage rushed to the attack and had the edge on territorial play in the first heat.

Bombers on Top.

Bombers however, flashed back to the offensive in the second period and Dennie on assists from Doberty and Rutherford, drove home the tying goal with Casselman taking Sherman's pass two minutes later to put Bombers one up.

Lavender tied the score early in the third period when he plowed in close to the Bomber net and took Bovay's pass to knot the count. Bomber's Dennie scored his second goal of the night a few minutes later dunking the rubber on passes from Doberty and Elliott for what proved to be the winning goal. Picton drove hard for the remainder of the game but were outlucked and "outbreaked." They rushed the Bomber net but were held off by faulty shooting and good goalkeeping. They were deserving of at least two goals in the period.

Summary.

1st Period
Picton, Lavender (Dyer)	5.50
Penalties — Oullette.
2nd Period

SERVICE CLUBS GIVEN PRAISE

Toronto, Jan. 21 —(CP)—Service clubs such as the Kinsmen, Rotary, Lions and Kiwanis organizations yesterday received a large share of the praise from the Ontario Minor Hockey Association for the group's growth from 78 teams to an estimated registration eventually this season of some 525 clubs.

Many of the teams entered in the O.M.H.A. are sponsored by these service clubs in communities throughout the province, a statement said. The club's interest in minor hockey coupled with that shown by minor hockey or athletic associations have helped in the "sensational" expansion off the O.M.H.A.

The statement said glowing examples of the success met by organizations interested in minor sport are the Oshawa Minor Hockey Association, Whitby M.H.A., Hamilton M.H.A., and Stratford M.H.A. Among the cities which have formed similar associations ths season are Peterborough and Brantford

Special emphasis has been placed in the Bantam series this year and already, with the entering date extended, the number of teams entered has increased from 36 last year to 53 at this date.

NO LIVES LOST

Astoria, Ore., Jan. 21 (AP)—The coast guard station here reported a radio check with the sinking Drexel Victory indicated no lives were lost last night as a cutter and a pilot's schooner worked in the fog to remove the crew.

W.W. Grubbs, handling the radio detail at the station, said the Columbia River pilot's schooner Columbia, had reached the ship and began taking off the crew. The cuttter triumph arrived later and another cutter was expected.

The ship was sinking at the stern and the decks awash. A crew of 49 men was aboard when the Yokohama-bound ship left Portland early yesterday.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Nothing small was ever any part of Babe Ruth. This includes his bulk. "The year I hit those 60 home runs," he told Grantland Rice, "I weighed 251 pounds." That was his top weight.

• • •

When the Babe entered a New York hospital some time ago, an entire nation was shocked to hear that he was seriously ill. This feeling of sadness and sorrow over his illness ran from New York to Los Angeles and San Francisco to Miami, from Texas to Maine.

• • •

In his day and time, the Babe has signed more autographs than any other member of the human race. No one can say how many thousands of baseballs he has signed. The demand became so great that he finally had to seek some form of self-protection. Rice was to pick him up one night at a hotel to leave for a radio broadcast.

• • •

"Have the taxi waiting in front of the door with the taxi door open," Babe said. He ran through the hotel lobby and jumped into the cab. Even then, four people tried to crash the taxi for his signature.

• • •

"They tear my clothes off," he said simply and without any malice. "They run me crazy. But I wouldn't be happy if they didn't do it."

• • •

One night during a World's Series in Chicago, when Babe was playing, Rice dropped by his room. He was locked in. "I don't dare go to the dining room," he said. "I'd be torn to pieces."

"What are you doing tonight?" Rice asked. This was the night before the first game.

• • •

"Keep it quiet," he growled. "Don't tell anybody. But I'm driving to the other side of Chicago to bring a baseball to a sick kid. His dad said it might help him get well. Print that and I'll hang a bat on your neck."

• • •

Cops Were His Friends.

There were times when he might be a trifle careless about one-way streets or stop-and-go signs.

One morning he started the wrong way on a one-way street. A big cop, rushing across the street, called out:

"Say, you! This is a one-way street."

"I'm only driving one way, you bum," Babe roared back.

The indignant officer rushed up to the door of the car.

"Oh, hello, Babe," he said. "I didn't know it was you. Drive any way you want to."

• • •

That night, in a hurry to get home, the Babe ignored a few lights.

When Rice suggested we might as well take a look at a few of these red-and-green signs, the Babe laughed.

"I had a funny experience along here last night," he said. "The car stopped and I couldn't make it go. A big cop came up and asked me what the trouble was.

"I think you're drunk," he said. I called him a liar and took a punch at him.

" 'Now, I know you're drunk,' the cop said. 'Move over.' I did, and he got in and drove me home."

• • •

Babe, in the past, has done too many good turns for policemen at various benefits. This policeman didn't want to have anything happen to the Babe.

To how many other people in the United States, including any President, could this happen?

• • •

He was a canny golfer, also. One day Rice was playing with Babe and Dizzy Dean. These two had at least a dozen bets. Before they started, Babe went over to Pat Dean, Dizzy's wife, and suggested that she follow us. "Diz is lifting his head and rushing his swing," he said to Pat. "You ought to follow him and tell him about his faults on every shot."

• • •

Pat did. By the fourth hole, Diz couldn't get an 8, much less a par. He finally sent Mrs. home, but the damage already been done. Diz lost every bet.

• • •

"Everybody knows you, Babe," Rice said one day on the way to a golf course.

"Why not," Babe replied, "with a mush like I've got?"

Babe will always be the No. 1 top man of all sport—in skill, ability and the pleasure and thrills he has given millions of people.

Winning twice and tieing once in four games during the past week brought Toronto Maple Leafs' total up to 53 points and left them in first place in the National Hockey League standings with an 8-point margin over the second-place Montreal Canadiens who have 45 points. Boston Bruins are in the third slot with 36 points, followed by New York Rangers with 32. Detroit Red Wings with 29 and Chicago Black Hawks with 26 points.

• • •

Maurice Richard continued to head the Individual Scoring Race as the hard-driving Montreal Canadiens' right-winger scored three goals during the week and brought his goal production total to 26, and along with 17 assists it gave him a point total of 43. Ted Kennedy of Toronto retained the second position among the top scorers in the loop with 18 goals and 19 assists for 37 points. Billy Taylor, Detroit Red Wing centre garnered himself five points during the week to bring his point total to 36, and put him in third place, two points ahead of Milt Schmidt of the Boston Bruins.

• • •

Richard's 26 goals placed him at the top of the goal-getting department while Taylor with 23 assists has the greatest number of assists.

• • •

Thrice winner of the Vezina Trophy as the outstanding goalkeeper in the N.H.L., Bill Durnan seems determined to capture the trophy a fourth time. The raven-thatched Montreal Canadiens' netminder has allowed 77 goals to be scored on him in 36 games.

Gus Mortson, rookie defenceman of the Toronto Maple Leafs has taken over the role of "Bad Man" in the League with a total of 78 minutes spent in the "cooler." Johnny Mariucci, of Chicago Black Hawks, is next with 75 minutes in penalties.

• • •

Stan Pratt, who made his debut as a National Hockey League referee in Boston January 19th is an Ottawa product. Pratt was born in the Canadian Capital on March 14, 1913, and learned his hockey in his native city.

• • •

Before graduating to the Ottawa Senators Seniors, Pratt played junior hockey for the Ottawa Shamrocks and Ottawa Promrises. He spent nine seasons as a defenceman for the Senators. In 1936-37 he journeyed across the Ottawa River to line-up with the Hull Seniors. This Hull team advanced as far as the Eastern Canadian finals before bowing out to Sudbury, who went on to win the Allan Cup.

• • •

Pratt spent his first season as a hockey referee working in an Ottawa league that played their games outdoors. The next three seasons he handled the junior hockey games in Ottawa. Last season was Pratt's busiest year as a hockey official. Besides working throughout the regular season as a referee in the Quebec Senior Hockey League, he handled the Eastern Canadian Senior finals and Eastern Canadian Junior finals. He also refereed in the thrilling Memorial Cup finals between Winnipeg Monarchs and Toronto St. Michael's.

• • •

Previous to his refereeing assignment in Boston on January 19th., Stan had worked as a linesman in the N.H.L. this season.

Pratt is a burly official, packing 220 pounds on a 5 foot, 10 inch frame. He is a member of the Ottawa Fire Department, is married and the father of two boys and two girls.

Sports Shorts from Britain

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 21 (CP(— If a football player wants to boot a ball with his bare toes, there isn't a law in the land that says he can't. After all, they're his toes and anybody who disapproves hasn't a bare leg to stand on.

Word got around a couple of months ago that a Worcestershire player who bared his sole because his feet chafed was frowned upon by opposing players. The story didn't say whether the barefoot player was an added menace, but his opponents promptly protested to the referee.

The ref, who hadn't heard of such a thing before, asked his association. The association, as puzzled as anybody, referred the case to the county football association. It eventually hit the highest soccer tribunal in the country—the Football Association which, after much head scratching and rule-book studying, gave its decision to a waiting football world and a puzzled Worcestershire player.

The verdict: go right ahead.

G. A. L. Freeman of London, fired from his job as an assistant surveyor by a large London store 17 years ago, bought and sold Manton, the largest racehorse training establishment in Britain, in 17 days. His profit, said to be "very substantial" was not divulged.

"That proved to be the turning point of my career," he said. "After about six months' unemployment, I obtained work as a builder's agent and began dabbling in property in my spare time. My first deal was on a £1,000 ($4,000) house on which I made £5."

During the day he toured building sites and at night acquired and sold property. Shortly before the outbreak of war he threw up his business as a builder's agent and opened a small office as a dealer in property

Manton was opened in 1870 and four Derby winners have been trained there. At present it is occupied by Joe Lawson who is training horses for Lord Astor and other well-known owners.

MRS. ZAHARIAS ONE TO BEAT

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 21 — (AP) — Mrs. Babe Didrikson Zaharias, a pre-tournament favorite, looked more than ever like the one to beat as the field of leading feminine golfers today began the second round of the 72-hole Tampa Women's open tournament.

Playing through a heavy rain, the National amateur champion toured the difficult 6,117-yard Palma Ceia course in 77, two over par, yesterday.

Two strokes behind was Patty Berg, the Open title-holder, in a three-way tie with Kathryn Hemphill, Greensboro, N.C., pro., and Laddie Irwin of Glen Ridge, N.J., an amateur.

Top English golfers Dai Rees and Charles Ward will meet two outstanding American pros—Ben Hogan and Jimy Demaret—in a International golf exhibition at San Diego, Cal., today.

Dancing On Ice at Varsity Rink

Toronto, Jan. 21. (CP)—Dancing on ice—something new as far as University of Toronto students are concerned—will be introduced here tonight. "Dancers" were advised to wear overshoes. Sponsored by the Athletic Department, official said they did not think any fancy show would be necessary.

My Rheumatic Pains Have Practically Left Me"

Here is a saline treatment for the relief of rheumatic pains, which helped this Liverpool woman so much, that she wrote this letter of thanks:—

"For years I have suffered from rheumatic pains. My general health was gradually failing too, when I was given the tip to try Kruschen Salts. I got a small bottle and after taking it for about a week, the pain, which had often kept me awake at night, gradually subsided. Now—when I am on my second bottle—my health has improved and the rheumatic pain is negligible."—Mrs. H. H.—Liverpool

After obtaining relief from the first bottle of Kruschen, you can imagine how hopefully Mrs. H. H. started on the second. So follow her example if rheumatic pains are bothering you. Start taking the Kruschen saline treatment at once and continue until you give it a fair chance to help you. Like Mrs. H. H. you should soon feel improvement, because Kruschen is a combination of several mineral salts which aid the organs of elimination and in this way leads toward improvement in health and ease from rheumatic pains. Thousands have been benefited by taking Kruschen. Give it a trial in your own case.

Kruschen is 25c. and 75c. at all drug stores.

LONE BANDIT CAPTURED AFTER BANK ROBBERY

Two Slavic States Want Big Slices Of Germany, Austria

Poland Wants New German Border, Yugoslavia Damages

London, Jan. 22 (AP).—Poland and Yugoslavia demanded huge settlements of land and money from war-flattened ermany and Austria today.

Memoranda were prepared by the two Slavic states for consideration by deputies of the Four-Power Foreign Ministers Council drafting separate German and Austrian treaties.

Poland asked for a new German frontier running from west of Schweinemunde on the Baltic down the west banks of the Oder and Neisse rivers to Czechoslovakia.

Yugoslavia demanded sufficient reparations from Austria to settle war damages estimated at more than $11,000,000,000.

Yugoslav claims to more than 1,000 square miles of Austrian territory were registered previously before the deputies.

The exact amount of Austrian reparations sought was not precisely stated, but a long memorandum detailed vast war damages for which the Yugoslavs said they were entitled to compensation.

Held Responsible

Austria was declared especially responsible for much of the damage and for a terroristic occupation in which tens of thousands of Yugoslavs were slain as hostages, deported as slave laborers and perished in concentration camps.

In addition to the enlarged territorial demand, the Polish memorandum said the Moscow-backed republic wanted restitution of property seized by the Nazis from Polish nationals in Germany and Austria.

It included demands for:

Complete democratization of Germany and Austria.

Prohibition of all irredentist movements and organizations inside the two countries.

Extradition of war criminals of all nationalities who collaborated with the Nazis either in Germany or Austria.

Effective continuance of the current denazification program.

WomanFire Victim Failing to Save Her Aged Sister

Stratford, Jan. 22 —(CP)—Anastasia Writt, 74, badly burned last night in a fire in her home which cost the life of her 76-year-old sister, Agnes, died today in hospital.

Miss Writt suffered the burns when trying to rescue her sister, on the floor of whose bedroom she was found by firemen. Their brother, Thomas, aged 67, who also tried to rescue his sister, escaped unhurt though driven by smoke and flames after throwing some of the burning bedding out the window.

ASK FOR WITHDRAWALS

Athens, Jan. 22 (AP)—An authorative source said today that Belgrade has asked Greece to withdraw her military attache and has advised the Greek government that Yugoslavia is withdrawing her military attache from Greece.

It was learned here at the same time that Belgrade also has suggested that the United States recall her military attache in the Yugoslav capital.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, January 22 (CP) — Synopsis: Cold weather prevails throughout Eastern Canada and the United States this monring. On Tuesday, gale force winds, snowflurries and steadily falling temperatures were general throughout Ontario. Overnight, skies have cleared and the winds have diminished in most parts of the province. In Northern Ontario temperatures have dropped to between 10 and 20 below zero, and in Southern Ontario to near zero. Except for occasional snowflurries in the lee of the Great Lakes, clear and decidedly cold weather is expected in most parts of the province.

Small Boy Happy To Return Home; Oblivious of Fate

Calgary, Jan. 22 (CP). — The silence of a Holy Cross hospital ward here was interrupted one day last week by the voice of a small boy singing 'I love life. I'm lucky. I'm going back to the darned old family."

The singer was four-year-old Alan MacPhail of Nelson, B.C., who has been in hospital since Nov. 22 suffering from Hodgkins disease for which no cure is known.

His mother said the boy is oblivious to the danger the cancerous disease presents to his life. She was told last week that the boy was free to go home—Calgary doctors said they could do no more for him. He was given his last radium treatment last Friday.

Mrs. MacPhail, with the approval of doctors here, has decided to take her son to United States for specialized care. She said that when she has sufficient money she plans to fly to the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn.

Hodgkins disease, or malignant granuloma, is a disease involving the lymph glands. It is characterized by enlargement of the glands, anaemia and terminal fever. In Calgary the boy was given extreme care and transfusions to compensate for lost blood when hemorrhages occurred.

U.S. Soldier Guilty of Rape

Peiping, Jan. 22 —(AP)—United States Marine Cpl. William G. Pierson was convicted by a court martial today of raping a 19-year-old Chinese co-ed, but he will not learn the penalty for some time.

After announcing its verdict, the seven-man court adjourned to deliberate on the sentence. It will not be announced until passed upon by Maj.-Gen. Samuel L. Howard, commandant of United States Marines in North China. Life imprisonment is the maximum.

Pierson, 23, who had sat stoically through four days of testimony and argument but did not testify, blanched at the verdict.

When Lt.-Col. Thomas B. Hurhes, who headed the court, instructed military police to remove the prisoner Pierson dashed headlong from the room, mumbling to himself, as guards followed him out.

Shen Chung, Peiping National University student who testified Pierson raped her twice on Christmas Eve, was not in court.

Both the conviction and sentence are subject to review.

WINDSOR COUNCIL TO INQUIRE INTO UNEMPLOYMENT

Mayor Arthur Reaume States 6,840 Persons Including 2,100 Veterans Unemployed

Windsor, Jan. 22 (CP)—City council will hold an emergency meeting during the weekend with Hon. Paul Martin, Minister of National Health and Welfare, and Don F. Brown, M.P. for Essex West, to discuss federal plans for meeting increasing unemployment here.

Mayor Arthur J. Reaume drew council's attention to the fact that 6,840 persons now are unemployed here. Of this number, he said, 2,100 are veterans.

He said he had already instructed R. J. Desmarais, city engineer, and other municipal officials to prepare a program of works which can be undertaken to provide employment However, he said it would be impossible for the city of Windsor to underwrite the cost of unemployment aid alone.

"We now are arriving at a time when these people are asking for help, food, rent and clothing," said Mayor Reaume. "I suspect conditions are going to get worse before they get better."

Employable persons, the Mayor said, are ineligible for relief under the terms of the provincial grants-in-aid and any help given them will be wholly a burden upon the municipality.

"If we have to stand the entire cost it will be a large item," he warned. "There are places other than Windsor affected. Hamilton and Windsor, however, are by far the hardest hit. We must explain to Ottawa that in time of war people were brought in from far distant.

Ottawa Has Obligation

"I feel Ottawa has an obligation at least to the men who were in the armed services," the Mayor said.

Within a week's time, he said, he would call a special meeting to go into the question of unemployment. "We shall either find them jobs or we are going to keep them," he declared.

Controller Gordon B. Ellis said the federal authorities had been "confused" on the situation. Only recently it was announced in Ottawa there was a shortage of manpower and then almost overnight, it was announced that there was unemployment.

Controller Ellis also believed the Ontario government should be invited to help. He said he had represented the city at a meeting with Premier George Drew recently at which the Premier said he had no plans for unemployment.

Controller Tom Brophey said other communities which were facing similar conditions should be interested in taking the matter before federal authorities.

TRUCK TANK EXPLODES

Hamilton, Jan. 22 (CP).—When a ten-ton truck hit a tree and its gas tank exploded on the Queen Elizabeth Way between Bronte and Burlington early today, Robt. T. Jones, 20, of Preston, escaped unhurt in a daring leap from the blazing cab. The tractor, trailer and load were destroyed in the fire which still burned hours after the accident.

Sudden Cold Snap Grips Ontario, Weatherman Says It'll be Short

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario lay in the grip of a sharp cold spell today, which weather experts promised would be short. Relief, in the form of moderating temperatures and abated snow flurries, is forecast for Thursday.

Toronto meteorologists today described the province as "covered by a cold polar air mass, bringing with it generally clear but cold weather for the rest of today and Thursday. There are scattered snow flurries along the 'lee side' of Georgian Bay and Lake Huron, thinning out to the south but extending down as far as Toronto."

Reports from cities and towns supported the experts' summary, with northern communities reporting it clear and cold, while the middle and southern centres told of the same cold but added snow.

White River was the coldest spot in Ontario last night with a below-zero temperature of 34 degrees. Next coldest was Muskoka with 22 below, and, rising through the thermometer. North Bay with 19 below and Ottawa with 12 below. Toronto's temperature this morning was eight degrees above, which forecasters expected to rise to 12 during the day.

Toronto's weather tomorrow is expected to continue clear and sunny, warming up to an anticipated maximum of 23 degrees, with corresponding moderation throughout the province.

North Bay reported roads open, while Timmins, though cold, was bothered slightly by drifting snow. Highways have been clear since last night.

Pretty Student Escapes Unharmed From Kidnapper

By RICHARD CUSHING

Lodi, Calif., Jan. 22 — (AP) — Kidnapped Alice Dean Devine, popular and pretty 17-year-old Lodi high school student, was back home and unharmed today after the most harrowing 26 hours of her life. Police authorities hunted over the entire United States west coast for a man who tried to collect $10,000 in ransom and gave up in fright.

The 165-pound girl athlete broke out of her bonds in a tourist camp near Sacramento yesterday afternoon while the kidnapper was away, and telephoned to relatives in Sacramento.

State police broadcast an all-points alarm for the arrest of a man they said had used the names of Everett Wescott Stiles of Portland, Ore., and William (Bill) Giles, identifying himself as an agent for an eastern publishing house.

Alice was under police guard until last night when she and her father were stationed across the street from a Sacramento bar in a futile effort to capture her abductor. The kidnapper was expected but failed to appear at the bar to collect the ransom.

The father, John Edward Devine, wealthy Lodi grape grower and vice-president of the American Fruit Growers Association, had been told in a note the night before to be at the bar at 8 p.m. last night with $10,000 in $20 and $1,000 bills if he wished to see his daughter again.

Waited Hour After Deadline

After waiting nearly an hour beyond the ransom deadline, police and investigation agents decided the man had been frightened away by newspaper stories, and the girl and her father were returned home in a state highway patrol automobile.

The girl was whisked into the back door of the Devine home just as her mother, Mrs. Margaret Devine, told a group of newspapermen she had heard nothing of her daughter's whereabouts.

Since Saturday the suspect had posed here as a feature writer in a survey of high school life.

Giving the name of Giles, the man had even arranged with Alice Dean's parents for pictures. He sent a taxicab to take her to a studio appointment and it was only after the photos were made that his own automobile was in evidence.

Alice was placed in the rear seat of the automobile and Giles jumped in after her "and threatening her with a revolver and a knife. He then bound her with heavy twine, gagged and blindfolded her and transported her to Sacramento," police said.

The girl was placed in the luggage compartment of the automobile when the abductor drove into the tourist camp. He placed the girl on the bed of a cabin he rented and stayed until noon yesterday when he left. She worked loose about 4:30 p.m.

Sacramento, Calif., Jan. 22 (AP)—Sgt. F. M. Long of the California highway patrol passed on today Alice Dean Devine's story of how she was taken by a smooth-talking man from nearby Lodi to Sacramento, held 18 hours in an Auto Court and then made her escape:

"We left the Lodi photo studio about 7:20 p.m. Monday night after I had my pictures taken" (the man, known as E. William Giles in Lodi but registered in the Auto Court as E. W. Styles or Stiles, had told her he wanted the pictures for use in a magazine.)

"He was going to take me home in his car.

"I got in the back seat. Then he said he wanted to look at some maps and climbed into the back seat.

"I started to turn on the light, but he said he didn't need a light. Then he grabbed me and tried to tie me up.

"I struggled with him. We had a terrible struggle.

"Both of us fell out of the car onto the pavement, and we were still fighting.

"Then I saw he had a knife with a long, curved blade and I saw he had a gun He said, 'I don't want to hurt you with this,' but I was scared and got back in the car.

"Then he tied me up and drove out of town... when we got out of town he stopped and put me in the trunk and then we rode around quite a while.

Backed Car in Garage

"When the car stopped.... he backed the car up into the garage. Then he locked the doors and opened the trunk.

"He led me into that cabin, cabin five, at the Auto Court.

"He made me get into bed. I had all my clothes on, but I kicked off my shoes . he tied my hands to the bed with rope. It was clothesline rope. He put adhesive tape over my mouth.

"That's the way we spent the night. I was lying there sleeping a little once in a while. He sat up all night on a chair watching me."

"Then today (yesterday) I was still tied to the bed.

"He spent most of the time in the car listening to radio news broadcasts.

"At about 4:15 p.m. he said 'can I trust you? Will you behave while I make a phone call?' I nodded my head, yes.

"He took his suit case and all of his things and wiped the doorknobs and left.

"After about half an hour I managed to get my hands free. I went to the office and called Mrs. Talbert (Mrs. Eugene Talbert of Sacramento, a relative) and she came out and got me. I took the rope with me, the one he tied me up with."

STEADILY IMPROVING

Copenhagen, Jan. 22 (Reuters)—The condition of 76-year-old King Christian of Denmark, who has been suffering from a lung disorder, was stated today to be steadily improving.

He got out of bed for a short time yesterday.

LEVI KRING, LUMBERMAN FRONTENAC WARDEN

Kingston, Jan. 22 (CP).—Levi Kring, of Plevna, lumberman, is the new warden of Frontenac County. He was elected at the inaugural meeting of 1947 County Council yesterday. He has been a member of council for the last 12 years. He succeeds Thomas H. Dixon of Sunbury.

INDIAN ASSEMBLY IS UNANIMOUS ON NEHRU MOTION

Resolution Requests India Be Proclaimed As an Independent Sovereign Republic

New Delhi, Jan. 22 (AP)—Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru's resolution recommending that India be proclaimed an independent, sovereign republic was adopted today by unanimous standing vote of the Indian constituent assembly.

Nehru, leader of the Hindu-dominated All-India Congress Party and leading minister of India's interim government, concluded lengthy debate on the resolution with an address in which he again lamented the fact that the Moslem League was boycotting the assembly.

Among delegates voting for the resolution was Dr B. R. Ambedkar, leader of the Untouchables Federation of India, who last month supported proposals to delay voting on the Nehru resolution. At that time, he declared "this resolution of Nehru's is bound to have the result of keeping the Moslem League out" of the assembly.

Moslem League Absent

Nehru said today that although he regretted the Moslem League's absence, "no work will be held up in the future, whether anyone comes or not."

"Six weeks have passed since I moved this resolution in this House and during this period there has been plenty of opportunity for those who wanted to come," he said. "Unfortunately they have not yet decided to come and they still hover in a state of indecision.

"I regret that all I can say is this: that we shall welcome them at any future time they may come but it should be made quite clear without the possibility of any misunderstanding that no work will be held up in the future whether anyone comes or not.

"There has been waiting enough

... How long are we to wait? This resolution will not feed the hungry and starving but it brings promise of many things — the promise of freedom, food and opportunity for all."

Debate Resumed After Month

The debate was resumed Monday after an assembly recess of nearly one month.

Nehru declared it was "impossible, inconceivable and undesirable" to think otherwise than of an Indian republic.

"For a long time past we have taken the pledge on India's 'Independence Day' (Jan. 26) that India must sever her connection with Great Britain, because that connection has become the emblem of British domination," Nehru said.

"We stand on the threshold of freedom. We no not wish to carry the trail of hostility with us against any country : . .

Held Up Hamilton Bank Using Tool To Imitate Shotgun

Austin Craft, Brantford, Nabbed by Two Citizens

Hamilton, Jan. 22 —(CP)—Austin Craft, 44, of Brantford, was arrested today shortly after he is alleged to have held up the Bank of Toronto Branch, James Street South, with a hospital bed crank, simulating a shotgun.

Two citizens stopped Craft at the corner of Main and James streets.

It is alleged Craft entered the bank shortly after noon, carrying the bed crank wrapped in paper, with one end protruding, and to have ordered Assistant Manager William Walwin to go into the teller's cage and turn over all the money he had.

Taking his time, Mr. Walwin handed the bandit five packages of bills, each containing $100. Fleeing from the bank, the man was pursued by Mr. Walwin and another bank employee, L. L. Spalding, armed with revolvers. They attempted several times to fire at him, but noon-day crowds made it impossible.

The man crossed James Street and fled north with Detective William Stamp, who was nearby in a parked squad car, also in pursuit. At the corner of Main and James streets he was pounced upon by two men who were waiting for a bus and held him until Detective Stamp arrived.

The two citizens were Russell Woods and Clifford LeSauvage, both of Hamilton.

A robbery charge was laid against Craft.

Liner Not Blamed For Cruiser Loss

London, Jan. 22 (Reuters). — The 80,000-ton liner Queen Mary was free from blame in a wartime collision in which the Queen Mary cut the escorting cruiser Curacao in two, the Admiralty Court decided today.

The court dismissed with costs the £1,500,000 action brought by Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty against the Cunard White Star Line, owners of the Queen Mary. The judge said the collision was solely due to the negligence of those in the Curacao.

The collision—off the coast of Donegal in October, 1942—occurred in broad daylight in fine, clear weather, the judge said. Contrary to some reports, there was no submarine or other alarm in operation.

"It is abundantly clear that the collision was one which ought never to have been permitted to happen," he declared.

The damage sought included life claims for 338 officers and men lost when the Curacao sank.

Manning in Ottawa Declines To Discuss Aspects of Visit

Ottawa, Jan. 22 (CP).—Premier Manning of Alberta arrived in Ottawa today for new financial talks with the Federal Government but declined to discuss any aspects of his visit prior to a meeting with Finance Minister Abbott.

The premier, who was accompanied by Deputy Provincial Treasurer Percival, said he expected to be in the capital "for the remainder of this week".

He did not know when he would first be seeing Mr. Abbott —"I haven't an appointment yet".

Asked if the Dominion had made any new offers to Alberta in the way of a financial agreement and what the position of his Province was, Mr. Manning said simply, "Too much has been written already" about the Dominion-Provincial financial talks.

"I don't want to discuss the situation at all until I talk with Federal officials."

The Alberta premier's train was more than three hours late arriving in the capital.

Two months ago Alberta turned down as unsatisfactory the proposals the Dominion was then offering as the basis of a new taxation agreement. On his meeting with Mr. Abbott, Mr. Manning will be presented with the new subsidy payment formula which has already been given to New Brunswick, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Nova Scotia, British Columbia and Prince Edward Island.

Details of the formula have not yet been made public, but Mr. Abbott has said they would be disclosed following his meeting with Mr. Manning.

However, one Federal source said the announcement of the details might not come until later in the week, when Ontario and Quebec have been notified by mail of the new proposals.

Newspaper reports that the new formula would mean an additional $22,500,000 in revenue to the provinces have been neither confirmed nor denied by Federal authorities. The reports said the additional sum would raise subsidy payments to a total of $204,000,000. Under the formula outlined in the budget last June, minimum payments to the provinces were fixed at $181,400,000 annually. As estimated for 1947 they would total $198,200,000.

The payments would be made to the provinces in return for their giving the Dominion almost exclusive use of the personal income, corporation and inheritance tax fields for five years.

ARCHIE A. HARVIE ELECTED WARDEN HASTINGS COUNTY

Reeve of Mayo Township Thanks Members for the Honor Conferred on Him

Veteran county councillor and head of his township for the past eleven years, Reeve Archie A. Harvie, of Mayo Township, was elected warden of Hastings County at the opening session of County Council on Tuesday in Shire Hall. Warden Harvie succeeds former warden James A. Nickle of Madoc Township who retired from municipal life this year.

The new warden was elected on motion presented to council by Reeve Charles Rush, Hungerford and Deputy Reeve Ben Bleecker of Sidney. The election was unanimous.

Warden Harvie was escorted to the chair by Reeve Rush and Reeve W. H. Davis, Bangor, Wicklow and McClure, and formally sworn into office by County Clerk Erie Denyes. He was then invested in his robes and took his seat amid loud applause.

Expresses Thanks

In his inaugural address to council Warden Harvie expressed his sincere thanks and appreciation for the great honor bestowed on him by his fellow councillors.

"I extend a welcome," he said, "to you all and especially the new members who are sitting in council for the first time. I hope you find your associations with us most pleasant and I ask you to feel free to take part in the deliberations, discussions and debates as they come up through the year."

Referring to the county, the new warden said that it was a foregone conclusion that Hastings' physical position has led her to the rank of second to none in the Province of Ontario in transportation facilities and the tourist trade.

Blessed with Good Roads

"In the south", he said, "Hastings was fairly well blessed with railways running east and west and north and south with a waterway which can accommodate ocean-going ships. In the north is a paradise for tourists with direct connections with the great Algonquin Park, not forgetting the tourist possibilities within the county in that district.

It was clearly to the advantage of the county as a whole and the council's duty to do all in its power to arouse the interest of the Department of Highways in completing the "missing link" into Highway No. 62, Warden Harvie pointed out. "To the south it will bring more trade — to the north, more tourists." he said.

City and District News

"GRANDMOTHER" OF ALL WOLVES KILLED

What is believed to be the "grandmother" of all the wolves in Tyendinaga was shot and killed the other day by Russell Glass of the seventh concession of that township.

The wolf, a grey, grizzled female, was heavy with whelp when Glass' bullet brought her down. Her running mate, a large male, was wounded by another bullet from Glass' rifle but succeeded in making its getaway despite the fact it left a trail of blood.

The female was an old veteran of the woods and fences of Tyendinaga, and from appearances had borne many litters of young. The pair had been attacking sheep of the district. Glass will collect township and county bounties.

DISTRICT MANAGER OF COMPANY HONORED

Kingston district manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company Mr. A. E. Ironside was guest of honor last week at a banquet and social evening held at Kingston when members of his staff honored him on his 30th anniversary of his appointment with the company.

Assistant manager of the Belleville office, Mr. Leo P. Quinn, read the address on behalf of the entire staff of the district, while Mr. Aldters, assistant manager at the Kingston office, presented Mr. Ironside with a silver tray, suitably engraved in memory of the occasion. District representatives and their wives from Tweed, Trenton, Frankford, Picton, Belleville, Napanee and Gananoque attended the banquet and social evening.

CANADIAN RED CROSS TO OPEN CLINIC

Morley P. Duff, president of the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross Society, received a wire today that this evening the first free blood plasma clinic to be operated by the Red Cross in Canada will be opened in Vancouver, B.C. The opening will be put on the air at 9:30 p.m. over the CBC network and will continue to 9:45 p.m. This free blood bank which will assist hospitals in Canada will be one of the chief projects of the Red Cross this year. Many clinics will be opened across Canada.

COMMISSION CONDUCTS ROUTINE BUSINESS

Only routine business was transacted at the regular meeting of the Public Utilities Commission held Tuesday afternoon at the Hydro office. Mayor Follwell was informed some lighting units had arrived and would be placed on Dufferin Avenue for inspection and if they proved satisfactory would be placed on Bay Bridge Road. It was decided to continue the lighting to the main span of the bridge if proper arrangements could be made with the Highway Department.

Water is being sold to rural residents at a rate of $1 for 500 gallons.

Suffers Burns As Bedding Takes Fire From Heater

Mrs. Joseph Hart, 62 Benjamin Street, suffered burns about seven o'clock this morning from an electric heater near the bed in which she was resting. She had been up for breakfast with Mr. Hart and after he had left for work had returned to bed.

Some time after in some manner the bedding caught fire and set fire to Mrs. Hart's clothing. She screamed for help and her son, Garnett, who was still at home, hurried to her help, put out the fire and called Dr. E. M. MacDonald, who had Mrs. Hart removed to the hospital. Her burns are to the hand and leg.

Total Contagious Diseases Down From Last Year.

With a total of 61 cases reported the number of cases of contagious diseases in the city during 1946 was 23 below that of the year previous, according to the annual report of Mr. H. Belsey, sanitary inspector, which has been submitted to city council.

Most common contagious disease reported was mumps of which there were 26 cases, with measles being a close second at 21 individual cases. There were 11 cases of chicken pox, while there was one case each of diphtheria, smallpox and whooping cough.

Water samples taken weekly from the municipal water supply were all in class "A," while one public well was not favorable but was fit for use after being cleaned by the Department of Public Works. Ice samples taken before cutting began were classified A and B.

Favorable reports from each of the seven milk dairies were received throughout the year with monthly bacteriological tests being made monthly at the hospital laboratory under Dr. J. B. McKay. Mr. O. V. Ball of the Provincial Department of Health, made inspection of the dairies three times during the year.

Restaurants had been inspected frequently during the year and also restrooms at service stations, and theatres. Cold storage plants and laundries were also inspected.

The tourist camp and Victoria Park had been kept in good condition while the park swimming pool had been in operation from July to the end of August, the water being chlorinated each day.

Bacteriological tests of glassware and eating utensils in restaurants were made, and all show some improvements over the previous year.

The garbage situation was stated to have been kept under fairly good control with only a few complaints, these being mostly from the business section where there should be more frequent collections.

Trent River Inn Burns, Loss $5,000

Peterborough, Jan. 22 —(CP)—Fire fanned by high wind early today destroyed the 12-room Maple Inn summer resort at Trent River, five miles south of Havelock. Trent River is about 30 miles northeast of Peterborough. Loss was estimated at $5,000.

The owners, Mr. and Mrs. James Cook, fled in their night clothes from the flaming building. They were the only occupants of the inn which in summer accommodated more than 50 guests. It has served Canadian and American tourists for 40 years.

The fire is believed to have started near the kitchen range. Flames spread swiftly from the rear part of the building through the entire structure and raged for more than three hours. A village bucket brigade of 25 men fought a losing battle.

"There isn't a two-by-four remaining upright," a villager said later. "The place burned to the ground."

New Car Output Best Since 1941

Ottawa, Jan. 22 (CP).—Glittering new cars rolled off Canadian assembly lines last year at the greatest rate since the last regular models were produced in 1941.

With final figures for the year available, the Bureau of Statistics reported today 92,456 were turned out compared with 96,603 in 1941; 12,236 in 1942 and none in 1943 or 1944. Production in 1945 totalled only 1,868.

Output of trucks fell sharply from a record of 216,057 units for the armed forces in 1941 to 79,794 in 1946. The figures exceeded by a wide margin, however, the highest peacetime production levels, comparing with 47,057 in 1939 and 54,417 in 1937.

Of December's output of 9,125 cars and 8,223 commercial vehicles, 2,590 and 3,903 respectively, were exported.

City Engineer Claims 8 Plows Needed for Work

With a total of 53.48 miles of sidewalks in the city it would take eight snowplows working in four different zones to adequately take care of sidewalk snowplowing, members of the city council were told by City Engineer Charles Mott in a report on sidewalk snow cleaning.

At the present time the city has but three sidewalk snowplows which, have proven entirely inadequate to cope with the heavy falls of snow received thus far this winter.

"Taking everything into consideration, these machines can only operate on sidewalk snowplowing at the rate of two miles per hour to give satisfaction," stated the city engineer in explanation as to the reason the department got so far behind during the heavy snow. "With three machines it is impossible to cover our 54 miles of sidewalks in less than 12 hours."

"It does not take very long for snow to become packed down on the sidewalks by pedestrian traffic before the machines can get to the street and in order to clean the 54 miles of walk before this happens, I estimate the city requires eight machines.

Divided Into Zones.

For purposes of illustration Mr. Mott divided the city into four different zones for sidewalk cleaning. One zone would be east of the river and south of Victoria Ave. to the city limits in which it was recommended that three machines should operate. The second zone would be north of Victoria Avenue and east to the city limits, in which two machines would operate.

The third zone would be south of Moira and west of the river with two machines operating, and the fourth zone north of Moira and west of the river to the city limits with one snowplow operating.

The comparative operating efficiency of the two different types of machines owned by the city was noted by the city engineer. The city has two jeeps and one heavy narrow-gauge tractor, each with a one-way snowplow attached. The city also has a V-type plow.

On many streets there are snow banks over two feet high on each side of the walks and from experience it has been seen that the one-way plows will not push additional snow from the walks over these banks. The V-type plow attached to one of the jeeps is now being tried out.

Favors V-Type Plow.

"I think that the V-type plow will do the job more satisfactorily," continued the city engineer. "We have found that the jeep can be manoeuvred quickly and easily and has plenty of power and traction with the four-wheel drive. The heavy narrow-gauge tractor also has plenty of power and traction and is more adaptable to places that cannot be handled by the jeep."

In conclusion Mr. Mott reiterated that sidewalk snow removal in the city was still in the experimental stage, and he suggested that citizens willing to do so should be encouraged to shovel snow from the sidewalks in front of their premises for the remainder of the winter.

In the meantime the Public Works Department would study conditions and carry on experiments with the equipment now on hand in order to obtain more information as to which type of equipment is best suited for snow plowing and to ascertain for what other purposes the department could use the equipment throughout the entire year.

Cafe Owners Increase Prices Of Their Meals

Pork and lamb chops which have disappeared from menus in local restaurants will again be available as the result of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board permitting restaurateurs to increase prices up to ten percent.

Result of a meeting of members of the local branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association which was held in the city on Tuesday afternoon, it was decided there would be a general increase of five cents for meals up to 50 cents, while on most meals over 60 cents the 10 percent increase will be effective.

"It means that on the more expensive meals restaurant operators will be going into the odd cent business," stated Mr. George DeVuyst, president of the local branch of the association.

"In other words it means that meals which formerly cost 70 cents in the future will cost 77 cents."

All hot sandwiches will be increased five cents and the former 35 cent full course meals will disappear. However there will be no increase on cold pork or beef items, nor on salads. The price increase on the more expensive meals is not expected to be general in the city, but will be up to the individual operator.

James A. Moore

James A. Moore, former reeve of Elzevir township who retired this year after 35 years continuous service as a county councillor. The familiar face of Mr. Moore was missed for the first time at the opening session of council at Shire Hall on Tuesday.

Rawdon Council Duly Inaugurated

Inaugural meeting of the Rawdon township council was held last week with the following members having duly signed their declaration of office: Reeve, J. W. Morrison; Deputy Reeve, Wilfred Spencer; councillors, Edward Bateman, Gordon Bailey and Verney Heath.

Several by-laws were passed appointed W. J. Barlow as clerk; Ewart S. Bailey as treasurer; Volney Richardson as auditor; Percy Ray as school attendance officer; Ernest Sarles as health officer, and Robert Scarlett as assessor.

The clerk was instructed to write the Department of Highways regarding the traffic census taken at the intersection in Springbrook in respect to the placing of a caution light.

Evelyn Bailey was named caretaker of the town hall and Mr. Robert Cranston as caretaker of the cenotaph. The Rawdon Hockey Club was given a grant of $25 from the township, while membership fee of $5 to the Ontario Good Roads Association, and membership fee of $5 to the Ontario Rural Municipalities Association, were ordered paid.

Standing Committees Of Hastings Council

R.C.M.P. Musical Ride Next Year

Ottawa, Jan. 22 (CP).—Commissioner S. T. Wood of the R.C.M.P. said today the famous pre-war musical ride of mountie horsemen at horse shows and other exhibitions would be revived as soon as the manpower problems of the force are solved.

Training for the ride will start with the return of horsemanship as part of the training curriculum for the R.C.M.P. recruit. Commissioner Wood thought at least a year would elapse before the flow of recruits—the force is nearing the 300-mark in its quest for 1,000 new men—would be enough to warrant reopening of the riding schools.

The ride has been seen by Ottawa, New York, San Francisco, Calgary and other audiences in the past.

Board of Health Report:

350 Children Given Immunization Treatments at V.O.N. Baby Clinic

That Belleville parents are appreciative of the value of preventative measures insofar as disease is concerned is shown by their response to the "Belleville Immunization Week" held last fall when a total of 350 children were given complete immunization at the Well Baby Clinic conducted by the Victorian Order of Nurses.

In addition 1,600 children were given "booster" doses by Dr. G. S. Cronk, medical health officer. The booster dose is for those children who have been immunized previously but not within the past three years.

According to the annual report of the Board of Health chairman, Dr. Jack Marshall, to the city council this is the largest number of children receiving immunization for diphtheria and whooping cough in any one year in the history of the city. Besides the above figures many children received the treatment from their family physician and with the exact number not being obtained.

Urged to Act.

"Any parents who failed to take advantage of this opportunity to protect their children should be strongly urged to consult their family physician," stated Dr. Marshall in his report. "With the preventative measures at our disposal no child should die from smallpox, diphtheria, whooping couph or scarlet fever, and by the co-operation of parents these diseases can be practically wiped out."

"Belleville Immunization Week should be an annual campaign against these diseases and our slogan should be 'Don't Wait for Fate—Be Wise and Immunize'."

Tribute to the Victorian Order of Nurses for their assistance in raising the standard of health in the city was paid by the health board chairman. He referred to their new department commenced during the year by which all births are registered and within a week from the time of dismissal from hospital the V.O.N. calls to make sure that adequate care is being received.

Assists at Schools

In addition the V.O.N. had aided the school nurse at immunization clinics in the schools, had operated the Well-Baby clinic at which both medical and dental supervision and home nursing care instruction is given.

All of this work would fall under the head of Public Health Nursing if Belleville and the county of Hastings had a health unit. According to Dr. Marshall it would be impossible to conduct the present health services in the city without the aid of the V.O.N. Starting early in 1947, the V.O.N. will be giving nursing care to the children at St. Michael's Academy.

The proposed construction of an incinerator was highly commended by the board chairman who stated that it would now be possible to clean up the shore line and cover present dumps with clean fill.

Projects Approved

Among the projects highly recommended by the board of health chairman in his report was the inauguration of a county health unit: the construction of a sewage plant and the completion of the Moira River survey to ensure a steady flow of water.

Daily garbage collection from restaurants and hotels and places of business, which have an excess amount, was also urged as was the compulsory installation of filters in smoke stacks. Two by-laws pertaining to eating establishment and to plumbing were urged completed.

A list of city streets and sections of streets on which there are no water mains was included in the report with a recommendation that something be done to provide water in those areas. "A typhoid epidemic could cost the city a great deal more than supplying water to those areas," warned the health board chairman in conclusion.

Salvation Army Citadel Extensively Damaged by Water During Blaze

Extensive water damage to the basement of the Salvation Army Citadel on Pinnacle Street resulted when shortly after ten o'clock this morning fire broke out in the west end of the building beneath the platform on the main floor of the structure.

Firemen answered the alarm turned in by a passerby who noticed smoke emerging from the structure and quickly running several lines of hose were successful in holding the fire damage to a minimum.

Water soaking through the floor of the first storey into the basement caused most of the damage to the structure as the basement ceiling was thoroughly soaked and two inches of water rose in the basement.

Believed to have started as the result of a short circuit in the electrical switchbox beneath the platform, the fire was confined entirely to this area.

Band instruments belonging to members of the Salvation Army Band, which were stored on the Citadel platform were damaged by water as were pianos in the main auditorium and also in the basement.

Dense smoke considerably hampered firemen in their efforts to get at the seat of the flames while below-zero temperature during the night was reported to have made one fire hydrant in the vicinity inoperative.

Every piece of equipment owned by the department was called to the scene of the fire by Fire Chief William Lynch who with Assistant Fire Chief Gerald Vance directed fire fighting operations.

Melrose Home And New Garage Destroyed by Fire

Melrose — Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Kingston sustained a severe loss when their buildings, a large house and new garage, were destroyed by fire last week. The fire, caused by overheated pipes, started in the upstairs of the home and although it had gained considerable headway when observed, nearby neighbors were alarmed in time to save the downstairs furnishings as well as valuable machinery from the garage. A quantity of used rubber was consumed which added greatly to the intensity of the flames and smoke, the latter causing damage to the interior of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sullivan's home directly across the road. The community extends its sympathy to these unfortunate families. Mr. and Mrs. Kingston and children are now staying with Mrs. Kingston's mother on the fourth line where they were able to take their furniture.

Point Traverse

Wolf Believed Roaming In South Marysburgh

Point Traverse, Jan. 22—It is the opinion of Point Traverse hunters that a large brush wolf is roaming in South Marysburgh township. The animal is said to have been tracked over a large area in this vicinity, and its eerie howls have been arousing residents from peaceful sleep.

In 1943 efforts were made by local hunters to wipe out wolves which were destroying farmers' sheep in the townships of South Marysburgh and Athol. Two of a pack of wolves were killed in December of that year, netting the hunters a township bounty of $25, a county bounty of $25, and a provincial bounty of $25 for each wolf destroyed.

The township of South Marysburgh paid out over $1,000 to farmers in sheep claims in 1943.

SUDDEN COLD

London and St. Thomas, reported moderating weather after a one-inch snowfall accompanied by winds and all highways open, though ice made road surfaces dangerous. There were some accidents, including one six-car collision.

There was more snow in the Woodstock area and a "howling blizzard" to the north, in Stratford. Woodstock's two-inch snowfall drifted in places to a depth of 18 inches, but roads remained open, while Stratford's four inches made highway travel very "heavy". A Canadian National Railways train was delayed four hours at Port Elgin before plows could clear the tracks.

Guelph reported it had been hit by the "worst blizzard of the winter" but though side roads were blocked, main-line bus and train services were running on time.

Windsor's only complaint was that today's temperature of four above was the coldest this winter.

Several cars are reported ditched near Chatham, where glare ice formed on the highway and necessitated sanding crews being sent out. No one was injured.

High winds in the Kitchener area so effectively drifted snow over the highways that the little village of Linwood, to the northwest, is isolated. Last night was described as 'the stormiest night of the winter" and the thermometer dropped to four degrees above zero.

At Niagara Falls the winter's second ice-bridge was swept away by high waters last night, and a third began to form immediately. It is already larger than either of the preceding two, is unbroken between the new Rainbow traffic bridge and the base of the Horseshoe Falls, and is reported to be 35 feet wide in many places.

A golden eagle believed living on Navy Island took a ride on an ice cake in the Niagara river this morning, and left its perch just where the rapids begin, about 300 yards above the Horseshoe Falls.

McINTOSH (MAC.) FOSTER (Moira-Edmonton)

McIntosh (Mac.) Foster, who was well known in this district in his early life, died in Edmonton, Alberta, on Saturday, Jan. 4th. He was in failing health for some time

The late Mr. Foster was born 82 years ago at Moira, Huntingdon township, and was a son of the late James Foster and his wife the late Hannah Wood. When a young man he went to Western Canada and took up land near Tisdale, Sask. After farming there for some years, he moved to Edmonton and carried on business there for a considerable time. Old friends at Moira and elsewhere will regret to learn of his death.

Surviving him are his wife and several sons and daughters; one sister, Mrs. Margaret Salisbury, Tweed, and two brothers, Mr. Harry Foster of Demorestville, and Mr. Walter Foster of Vancouver, B.C.

LATE MRS. MARGARET ROACH

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret (Marsh) Roach, wife of Mr. Patrick Roach, 25 Alexander street, was held from her late residence Wednesday morning to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father J. F. Carley.

Entombment took place at Napanee.

The bearers were J. T. Craighead, David Keith, Maurice Connell, Bertram McMurray, Frank Doyle and J. V. C. Truaisch.

IN MEMORIAM

ARGENT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, William Argent, who passed away on January 19th., 1944.

His smiling way and pleasant face
Are a pleasure to recall,
He had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.
Some day we hope to meet him,
Some day, we know not when,
To clasp his hand in a better land,
Never to part again.

—Ever remembered by his dear wife and sons and daughters.

COUNTRY DOCTOR

The Doctor who chooses a country career. .. In truth is a hero who serves. .. With seldom if ever a thought that he'll hear. .. The greater acclaim he deserves. When children are stricken how often there's found. .. A Mother who waits for the dawn. ..And anxiously watches the snow covered ground. .. When night and the darkness have gone. Devotion to duty is ever his creed. .. He toils 'till the danger is past. .. His errands of mercy are many indeed. .. Unmindful of Winter's cruel blast. 'Course once in a lifetime quintuplets are born. .. And then he may taste of renown. .. But thousands of others grow weary and worn. .. Content in a small Country Town.

RUPTURED

READ THIS MAN'S EXPERIENCE:

R.R. No. 6, Picton, Ont.

J. L. Armstrong, Esq.,
Specialist, Ottawa, Ont.
Dear Sir.

For some time past it has been my intention to write you in appreciation of what your appliance has done for me.

Ruptured in early childhood, cause unknown, the hernia eventually descended into the scrotum, and at times caused me considerable inconvenience, pain and anxiety, in later years greatly interfering with my work. Upon reaching manhood I wore trusses for several years but they could not hold my rupture. Your patented appliance being highly recommended, I had you adjust one. It fitted perfectly, held securely and was very comfortable to wear. IT CAUSED A COMPLETE CURE OF THAT LONG-STANDING RUPTURE IN LESS THAN SEVEN MONTHS. I have not worn it or any other support for over 10 years now and there is not any sign of rupture whatever. As I was ruptured for over 25 years, one can readily appreciate what a cure has meant to me. I am now 45 years of age, still actively engaged in farming.

I do strongly recommend your patented appliance to any who are ruptured. I know of others who have worn it with entire satisfaction. You may use this letter if you wish to.

Yours faithfully,
ERASTUS JESSUP.

Bank Installs Protective System

A new hold-up alarm system, which has been devised by the Bank of Montreal, in conjunction with a protective agency, is now being installed in all the bank's branches across the country, and the bank's local office here has already been provided with this added protection.

The first to use a system of this type, the Bank of Montreal is meeting with the fullest co-operation of police departments across the country. Deemed by police as "most commendable" and worthy of the "fullest co-operation", this system is designed to combat the wave of bank hold-ups that has been sweeping the country in recent months. It is based on the latest ideas in protection and makes use of the most up-to-date equipment. At a number of points arrangements have been made with other financial institutions for mutual protection.

Henry N. Becker, manager of the Belleville branch, has expressed his satisfaction at the peace of mind which the new protective arrangement affords and says that he is glad to have this added protection for his office.

Snowdrifts Block Food and Fuel Shipments in Sask.

Regina, Jan. 22. (CP)—Slowly moderating temperatures spread over Southern Saskatchewan today but they brought little solace to railway officials faced with the problem of clearing snow-blocked lines and alleviating threatened food and fuel shortages in snowbound towns and villages.

Although the last flakes in a series of blizzards fell a week ago branch lines still remained buried under drifts, one of them an estimated 28 feet high. One town has been snowbound since Jan. 6 and officials said the present blockade was unprecedented in railway history in the history in the southern end of the province.

Goodwater, 20 miles south of Weyburn, toward which the last train puffed its way 16 days ago, was worried over its food and fuel supply.

Supplies are piling up in Weyburn warehouses for other towns, including Bengough and Ceylon, where the last train arrived Jan. 10. The Regina-Radville line has been blocked since Saturday.

Highways also are badly blocked in places but officials said this was not unusual at this time of year. Only three buses have left Regina since Jan. 13 and those reached Yorkton, 100 miles northeast of here.

A food shortage was averted at Gravelbourg, in South-Central Saskatchewan, Saturday when two engines pushed a snowplow to clear the way for the first train in five days.

Protest Japanese Operating Cannery

Vancouver, Jan. 21 (CP)—Published reports that British Columbia Japanese are seeking to organize a $40,000 Japanese-occidental cannery at Lillooet, B.C. brought strong protests form Federal and Provincial government representatives and from the Canadian Legion today.

The report which appeared in the Vancouver Sun, said that a representative of Japanese living in the Lillooet area is en route to Vancouver to interview Labor officials regarding the possible establishment of the cannery.

Yesterday officials of the Japanese division of the Department of Labor here said they had no information regarding the reported Japanese move to establish a cannery at Lillooet.

Howard Green, conservative member of Parliament for Vancouver South, said "I'm very much against it still. It they're permitted they will undoubtedly come back here although the federal cabinet seems to be planning a policy of dispersal. Certainly they would'nt be allowed to get back in the fishing industry."

A. C. Hope Fort Langley, B.C. Coalition representative in the B. C. Legislature, said "They shouldn't be allowed back for the time being anyway—they (the federal cabinet) ought to carry on indefinitely with the 100-mile security belt regulations."

Opposition to the proposed return of the Japanese was also voiced by Jack Henderson, provincial president of the Canadian Legion, who said his organization reiterated its stand against the movement of Japanese to Pacific coastal areas. "We don't stand for their deportation, but we think they should be barred from the coast," he said.

Disabled Civilian Air Vets and Dependents Entitled to Pensions

Ottawa, Jan. 21 (CP).—Probably through ignorance of a statutory right, not a single veteran or widow of a veteran of the civilian air crews which delivered wartime planes across the seas for the R.A.F. Transport and Ferry Commands has received a pension five months after such pensions became law.

On the last day of August, 1946, parliament passed "an act respecting civilian war pensions and allowances," embracing merchant seamen and salt water fishermen, auxiliary service personnel, overseas fire-fighters, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, air raid precaution workers, voluntary aid detachments, overseas welfare workers and the civilian air crews. At the end of December, 107 disability and 408 death awards to widows and dependents had been authorized by the Veterans' Department as justified rewards for wartime loss.

None of them affected the R.A.F. commands, whose 293 Canadians saw 77 of their number killed on service, a death toll greater than 25 per cent. Among their deaths were those of men shot down in unarmed aircraft being flown into Africa or New Guinea.

The act provides a pension of $600 a year for a totally-disabled person plus $240 for a wife and $120 apiece for dependent children. The rates slim down from there, depending on the degree of disability. A widow receives $480 and $120 for a child.

In most cases, application should be made to the Department of Veterans' Affairs within a year after the act came into force or after death, whichever is the later.

Departmental officials advised all potentially eligible persons to file applications as soon as possible.

AID FRANKLIN'S KIN

Suffering from a heart ailment, and without funds for proper treatment, Franklin B. Huntington, 71, great-great-great grandson of Benjamin Franklin, hears good news as he props himself up in his New York rooming house bedroom. The Poor Richard Club of Philadelphia has arranged to have him flown to a Florida hospital and various Franklin societies have come to his assistance.

ARCHIE A. HARVIE

"I need not add," he went on, "that the county, provincial and other roads and county properties will be looked after in the usual creditable manner. You are respectfully requested to pay particular attention to the auditors' report which will be submitted for your consideration. This council will endeavor as far as is practical, to keep expenses down to a minimum."

"On behalf of this council may I say that I am glad to see the returned veterans of this county adjusting themselves so well to civilian life and I feel that if there is anything we can do to assist them it is our duty as a council to see that it is done."

Asked to be Patient

"I ask you gentlemen," the warden concluded, "to be patient with me this year for my duties are much different to those of the fine men who have gone on before me.

"Had I been following such men as Reeve Rush on my right or Reeve Davis on my left, it would have been easy, but" he added, amid the uproarious laughter of his council, "it has been my lot to follow the 'Rev.' James Nickle."

The warden was referring to a typographical error which appeared in a district paper last year and which called Warden James Nickle the "Rev." instead of "Reeve".

The newly elected warden was born in Fitzroy Township near Arnprior, a son of Mrs. Annie Harvie now in her 92nd year and the late Robert Harvie. He came with his parents at an early age to McArthur's Mills, where he now resides, retired, and went to school there while his father conducted a flourishing lumber and sawmill business.

Followed Blacksmith Trade

In his early years, after leaving school, Warden Harvie turned to the blacksmithing trade which he followed for a number of years and then went into general merchandising, operating a store at Gilmour for 22 years. Then he sold his business and acquired a similar one at Herman, in Hastings County. The late Mrs. Harvie passed away four years ago and the warden then sold his business and retired to his former home in McArthur's Mills.

He has one son, Robert, who was overseas with the armed forces for four years and who at present is associated with the Ontario Department of Forestry at Denbigh. Two daughters are Mrs. Frank Slater, McArthur's Mills and Mrs. Tom Jenkins, formerly of Toronto but now resident in Gilmour.

Warden Harvie has served his township of Mayo for the past 11 years as reeve and two years as councillor prior to being elected to the reeveship. He has served on many committees during his term of office in the county body.

Seven New Members

Seven new members of council sat for the first time at the opening session on Tuesday.

They are Reeve Fred Campbell, Sidney, who replaces former Reeve Sam Nicholson; former Deputy Reeve Harry Harrison is now the reeve of Thurlow and Seldon Homan is the deputy reeve, K. R. Vivian of Tyendinaga resigned and was replaced by former deputy reeve Bartley Walsh. The new deputy reeve in Percy Moore Huntingdon Townhip is represented by Reeve Arthur R. Jones who takes the place of former reeve Elmer Post. Former reeve of Madoc Township and the 1946 warden James A. Nickle has resigned and his place is taken by Reeve Fred Moorcroft. Reeve Carman Kleinsteuber is the new reeve of Elzevir replacing former reeve James A. Moore, who resigned after 35 years' continuous service as the head of his township.

Clarke Rollins, son of a former reeve and warden of the county, the late Charles S. Rollins, is the new reeve of Wollaston, taking the place of former reeve Lee Gordon.

Lloyd Nicholas Given Two Years For Manslaughter

London, Ont., Jan. 22 (CP)—Lloyd Nicholas, 25-year-old Indian of nearby Muncey Reserve will spend the next two years less one day in the Ontario Reformatory after conviction yesterday on a charge of manslaughter as the result of the pistol death Aug. 24 of Eldon Meredith, 23, University off Western Ontario student whose home was in Wallaceburg.

Nicholas was originally charged with murder along with his companion, Joseph French, 38, also of Muncey. French was acquitted of the murder charge in a directed verdict to the jury Mr. Justice J. H. Barlow. However, as he was escorted from the court-room yesterday French was re-arrested on two charges of theft involving money and an automobile.

The jury deliberated more than three hours to reach the manslaughter verdict after Mr. Justice Barlow instructed them they could bring in one of three verdicts—murder, manslaughter or acquittal.

Nicholas testified he shot Meredith accidentally while they were examining in Meredith's automobile a luger pistol owned by the accused.

Nicholas had hitch-hiked a ride with the student.

Nicholas also exonerated his friend, French, of any connection with the case, explaining that French didn't enter the picture until after the concealment of Meredith's body.

Nicholas and French were arrested at Delhi several hours before the student's body was found in a clump of bushes on the Indian Reserve. They were driving Meredith's car at the time.

"There is no body more gratified and appreciative, than I with your sense of fairness in the trial," Nicholas told the jury after sentence was pronounced. "I wish to thank you very much."

A Canadian Army veteran, Nicholas lost a leg in the United Kingdom when strafed by German planes.

Missing Plane May be Safe

Shanghai, Jan. 22. (AP) — United States authorities received indications today that an American Army Transport plane missing since Saturday with 13 persons aboard may be safe.

It was announced that a girl friend of one of those aboard the plane had received a cable saying all aboard were safe.

No details were given as to the sender of the cable or the location of the plane.

Earlier U.S. Army officials had expressed hope the plane had landed without mishap in some remote area, but notified next of kin that the 13 were missing.

First Treaty Signing

James F. Byrnes, retiring United States Secretary of State as his last official act signed the first four treaties, resulting from World War II. These were with Italy, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria. The event had been hastened in order to permit the indefatigable secretary to sign before his handing over the office to General Marshall. There will be a second signing in Paris on February 9th, when the satellite states and the other Allied States will sign.

During the days of struggle millions looked forward to the day when peace would again reign and when the peace treaties would be signed. That time has come as far as the United States is concerned and signing by the powers is but a short time ahead.

As Mr. Byrnes had a notable part to play in the discussions leading up to these treaties it was most fitting that his name should appear on them on behalf of his country.

On the task involved in the coming days, the New York Times notes that "though in fundamentals America's foreign policy may be regarded as fixed, the execution of it will still depend upon the vigor and the individual convictions of the incoming Secretary. It is for this reason that the world eagerly awaits the first declaration of his program. Some of the immediate issues confronting him are so urgent that he will have to take vital decision almost at once. There is need following the resignation of Mr. Byrnes and Mr. Baruch, not only of an immediate reaffirmation that American policy on the atomic bomb remains unchanged, but also of a decision as to whether the United States shall continue to insist on priority for atomic energy control, or whether precedence shall be given to Russia's demand for agreement on general disarmament. There is the new situation in China, where the Communists have rejected a new peace offer with insults to both President Chiang Kai-shek and General Marshall himself. There is the problem of the Balkans and Poland, now ruled by alien and arbitrary regimes. There is the German question now being discussed at London, in which the United States will have to assume a clear and vigorous stand designed to keep Germany from becoming a new menace, but also taking account of the now demonstrated fact that the destruction of Germany means the destruction of Europe.

"There is, finally, the greatest problem which is behind all others—the problem of how to get along with a dynamic and militant Russia in which ancient imperialism and a world-embracing Communist ideology have combined in a steady Russian pressure for expansion. Mr. Byrnes did much to hold this pressure in check during the past year. It will be up to his successor not only to continue holding the dikes of the Western world but also to ease the Russian pressure by a positive policy giving new vitality to democracy and the principles for which we fought. We are confident that the man who mapped the strategy of victory, which produced the present distribution of power in the world, will also find the strategy to build a tolerable and lasting peace."

Grains Ancients Ate

Archaeology is often regarded as the preserve of the long-bearded and absent-minded professor, but its methods are surprisingly scientific. Speaking in the BBC's overseas talks series "The Study of Mankind", Jacquetta Hawkes described an ingenious and recently-developed technique, which is reminiscent of Sherlock Holmes at his best. It is of considerable interest to know what cereal crops were grown by primitive agricultural communities yet it is not very often that actual grains will be preserved. It was noticed, however, that prehistoric potters, often shaping their vessels among the litter in or near their settlement, might press grains of corn into the clay. When the pots were fired these were of course burned away, but the little cavity where each grain lay is preserved in the pottery and by taking an impression with plaster it is easy to obtain so perfect a replica of the original that the species of corn can be identified. So from a few potsherds it is possible to learn what crops—the various types of wheat, millet, rye and the rest—stood in the plots or fields of a particular settlement thousands of harvests ago.

January

January, 1947, is the 2100th time the January has opened the calendar year.

It was 153 B.C. that January first was proclaimed the official beginning of the new year, and naturally enough since it was the festival of Janus, the Roman god who presided over all beginnings. On the first day of the year he was invoked as the god of good beginnings and was honored wtih cakes called januae. Quarrels and disturbances, even all unnecessary work, were avoided on that day; good wishes were exchanged and presents of sweets were made as an omen that the new year might nothing but that which was sweet and pleasant.

Janus attended to many other beginnings. He opened the gates of heaven as he set out in the morning and closed them again as he returned in the evening. Through the gates of his temple the Consul marched to war and those gates stood open until peace was declared. Janus saw to the start of life all kinds: Of human beings, of animals and seeds, of springs, wells and streams. It was natural therefore that he should start the series of coinage, and his head does appear on the as, the unit of Roman currency. Good examples may be seen in the large collection of Roman coins in the Royal Ontario Museum. Most impressive is a 2,200 year old coin, a bronze piece nearly 3 inches in diameter and weighing 1 Roman pound. From its face Janus looks out: a double head, huge and bearded, with one face looking forward to the news; the other turned back to the old.

Science And Sailors

Giant steam jet refrigerating plant is to be installed in aricraft carriers under construction for Britain's Royal Navy. It will enable messes low down in the ships and other vital compartments to be air-conditioned, thus promoting the health and comfort of naval personnel even in the hottest climates. The largest type of plant to be installed is of such a capacity that it could produce nine tons of ice per hour. Improved ventilation and air conditioning, features of the modern warship, result from the application of science to the service of the sailor.

Solving Sugar Shortage

You'll never have to worry about another sugar shortage if Professor Pieter Verkade's new discovery works out. The professor, a native of Holland, has compounded a substance 5,000 times as sweet as sugar; he claims it can be made for $4 a pound, and one pound will last a family 10 years. The name is "L-n-propoxy-a-amino-4-nitrobenzene." Pretty soon you may be hearing it spelled backwards on the radio, according to Newsweek Magazine.

'Graveyard of The Atlantic"

The world's greatest menace to navigation has long been Sable Island, which lies 85 miles east of Nova Scotia. By slowly sinking since its discovery in 1497, this island has shrunk in size from 14,600 to 20 square miles. Consequently, as it has became surrounded by hundreds of miles of dangerous reefs regular currents developed in fog and swept by irregular currents, some 1,000 ships have been wrecked in this "graveyard of the Atlantic," says Collier's Magazine.

Still another fire has been explained away with the convenient theory that it was caused by mice gnawing matches. Such an explanation has surface plausibility, but it lacks scientific backing. Many people who are supposed to know such things say that mice do not gnaw matches. In fact, they hate phosphorus, and will not touch it, according to Windsor Star.

MOTHER COUNSEL

"When you marry," said her mother,
"You don't marry just each other;
You acquire his various cousins,
Nephews, nieces by the dozens;
Aunts and uncles, father, mother,
Sister, big and little brother,
Business friends, both glum and breezy;
And to like them isn't easy.
Unto all to you entrusted.
It takes time to get adjusted.

"When his marriage vow is spoken,
By the ring he gives in token
He's an 'in-law' to your brother
And your father and your mother.
All your nephews and your nieces
Will be his until life ceases.
There'll be those among the many
Who will never have a penny.
So, to all on him you've thrusted,
Give him time to get adjusted."

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Do moths eat clothes?

Adult moths or "millers" do not eat clothes. Persons unfamiliar with the life cycle of the clothes moth see the adults flying about or resting on garments and get the impression that the millers themselves do the damage directly.

The mouths and stomachs of adult moths are not adapted to eating and digesting fabric materials. Their life span is very brief, usually only a few weeks. Some species feed on the nectar of flowers, while others have such imperfectly formed mouths and stomachs that they are provided with a food supply sufficient to live their short lives and perform their reproductive functions without eating at all.

Adult moths are called millers from the fact that the wings and body of many small light-colored species are covered with flour-like scales, suggesting the clothes of old-fashioned millers covered with flour dust.

There are some 6,000 species of moths in America alone. The most destructive are the cutworm, coddling, gypsy and clothes moths. People are so much in the habit of referring to the larvae of these insects as "moths" and to "moth-eaten garments" that the larvae of the carpet beetle, which attacks the same type of fabrics, are called "buffalo moths."

The common clothes moth was not native to America but was brought over unwittingly from Europe by the early colonists. In 1946 it was estimated that the yearly damage done by the larvae of the clothes moth in the United States runs as high as $100,000,000.

The adult female lays hundreds of eggs during her brief life in clothing materials and the fabric provides the larvae with their food supply. These larvae, really tiny caterpillars, are transformed into pupae, which form the cocoons in which the adult moths are developed. In one year the larvae of one female can easily destroy as much wool as a dozen sheep can produce. They are non-vegetarians and will eat fabrics containing wool, fur, feathers, hair and other animal fibres, but will not touch cotton, linen, silk, rayon, nylon or other vegetable fibres.

The larvae are active at temperatures above 70 or 80 degrees. At lower temperatures they are inactive but do not die. Accordingly there is no such thing as a "moth season" at temperatures above 70 degrees.

Moth balls of the old-fashioned type, the chief ingredient of which is the petroleum product known as naphthalene, were designed to keep the adult moths from laying their eggs in garments rather than to kill the moths. Household chests were first made of cedar in Virginia because of the beauty and pleasing odor of the wood. Much later it was learned that such chests have a tendency to discourage the visits of female moths looking for a place to deposit their eggs.

GIRL FORCED INTO CAR

Toronto, Jan. 22 (CP)—Police of suburban North York township today were hunting for a man who forced a 19-year-old telephone girl into a car at the corner of Eglinton and Oakwood Avenues, in northwest Toronto, threatening her with a gun. The girl was driven to a deserted spot on suburban Wilson Avenue and left stranded there. She made her way to York township police station where she was treated by a doctor before being taken to her home.

Rural Hydro Consumers Benefit by Rate Changes

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Rural service charges have been abolished in accordance with pre-election pledges. Prior to January, 1944, Ontario was divided into 120 rural power districts with 11 different rates and 13 different classifications, resulting in serious inequalities and injustices to different sections of the province. As of January 1, 1944, the commission amalgamated the 120 districts into one operating organization with a uniform rate of four cents per kilowatt hour for the first block of power used, 1.6 cents for the second block and 3-4 of a cent for subsequent energy used. The $1 per month service charge to farmers was cancelled. The hamlet consumers service charge was reduced by 50 per cent. By these changes, rural consumers are saving over $500 000 per year. Changes were so satisfactory that a further reduction was made on May 1, 1945. The first block rate of four cents per kilowatt hour was reduced to three and one-half cents to all rural consumers, effecting for them an additional saving of $300,000 per annum.

TOO MUCH FOOD GOING UP IN SMOKE

Editor,
The Ontario Intelligencer

That news-item in your issue of Dec. 30 reporting the loss by fire of the largest creamery plant in Guelph, including $35,000 worth of butter, a carload of eggs and 9,000 lbs of cream ready to be churned", tempts this reader to suggest that far too much "food" or "food processing machinery" is being lost in these days—when one stops to recall the fact, that, as one of the columnists aptly puts it, "hundreds of millions of people are still eating at the level of bare subsistence, both in Europe and Asia."

It would be interesting if someone, with the facts and figures, would supply the public with an authoritative picture on this "food" loss across the Dominion during 1946?

The loss of various types of "processing plant" is even of a more serious character than the destruction of a given quantity of food stuffs? This fall, for example, fire destroyed a dehydration plant and starch factory at Hartland, N.B., and The Canadian Press pointed out that: "While the loss of the starch facory represents a heavy loss to its owners, the loss to the community cannot be estimated. During the next few months potatoes to the value of more than $1,000,000 would have been processed there, and with the province's only other potato processing plant at Grand Falls, some fifty miles away, already working at capacity, it appeared that cull and off-grade potatoes will be a total loss. . . ."

Here are four other forms of "food" losses across a given week, which came to my notice in the news-columns: Dec. 14, "From 5,000,000 to 7,000,000 bushels of the United States 1946 potato crop already had spoiled and the loss may amount to 38,000,000 bushels, A. E. Mercker, federal official in charge of the government's Potato Price Support Program, said yesterday at Mason City, Ia." London, Ont., Dec. 16 "At Parkhill a flash fire razed the Water's Mill. The loss included storage beans valued at $35,000." Minneapolis, Dec. 19, "A spectacular fire today destroyed the union grain elevator, with nearly 3,000,000 bushels of grain." Granby, Que., Dec. 21, "Fire of unknown origin destroyed the Co-operative Hatchery at nearby Marlville yesterday. Loss estimated at $100,000."

That is a grim sequence, Mr. Editor, in days when not a pound of food should be wasted?

STAGE FRIGHT IS UNIVERSAL

Reverting to the problem the reader felt silly about talking to a physician for fear she might be laughed at. As she stated her problem it is this:

Age 27, personable, married happily six years, two sons. The prospect of attending a party or any kind of social function causes her stomach to become fluttery and (two illegible words) with vomiting as the result. Impossible to control this dreadful feeling. Subject to it for many years past, but at one time, eight years ago, it ceased to trouble her for a while, but began again two or three years ago.

The lady obviously suffers from stage fright. It is the same thing as nearly everybody has when he or she faces the trifling ordeal (I'm only kidding, folks, for I believe I suffer as much as any one does from this wretched condition and well I know it is not trifling) of acting, speaking, singing or other performance before an audience or spectators. It is all of a piece with examination jitters, that dreadful sense of incompetence, inadequacy and impending doom which most good students have and many indifferent or poor ones seem to escape, in the final week or two of study.

Where the trouble is just annual or occasional or semi-annual, quinine seems to give a lot of relief—take one grain of quinine sulfate, in pill, capsule or tablet, after food, three times a day, for two or three weeks or even for only a few days before the examination. The same course of quinine seems to soften the rigors of stage fright in many instances.

I do not advise the quinine treatment for the kind of stage-fright the lady describes above. One can't take quinine all the time. For such cases I can offer only the suggestion that the sufferer should consult a psychiatrist, or, as an alternative, if the sufferer does not think that chance of getting relief is worth the price, just wear it off or condition yourself to it by accepting every opportunity to attend social functions and dodging no invitations just because you are afraid. You know there is always some dread of the first new dives when you are learning to swim, but thereafter you are not afraid of the water.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

In spite of meticulous care all her life my 19-year-old daughter's teeth are decaying rapidly. Cavity in a front tooth was so large when she came home from college last spring that the dentist had to kill the nerve. When I asked the dentist about her taking calcium and vitamin D he said she is too old for that. (Mrs. J. V. L.)

Answer—Your dentist is about twenty years behind the times. Not only persons in their teens but infants, growing children, young adults, mature adults and elderly persons are subject to various manifestations of calcium and phosphorus and vitamin D shortage, of which softening and decay of the teeth is one. It is wooden-headed to imagine or say that any one is "too old" to benefit, in the bones, in the teeth in the nerves, in the glands and in other ways, from an adequate daily intake of calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D.

Blackheads And Pimples

I am nearly seventeen and I am very unhappy because my face is constantly covered with blackheads and pimples. I know some people regard this as .... (A. M.)

Answer—Well, child, some people are pretty small-souled and you and I should not be greatly concerned how they regard anything. I know how you feel —I had a fine display of blackheads and pimples at your age—and an advertising quack of the day nearly got me, the only reason he didn't being that I couldn't get together enough money to pay the buzzard. Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for the pamphlet on "Acne" —it will tell you how to deal with the annoying, but, I assure you and the world, insignificant blackheads and pimples.

REJECTED REQUEST

Oshawa, Jan. 22 — (CP) — Council last night decided to introduce a pension plan for permanent employees on the city staff. Details of the plan, retroactive to Jan. 1, have not yet been worked out, but the scheme is expected to cover about 125 employees, including policemen and firemen.

On grounds that it would require 11 additional men and an extra annual expenditure of $18,700, council rejected a request by the Oshawa Firefighters' Association for a 56-hour week. The firemen said that at present they are on duty 72 hours a week.

Heavy Docket In Police Court

Trenton — 25 cases were heard in Trenton police court on Tuesday afternoon before Magistrate T. Y. Wills and Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C.

Fred Walsh of Brighton appeared before the Magistrate on a charge of false pretenses and was given suspended sentence for 6 months after signing bond and making restitution of $9.

Frank Mcuntenay was charged with fraud after failing to pay a board bill. He was given suspended sentence for six months and paid costs of court ($3.50).

Douglas McMurter, Trenton, charged with assault, had his case enlarged for one week.

Stanley VanMeer of Quinte Street, Trenton, was charged and found guilty of assault when he caught hold of a youth who was working in a local bowling alley and tore his clothing during the affray. He was fined $31 plus costs of court ($6.50).

Given Five Days.

Raymond Algate, Harold E. Parlow and Hugh Pearce, all of Hamilton, were charged under the Railway Act by Constable Don Cooper of the C.P.R. Police and were given five days in the county jail to date from day of their arrest (Jan. 17).

The following persons were charged under the Liquor Control Act and were each fined $13: Elmo J. McDonald, 72 Murphy Street, Trenton; John H. Webb, Front Street, Trenton; Bernard Vallee, David Govan, Lionel Marier, Roy Pearson, R.C.A.F., Trenton; Richard Blute, James Bulger, Frankford, and Charles Downs.

Reginald H. Rupert of Byron Street, Trenton, appeared on a charge of careless driving. The charge was withdrawn but on a second charge under the Highway Traffic Act laid by Provincial Constable Sam Irvine, the accused was found guilty and fined $7.50.

Also charged under the Highway Traffic Act, Austin Porritt paid $7.50 and Warner Wood $4.50.

Charles S. Roseau and Allen R. Eadie each paid $2 parking bylaw fines.

Trout in Lake Huron, Georgian Bay, North Channel Decrease To Estimate Less Than Million

Toronto, Jan. 22. (CP)—Trout in Lake Huron, Georgian Bay and the North Channel have decreased from a 1925 figure of 3,000,000 to a 1947 estimate of less than 1,000,000, delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests were told here Tuesday.

The information was contained in the annual report of the Fish and Wild Life Division, read by Dr. W. J. K. Harkness, which said the depletion had been caused by the invasion of sea lamprey into the lakes. Sea lamprey are an eel-like fish with sucker mouths.

No action has been taken by the Department to combat the menace, the report said, and the report of the latest survey is being awaited. Delegates' suggestion that the fish be protected by an extra closed season were countered by Dr. Harkness, who suggested again that latest survery reports be studied.

Lloyd Swift, Washington, D.C., chief of the Wild Life Division of the United States Forestry Service, warned delegates against bad managment of the province's deer herds.

He said thousands of deer had been wiped out in the United States by a policy of long open seasons, and withdrawals of fawns from the forests for zoos and private individuals wishing to set up farms.

In one forest, he said, the deer population was thinned down from 100,000 to 10,000. The weakened herds had been smitten by epidemic.

He said one tenth of the United States land area is taken up by 152 national forests, peopled by 10,000,000 big game, of which 6,000,000 were deer.

Frank Sullivan, legal counsel for the Department, asked Wardens and Overseers to lay information concerning charges connected with breaches of the regulations as soon as possible. Hunters whose guns had been seized, but against whom no charge had been laid through failure to send the Department information, were in a position to sue the provincial government for wrongful seizure.

Police Lacking Tangible Lead In Sadistic Murder

Los Angeles, Jan. 22—(AP) — The coroner convened an inquest today in the sadistic butchery-murder of Elizabeth Short, attractive 22-year-old brunette, but there was little indication that the verdict could be anything but the formalized "death at the hands of person or persons unknown."

Detectives, forced as in any sensational case to trace scores of fruitless clues and investigate reports inspired by cranks, admitted they lacked a tangible lead in the slaying of the gregarious Miss Short, who appeared to have a host of friends, both male and female.

Miss Lynn Martin, former room-mate of Elizabeth's and a singer with film aspirations, was located by police yesterday in a motor court in the suburban San Fernando Valley and questioned as to what she knew of the slain girl's recent activities. Officers gave no intimation that she had been able to supply anything of value.

What chiefly balks authorities is their inability to establish where Miss Short was between Jan. 9 and Jan. 15, when her nude, slashed body, bisected above the waist, was found on a vacant lot.

Police continued a methodical inspection of motor courts, hotels and vacant houses where the murder hight have occurred, and Capt. Jack Donahoe of the homicide detail is convinced that the ghastly mutilation job must have left evidences which could not be erased.

INSTALL PARKING METERS

Oshawa, Jan. 22 — (CP) — Seventy-five parking meters have reached here and are to be installed immediately on standards already in place. Civic officials said the city, under terms of a penalty clause in its contract with the meter manufacturers, stands to collect $10 for every day since last Oct. 1 that Oshawa has waited for the meters.

Domestic Prices On Copper, Lead And Zinc Raised

Ottawa, Jan. 22—(CP)—Mining men attending the annual conference of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy today welcomed the announcement of the Prices Board that domestic prices on copper, lead and zinc have been substantially increased.

The new cellings, as announced by the Board last night, will boost copper from 11.5 cents to 16.625 cents a pound, lead from five to 10.63 cents and zinc from 5.75 to 10.25 cents a pound for grade A electrolytic.

Antimony prices also will increase due to discontinued subsidy on this product. The increase will be to 29½ cents from 17½ cents a pound.

R. J. Ennis, president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, echoed the sentiments of many delegates to the Association's convention last night when he commented that it was a "step in the right direction" and expressed hope that a similar increase might be permitted in gold in the near future.

Main reasons for the lift in prices were given by the Board as higher producing costs and lower export quotas while the world market in base metals has soared.

The new increase is expected to raise the supplies of manufacturers who have, in some cases, been faced with plant shutdowns.

Scrap metals prices will increase accordingly, the Board said.

In a statement accompanying the announcement, the Prices Board said it had become apparent that, with the great difference between domestic and world prices, many manufacturers and scrap metal dealers had been holding back supplies.

The new prices, while not as high as those quoted on London and New York markets, will be more in line with these prices, the Board said.

CHOIRMASTER'S IRE AROUSED

Hamilton, Jan. 22 (CP)—The type of music requested by some brides at Christ Church cathedral here has aroused the ire of George Veary, choirmaster. In his annual report he deplored the use of "I Love You Truly" "Because" and "O Promise Me" at "solemn" church weddings.

Durochers Face Bigamy Threat From Irate Judge

Hollywood, Jan. 22—(AP)—The Durochers—Lippy Leo and lovely Laraine — were back today from border points, where she obtained a Mexican divorce and they joined in a Texas marriage, but they had a date with an irate California judge who warned they'd better not try living together for the time being.

Their romance reached something of a climax at Municipal airport last night when the Brooklyn baseball manager and his bride, better known as actress Laraine Day, disembarked from a transport plane and dashed to a waiting station wagon.

Off they went, with a photographers' car in close pursuit. At a stop signal, photographers reported, the fiery Leo left his car and started toward their automobile. Midway, the red light winked green so Leo reversed his field and sped away.

Their destination was undisclosed, but a few hours earlier Durocher had promised Judge George A. Dockweiler, who Monday granted Miss Day a California divorce from airport executive Ray Hendricks, that he and Laraine would not live together until the actress straightens out the marital tangle.

Miss Day divorced Hendricks on charges of cruelty. In California a divorce is not final for 12 months. But she and Leo flew to El Paso yesterday, and she crossed the border to Juarez, Mexico, for a jig-time Mexican divorce.

Then, north of the border again, they visited an El Paso justice of the peace and were married in a brief ceremony.

Judge Dockweiler was more than somewhat put out.

"If she is dissatisfied with the divorce she obtained here, we will set it aside," he told reporters.

This would place Miss Day's new marriage under a shadow in California — and leave Durocher as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Stresses Place Of Veterans In Education

Toronto, Jan. 22 — (CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario said last night that survival of freedom would depend largely on "those to whom the memory of war is vivid."

Speaking at a meeting where 250 employees of the Toronto Board of Education were presented with certificates of honor for war service, the premier said education was important in keeping alive the ideals for which free nations fought.

"It is of the utmost importance to education to have brought back into our instructional organization those who played their part in victory in order that these values be not forgotten or misinterpreted."

Wolf-Hunting From Automobile New Winter Sport

Kenora, Jan. 22 — (CP) — A new winter sport, combining recreation, service to the community and cash dividends, has caught the fancy of Lake of the Woods sportsmen. It's wolf-hunting from automobiles.

At least two and usually up to four persons take part. They require an automobile, rifles or shotguns, good ice and, of course, wolves. Because pressure ridges or cracks develop in the ice or the snowfall is too heavy after the latter part of January, it usually is confined to the earlier months of winter.

When a wolf sights one of the cruising cars, the animal breaks into a sprint of about 45 miles an hour, then settles down to a 30-mile run. If nothing intervenes, the driver navigates until he is about 20 yards to the wolf's left and then it's up to his sharpshooters.

But it isn't always that simple. When an island intervenes, the wolf goes directly through it, not around, and the automobile must detour in the hope the quarry will still be visible when the car rounded the end.

Here's what happened when Clayton Bulmer, Eric Lindstrom and Jack McCoombs, all of Kenora, went out. One of the party saw a wolf about a mile away in full flight. Rounding an island in pursuit, they saw three more and then the party was literally surrounded with wolves running in all directions.

When the front and rear seat gunners had ceased firing, seven full-grown timber wolves—worth $5 each in bounty — were dead. The two largest weighed about 120 pounds each.

G.M. President In Canada Calls For New Laws

Washington, Jan. 22 —(AP)—President Charles E. Wilson of General Motors Corporation Tuesday called for "reform" of the United States' labor laws to prevent annual repetition of what he termed the "organized unemployment" of last winter's strike wave.

Addressing the United States conference of mayors, Wilson said:

"Labor monopolies, like all other monopolies inevitably abuse their power.

"Americans do not like monopolies or dictators of any kind. It is becoming increasingly clear that they do not like them in labor."

The motor manufacturer's address opened a day-long discussion of labor problems by the 350 mayors attending the conference.

Wilson proposed seven principles for changes in labor laws:

1. Clearly defined legal procedures by which national strikes "affecting the health and the safety of the people" may be prevented.
2. Unions must be made subject to the same laws that regulate management.
3. Legislation should be adopted to eliminate the "abuses of the closed shop."
4. Industry-wide bargaining should be broken up.
5. Strikes over jurisdictional disputes, sympathy strikes and "all forms of boycott" should be outlawed.
6. Collective bargaining should be clarified, and management employees who must represent their company in bargaining should not be eligible for union membership.
7. Government and municipal employees should be barred from striking.

Wilson, hitting at portal-to-portal pay suits, likened them to a bonus for civilian wartime workers, and remarked:

"I can easily see how a bonus might be considered for veterans as foxhole-to-foxhole pay, but portal-to-portal pay for those who stayed home and worked at high wages is hard for me to see."

Scarface Capone Fights Desperately To Beat Last Rap

Miami, Jan. 22—(AP)—Scarface Al Capone, one-time czar of Chicago's underworld, fought desperately today to beat his last "rap."

The former gangster hovered near death for more than sixteen hours yesterday after a stroke of apoplexy but regained consciousness last night and his physician said it was possible that he might survive the attack.

This startling change in the pudgy, 48-year-old Capone's condition came after hope had been virtually abandoned and the last sacraments of the Roman Catholic Church administered as he lay in a coma.

Dr. Kenneth Phillips, who has treated the former gang leader since he was released after serving 7½ years imprisonment for income tax evasion, said Capone was stricken at 4 a.m. yesterday. Two hours later, the last rites of the church were administered but about 8 p.m. Capone began to rally.

Mrs. Mae Capone summoned the doctor to her husband's bedside in their 25-room villa on Pal Island in Biscayne Bay where Capone has spent many quiet, sunny days loafing on a cabin cruiser tied to a boat dock or lolling beneath the palms.

The gangland leader of prohibition days long has suffered with paresis and had lapsed mentally to a point where a former associate described him as "nuttier than a fruit cake."

Oldest Triplets Celebrate 82nd Birthday

St. Catharines, Jan. 22 — (CP) —Believed to be Canada's oldest triplets, James C. Bent of Caistor Centre, Ont., William J. Bent of Palmerston, and Mrs. Albert Corbett of Patriot, Sask., yesterday celebrated their 82nd birthday.

The triplets were not together for the event, but exchanged greetings by mail.

The youngest and only surviving members of an original family of 11 children, they were born in Wellington county, one mile north of Palmerston. The boys early combined the trades of bricklayer, stone mason and plasterer, which they followed for many years.

For 17 years William lived in McGregor, Man., then returned to Caistor, while James, who had lived in Caistor for 31 years, moved to Palmerston in 1945.

WARNS RESORT OWNERS

Toronto, Jan. 22 (CP)—Resort owners should not be too hasty about raising rates if price ceilings are lifted before Summer, George A. Martin warned fellow members of the Touri Resorts Association of Ontari

"The public is expecting pri reductions rather than increase he said. "When prices get t high, the public will st buying."

Vestry Meeting Of Christ Church Well Attended

The highlights of the well attended Vestry Meeting of Christ Church on Monday night were the election of strong groups of officers for the coming year, the excellent parochial report submitted by the Wardens, a healthy response recorded by the Anglican Advance Appeal, the proposal that consideration be given to provide further ministerial assistance for the rector, the announcement of major repairs to be done to the organ and that a memorial communion rail be erected in honor of the late William A. Delaney and his bequest to the parish.

The rector, Rev. J. Grant Sparling, presided, and was assisted by Rev. Everett P. Smith and Mr. Lionel Blaker as vestry clerk. The parochial report was presented by Maurice Button, the People's Warden, and was adopted with applause. Reports were given by each organization in the following order.

Christ Church Sunday School by Mr. L. Lennox.

St. George's Sunday School by Mr. George Meades.

Christ Church Parish Guild by Mrs. W. Kempston.

St. George's Guild by Mrs. Trump.

Senior Branch W. A. by Mrs. B. Sills.

Evening Branch W.A. by Miss E. Bell.

Girls' Branch W.A. by Miss Luella Morton.

Junior Branch W.A. by Mrs. D. Stewart.

Little Helpers by Mrs. Cooke.

Scout Group Committee by Mr. P. Burton.

Contact Club by Mrs. D. Foster.

Men's Association by Mr. A. Young.

Senior A.Y.P.A. by Miss M. Keller.

Junior A.Y.P.A. by Mr. Ed. Waterhouse.

Choir by Mr. Fred Terry.

Brownies by Miss Audrey Stewart.

Girl Guides by Miss Dorothy Stewart.

Each organization recorded progress and interest.

Tribute Paid Assistants.

In the rector's report tribute was paid to the Rev. Everett Smith, and Mr. George Meades, who assist in the Sunday services. Mr. Sparling described his pastoral work and gave the following statistics: Weddings 63, baptisms 93, funerals 42, candidates confirmed 58, and 1666 calls of various kinds. He declared that while this number of calls might seem large it was most inadequate for the size of the parish. He deplored the fact that constructive 'follow up' work with young married couples, confirmation candidates and families in bereavement was impossible because there were not enough hours in the day.

He regretted that it had been impossible to give Holy Communion to the "shut-ins" oftener than twice a year unless an emergency arose. Mr. Sparling said "there are two paths ahead of us in pastoral work. We can either remain as we are, and do what we can, or we can go forward with further staff, conquering and to conquer."

Officers Named.

The following officers were elected and appointed for the year 1947: People's Warden, Maurice Button; Rector's Warden, Horace Wright. Lay Delegates to Synod, B. J. Theobald, George Meades, Arthur Bateman, Fred Chamberlain, Arthur Simpson, Ernest Vanner. Substitute Delegates, Frank Creeggan, M. B. Button, H. Wright, F. Terry, Chas. Bishop, Oliver Owen. Captain of Sidesmen, Cecil Cherry. Auditors, Mark Vanner and Fred Chamberlain.

The executive council of the parish will consist of the above with the following: Bob Stone, Earl Dow, D. J. Batchelor, J. Yeomans, Harold Bateman, Chas. Leggat, James Alexander and Ed. Waterhouse, plus a representatives from each of the Sunday Schools, Parish Guild, Senior and Evening Branches of the W.A., Contact Club, Men's Association, Choir and Social Group Committee. The Grounds Committee will be chaired by Mr. Alf. Symons.

Appreciation Passed.

Votes of appreciation were passed to the Wardens, Sexton and Clergy, as well as to all the leaders and officers in the parish. The wardens pointed out that certain major repairs which should have been done last year, and in which they were prevented by shortage of material and labor, must be done as soon as possible. This means the pointing of the masonry, painting the exterior and the re-wiring of the church basement.

Gratification was expressed concerning the presence, and counsel of Mr. W. E. Vanner who was able to attend after his long illness.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Doxology and benediction by the rector after which refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed.

Women's Activities

W.I. MEETING

Eldorado, (Special.)—The January meeting of the Eldorado and Bannockburn Women's Institute was held in the home of Mrs. Charles Carman, with a fair attendance. The president opened the meeting with the Institute Ode, and the Apostles' Creed. Reports were received and general business discussed. Plans were made for a quilting and pot-luck dinner to be held in the Sunday School room of Fox's church during Jan., and also for a Valentine Dance in the Orange Hall.

Mrs. James Bailey took charge for the presentation of the program, the topic being "Education". Several readings were given as follows: "Listening in on the Institute" by Mrs. Ed. Wanamaker; "Educational Living", by Mrs. Cecil Boyle; "How Women Speak in Public", by Mrs. Bailey; "My Parents", also read by Mrs. Bailey. A discussion followed the reading of a paper on "What is Education?"

The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer. Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

WOOLER W.I.

Wooler, (Special..)—The January meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Nesbitt Haggerty on Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance. Mrs. P. Gooding, first vice-president, presided.

During the business period it was decided to send $20 to the Adelaide Hoodless Foundation Fund and $25 to the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

A very pretty Christmas card had been received from the Women's Institute in Wooler, England, extending greetings and good wishes to the members and this was passed around among those present.

The Roll Call "Name Your Birthplace" proved to be most interesting.

A short program of community singing along with a piano solo by Mrs. L. H. Rowe and a paper by Mrs. Angus Gunter was enjoyed. The National Anthem closed the meeting.

SCOTT'S W.A.-W.M.S.

The monthly dinner of the Scott's W.A. was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Sine on Jan. 15th., with 26 persons partaking of the bountiful meal provided by the ladies. Following the dinner hour a congregational meeting was held, no other program being provided by the W.A.

During the afternoon the W.M.S. January program was presented with the new President, Mrs. J. Craft, in charge. The theme of the meeting was "Fulfilling Church Membership in Witnessing for Christ". Portions of Scripture were read by Mesdames C. Copeland, V. Sine, and J. Craft. During the business period the following group leaders were appointed— Group 1, Mrs. J. A. Lott; Group 2, Mrs. K. Faul; Group 3, Mrs. R. Dafoe; Group 4, Mrs. Morley Sine. Mrs. R. Dafoe read a letter regarding the "Relief to China Fund", which is very deserving. Fees were paid and the offering received. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. V. Sine.

UNIONDALE W.I.

The ladies of Uniondale W.I., met for their January meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fox, 5th Line Sidney, on the evening of January 14. Owing to the unseasonable rain and icy roads the crowd was not large. Refreshments were served to 20. Mrs. Morley Sine presided.

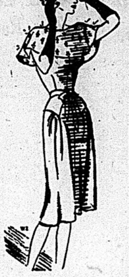
Mrs. V. Sine had prepared an interesting program. Several readings were given; then a "Who's Who?" item. In this the names of the officers in the Branch were given, then the district secretary told of what the district was comprised along with the officers. Mrs. K. Faul gave the composition of the area (six districts) with the officers and so on up to the F.W.I.O.

Mrs. V. Sine read a paper on "Is the W.I. Worthwhile?" which gave in detail the scope of the Standing Committees.

Mrs. B. Bush read the address which she gave at the area convention on "The Ideal Community Centre".

At the close of the meeting all gathered in the kitchen, where an auction sale was very capably conducted by Mr. Geo. Halsall. The proceeds of the sale, the collection and fees of two new members amounted to $5.80.

Bountiful refreshments were served and everyone thought it was a meeting very well worthwhile. It was agreed to hold another auction sale at the next meeting to be held at Mrs. C. Frost's in February.



Young and Wearable afternoon Frock

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

A BERTHA COLLAR pointed up with little cut-steel beeds and silver sequins tops this young, wearable afternoon frock. It is moulded through the bodice and hips from the yoke of which controlled gathers lend fullness to the front of the skirt. The dress is smart, both in its cut and color. The frock lends itself to brighter shades, such as pink, henna brown and red.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Bird of Frankford were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Dorland.

Mr. Mac Sharpe of Trenton, spent a few day's last week with his grandmother, Mrs. Catharine Sharpe, and other freinds.

Mrs. Eustacia McColl of Glenn Miller is visiting relatives here for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bull of Campbellford visited Mr. Bull's mother Mrs. D. Bull on Monday.

Miscellaneous Shower

A large number of neighbors and friends gathered in the Town Hall on Thursday evening when a miscellaneous shower was held in honor off a bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Mallory. Rev. W. Delvue was chairman for the evening. A short musical program was given after which the bride and groom were invited to the platform and presented with a large table full of useful gifts of china, pyrex crystal, aluminum ware and blankets for which they expressed their thanks in a few well chosen words. Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed. After returning from overseas service in the Canadian Army Bruce bought the David Teal farm and to him and his bride go the good wishes of the community.

While working in the woods, Mr. Geo. Ketcheson had the misfortune to cut one finger on his right hand very badly and he will be unable to use it for some time.

Mr. W. Rose, Kingston, spent the weekend with Mr. Geo. Ketcheson.

Friends (on Sidney circuit) of Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Honey, now of Cavan, but who were stationed on the Sidney circuit some years ago, will be greatly interested to know that their son, Floyd, and his wife have volunteered for Misionary work in China, and on Dec. 6th they with their two small daughters left Toronto on Dec. 15th for their long journey. Floyd was well known to many in the Stone Church neighborhood, where he attended public school and his many friends and former school-mates will all join with other friends on the circuit in wishing them "God speed" in their new field of labor. Floyd has been stationed at Baltimore, Ontario, during the past four years.

Preparing for a Permanent

A rotary type hair brush gives the hair a thorough grooming

By HELEN FOLLETT

DESPITE the popularity of the straight, sleek uppity hairdo, permanent waving goes on like a house afire. There are girls and women who feel that they couldn't be happy without curls. The curly girl is more likely to make the good looks grade than the one who scorns to submit her head to the undulating process. It takes a beauty to get away with the smooth top. Some aren't beauties and their friends and their families wish they'd omit the stringy tresses.

Before making a date for a permanent, it is wise to condition the hair, especially if the growth is thin, fine and silky, never takes a tight curl. You can get treatments at the beauty works or you can take the matter in hand yourself.

Groom With a Brush

One night a week go in for a prolonged grooming with the hair brush. A narrow brush, with bristles placed in groups is best. Pick up a strand at a time, wham the brush against your scalp, send the bristles through the hair with a rolling motion. When you have done that thoroughly, toss the hair forward, brush upward from the nape line. Part in the centre, down to the back of the neck and brush on either side away from the crown.

Now for a brisk friction to order the blood streams to trot along about their business. But, before giving yourself the massage, apply hot mineral oil to the scalp. A good way to do this is to use a small oil can, trickling the lubricant along various partings.

Spread out fingers and thumbs. Keep the fingers stationary, work with the thumbs, kneading the flesh, lifting it up in rolls. In five minutes the scalp should be glowing.

Next morning have a rousing shampoo.

Governor-General Says Armed Forces Could Help Mining

By H. L. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 22 (CP)—Canada had from her new Governor-General today a suggestion that the Dominion's armed forces, with all their war-developed skill, might join with mining men in opening up the vast, undeniably rich areas of the country as yet untapped.

Viscount Alexander, who led Canadians through Sicily and Italy in war, made the suggestion in an address last night to the annual convention dinner of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

He also disclosed he planned a trip next year to the birthplace of Canada's gold rush of '98—the Yukon — and present institute medals of bravery to two men who risked their lives for comrades in mine accidents—Leopold Dutil of Normetal, Que., and Donald Finlayson of Ottawa and Geraldton.

On the main theme of this address, the Governor-General had this to say to the mining men:

"To what extent you can link up your activities with the armed forces I don't know, but military equipment and developments of aerial reconnaissance, mapping and communications could be linked with commercial development to the advantage of the country as a whole."

Discuss Developments

It was on this theme that the institute headed into the third and final day of a convention which brought out discussion of modern developments in the industry — such as the magnetometer instrument through which ore bodies can be located from the air—mechanization of coal mines and prevention of the scourge of metal miners—silicosis.

Yesterday the convention received insight into two preventives for silicosis, one a slight adjustment in the design of the hard-hitting rock drills which create the silicosis-laden dust, the other involving the absorption of controlled amounts of powered aluminum dust by miners before they descend to the pits.

Labor relations came in for discussion with submission of an interim report by the committee on legislation. H. E. Miard of Fernie, B.C., a member of the committee, said the trade union was an essential part of the economic structure and should be preserved, but suggested its activities must be restricted to its proper field and it must be returned to a status in which it will serve the community and not plague it."

Trade Unions Discussed

He suggested that trade unions should be compelled to incorporate themselves under provisions of the Statistics Act "or some special enactment."

This, he believed, would evoke "a great deal of recrimination on the part of our labor autocrats; but it is also probable that it will be accepted willingly by many members of the trade unions who are probably much more interested in the welfare of their families than in the furtherance of extravagant schemes connected mainly with the aggrandisement of the labor leaders as their object."

The Governor-General in his address last night noted the great contribution of the mining industry during the war in "every form of research and production of those materials which were essential to modern armies, navies and air forces."

These things now could be turned "into more profitable channels and developed not for destruction but for rehabilitation and for the building up of an economy which will enrich Canada and still further raise the standard of living of her people."

Muncey Indian Acquitted On Murder Charge

London, Ont., Jan. 22 — (CP)—Joseph French, 38-year-old Muncey Reserve Indian, was Tuesday acquitted of a charge of murdering Eldon Meredith Aug. 24 last but was re-arrested on two charges, one of stealing a $500 Victory Bond and other articles from the home of John Currie in Elgin county and the second of stealing an auto at Corinth, near Tillsonburg.

French was taken to St. Thomas later by provincial constable Ben Milligan of that city.

French was freed of murder on a directed verdict to the Supreme Court jury by Justice F. H. Barlow.

The case of Lloyd Nicholas, 25, also of Muncey, charged jointly with French, was given to the jury at 1:40 p.m. after addresses by defence counsel Norman Lickers of Brantford, Crown prosecutor Claude Savage and Mr. Justice Barlow's 45-minute charge. The hearing was in its seventh day.

The body of Meredith, 23, and a University of Western Ontario medical student from Wallaceburg, was found on the Muncey Reserve Aug. 26. In the box yesterday, Nicholas claimed Meredith was killed accidentally while both were handling a Luger pistol in Meredith's car. Nicholas and French were arrested later in the auto, but Nicholas absolved his friend of any connection with the death.

Mr. Justice Barlow told the jury, "You will agree with me that there is no evidence before this court which connects French in any way with the killing." French was then escorted from the court.

Price Increases Means of Meeting Production Costs

Detroit, Jan. 22 — (AP)—Price increases in General Motors "luxury" models were described today by company officials as means of meeting cost increases.

The price boosts affect convertible and station wagon models in the Cadillac, Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac lines. The company said, however, that there would be no increases on Chevrolet or any of its "volume models."

The fact that no price change is being made in Chevrolet, the company's heaviest producer, was interpreted by industry sources as indicating General Motors' acceptance of the implied challenge laid down in the recent reduction of Ford automobile prices.

Henry Ford II less than a week ago announced decreases ranging from $15 to $50 in a move he described as an attempt to halt spiraling prices and costs.

The increases range from $17 on the Pontiac sedan-coupe to $192 on both standard and de luxe models of the Pontiac eight streamliner station wagon.

The lowest Cadillac increase was $25. In the Oldsmobile line, station wagons and convertibles were raised some $58. An increase of approximately $18 in the price differential on Pontiac's six and eight cylinder car, it was said, was set to allow a "sufficient spread" between the two models.

Federal Labor Dept. Supervises Wage Conferences

Ottawa, Jan. 22 (CP)—Balked temporarily in efforts to end a 1000-man strike at Noranda Que., the federal government turned today to an attempt to settle a wage dispute threatening to choke off production in the whole Maritime coal field.

Deadlocked negotiations were to be re-opened here this morning between Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation and the United Mine Workers of America (CCL) whose 13,000 members in the east are ready to leave their jobs Jan. 31 unless their demands for a new contract are met.

The U.M.W. and Dosco came together again a day after a similar conference here over the Noranda strike had failed to resolve workers (CIO) and Noranda Mines Ltd.

The issue of union security—principally the check-off—was the stumbling block that ripped up the Noranda conferences of the last two days, second series of meetings sponsored by the labor department in its efforts to end the two-month-old strike.

The conference was broken off suddenly after the union and company remained apart on the check-off question, but labor department officials said after the sessions a new attempt would be made later to bring the parties together in a mediation conference for a third time.

Progress was made in the production of settlement of the wage issue at this week's conference, with company spokesmen indicating they would be prepared to go higher than their last offer to the strikers.

However, this was contingent upon the union withdrawing its union security aims.

Two Proposals Made

In this connection, the union made two proposals, in turn contingent on the company negotiating a wage agreement:

1. It would allow the check-off and other issues such as a night-shift premium to be determined by a vote of its Noranda membership, or;
2. It would either negotiate these issues or leave them to an independent commissioner appointed by the government, with the strikers going back to work in the meantime.

Neither of these proposals was satisfactory to the company, which sought outright withdrawal of the check-off demand.

In today's coal conference, chief issue at stake is a raise of $2.50 a day sought for the U.M.W. membership in the Maritimes. The company has made an offer of $1 per day, conditional upon greater production.

CALLED COOTE'S PARADISE

Dundas, Jan. 22 (CP)—Dundas has not always been known by that name—once it was Coote's Paradise. Its former name is found in the inscription on a communion service in the vault of St. James Anglican Church here. It reads "the gift of Mary and Richard Hyatt, of Ancaster. For the use of the church in the village of Coote's Paradise, district of Gore, Upper Canada, Jan. 1, 1817."

Maple Leafs Driving Home Lesson to Other N.H.L. Teams That Practice Makes Perfect

Dick Irvin Claims the Canadiens Lacking in Speed With Toronto Club

By JACK MITCHELL

Come play-off time and the picture may change but today, at least, you could see one school of National Hockey League thought shaken by the way Toronto Maple Leafs are driving home the "practice makes perfect" lesson.

There's an N. H. L. faction that views this season's elongated schedule as too helter-skelter to permit regular practices—and their ranks include almost every club more or less but the Leafs, summed up in Montreal by Coach Dick Irvin the other day.

Trying to determine for himself why the Leafs were eight points in front of his Stanley Cup champions, the mentor of the second-place Canadiens weighed a few considerations and decided: "We're lacking in speed—that's the answer."

Irvin grouped the in-and-out Boston Bruins, whom his Canadiens meet at the Hub city in one of tonight's two N.H.L. clashes, in the same category as the Habitants and added:

We've been dashing around on the road, playing a lot of games but we haven't had a chance to practice. Games are all right but you must have practices too."

Pointing out that some players are on the ice as little as 12 minutes or less in a game, Irvin blamed this for some of his players being overweight with a consequent loss of speed.

That was something the Leafs decided even before the start of the season but Irvin probably got a pretty good argument on the value of practices right in Boston, quite apart from the argument the Bruins are preparing for Canadiens tonight when they seek to strengthen their third-place position on home ice.

Manager Art Ross, while a firm believer in having a well-conditioned Bruin squad, takes the position that the time when a team should be flying is shortly before the play-off money grind. For that reason, the Bruins held one of the shortest pre-season training camps and usually confine practices to a half-hour of skating and shooting drills.

The difference in the Toronto viewpoint was illustrated yesterday when coach Hap Day had ice put into Maple Leaf Gardens for one day just to give four players a workout, even though the Leafs are unscheduled until Saturday.

Four Ordered Out

The four—Goalie Turk Broda and forwards Bud Poile, Harry Watson and Bill Ezinickie—went through their paces and then the Gardens staff took out the ice for a night basketball fixture.

The rest of the Toronto team had a day off (They'll be out today for a full session) and Captain Syl Apps and centre Gus Bodnar used it to extoll the virtues of conditioning to a St. Catharines, Ont., father and son banquet. Apps credited Toronto's tough training grind for their front-running performance.

The Leafs could find their margin reduced six points if Canadiens can cut Boston's current winning streak short at three straight tonight. In the only other match, New York Rangers a firmer grip on fourth place a firmer grip on fourth position at the expense of the cellar-dwelling Chicago Black Hawks.

Sports Roundup

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 22 — (CP) — New York Rangers are moving ahead at a steady rate in the National Hockey League and the scoring statistics show that three sophomores — two centres and a wingman — are largely responsible . . . Cal Gardner, now on the injured list, is top man around the nets with 25 points — one more than Tony Leswick of the Rangers' third line . . . Edgar Laprade, a pivot like Gardner, has 23 points . . . Leswick is the top goal-getter with 16 while Gardner and Laprade are tied for assists with 14 each . . . Carrying his full weight is Bryan Hextall, one-time outstanding right-wing who was out of hockey the last two seasons with a liver ailment . . . At the start of this season "Hex" was slow and tired easily . . . But at the moment he has 13 goals and seven assists for a healthy 20 points . . . Gardner, incidentally, may be out for some time with a Charley Horse he suffered playing against Detroit last Wednesday.

Marcel Cerdan's brain trust appears to be playing hard to get with Madison Square Garden here . . . The Garden wants the French middleweight badly for a March 14 match with Artie Levine . . . But since Cerdan outpointed Georgie Abrams a few weeks ago in New York, the Frenchman's management is looking at the championship . . . Cerdan would like to meet the champion next summer, after it has been decided who holds the crown — Tony Zale or Rocky Graziano . . . Zale, the titlist, knocked out Graziano last fall but is pledged to a return match . . .

Is that Clear?

Headline in a N. Y. Journal-American sports story:

"S. I. pin-ups out to pin down J. A. pin cash."

Just to clarify that tongue-twister, here's a translation:

"Pretty girls from Staten Island are eager to win some of the prize money in the Journal - American bowling tournament."

Tramping the Beat

Buddy Kerr, the New York Giant shortstop, will marry Kathleen Feeney Saturday . . . The Princeton University hockey and swimming teams are running into major headaches . . . the Ivy League hockey squad is forced to travel 46 miles to Philadelphia for practice sessions and the swimmers do their splashing in Trenton, N.J., 12 miles away . . . their home meets are held in Rutgers University pool, an 18-mile jaunt from Princeton . . . a fire in the Princeton gym two years ago caused the trouble . . .

4TH PLACE CLUBS PUT ON PRESSURE IN DIVISIONS

Only Three Clubs in Each Section Qualify for Calder Cup Playoffs

(By The Canadian Press)

With two-thirds of the American League season almost over Springfield and Pittsburgh, fourth place clubs in the eastern and western divisions respectively, are putting on the pressure to qualify for the forthcoming Calder Cup play-offs between the first three clubs in eash section.

In the league's only game last night the Indians, offensively so weak they rank next to the last in league scoring, moved to within a single point of the third-place Providence Reds by whipping St. Louis Flyers, western division tailender 3-1.

Harry Frost sewed up the game for the Indians with a pair off third period goals after Billy Gooden gave them an early lead in the first period. Bus Brayshaw was the St. Louis goal-getter. Tonight's games have important bearings on the league standings with three contests scheduled. With the Indianapolis Capitals idle, Cleveland journeys to Philadelphia, where a victory would give them undisputed possession of the western divisions top spot.

Pittsburgh takes on the eastern division leading Hershey Bears on Hershey ice. Pittsburgh needs a victory to catch up with the Red Hot Buffalo Bisons who meet Providence. A win for the Hornets coupled with a Buffalo loss would move Pittsburgh into a tie with the Bisons for the all-important third place play-off spot.

McPhail Going To Quit Talking For Publication

(By The Canadian Press)

Sale of Hank Greenberg to Pittsburgh Pirates had an additional repercussion yesterday when President Larry MacPhail of the Yankees announced he wouldn't ever talk again for publication — well, hardly ever. Before launching into a detailed explanation of why the Yanks did not claim the veteran slugger, MacPhail told his listeners: "This will be my last press conference."

New York Knickerbockers of the Basketball Association of America, sent Bob Mullens and cash to Toronto Huskies yesterday in exchange for Bob Fitzgerald, six-foot-five-inch forward. Fitzgerald played 30 games with the Huskies and pumped in 139 points. In 26 games Mullens collected 79.

Slammin' Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., professional and British Open titlist, announced from his Hot Springs home yesterday that he would probably not defend his British Open championship this year because of a conflict in tournament dates with the Tam O'Shanter tournament at Chicago.

Danny Webb, Montreal's Canadian lightweight boxing champion, will go to Britain for matches in March and later will fight in Australia, it was learned in New York, where he is in training for a match with Gus (Pell) Mell for the Canadian title.

Hank Gowdy, coach of Cincinnati Reds all the while Bill McKechnie was manager, was signed yesterday as an aide to manager Mel Ott of New York Giants.

Senator Joseph O'Mahoney (Dem. - Wyo.) announced last night he will introduce in the United States Senate today a resolution calling for a sweeping investigation of professional sports "with particular reference to attempts at bribery and other corruption."

President Pete Campbell of Toronto's baseballing Maple Leafs says there will be many new faces on view come spring and the opening of the International League season. Campbell made known last night he's been spending the winter months gathering new talent.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Tonight the Belleville Anafs Intermediates trek to Kingston where they clash in their first tilt with the fast-travelling Lions "A's" of that city. The Reds have one victory scalp tacked to their belts and are out to make the count straight. Team officials today stated the squad will be at full strength for tonight's important tussle.

• • •

Speaking on Intermediate "A" subjects we hasten to correct an error (even we make mistakes at times, and admit them), regarding the Queen's University Seconds squad which went down to defeat here the other night. The Seconds are not the team that went through to the Kingston City League finals. That team was the intercollegiate squad at present on tour. Thanks to pal Colling for that information.

• • •

Like a bolt from the blue the news descended on the editorial staff of this Great Family Journal. Stunned reporters, writers, editors looked amazed. Never since the first atomic bomb fell on Hirohima has such a news break occurred in ye editorial rooms of this newspaper. Even the teletypes stuttered and cluttered; misspelled words and gave out with a jargon of illegible symbols.

• • •

Out in the composing room, the news spread. Charlie, the "Mighty Atom," lost his usual composure. He put a sports heading over a "Hearts Aflame" story with a drop that said a love-torn baby will play defence for the Maple Leafs next week. Down in the pressroom, the boys got the paper on the wrong whatizit, with the result that the masthead appeared in the classified ad section.

• • •

In the advertising emporium Fillis the Phaithful was so agog with the news that she told Eddie, ye swain, she would give him a contract at so much per, and a prominent advertiser the request to meet her at five bells outside Dickens.

• • •

Such was the import of the news that struck suddenly at the unsequestered tenor of life in this office. It was newspaper office drama with both principals playing their roles in top-flight manner. As a matter of fact it was a mystery story until the smashing climax when Dan Cupid released his latest casualty list.

• • •

Yep, here tis. You may as well have it. That old war-scarred veteran of the typewriter, the Galahad of the sports rialto; the hard-bitten addict of bachelordom has gone the way of all flesh. Ole Dan, suh're got him, suh. And how. And with his usual uncanny ability, aided and abetted by one of the two nicest gals we know, held the fini of the whodunit until the final breath-taking climax. And they made it a personal appearance tour too.

• • •

And how those guys, Perdue, of Peterboro and Campbell of Oshawa, not to mention sports luminaries in all parts of the district and province are going to love this. Ken J., Colling, erstwhile sports ed. of this newspaper, has succumbed to the love bug. He's gone and dun it, gents, no fooling. He has invested a big pile of dough in a diamond and placed it where it looks the best — on the third finger of the left hand of a grand gal, former newspaperwoman at that. He his signed "thirty" to a single life — or has started to, and within a short time will be saying "Yes Dear" like the rest of us.

• • •

He has flung his last gesture of derision at Dan Cupid. That guy took plenty of rebuffs and predictions from the self-styled love-proof gent who pounded a mill night and day in the interest of sport. But there was a weak spot in his armor. After all Samson had one too. And now he is mortally wounded. The arrow has sunk deep and straight right where it did the most good. And you'd never know the guy. He's walking around in a haze; on a cloud, or whatever you will. He's love-happy—and brother that's sumpin'. Oh well, we'll be seein' yuh at the wedding, pals. Please omit firecrackers.

• • •

Tomorrow night the Belleville Bees, who have been champing on their bits for the past two or three weeks meet the Kingston Victorias here in their second junior "B" O.H.A. fixture. The Vics absorbed a 9-2 shellacking from their intra-city rivals the Saints the other night, and they're not feeling any too good about it. They will be here to wipe out that defeat at the expense of our "Bees", so they say.

• • •

In any event, the local kids are rairin' to go and they will give the cocky Kingstonians the battle of their young lives when they clash at the Memorial Arena here tomorrow eventide. The "Bees" proved themselves a smart young squad on their first appearance here and although they have been idle insofar as regular games are concerned, they have been practicing faithfully and Coach Doug Whillans, has high hopes of his proteges. Fans should not miss seeing these kids go, and tomorrow night's game should be given the best support.

• • •

Back to the Intermediate "A's". A late report this morning from Anaf officials states that the team will take off from the Memorial Arena tonight at 6.30 sharp for Kingston. The team will be at full strength, barring last-minute accidents and are out to twist the Lions' tails.

• • •

And here's a letter from Charlie Hicks, secretary treasurer of the Athletic Board of Control, Queen's University, that speaks for itself:-

"On behalf of the Queen's University Hockey Team may I be permitted through you to apologize to the good hockey fans of Belleville for the very late appearance of our hockey team at the Arena for their game last Friday night. We regret exceedingly that bus difficulties caused a delay of over an hour and we would like to express our appreciation to the Belleville fans for their forebearance in the matter and also for the sportsmanlike manner in which the whole game was conducted."

FELLER BEHIND TAKE-HOME PAY GIVEN BAMBINO

Experts Claim Bobby Would Have to Make $150,000 to Equal Ruth's Pay

By JOE REICHLER

New York, Jan. 22. (AP)—Bobby Feller has signed for an estimated $80,000 salary for 1947 which ties Babe Ruth's top wages, but when it comes to take-home pay the superb slinger of Cleveland Indians is still far behind the great Bambino.

For the Babe made his $80,000 in 1930-31, when the buck was still a buck. Monetary experts say Ruth's real earnings on that wage would be about the equivalent of a $150,000 salary today.

Besides the Babe made a fortune on movies, barnstorming, ghosted articles, endorsements and so on.

Feller, too, has a good eye towards the dollar and has picked up his share in extra-curricular events. The major league's strike-out king recently estimated his total 1946 earnings "between $95,000 and $100,000." He received $45,000 in actual straight salary, another $25,000 in bonus payments and the rest in endorsements and barnstorming.

Although no actual figures were announced, President Bill Veeck of the Indians said that Feller's contract contained six bonus clauses, all based on attendance figures. It was believed that his base salary called for "about $50,000." Ruth's $80,000, incidentally was a straight salary.

Before Feller signed his new contract, Hank Greenberg's $60,000 in 1946 came closest to the Babe's figure. The former Tiger slugger, who recently was sold to the Pittsburgh Pirates, has not disclosed how much he would ask for this year.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By ALAN VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg, Jan. 22 (CP)—Loss of two limbs has not handicapped Bob Gray, 36-year-old Winnipeg bowler, to any great extent. His latest feat in five-pin bowling was to win a handicap doubles here, rolling a brilliant 353 in his second game. He and his partner totalled 1,496 in their three games.

Gray, who lost his left arm and leg in an accident in 1942 while employed as a railway switchman, found difficulty in continuing his 10-pin game. Two weeks after receiving an artificial leg, he reverted to the less-strenuous five-pin game and practiced constantly.

Standing close to the foul line he discovered he could pivot on his "good" leg and still hold his balance. His right arm became stronger and his aim became accurate and he soon found he could spill the little wooden men with consistently good scores.

Unable to partake in other sports, Gray concentrated on the five-pin game.

Last year he travelled to the Regina tournament and brought back a fair share of the prize money. Leading Winnipeg bowlers alway regard him as a contender who will be tough to beat.

"Bowling is a grand exercise and a grand sport," Bob says. "I hope many of the young servicemen, disabled during the war, will get out and participate in some sport. They can if they put their mind to it."

Abbie Coo of the Winnipeg Free Press has delved into sports files to satisfy a reader's query about when hockey was first played here.

First mention of the game was found on Jan. 31, 1890, when an article said a number of youths were practicing a new game—hockey—on the Austin Rink in central Winnipeg.

The first lineup was carried in a newspaper March 22, 1890, but no teams name was mentioned. Later that year two teams—Victorias and Winnipegs—were formed and they met Dec. 20 on Austin Rink with the Vics winning 4-1.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

Every so often some smartypants tosses in a curve. If it works, he takes all the credit. If it fools partner, old wisebritches makes a crack like: "Where were you when brains were dished out?"

In a serious match, the best players no longer pull phoney bids. In fact, it is a form of inferiority complex. A player who thinks he must resort to it usually lacks confidence in his accuracy or partner.

During a recent tournament came this deal:

NORTH
♠9 7
♥K 4
♦A Q 8 6 5 3 2
♣Q 6

WEST
♠Q 10 8 6 4 3
♥8 3

EAST

♥A Q J 9 7 6 2
♦9 7
♣10

SOUTH
♠J 5
♥10 5
♣A K J 7 5 3

Most of the east-west pairs made four or five hearts or spades. A few south-north defenders went down at a sacrifice of two or three tricks in five or six clubs or diamonds.

At one table, however, south took all 13 tricks at a doubled bid of six no-trump. When the reason was learned, everybody but east thought it was funny. Listen to what happened.

East was the dealer. Although he had only one club, he opened the bidding with one club. His idea was to bid diamonds next with his two small diamonds.

This, he thought, might confuse the opponents or draw a double from one of them. Then he would wind up in four hearts and opponents would be fooled into doubling that bid.

But south overcalled the one club bid with one no-trump. North, banking on what his diamond suit would do, hopped to six no-trump. East doubled, expecting to defeat it plenty.

However, he did not reckon on the damage his phoney bid would do. His partner in the west took the east club bid seriously. So, the opening lead from west was a club.

Look at the south clubs and the north diamonds and you have a clear picture of the painful results. Declarer took all 13 of them. East could do nothing but watch the tricks melt away.

When you set a trap, use the right bait.

The Movie Column

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The simple home marriage ceremony at the climax of "The Best Years of Our Lives" comes within four words of doing what has never been done yet on the screen. The words are all that is left out of the marriage ceremony and to date no complete ceremony has been recorded on commercial celluloid.

Theories about the taboo vary from the idea that an old California law forbids it to the opinion that if actors and actresses og through the entire ceremony they are married. Support of the second theory is the common law which legalizes a marriage if a man and woman acknowledge each other as husband and wife in the presence of witnesses, although they may use false names.

A third theory is that the original Hayes office ruled against showing an entire ceremony in the interests of keeping the drama moving.

Ordinarily screen weddings can be classified as symbolic, spectacular or cute with the symbolic in greatest favor— it can be indicated simply by the swelling strains of Mendelssohn as background music for the final clinch.

The spectatcular wedding, complete with at least 20 organs and about 100 bridesmaids is hardly considered respectable without a flock of white doves flying about.

Lubitsch Back

Ernst Lubitsch, he of the famed touch, who has been inactive since 1945 because of poor health, will soon be back on the job as producer-director of "Lady in Ermine", a European play by Rudolph Schnazer and Ernest Welisch. Lubitsch is already at work on a new treatment of the plot which will include music.

AT THE McCARTHY
"The Jolson Story"

Columbia Pictures' "The Jolson Story," Technicolor spectacle currently the attraction at the McCarthy Theatre, is melodic and convincing proof that, while there are many ways to tell a story, the best way of all is to "say it with music!"

It is difficult to see how any other technique could have been used to successfully tell "The Jolson Story." Essentially a vivid panorama of this country's show business, it comes to life with tremendous vigor when its pulsebeat is set to the rhythms of America's beloved tunes.

Music can be sheer dramatic dynamite, too, as it is in so many scenes of the film. When Larry Parks, who plays Al Jolson, comes out on the stage of New York's famous Winter Garden to make his Broadway debut, the screen is re-telling one of show business' most exciting incidents. When he goes into the dynamic and well-remembered offering of "Mammy," Parks is spellbinding. But the major portion of the thrills that dance up and down the spines of film audiences as they view this scene can be traced not so much to the man, but to the great moment that he's re-living—and to the song that's associated with that moment.

So it is with the rest of the tunes in the picture, tunes like "California, Here I Come," "Swanee," "You Made Me Love You," "April Showers," "I Want a Girl," "Toot, Toot, Tootsie," "Rainbow 'Round My Shoulder" "Liza," "Avalon," "Rock-a-bye Your Baby" and "By the Light of the Silvery Moon." Each of them has its dramatic associations, each of them tells a fragment of the story far more eloquently than paragraphs of dialogue. Tin Pan Alley can come out and take a bow—its songs have told a glorious story.

Bobby Feller, Fireball Hurler Of Indians, Signs

Cleveland, Jan. 22 — (AP) — Bobby Feller, fireball hurler of Cleveland Indians, signed Tuesday a 1947 contract that was expected to make him the highest paid player in baseball.

Indian officials did not disclose exact terms of the contract, but said that with the bonus-attendance clause, the former Iowa farm boy should make better than $80,000 this season.

Babe Ruth's $80,000 for one season is believed the highest amount paid a ball player for one year.

Feller, who fanned 348 batters last year to set a major league strikeout record, drove here last night from his home in Waukegan, Ill., to sign the contract following a brief conference with president Bill Veeck of the Indians.

The two previously had several preliminary contract talks.

Feller, who made an estimated $75,000 last year, said he planned to leave for Florida later today.

ONLY TWO SHOWED UP

Woodstock, Jan 22 (CP)—Perhaps it was the weather that detained the girls, but only two of them showed up to attend the domestic science course when 50 farm young people flocked in from the country Tuesday to the opening of the Oxford County short course in agriculture and economics at the fairground here.

AT THE BELLE — It's hail and farewell for Dennis Morgan and Joan Leslie in the above scene from Warners' riotous new comedy hit, "Two Guys from Milwaukee," which opens today at the Belle. Jack Carson, Janis Paige and C. Z. "Cuddles" Sakall are also featured in the merry film.

Mounted Police Are Not to be Feared But Rather a Friend and Protector

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 22. (CP)— A long ride from the Mounted Police of 150 men that cruised western frontiers in 1873, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police are geared today to match the depredations of post-war crime with the skills of their 3,000-odd men and the allied aid of science.

Currently they are recruiting an authorized strength of 3,544 their war-depleted ranks up to to fulfill roles which makes them federal, provincial and municipal police, which give them the assistance of planes, ships, cars, radio, dogs and sleds and even, occasionally, horses, and which have swung the great weight of their abilities away from the distant wastes and into the populaed regions of the Canadian south.

A Canadian institution for nearly three-quarters of a century, they supply the men who carry out federal laws across the country ,including the Northwest Territories and the Yukon, who administer provincial laws in all provinces except Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia and municipal laws in numerous towns and cities.

They sometimes move thousands of miles across the northern snows, track down Eskimo murderers and administer Eskimo family allowance cheques. They have their own radio system in Manitoba and they hope to extend it across the three Prairie Provinces and eventually through the Maritimes.

They have two scientific laboratories and two police colleges as the levers of constant progress and constant vigil and, further, as training grounds not only for themselves but also for their colleagues in the other police forces of the Dominion.

They made the months of investigation which preceded the official announcement of Canada's espionage probe and the appointment of a Royal Commission to extend it. And they still guard Igor Gouzenko, the 27-year-old Russian who is the key to the whole thing.

Over the years, their philosophy of crime has swung to a full view of their job as primarily preventive rather than punitive and it is that philosophy that has sent their representatives out among an estimated 200,000 Canadian young people in recent months to ask them to view the policeman not as a subject to be feared "but rather as a friend and protector".

HOSPITALS BUSY

Toronto, Jan 22 (CP)—City hospitals have been kept busy in the past few days treating a stream of persons suffering sprains and fractures from falls on icy streets. A light snowfall Tuesday which covered the underneath ice was blamed for most of the accidents.

AT THE CAPITOL — Monte Hale and Adrian Booth, co-starring in "Man From Rainbow Valley," Republic's action-packed Musical Western in Magnacolor, coming Thursday to the Capitol Theatre. On the same program "My Dog Shep," starring Lanny Rees and William Farnum. Both hits are first run.

Montreal Bids Last Farewell To Late Cardinal

Montreal, Jan. 22 (CP)—Montreal bade a solemn farewell Monday to the late Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve, a native son who rose from humble circumstances to the highest rank of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada.

Several hundred persons gathered in Windsor Station at noon when a special train bearing the Cardinal's body left for Quebec where the funeral service will be held Friday. Hundreds of others earlier had filled massive St. James Cathedral for a solemn Requiem Mass.

Aboard the train, due at Quebec at 4 p.m., were high officials of a dozen Quebec and Ontario dioceses, including Most Rev. Joseph Charbonneau, Archbishop of Montreal, who officiated at the Requiem Mass.

The 63-year-old Cardinal, Archbishop of Quebec, will be buried in the crypt of the capital's historic Basilica and his red cap will be suspended from the ceiling of that cathedral beside those of his three predecessors as Cardinal-Archbishop.

CHAPTER 12

As she stood in a narrow dark hall, her hand lifted to knock, she heard voices and laughter. When Arlen knocked, Elissa's pleasant voice said, "Come in!" And she stepped into the small room to find not only Elissa but Julian Heywood and Renny.

"Speaking of the devil," said Elissa. "We were just talking about you."

"And your charitable deed," said Julian.

Renny said, "I refuse to take the credit of getting this young man a position. The credit is yours, Arlen."

Julian cried, "Let me kiss your hand, Madame! This is a job after my peculiar talents. For what did I study advertising in college if not to work at it?"

Elissa said, "Renny came to tell Julian the good news that he has a job."

"And to see you basking in your freedom," said Renny.

Arlen sat on the day-bed and pulled off her black gloves. She managed a smile. "Renny, will you please give a girl with a brand-new diploma a job, too?" She laughed. "At the same moment I was deciding to look for another job, Louise decided she didn't need a secretary to take to Florida with her. Elissa, will the day-bed hold two?"

Renny frowned. "Now let me get this straight...."

"By mutual consent and with no hard feelings," said Arlen.

"You mean you're coming to live with me?" said Elissa. "That's just what I've wanted all along! Renny, you can't say anything."

Arlen looked at him, wondering why it was that when she was with him all other people in the room were only blurs. Only Renny, his brown face, his dark eyes, his gray tweeds were clear. He was sitting on a narrow ledge of window seat, a cigarette in his hand.

Renny laughed. "Why, I don't mind if you leave, Arlen. I'm not offended. Not in the least," and because she looked suddenly frightened and very young, like a child who has impulsively done the wrong thing, he put his hand on her shoulder. "It will be more fun for you living with Elissa. When I think of it, you've done magnificently to put up with Louise and Fanny and all the others as long as you have!"

"He didn't bawl me out either for leaving," said Elissa. "Aunt Grace will never forgive you, Renny, when she knows you've been here and upheld my bohemianism and my bangs. Arlen, you don't know Renny! There's a mad streak in him too. He doesn't always stick to the family traditions."

"Occasionally," he said, "I like to be treated as if I were a human being and not as a peacemaker in a temperamental family."

When Julian opened the door, Elissa said, "Oh, I almost forgot. I promised to iron a shirt for you, didn't I, Julian?"

Renny laughed. "The world is going haywire when the erstwhile debutante Elissa takes to ironing."

"You should see my wash—how nice and white it is! The last time I put so much starch in Julian's collar it wore the skin off his neck. But I'm learning. In return for washing and ironing his four shirts he takes me to dinner. Julian, you don't mind my telling Arlen and Renny you have only four shirts?"

"The truth never hurts me."

"I'll be gone only as long as it takes to iron a shirt," said Elissa.

When Elissa had gone, Renny said, "How different she is. For a long time she's wanted to live like this. She tried once or twice but she was so desperate she had to go back to Uncle Reggie and Aunt Grace. Didn't you say, Arlen, she was going to be in love with Julian?"

"If my eyes don't deceive me."

Renny looked at Arlen through the smoke. "Mine do—often. Don't look at me," he said, smiling, "as though you think I'm angry because you left the position I got for you. That's nothing. I'm glad you're leaving Louise except for one thing—I can't give the excuse of wanting to see my sister when it's really you I want to see. And by the way, when are you coming to visit my mother? She wants to meet you. She hasn't many friends here. Aunt Grace and Uncle Reggie visit her and bore her with talk that our family is degenerating what with Elissa living in a furnished room and my wife in Paris."

"Of course I'll come. What does Allison do these days?"

"Entertains the entire apartment house and all the tenants. I'm not with her half enough. You know, I often look at her and wonder what I'm going to do with her to keep her from becoming a social parasite. I should like her to be an individual, a person, not the stereotyped sort of girl one sees everywhere. I should like her to be like you, Arlen. You're balanced and you know the value of things."

"If there is anything about me to admire, Renny, my mother deserves the credit. I don't think I'm balanced at all."

"What are you going to do now that you've decided Louise doesn't need you. You can come to me, you know. I'll find you a position."

"Thank you, but I'm going to see if I am a girl of spirit. And, Renny, part of the fun is seeing if I can make my way myself. You've given me what you said—new faces and a new beginning."

"And Toby," reminded Renny.

"Yes. Toby, too, but he's gone for the winter."

Would they have another evening together, he wondered, when he would leave her, as he had left that night in the fog, feeling elated and proud? Questions! They plagued him because they could not be asked, because he had no right to ask: "Arlen, do you love Toby? What is this feeling I have for you—the feeling that I try to run away from when I find myself alone with you? At times it seems the natural thing to do to take you in my arms—but so many things hold me back. You sit across from me now and the light throws the shadow of your lashes on your face...."

When Elissa came back with a scorched finger in her mouth, he said, "I must be going. I promised Allison I'd see her before she went to sleep. She's behaving beautifully these days with Christmas near." He got up. "Since Elissa has become so expert at homemaking, why don't you get an apartment with a kitchen?"

When he had gone, Arlen said, "There goes the man I love, Elissa. It's good to say it. It's good to hear it. But there he goes, and as long as I'm in New York I'll get glimpses of him like that and be alone with him only when people do such things as....as ironing shirts.

"One of these days Renny is going to love you, Arlen, and know that meeting you on the beach at Ocean City wasn't a coincidence or an accident," said Elissa.

"It will be far worse for him to know." Arlen took off her hat and ran her fingers through her hair. "Don't you see? There's Allison, too, and the woman who marries Renny, if Christa doesn't come back, will have to share him with her. I love him so much," said Arlen, "I don't think I could share him with any one."

"You don't mean that."

"Oh, but I do. What is there for me, Elissa, but just to see him? Seeing any tall dark-haired man dressed in English tweeds on the street makes my heart leap. Sometimes he seems close to saying something intimate and then....then goes back to being my friend again."

Elissa smiled, looking in mock pity at her burned finger. "You're very kissable, darling. I thought perhaps when I went out to iron Julian's shirt, Renny might weaken. When he looks at you, I'm just not in the room at all."

Arlen said, "Let's talk about our future— the future of two working girls. Louise is leaving for Florida next week and when she comes back, she's giving a party on New Year's Eve."

"I can see it. Toby and Fanny and dozens of other people. If only you knew as I do the drama attached to those people when they're crowded together, and the things that go on in their minds and what they whisper to each other. And you'll be there, Arlen, running away from Toby's impulsive lovemaking...."

"I may be so lonely I won't want to run away then. You see, by Christmas Christa may come back."

"New Year's Eve," said Elissa softly, "Julian and I will dine in our quaint little restaurant and walk the streets arm in arm, and our penthouse will have stars in the ceiling and our guests will be the people who pass on the street. I love him, Arlen, because he's real and as much a thoroughbred as the horses he loves. What he says isn't a 'line' every promtrotter in the country has heard. He waited on tables and stoked furnaces to get through college. In the summer he worked on a farm. He wants to make enough money to go back west and make a down payment on a ranch. And when he goes," said Elissa, "I'm going with him. He doesn't know it yet, but I will. And when he looks at me, Arlen, there isn't any one else in the room either."

"And where shall I be," Arlen asked lightly, "still feeling my heart leap when men remind me of Renny?"

When she got back to the apartment, Richard had pinned a note on her bed. "Toby called. He'll call again in the morning. You need a secretary."

Next morning she was summoned from the breakfast table by Toby's call.

"How is the Virginia country gentleman?" Arlen asked.

"I need you to make me appreciate it," he said gaily.

"Toby, you will get to love it. Did you know that Louise is going to Florida and that I'm going to get another position and live with Elissa? We're going to keep house."

"I can't keep up with you and Elissa. You haven't asked about me."

"I was waiting for you to tell me."

"I have a job. Washington is seething. It's like war times, they tell me. It's almost impossible to find a place to live. With Mother's pull and my personality, I'm working for a man high up in government circles. We're—we're like that! The early call, of course, is because I have to be getting to my office. Oh, I'm very punctual with my new responsibilities. Young Mr. Sanner sets an example." He put his mouth close to the telephone and said, "Seriously, I'm doing this for you. You know that, don't you? Or don't you think about me at all? Do you realize there's a lonely young man here in Washington ."

"I miss our luncheons, Toby, and our dancing."

"I thought Renny would see to it that you weren't bored. Don't get a steady position, Arlen. Don't get any if you can help it. Mother and I will be at Louise's New Year's Eve party and by that time I'll have the future mapped out."

"Do you have your plans? You could fly up some weekend."

"And I was going to surprise you by flying over the penthouse throwing streamers...."

"When I hear a great roar in the sky, I'll hurry and put on my hat and coat and you can throw a ladder down to me, Toby. Does your mother fly with you?"

"No." He laughed. "She doesn't trust her life with me. Will you?"

There was gentle irony in Arlen's voice. "I shouldn't be surprised, Toby, if I did. My breakfast is getting cold and in Washington people are hurrying into government buildings...."

"Good-bye, darling."

3 HALF-SAFE GIRLS
could one of them be you?

MARY gambled with her popularity, not knowing some deodorants stop odor only briefly. Does YOUR deodorant really kill odor, stop your perspiration? Or are you only half-safe?

JANE risked a dress she loved, never realizing some deodorants damage or rot fabrics, others do not stop the perspiration which stains clothes. Is YOUR deodorant safe for your finest clothes? Or are you only half-safe?

SUE took chances with her skin because nobody warned her some deodorants are 10 to 20 times more likely to irritate. Is YOUR deodorant creamy, gentle, safe for your underarm skin? Or are you only half-safe?

DON'T BE HALF-SAFE!
get ARRID'S 3-way protection

1. Arrid really protects you from offending—is proved by tests of all leading deodorants. No other deodorant stops perspiration and odor so completely yet so safely.

2. Arrid is really safe for clothes—greaseless, stainless. Stops perspiration, so prevents stains and odor on clothes. Awarded American Institute of Laundering Seal of Approval—harmless to fabrics.

3. Arrid is really safe for your skin, declare skin specialists. Gentle, antiseptic, Arrid does not irritate. Smooth, creamy. More nurses use Arrid than any other deodorant.

Don't be half-safe. Be Arrid safe.
Use Arrid—to be sure! Buy Arrid today.

MIMICO PLANT DESTROYED

Toronto, Jan. 22 —(CP) — Damage estimated at $50,000 was caused by a fire which today destroyed a factory in suburban Mimico which housed the Victoria Engineering Company, the Exide Battery Company and the Klatte Furniture Bedding Company.

Fire Chief William Spindler of Mimico said the blaze was of undetermined origin. Piles of excelsior and hundreds of gallons of acid helped create dense black columns of smoke and gas pockets that exploded from time to time over the head of firemen.

FOR SALE BY TENDER

CROWN ASSETS

Type of Assets: RCAF Station, Trenton, Ontario.

WAR ASSETS CORPORATION will receive offers to purchase all or any of the Crown-owned buildings described below. The purchaser shall remove the building or buildings, fill in excavations and restore the ground to its original elevation, leaving the site in a neat and tidy condition in a manner satisfactory to an authorized representative of the corporation, on or prior to the 15th. day of April, 1947.

BUILDING No. 77 (Astra Theatre).
Consists of:
Projection room 14' x 14' x 10'
Balcony Dem.—18' x 58'
2 Store Rooms—18' x 12' x 8'
1 Entrance Hall—18' x 12' x 8'
4 Vestibules—5' x 8' x 8'
Stage—50' x 15'
2 Dressing Rooms—4' x 6' x 7'
2 Wash Rooms—3 x 6 x 7

Frame construction on concrete footings. Exterior walls ⅞ sheathed and covered with asbestos shingles.

This building described as Recreation Hall on site plan.

Sale of this building includes only such normal plumbing, heating and lighting fixtures as may be installed therein at the date of sale.

This building is sold for removal and restoration of site.

All areas and dimensions given are approximate.

A certified cheque or bank draft to the value of 10 p.c. of the tender price, made payable to WAR ASSETS CORPORATION must be forwarded with the tender in a sealed envelope plainly marked — Tender No. 402-401 for Building No. 77 (Astra Theatre) at RCAF Station, Trenton, Ontario, addressed to Branch Sales Manager, WAR ASSETS CORPORATION, 11 Jordan Street, Toronto, Ontario. Tenders will close at 12 o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, February 5th. 1947.

The tenderer must state the use to which the building or buildings, or materials contained therein, will be put, as this will be a determining factor in deciding the acceptance of any tender.

Tenders received after closing time cannot be considered. The highest or any tender may not necessarily be accepted. Cheques or bank drafts will be returned to unsuccessful tenderers.

The successful tenderer will, when notified of acceptance of his or her tender, be required to furnish a certified cheque or bank draft for the remaining 90 p.c. of his or her tender, and in addition, a certified cheque or bank draft for an amount equal to the estimated cost of restoring the site or sites as a guarantee that he will comply with all the terms and conditions of the tender. This cheque or bank draft guaranteeing restoration will not carry interest and will be returned upon the satisfactory completion of the terms of the tender. J22

$90,000 Fire At Kingston

Kingston, Jan. 22 (Special).—Fire early Tuesday evening gutted St. Patrick's Roman Catholic School, which was nearing completion at a cost of nearly $90,000. Seven workmen, who had been living in the basement of the building, escaped.

The fire was detected shortly after 6.30 p.m. By the time firemen arrived the building was engulfed in flames. Sparks showered a two-block area. All the city's fire fighting equipment was employed in handling the fire. Firemen were hampered by a high wind.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 22 —(CP)— Base metals were heavy traders on Toronto stock exchange today following Ottawa's announcement yesterday of price increases for the metals. Gains made at the opening held, although a weakening tendency was manifest when offerings were ready for any bids

A feature in the industrials was the Abitibi stock. Trading more than 13,000 shares in the morning session Abitibi Pfd. upped 1 5-8 to sell at a new high of 21 1-4. The common stock, also a heavy trader upped 1 1-4 at 19 7-8. Other industrials moved in fractions.

Golds were weak and oils inactive.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 22. (AP)—Selective bidding advanced a few leaders in today's stock market but failed to stir any general departure from a quietly irregular path.

Dealings were extremely slow from the start. The list near the fourth hour was well mixed.

The Canadian group was slow in early dealings. Canadian Pacific was up 3-8 and Hiram Walker 1-8 at midday.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, Jan. 22 —(CP)— Produce prices in the spot market here today were reported as follows:

SAVES HER CHILD

Brockville, Jan. 22 —(CP)— Mrs. Gerald Cross of Lansdowne township went to the door yesterday just in time to hear the cries of her three-year-old son, Jackie, as he lost his grip on the top of a well and disappeared in the icy water.

She was able to pull him out when he returned to the surface. The boy who had fallen into the well while playing with a dog, and would have drowned but for his mother's intuition, is reported none the worse for the mishap.

14 APPLICATIONS RECEIVED FOR COACHING JOB

McGill Uuniversity Has Not Decided Who Will Lead Team Next Year

Montreal, Jan. 22. (CP)—McGill University's Football Committee is still looking for candidates for the position of coach, although 14 applications already have been received.

The committee announced today that the job is open to the man "who we think can do the best for us." One official said, however, that "just anybody" won't do, because the coach who is chosen must come within the standards laid down by the committee.

The committee would like a coach with these credentials:

1. High standards of ethics and sportsmanship; 2. Able to take his place in university life; 3. Able to get along with people; 4. Teaching ability; 5. Ability to coach more than one sport, or assist in the school of physical education; 6. Employed full-time; 7. Having assistants.

The committee said also it is desirable, but not essential, that the applicants have had playing or coaching experience, that they be professionally trained in physical education and that they are university graduates.

No Mention of Names

The committee would not say who are the applicants for the job Doug Kerr gave up after last season when McGill won only one of six league games and finished in a cellar-place tie with Queen's University in the four-team league.

Frank Gnup, who coached Hamilton Wildcats in the O.R.F U. last season; Jack West, whose Winnipeg Blue Bombers were beaten in the Dominion final, and Roy Chesley and Glen Brown of Montreal have been reported as being among those being considered but there was no confirmation from the committee. West at least appears to be out of the running because the Bombers have signed him up for another season.

Kerr was with McGill for 11 years, but only as a part-time coach. The policy advocated by the committee of appointing a full-time coach would bring McGill in line with University of Toronto and University of Western Ontario, London.

The committee, however, has recommended there be no reviation from amateurism and that athletic scholarships, subsidization and scouting be banned.

FOUR BASEBALL GREATS JOIN HALL OF FAME

Carl Hubbell, Lefty Grove, Frankie Frisch and Mickey Cochrane Elected

New York, Jan. 22. (CP)—Four baseball greats—Pitchers Carl Hubbell and Robert (Lefty) Grove, Infielder Frankie Frisch and Catcher Gordon (Mickey) Cochrane—today joined 49 other immortals of the diamond in the pastime's Hall of Fame.

The quartet was elected to the Cooperstown, N.Y., Shrine by the baseball writers of America in a poll completed Jan. 15.

The election was the first under the new rules of the permanent Hall of Fame committee which confined the field to players of the era since 1921. No player active in organized baseball on the field in 1946 was eligible.

Hubbell, famous "meal ticket" of the New York Giants, who won 253 games during his momentous career, drew 140 of the 161 votes cast to head the list. Hubbell now is in charge of the Giants' farm system.

Frisch, the "Fordham Flash" of the Giants and the St. Louis Cardinals, was second with 136 votes.

Trailing Frisch was Cochrane, one-time catching great of the Philadelphia Athletics and the Detroit Tigers. Cochrane managed the Bengals to pennants in 1934 and 1935 and brought Detroit its first world championship in 1935.

Grove, Cochrane's one-time battery mate on the Athletics, followed with 123 votes Grove, who closed out his career with the Boston Red Sox, won 300 games during his stay in the major leagues.

PICTON CLUB "56" EDGES ESQUIRES IN CLOSE GAME

Picton —Reg. Fox and his Club 56 basketballers from Picton pulled an upset Monday night at Y. M. C. A. as they downed Geo. Faulkner's Esquires 44-37. The Picton win ties all four teams in the league with a victory and a loss apiece.

Picton got away to a flying start as they pulled up an 11-3 score in the first quarter and the Esquires, although they made it close could never quite pull down the big lead. Half time score was 22-15.

In the third quarter Esquire came to within 3 points of the leader but as the quarter ended they were down 30-23. Again in the final stanza the locals came close but could not seem to get the jump on the rivals from down south.

The outstanding player on the floor was B. Hayes veteran Picton forward with 13 points with Trebble, W. Evans and Joe Pair each accounting for 6 points. For Esquire Coach Geo. Faulkner was the big gun with 12 points and Johnny Hayman got himself 11 markers. Don Mason was next with 6 points.

Score—Picton: G. Clarke 5, B. Hayes 13, J. Walters 1, T. Rankin 0, F. Trebbel 6, J. Hepburn 4, D. Pard 0, C. Hepburn 3, W. Evans 6, Joe Pair 6; Esquires: D. Mason 6, J. Dickens 0, J. Hayman 11, R. McCabe 5, H. Coppell 3, B. Wright 0, B. Pigden 0, J. Williard 0, J. Whiting 0, G. Faulkner 12.

Referees: Ed. Shortt and Gord Bankier.

In the first game of the double-bill Ed. Shortts' junior girls walked over a very plucky Picton team 25-10. Led by June Mathews 4, Shirley Bunnett 4, Betty Holway 4, and Betty Zebedee 6. The local girls found the going fairly easy as they led 9-2 at half and finished very strong. These Y Juniors have the makings of a fine team and with more experience they will be tough to take. Austin Watkin refereed the opening tilt.

Next Thursday Esquires journey to Mountain View for a game with Doc Lyons' Bombers and next Monday Trenton Flyers are the visitors here. Next Monday's game will likely be at Belleville Collegiate if arrangements can be made.

GILBERT DODDS TO RUN AGAIN

New York, Jan. 22. (AP) — Gilbert Dodds of the Boston Athletic Association will return to major track competition in the Millrose games here Feb. 1, his first big meet since he broke the world indoor mile record twice on successive Saturdays in 1944.

Dodds filed his entry today for the Wanamaker Mile, feature event of the Millrose meet in Madison Square Garden, where he will match strides with Sweden's Rune Gustafsson and the top American milers now in training.

The former indoor champion and ordained minister, dropped out of competition after the 1944 indoor season, when he swept all his races, to devote his full time to the pulpit.

He started the 1944 season by taking his first Wanamaker Mile in 4:10.6, then added half a dozen triumphs in a row, climaxed by his 4:06.4 at Chicago which still stands as the world indoor record. Only a week earlier he had turned in 4:07.3 to clip 1-10th of a second off the standard held jointly by Glenn Cunningham, Chuck Fenske and Leslie MacMitchell.

FORT WORTH TIED FOR SECOND

(By The Canadian Press)

Fort Worth's rejuvenated Rangers last night doved into a tie with Tulsa for second place in the Southern Division of the United States Hockey League by edging the Oilers 4-3 in a hard fought game.

Third period goals by Johnny Baby and Stan Jones gave the Rangers their victory after Scotty McPherson collected a pair of markers in the second session. Rudy Drodeur of the Rangers accounted for the first Tulsa goal when he accidentally deflected a freak shot credited to Bill Wilson. Ecile Dagenais and Johnny Umbriaco notched the other Tulsa points.

In the league's other game Houston Skippers failed to hold a 4-0 lead in the second period and had to settle for a 6-6 tie with Minneapolis Millers. Pete Horeck was the big gun in the Houston attack with three goals and Paul Mundrick collected a pair while Eddie Young added the other. The Miller's goal-getters were Roy Kelley, Art Strobel, Thompson, Walter Melnyk, Leo Gasparini and Maurice Vaillancourt.

Byron Nelson Living Life Of Leisure Farmer

Denton, Tex., Jan. 22. (AP)—Less than 20 miles from Fort Worth's Glen Garden Country Club, where he began a career that made him one of the greatest names in sport, Byron Nelson lives the life of a farmer-rancher, content to be away from the glory of golf's big-time.

The precision man of the links seldom goes to a golf course these days.

Although Nelson will participate in the Master's tournament at Augusta, Ga., April 3-6, he confessed the game no longer holds much attraction for him.

Recently he turned down an invitation to play in the Texas open at San Antonio—a tournament that had become a "regular" on Lord Byron's schedule in the past.

"I like the association with many fine people which golf brings me, but I no longer enjoy playing," says the man who brought home $66,000 in links prizes in 1945 and twice was named the nation's outstanding athlete.

Y in Canada Contributes $85,217 for World Work

Breaking all previous records, Y.M.C.A.'s in Canada have contributed $85,217 for Y.M.C.A. world service work, it was reported by John B. Frosst, chairman of the World Service Committee, and Hartley Fowler, secretary. In this amount is $250 which the local Y.M.C.A. at Belleville contributed.

The $85,217 figure is $5,217 over the goal the committee sought to raise.

During the past ten years the Canadian movement has given a total of $563,371 for world service work. Since 1936 the annual contributions have grown from $36,000 to $85,000.

Canada's goal for Y.M.C.A. world service work for 1947 is $93,500 or one tenth of a total international budget of $933,500. This budget for the regular work must be raised in addition to $8,650,000 special funds for the World Youth Fund to restore secretaries who have lost everything and "Y" buildings that have been destroyed in all the war-ravaged countries.

THE ORDER OF ST. JOHN
Established 1099 A.D.

Over Eight Centuries of Saving Lives!

SINCE the days of the Crusades, the Order of St. John has been famed for its unselfish devotion to the needs of humanity. In 1099 its members restored the old hospital of St. John in Jerusalem and provided Brothers to attend the sick. And, during the intervening centuries it has been the means of saving literally millions of lives through First Aid and of bringing relief to countless sick and wounded.

St. John Ambulance, in Canada, today is an active organization which—without charge—not only teaches the science of First Aid and Home Nursing but also, through the members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, renders a First Aid and Nursing Service wherever disaster may strike or injuries be suffered.

The activities of St. John Ambulance reach into many fields. In factory and home, at sporting events and public gatherings, on the open highways and on city streets, St. John Ambulance steadily goes about its business of saving lives and alleviating distress.

When you support the activities of St. John Ambulance you play your part in saving lives that would otherwise be lost and in reducing the ill effects of injuries and sickness.

Egypt Entertains No Hope of Pact With Great Britain

Official Says Recourse To U.N. Is Now Inevitable

Cairo, Jan. 23 — (Reuters) — Anglo-Egyptian treaty negotiations have failed and the Egyptian government no longer entertains the slightest hope whatever that the two parties can come to an agreement, a prominent Egyptian official in close touch with the negotiations said today.

"Our recourse to the United Nations Organization is now inevitable and this may happen in the next few days, possibly on Monday," he said.

"There will be no treaty between Egypt and Britain."

Asked if Egypt would submit only the Anglo-Egyptian Soudan question to the U. N. or the entire problem of Anglo-Egyptian relations, the official said:

"We shall go to U. N. denouncing the 1936 treaty because none of its clauses is compatible either with the charter of the United Nations or present world circumstances."

The official added:

"We do not accept British or any other occupation and we are convinced that the British evacuation should be carried out in a much shorter period than proposed by Britain.

"As for the Soudan, it is clear that Britain is pleading not the cause of the Soudanese but her own.

"It is obvious that the British intend to remain the masters of the Soudan for decades to come and if you glance at the map you can understand how a strong power there can dominate Egypt."

Draws Parallel

The official, elaborating Egypt's case for unity with the Soudan, drew a parallel with the position of Scotland and Wales in relation to England.

"Would the English people today accept the secession of Scotland or Wales?" he asked.

"The same is true of the Egyptians in relation to the Soudan."

Summing up the situation, the official said: "The truth of the matter is that neither Britain nor Egypt wish to budge from their respective positions regarding the future status of the Soudan.

"We have exerted all possible efforts and failed. Therefore no agreement is possible and 10 months of negotiations can now be considered as having finally broken down.

"As for the 1936 treaty it has died a natural death and every Egyptian regards it as null and void."

To Receive King

Meanwhile, it was announced that King Farouk would receive Premier Mahmoud Fahmy El Nokrshy Pasha later today.

British circles in Cairo said they thought it was premature to speak of a breakdown as neither side had yet broken off the negotiations.

MINING MAGNATES LAY PLANS FOR POST-WAR PERIOD

Half-Billion Dollar Industry Wants New Policy to Provide Greater Assistance

By H. L. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 23 — (CP)—The place Canada's half-billion dollar mining industry wants and expects in the post-war scheme of things was on the record today with Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy recommendations for a new national mining policy to provide greater assistance for the nation's second largest money-producer.

The recommendations were made at the Institute's annual convention which ended yesterday after presentation of scores of papers touching on problems of mining and developments that made it a $500,000,000 producer last year.

Main theme came in the presidential address by R. J. Ennis of Timmins and Schumacher, who told the more than 350 mining men gathered for the convention that a post-war governmental new deal was needed. There should be a national mining policy which would be "sound, constructive and far-reaching."

Mr. Ennis said flatly that the mining industry was disappointed, that it had not received the period of recuperation that it had expected after the war. It was suffering labor troubles and from government restrictions, while other industries were "permitted to increase their production. In fact, mining had been left in a "very sorry plight," he said.

What was needed was a federal policy that would "put heart into the mining industry."

Mines Minister J. A. Glen earlier told the mining men in a luncheon address that his department was aware of their difficulties and was doing all in its power to meet them. He hoped that within a year things would be different.

The convention mining men listened with interest to a suggestion by Governor - General Viscount Alexander that Canada's Armed forces, with all their war-developed skill, might well be used to help in opening up the vast, undeveloped areas of the country.

On the technical side the convention heard through papers and speeches of the magnetometer instrument used to locate ore bodies from the air, two preventives against the dread hard - rock miners' disease, silicosis, and recommendations for mechanization in the mines, particularly the coal mining industry.

The convention heard about gold too. Arthur Notman, American mining engineering consultant from New York told the meeting he endorsed the principle of restoration of free coinage of gold by the United States. He suggested that this might help stabilize the world economy.

Montreal Included In Selke's Plans

Boston, Jan. 23 (CP) — Frank Selke, general manager of Montreal Canadiens, said last night that "I have no plans for the future that do not include Montreal." He made this statement when asked about his future plans in view of his signing a 10-year contract as general manager of a new hockey enterprise at Cincinnati.

Selke did not elaborate on his plans for the joint operation although he did say he hoped a Montreal - Cincinnati alliance would improve the Canadiens' chances of building up a strong reserve of players.

He confirmed that a large percentage of Toronto money was invested in the Cincinnati club which has an American hockey league franchise and plans to build a $2,000,000 area.

Scientist to Give Intelligence Tests To Octopuses Wanted by University

By ED CREAGH

London, Jan. 23 (AP). — The University of London put up a help wanted sign today for a man or woman willing to go to Italy—all expenses paid—and give intelligence tests to some octopuses, or octopi.

However you spell it in the plural; the octopus is an eight-armed creature with a nasty disposition and, explained Prof. J Z. Young of the university, a "nice, large brain".

"What we are doing," the professor said, "is investigating how the brains of many creatures work—not only invertebrates but mammals and even insects. Of course it is a bit of a problem to observe an insect's brain.

"Before the war we did some work on cuttlefish, which are bright enough but—well, they're not at all satisfactory subjects. They're very active (unlike the octopus, which takes his time) and they squirt that wretched ink all around."

The octopus has a few mental quirks of his own, like paralyzing his victims with some built-in poison before killing them, but the university expects its octopus man to deal firmly with any such show of temper.

How do you find out how smart an octopus is?

"I wouldn't want to go into too much detail at this time," said Young carefully. "I suppose we might give him some crabs in a circle. Then, when he was accustomed to that, we'd show him some crabs in a square—but they would be behind a glass wall."

You tell how smart an octopus is by counting how many times he bumps his snoot on the glass before finding out that the square has nothing to do with a square meal.

Other little-known facts about octopuses: In captivity, they sometimes chew off their own arms, right to the shoulder. They also chew up people, if they get a chance.

It is reported to be sunny on the Gulf of Naples, where the octopus lurks, and the salary is up to $3,200 a year for one with the scientific qualifications.

BOMBAY SHOOTING KILLS ONE, SENDS TEN TO HOSPITAL

Police Open Fire To Stop Attempts to Loot Shops in the Hindu Business Area

Bombay, Jan. 23 —(CP)— One person was killed and 10 were sent to hospital with bullet wounds after police opened fire in central Bombay today to stop attempts to loot shops in the Hindu business area.

The police volley rang out as anti - foreigner demonstrations and communal clashes were being quelled for the second time in 12 hours.

At the same time, police declined to interfere with an outlawed student celebration of the birthday of the late Subhas Chandra Bose, leader of the Japanese-instituted Indian National Government during the war. Police said the communal disorders between Moslems and Hindus had no connection with the Bose demonstrations.

British troops, wearing steel helmets and with bayonets fixed, were rushed to trouble areas in this great city and, as disturbances spread, further troops and police reinforcements were swiftly posted at strategic points, ready for immediate action.

In some parts of Bombay disturbances took an anti-western turn, demonstrators making bonfires of Occidental hats and ties which they snatched from passing pedestrians.

In demonstrations Tuesday and Wednesday—which started when students celebrated "Viet Nam Day" to show their solidarity with Indo-Chinese fighters against the French — two students were killed.

All Mills Closed.

Nearly all mills, workshops and factories were closed today and troops were on the alert in five police stations, but the birthday celebration got off to a relatively peaceful start. There was nothing to indicate there would be any such flare-up of anti-British feeling as occurred on the anniversary a year ago that probably was the worst single day of rioting in Bombay's history.

Students, parading in defiance of police orders, distributed handbills demanding that the Constituent Assembly at New Delhi establish a provisional government independent of Britain. Stone throwers halted bus traffic for a time on busy Sandhurst Road, but elsewhere shops were open.

Reuters News Agency said steel helmeted British troops with fixed bayonets had been rushed to the scene of the disorders and that 10 persons had been taken to hospital with bullet wounds.

DRIVER ESCAPES INJURY

Fort Erie, Jan. 23 (CP).—Horrified passers-by saw taxi driver James Storey's vehicle carry on over the banks of the Niagara Parkway Drive and leap down to the Niagara riverbank. But the car was not damaged, nor was Storey hurt. The car stopped just short of the river's edge.

Special Food Train Brings Supplies to Isolated District

Regina, Jan. 23 (CP).—A special train laden with food and fuel supplies drew near Riverhurst today after relieving eight of about 50 other southern Saskatchewan towns isolated by snow drifts described by railway officials as the worst in 40 years.

Toughest part of the 80-mile Moose Jaw-Riverhurst run was behind the train and it was due early in the day.

At Mawer, 30 miles south of Riverhurst, the train was greeted late by most of the 77 persons living there and the farmers of the immediate district. The general store was expected to remain open to distribute necessary supplies.

Towns along two other lines, however, Bengough and Goodwater, southeast and southwest of here, respectively, would not be reached until some time today.

Meanwhile stocks of food and fuel dwindled to the danger point.

At Goodwater, 80 miles southwest of Regina, Dr. William Mainprize of Midale was expected to fly in with a light plane on his weekly visit. The physician usually arrives by rail or snowmobile.

Fred T. Hill, publisher of the Weekly Gazette at Riverhurst, said the drifts were the worst he had seen since he had come to Saskatchewan in 1910. The last train to reach the town arrived Jan. 10.

"Old-timers tell me the winter of 1906-07 was the only one to beat it," he told The Canadian Press.

Shortages of bread, butter, sugar and yeast were common in many of the snowbound towns—none of which has a population of more than about 300 — but housewives were baking their own bread and at Bengough Paul Wenads reported from the general store that "everybody's eating biscuits".

The men feared a tobacco shortage more than they did short food rations.

C. A. Kelly, general store merchant at Goodwater, said "We haven't seen anything like this since 1916 when the rails were blocked for six weeks.

But with relief near, the situation in some places at lease did not lack its humorous aspects. At Hodgeville, 100 miles southwest of Regina, George Rambow found that he didn't have to shovel the drifts from his hen house at feeding time. He just drops the feed through the shack's chimney.

Cancer Research Film Missing at Montreal, Police Hunt Two Men

Montreal, Jan. 23—(CP)—Disappearance of an irreplaceable cancer research film from the Royal Victoria Hospital remained a mystery today as Royal Canadian Mounted Police and municipal police joined in a search for two men believed to have stolen it.

The film, a study of cytology, a new approach to cancer by microscopic study of individual cells, disappeared Tuesday shortly after it had been projected on the screen for benefit of 15 McGill University medical students by its producer, Dr. J. Ernest Ayre, an outstanding figure in cancer research.

Dr. Ayre said the film was completed a few weeks ago after six months' work and that it could not be duplicated. The cost of production was only $1,000 but Dr. Ayre said the film "has a great deal of scientific value and introduces new developments and new techniques."

"We are very anxious to get it back," he added.

After being shown to the medical students Tuesday, the film, in the projector, was left unattended in the lecture room for 15 minutes and both it and the projecture disappeared within that period.

Dr. Ayre said two strangers were seen carrying a case about the size of the projector and the hospital porter, hearing them say "We'll take this up to Dr. Ayre's laboratory," presumed everything was in order.

Plans had been made to show the film at a medical convention in Savannah, Ga., next week.

Police said they thought the thieves were interested in the projector, rather than the film, and possibly were unaware that the carriage contained the important celluloid document.

Commenting on official reports the film might have been stolen through interests of a foreign power Dr. Ayre said: "My cancer film is not a poison, nor an atom bomb, nor a deadly projectile, and as a doctor and a scientist I have been endeavoring to do work to aid humanity."

He said he did not think a foreign power was interested in the film.

Three-day Storm Blows Itself Out, Roads Passable

Toronto, Jan. 23 (CP) — A three-day snowstorm that drifted roads from Georgian Bay south to the Toronto area appeared today to have blown itself out. Snowfall continued at noon but it was expected to end by night. The high winds for the most part had abated and temperatures in southern and eastern Ontario started to rise.

"The roads in the storm area are not yet good but they are open," said a spokesman for the Ontario Department of Highways. "Driving is heavy in some sections. Along Lake Huron and immediately south of Georgian Bay our plows have laid bare ice left by the recent ice storms and rains and, in those areas, there are slippery stretches."

Driving conditions in the Lake Simcoe district, where drifting was especially bad yesterday, were described as "normal." Six to 12 inches of snow fell in the Barrie, Orillia and Midland districts, but snowplows cleared away the drifts.

Afraid of Drifting.

Highway department men expressed concern lest high wind later today might fill the plowed roads with the fresh snow that has fallen along the traffic lanes.

Forecasters at the Dominion Public Weather Office at nearby Malton said indications were the fears were unwarranted.

Increased Prices Will Help Owners Official Declares

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 23 (AP)—Arthur Lennie of Toronto, field secretary of the Canadian Restaurant Association, predicted last night that Canada's tourist industry would benefit by the Prices Board's recent order permitting increases in the price of meals.

He told the Windsor-Chatham branch of the Association that as a result of the increases, owners would "at last be in a position to go ahead with plans for remodelling their restaurants, which would prove a greater attraction to visitors."

Increased labor and food costs were responsible for putting many restaurant owners on the brink of closing, he said.

"If it hadn't been for a great volume in business, many restaurants all over Canada would have been forced to close their doors. The increase will affect favorably the whole Canadian economy in that the second largest industry—the tourist trade—is to a great extent serviced by restaurants."

NEW LOCAL RECORD

London, Ont., Jan. 23 (CP).—Some citizens are surprised at receiving two and three Christmas cards in one day, a month after Yuletide, but postal officials explained today that about 15,000 pieces of incorrectly addressed mail were received here during the rush period. It was a new local record. About 85 per cent of the addresses are being located.

HIGH PONTIFICAL MASS SUNG FOR LATE CARDINAL

Impressive Rites At Cathedral of Notre Dame Preliminary To Final Service

By GEORGE KITCHEN

Quebec, Jan. 23 (CP)—In a solemn procession through thronged streets, the body of Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve was taken today from his former palace to Notre Dame for a high Pontifical Mass preliminary to tomorrow's final funeral services and burial in the cathedral crypt.

Uniformed Knights of Columbus, Pontifical Zouaves and members of Diocesan Religious Orders accompanied the body from the staid, thick-walled Archibishop's Palace where it had lain in state since arrival from Montreal by special train Tuesday.

The cortege travelled a roundabout route to the historic Basilica, which actually stands just around the corner from the 100-year-old palace.

The body of the 63-year-old prelate, who died in California a week ago from a heart attack, was carried through the streets in a black hearse drawn by six black horses.

The funeral procession left the palace, where sorrowful thousands had visited the bier since Tuesday night, about 9 a.m. and reached the catheoral a short time later.

The Mass was celebrated by Msgr. Georges Leon Pelletier, administrator of the archdiocese, who was assisted by Canon Oscar Genest, Canon Bruno Desrochers and Msgr. Nicole, secretary to the late cardinal.

Today's service was open to the public but admission to tomorrow's final service, another solemn Pontifical Mass, will be by invitation only. James Cardinal McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto, will celebrate the Mass.

Following the service, Papal Zouaves and an escort of Knights of Columbus will take the casket to the grey subterranean chamber beneath the basement which serves as the Crypt of the Basilica.

There, with solemn ceremony, the casket will be placed in a long narrow vault close to those of three earlier Quebec cardinals. Later, the vault will be sealed with brick and a marble name-plate affixed to the wall.

STEER ESCAPES HANDLER

Toronto, Jan. 23 (CP). — A steer enjoyed temporary success in a bid for freedom in Toronto stockyards today. The animal eluded stockmen while being unloaded from a freight car, crashed through a board gate and into a city street. Policemen on motorcycles, citizens and stockmen joined in the chase until the steer evaded the mobile pursuit by taking to the railway tracks. As usual, the slower infantry prevailed.

Belgiam Tells Weird Story of How Countess Met Death by Strangling

Paris, Jan. 23 (Reuters.)—Leon Meurant, a Belgian mechanic arrested after the murder of French Countess Sauty de Cation, told French police the countess was "strangled by a spy in search of atom bomb secrets", a Paris newspaper reported.

In September, 1945, the countess told her husband she was going to Groningen, Holland, and was said to have left her home in an automobile with two Canadian officers, the paper said Wednesday.

Her unclothed body later was found in a ditch near Nasnierees, in Northern France.

Belgian, Dutch and French police took part in the search which finally led to the arrest of Meurant, who was living in Germany in the guise of a medical officer.

Meurant, now in Doual prison awaiting trial in April, was said by police to have confessed to having been a secret agent for a foreign power but to have flatly denied murdering the countess, the newspaper said.

Police say he gave this "cloak-and-dagger" account of how the countess met her death:

"I am certainly a spy for a foreign power and I had an important position.

"At the Palace Hotel in Brussels where I was on a mission I made the acquaintance of the Countess Sauty de Cation on the day she arrived.

"An officer wearing an American uniform but who had the exact appearance of a Mongol pointed her out to me in the hall of the hotel.

"He told me: 'It is necessary to watch this woman, so as to get to know her.' My companion was my superior. I obeyed.

"The countess playfully told me: 'You are a French officer. You can do me a service. I want to return to Paris.'

"I agreed to take her.

"After lunch I had a second interview with the Mongol who told me: 'Stay with her. Don't let her out of your sight. This woman has in her brief case important documents about the atom bomb. She is an agent for the United States counter-espionage.'

"I rejoined the countess, who invited me to her room."

Meurant alleged that when he left in a car with the countess he was followed in a jeep by "the Mongol".

"At Tournai," he continued, "we had a good dinner and the countess and I began to get very drunk.

"When we resumed the journey the countess who was completely drunk, took her clothes off saying it was hot in the car."

Later, Meurant said, he stopped to check his gasoline, when "the Mongol" appeared and strangled the countess with a silk stocking.

"He made me swear on my honor as a secret service agent to keep silent," Meurant continued.

"He threw the body into a ditch, covered it with sand and disappeared."

Maintenance Staff Refused Entry To Strike-Bound Mine

Disturbance Occurs When Morning Shift Reports

Noranda, Que., Jan. 23. (CP) Provincial Police today discharged a half dozen cartridges of tear gas when an augmented picket line refused to allow maintenance and office workers to enter the strike-bound Noranda Mines Limited plant.

The disturbance outside the plant gates began about 7 a.m., when the morning shift of maintenance workers who have been allowed into the plant on special passes were refused entry. Eye-witnesses reported some shoving and scuffling.

Office workers, reporting an hour later, also were prevented from passing through the gates and the night shift remained inside the big mill. A union spokesman said about 400 pickets reported at the mine at 6 a.m. compared with the 30 or 40 who have been on duty since the srrike began nine weeks ago today.

The strike was called by the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (C.I.O.), seeking a 16-cents-an-hour wage boost and a check-off for union dues. The company countered with an offer of a 10-cents-an-hour, seven of which would be retroactive to last May, but refused the check-off.

To-day's flareup is believed to stem from a break-down in negotiations for settlement of the strike. Labor Department, Company and Union representatives met in Ottawa this week and the gap between the wage demands was narrowed but the negotiations cracked up over the issue of union security.

About 1,000 workers are involved in the strike, half of whom the union claims among its membership.

15 Police On Duty

About 15 Provincial policemen, under Lieut. Vianney Seguin of Montreal, were on duty today at the mine, Canada's largest copper producer. After their brief clash with the pickets, they gathered in the employment office, outside the main gate.

They were joined by four policemen from the Rouyn Municipal force, while Noranda police toured the town to guard against any disturbance. The police were carrying their long night sticks.

An estimated 100 pickets kept watch over the mill entrance at 9 a.m., while the remainder of the original group of 400 dispersed into the twin towns of Rouyn and Noranda, telling office and maintenance workers, whom they now know by sight, that they will not be allowed to enter the plant.

GEORGES BIDAULT BACK IN POST AS FOREIGN MINISTER

Promised Virtually a Free Hand at Moscow Conference

Paris, Jan. 23 — (AP)—Georges Bidault, back in his old post as foreign minister, was reported today to have been promised virtually a free hand at the Moscow conference in a deal which brought his Mouvement Republicain Populaire (M.R.P.) into the new French cabinet.

Premier Paul Ramadier, Socialist, formed the six-party cabinet last night after five days of negotiation toward a permanent group to replace the all-Socialist 30-day interim government of Leon Blum.

This step completed France's political reconstruction under the constitution for the fourth republic, approved by voters last October, and gave the country a full constitutional legislative group — executive, parliamentary and judicial — for the first time in seven years.

The cabinet is made up of 9 Socialists, five Communists, five members of the M.R.P., five members of the Leftist rally (the Radical Socialists and the Democratic and Socialist Union of Resistance) and two Independent Republicans.

Bidault will speak for France at the Big Four foreign ministers' meeting in Moscow scheduled for March 10. Political circles said he had a promise that he could act in the drafting of treaties with Germany and Austria without constantly calling Paris for instructions.

They said he had extracted this promise in return for persuading his party to enter a coalition cabinet including Communists in high positions.

Bidault has been foreign minister ever since France's liberation, except for the 30 days the Socialists held power.

Lt.-Gen. Geiger Of Marine Corps Dies in Hospital

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP) — Lt.-Gen. Roy S. Geiger, one of the top United States Marine Corps leaders of Second World War, died today in a naval hospital.

His death came only eight days before he was due to retire from active service. He was 61.

A pioneer of marine aviation, he was known as a tough, hard-driving commander willing to take on any job he gave his men.

He commanded the air forces who invaded Guadalcanal, and then led combined army-navy forces in their island-hopping assaults across the Pacific. He took over on Okinawa after Lt.-Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr. was killed, and held the post until relieved by Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell of the army.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Jan. 23—(CP)—Synopsis: Except for snowflurries in the Great Lakes districts, generally clear and cold weather prevailed throughout the eastern part of Canada and the United States on Wednesday. Maximum temperatures remained below zero in Northern Ontario, near zero in Eastern Ontario, and between 13 and 20 degrees above zero in the southwestern part of the province. The cold spell will lose its grip on Southern Ontario today and continue quite mild on Friday as warmer air from the southwest enters the province. A zone of overcast sky and intermittent light snow has spread into Western Ontario this morning and should reach the eastern part of the province this evening.

TWO PAIRS SKATES AWAIT OWNERS

The unfortunate party apparently does not know it, but there are two pairs of skates at the Belleville police station awaiting their owners who a week or so ago by mistake placed them in the wrong parked car.

An out-of-town motorist had parked his auto on a local street and after driving home discovered the two pairs of skates, one pair a man's and the other woman's, in the rear seat of his auto. On the next trip to the city the motorist dropped the skates off at the police station where they are still waiting their owners. So far there have been no inquiries.

Claxton Defends Policy of Govt.

Toronto, Jan. 23 —(CP)— Defence Minister Claxton was among the audience when University of Toronto Hart House Debating Society last night voted 109 to 60 to uphold a motion of "confidence in the government's policies for rehabilitation," despite charges that the government had "chiselled" veterans and broken promises by changing terms of the Veterans Land Act.

Mr. Claxton himself took part in the debate at one stage and declared that every member of the veterans department was a war veteran; that there had been less profiteering and more honest effort for every dollar spent by the government during the war than in any other country.

Mr. Claxton said that more than 1,000,000 more jobs existed now than in 1939 "and if there is any place on earth where the rehabilitation job is being done more smoothly and efficiently we would like to know the name of it."

Footbridge Walk Too Balky For Versatile Jeep

Jeep snowplows may be the ideal machine for plowing sidewalks, but despite their manoeuvrability there are places where they will not go. Just this was discovered Wednesday evening by the driver of one of the city-owned jeep snowplows when following the light snowfall he attempted to cross the footbridge.

The driver apparently had cleared off the footbridge gangway walk and in attempting to gain entrance to the bridge proper discovered that there just was not sufficient room and after getting the blade of the machine temporarily caught managed to back away.

Another snowplowing jeep got into difficulty on Campbell Street when its driver in attempting to turn around at the Bush ambulance driveway, backed into a parked auto causing damage of approximately $40 to the door of the parked vehicle. Owner of the car, William Hall, R. R. 3, Belleville, discovered the damage on his return to his parked vehicle and tracks in the snow indicated a jeep had been responsible for the damaged car door.

they said, and the new move was now up to that government.

The Egyptian premier is expected to report to King Farouk on his talks with Sir Ronald Ian Campbell, British Ambassador in Cairo, concerning the negotiations.

The Egyptian government is believed to be turning increasingly to the idea of appealing to the United Nations Organization to deal with the issue, and Nokrashy Pasha is reported to have summoned legal adviser to prepare a case for submission to the United Nations.

FAMILY ESCAPES FROM FIRE

Toronto, Jan. 23 (CP). — By smashing a window and leaping 12 feet to an alleyway, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shefman and their son, Milton, escaped from fire which early today swept their home in West-Central Toronto. Firemen attributed the outbreak to spontaneous combustion in the basement and estimated loss at approximately $2,300.

Past Presidents Of Kiwanis Club Recount History

The splendid history of the Belleville Kiwanis Club was recounted on Tuesday at the Hotel Quinte, when the past presidents of the club now living and still members of the organization told of the highlights in their year of office as the club celebrated the 32nd anniversary of the founding of Kiwanis International. The luncheon was graced by the presence of the lieutenant governor, Elmer Cogswell of Kingston, who recited with the other members the re-dedication of themselves to Kiwanis. Jack White presided over the early part of the meeting and then turned it over to past Lieutenant Governor Cliff Baragar, who introduced the past presidents and the year they served.

In memory/of those past presidents who have passed on, their names were read by the President and minute of silence was observed. There was no special speaker but each past president in recounting the work of his year brought back a flood of memories to many of the members who have been connected with the club almost since its inception in this city. Russell Wotten, president in 1925, stated the V.O.N. was taken under the wing of Kiwanis and the club furnished a car to provide the pay for the nurse and this has been a great help to the people of Belleville down through the years. The first carnival was run in that year at the Armouries.

Picton Club Formed.

Jack McIntosh in 1927 stated the club formed the Picton club, which showed progress for many years. He also told of the trip to Rochester, where a Canadian flag was presented and the American flag now gracing the banquet room was also given by the Rochester club. Visits were made to the Toronto club and the Potato Club was formed which started a fine friendship between the rural and urban areas.

George A. Lee in 1929 with the help of the club organized the Boys' Band and made a historic visit to the Montreal club. Many on that trip will never forget the journey.

A. B. Collins, K.C., stated that the country was slipping into the depression in his year of office but the club increased in membership to 50 with four honorary members. A street carnival was held and Miss Toronto' of that year made a visit to the city.

Eddie Shapiro in 1934 claimed it was the spirit and determination of a group of men that kept the club going in that year. He stated he attended the International convention at Toronto and came home with a will to continue the club and the members rallied around and showed in no small measure what Kiwanis means and that the club had a real mission in this community.

Big Draw Made.

Cliff Baragar in 1935 showed that Dr. Bert Howard, now president of Rotary, was the first speaker in his year of office. The club was still feeling the depression with only $43 in the treasury but the big drive was put on and $13,000 was realized and real help was extended to underprivileged children. He told of the trip to the 1,000 Islands and of the visit of Fred McAllister of London to the club.

Frank Domenico in 1936 was responsible for the equipping of the playgrounds in Belleville at a cost of $5,000 but was later turned over to other interests by the wishes of the club.

Eddie Logan in 1937 administered the playgrounds and assisted a family in the city which was burned out and provided a new home for the V.O.N. on Pinnacle Street.

Jack Trudeau in 1942 claimed the club increased from 59 to 83 and in that year the blood donor clinic was instituted through the kind donation of Phay Wills of Kiwanis Centre and the work of George Wallbridge to put the building in shape. Between $13,000 and $15,000 is invested in the property and has been a force for good in the community.

12,000 Donors in Year.

Bruce Lattimer in 1943 stated that 12,000 donors passed through the clinic in the year and the first visit of an International President to the club in the person of Fred McAllister was made.

Jack McVeigh in 1944 with the club instituted the Roblin Lake camp through the generosity of George Wallbridge, who donated the property. He claimed $10,000 was raised during the year and inter club visits made to Oshawa and Peterborough.

Lorne McDougall in 1945 turned over $8,000 to the camp fund and raised $11,000 in the year. A trip was made to Watertown, N.Y. and the first of Schwab's Shows was put on.

Mark Vanner in 1946 stated the club emerged from the Great Conflict war weary but still full of fight and the organization resumed the life of free living. He told of the trip to the International convention at Atlantic City and the fame gained through the distribution of Cheddar Cheese. A new departure was the holding of Ladies Night in the beautiful setting of Albert College.

A vote of thanks was moved to the speakers by Ted Schwab after the introduction had been given by Bob Stone.

Army Cracking Down on Wearing Of Battle Dress'

The Department of National Defence (Army) is "cracking down" on ex-soldiers and others who are wearing their former battle-dress and divisional patches and decorations in civilian life.

Under Section 438 of the Criminal Code of Canada it is unlawful to "wear any uniform of His Majesty's land, naval or air forces or any uniform which is so similar to the uniform of the aforesaid forces as to be likely to be mistaken therefore."

Every person found guilty of the above is liable to a fine of $300 or six months in jail, or both.

But ex-soldiers, who wish to wear their former army clothing must at first have it dyed in any color they prefer. Wearing of battle-dress or other service force uniforms in the original khaki by civilians is definitely against the law and rigid measures will be enforced against the practice shortly.

Canadian Army provost members from headquarters of the Eastern Area were in town yesterday reviewing the situation and told the press that the wearing of khaki uniforms with accompanying flashes and decoration ribbons, by ex-soldiers and others, is definitely "out."

"We want to give these people a fair warning, but if they persist the law will be carried out," they said.

Soldiers are entitled to wear their uniforms thirty days after the date of discharge. Uniforms can be worn on special occasions and then only by permission of an officer in authority.

Fire Department, Hydro Thanked For Prompt Action

Officials and members of the local Salvation Army today expressed their appreciation to members of the Belleville Fire Department and to Hydro workers for their prompt action yesterday morning which resulted in saving the Citadel from fire which broke out beneath the auditorium platform.

Firemen were quickly on the scene following the alarm being turned in and held the fire damage to a minimum while Hydro workers turned off electricity thus lessening the danger of further fire hazard. It is believed that a short circuit in the electric wiring was responsible for the blaze.

"We were indeed fortunate that the fire occurred during the day," stated one Salvation Army official this morning. "Had the fire occurred at night it undoubtedly would have received such a start that the building would have been lost."

"We appreciate very much the promptness with which Miss Thompson turned in the alarm when she noticed the building filled with smoke," added the official. Miss Thompson, who lives next to the Citadel, alarmed the fire department when she noticed the fire.

Following the blaze which was fought in near-zero temperature, members of the fire department were served with hot refreshments from the canteen at the Belleville Sargent.

Salvation Army officials have been offered the use of the I.O.O.F. hall on Front Street in which to hold services, but it is not known whether this will be necessary.

Cost Accountants Hold Meeting

On Monday evening the regular monthly meeting of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants, Bay of Quinte Chapter was held at the Bar-B-Q dining hall with 23 members and guests attending, among the latter were a number of local insurance agents.

Mr. J. W. McClellan, the Superintendent of Agencies for Canada of the Norwich Union Insurance Socinety gave a very helpful and interesting talk on "Succession Duties, Estate Analysis and Wills." Mr. McClellan illustrated the different rulings as outlined in the Federal and Provincial Succession Duties Act. The speaker enlarged upon the many pit-falls in the drafting of a will. A long discussion period followed. The speaker was introduced by Ray Lennox and thanked by L. A. Pretsell.

Fish and Game Assoc. Favors First Monday in Nov. for Opening of Hunting

Members of the Belleville and District Fish and Game Protective Association at their annual meeting held at the Y.M.C.A., Wednesday evening unanimously went on record as favoring the first Monday in November as the opening of the hunting season for the district south of the Mattawa River.

The resolution favoring the above date for opening of the hunting season came as result of general dissatisfaction which resulted through different opening dates being in effect last hunting season.

A new slate of directors was named at the meeting which saw good attendance on the part of Belleville and district members.

Directors For Year

New directors include Dr. Van Blakslee, George Brown, George Wallbridge, Provincial Constable Stan Palmateer, of Bancroft; H. J. Legate, Elmer Sandercock, Col. Davern, of Wellington; I. G. Hefkey, Maurice Callaghan, Fred Croft, "Sandy" Lummiss and J. E. Shortt. These directors will meet on Friday evening to elect officers for the association for the current year.

Report of the last season's restocking activities was given by Elmer Sandercock on behalf of Dr. Blakslee who could not attend the meeting.

The report showed that 191 applications for fish fry had been filled during the year, necessitating considerable effort on the part of volunteer members of the association in giving their time to see that the fry were placed in the proper lakes and streams.

Waters Restocked

According to the report 12 lakes and streams had been restocked with 'lunge; 16 lakes with pickerel; 30 lakes with small mouthed bass; four lakes with herring; 35 lakes with lake trout and 87 lakes and streams with speckled trout. Two applications each for land-locked salmon and rainbow trout had not been filled.

Restocking of lakes and streams had been started in the local district in 1935 when 24 lakes were restocked. These had been restocked every year, while future aims of the association were to restock every lake and stream in the district.

As president of the association Mr. J. E. Shortt gave a resume of the past year's activities, referring to the fact that the game and fisheries department had been taken over by the Department of Lands and Forests. This, he said, had increased the efficiency of both departments as game wardens had been made forest rangers and forest rangers had been empowered to act as game wardens.

Capt. Bottum Thanked.

President Shortt expressed the association's appreciation to Capt. Bottum for his efforts in increasing membership which now stands at 668 paid members.

"Sandy" Lummiss presented the secretary-treasurer's report showing a good balance after the year's operation. The association had forwarded a cheque for $25 to Stan Palmateer at Bancroft to be applied to the Davidson triplets fund started in that village.

Entries in the various fish contests sponsored by the association were read by Fred Croft with prizes to the winners to be presented on the occasion of the association banquet to be staged at St. Andrew's Sunday School room on February 12th.

Prize Entries.

Entries in the contests were as follows: Speckled trout, Fred Croft, 4 lb. 1½ oz.; T. Y. Wills, 3 lb. 9 oz.; H. Weese, 3 lb. 4 oz. and J. E. Shortt, 2 lb. 4 oz. Two prizes will be awarded in the above class.

One entry was submitted in the speckled trout (local) class, this being a 1 lb. 8 oz. fish caught by R. Weese. There was one 'lunge entry, that of E. Hinchcliffe at 32 lbs. Small mouth bass, J. E. Shortt, 4 lb. 4 oz.; pickerel, 5 lb. 7 oz., W. Simpson, and pike, J. E. Palmer, 13 lbs.

1,333 Births Registered In City in 1946

An all-time high in the number of births in this city in any one year was established during 1946 when a total of 1,333 births were registered, according to city hall officials.

Last year's record for births topped that of 1946 when 1,047 were registered. Births in Belleville topped the 1,000 mark for the first time in 1943 with 1,022. Non-residential births last year totalled 862, while the full total was made up of 672 girls and 661 boys.

Dan Cupid also had a good year in the city with a record being established in the number of marriages. Weddings totalled 292 which was 47 up from the previous year, while in 1944 there were but 190. The wartime peak for marriages was in 1941 with a total of 218.

Deaths in the city showed a drop from the previous year, there being a total of 333 with 176 being residential. Highest number of deaths recorded in the city in any one year was 342 in 1945.

Gas Shortage Keeps Cook Working All Day

Niagara Falls, Jan. 23 — (CP) — A shortage of natural gas in the Falls was felt keenly by the cooking staff of one of the city's hotel's Wednesday when a local hockey team and their fans — 220 in all — gathered for a testimonial dinner. The hotel, equipped with gas cookers, had to keep cooks working all day to fry chickens on any equipment available.

Special Course In Scout Training, Public Invited

With local Scout leaders highly keyed in preparation for commencement of the lectures on Friday evening, the general public is cordially invited to attend the special course in Scout leadership training which is being staged in the Armouries this weekend.

The training course is the most important activity ever undertaken in Scouting in Belleville and it is expected that over 60 patrol leaders from Belleville and district will convene for the two-day course which will be concluded by a banquet in Christ Church Parish Hall on Saturday evening.

Object of the course is to instruct patrol leaders in their duties, thus assuring competent scoutmasters for the future. Special speakers will be on hand from Peterborough, Kingston and Picton as well as Belleville, the lectures to be held Friday evening and both morning and afternoon on Saturday.

Choice of this city as a locale for the training course is appropriate as Scouting has seen a remarkable rejuvenation within the past year. There are now approximately 245 Boy Scout and Wolf Cub members with two additional troops being formed.

During January local Scouts have been "up to their ears," so to speak, in the National Scout Waste Paper Drive, with Belleville Scouts up to date having collected three and one half tons. The paper drive is still continuing.

Teck Township Police Commended

Kirkland Lake, Jan. 23 (CP) —Teck Township police, who keep law and order in Kirkland Lake and the surrounding gold mining area, came in for commendation at last night's Police Commission meeting.

Commissioner W. H. Stringer of the Ontario Provincial Police sent the Police Commission a letter which praised the work of township police in assisting in the capture of two Montreal gunmen at nearby Dane. Police on snowshoes trailed the men following a lunch counter holdup.

The Commission issued a citation of merit to Sgt. Gordon Smith for his capture of William Steinfield of Toronto, after a gunfight last week at suburban federal townsite. Steinfield is awaiting trial on a charge of attempting to murder William O'Donoghue, said to be a friend of Steinfield's wife, and of shooting with intent to kill a police officer.

Reeve and Shipley was re-elected chairman of the Commission. The other members are Magistrate S. Atkinson and District Judge J. B. Robinson.

Our Winters

Canadians have always felt proud of their winters as one of the attractions of this land. They have pointed to the healthy sports in which the people, especially the young indulge during this time of the year, enjoying a new setting when nature adds a variety of appeal that every land cannot possess or claim. While customs have changed with the passing years, for the motorcar has brought many of these changes and in winter it has taken the place of sleighs and sleds, there are winter sports and attractions to which the motorcars can carry larger numbers than used to use sleighs and the bobs.

On this question of the appeal of Canada in winter sports, Montreal Gazette has drawn attention to this country as a paradise of seasonable competitions and sports which are the envy of many parts of the world. Attention is also drawn to what a recent newcomer to Canada, no other than His Excellency the Governor General, Viscount Alexander, a man who can appreciate just what the climate of Canada in the winter means to Canadians, said. Lord Alexander called winter one of the great charms of this country and he urged those who were inclined to grumble "to get out into the snow and ice." As well he showed that "you have at your doorstep here what people in England pay a great deal of money for when they go to Swtizerland. I think that winter sports should be encouraged and developed."

Canada might well take his advice and those who admire the winter season appreciate His Excellency's understanding of the healthful conditions which winter makes possible.

Since the beginning of the year Canadians in these parts feel that they have had quite a share of the winter season, yet they have also had one of the great privileges brought to their doors and to their lawns, fields and hills, the opportunity for happy play by little Canadian boys and girls even on the coldest days. There is not a community in Canada where snow falls but has had plenty of occasions to watch young Canada at play in the snow, building up ruggedness and health with the bracing air, triumphing over the obstacles of snow and playing games. That is possible only in a land where snow comes.

Then Canada has the natural setting for winter when it comes. Everywhere are beauty of nature, ruggedness and attention on that season of rest in nature which makes this one of the most fertile and greatest agricultural lands in the world and hence one of the granaries of the human race. Winter brings the variety in jobs, sports, customs, which enrich the experiences of the people.

Winter sports will continue to grow. Hockey and skiing continue to draw the attention of the people more and more.

Of course winter helps to make the Canadian rugged, healthy and resourceful and a lover of nature's scenery, which differs so greatly from that of spring, summer and autumn. During this season nature has everyday appeal, which few if any would give up for a year that lacked the attraction that winter contributes to the yearly round of weather conditions.

Appeal For More Nurses

A few days ago Viscountess Alexander made an appeal to the life of service open to young girls and young women in the nursing profession, stressing the urgent need of many more offering themselves to the profession which in time of peace and war does a service of value to the nation and to individuals. Her appeal made during a radio broadcast under the auspices of the Federal Department of Labor was timely owing to the shortage existing in a time when the work of nurses and hospitalization are expanding and the question of public and individual health is to the front.

No age has so stressed health as this age and the value of this stressing of health and taking measures to safeguard it and develop it is indicated in the improvement as regards maternal and infant mortality which has decreased in the most satisfactory manner.

The occupation of healing is one of the most important in the nation's welfare for the health of the public and of the individual are paramount necessities of life. So shortage of nurses becomes a matter of concern to the nations and to every citizen.

It is hoped that the result of the campaign will be to lead many to enter this as their chosen profession in which the opportunities of doing good are apparent and known to everyone.

Most Noble Order

"Take thou this Garter, to tie about thy leg for thine honor and renown." In those words the Sovereign institutes a new Knight of Most Noble Order.

It may be a far cry from this atomic age to the high chivalric time when a King of England sounded an Order of Knights to be his closest personal associates in tiltyard and battlefield, but though outward forms may have changed, who shall say that the English heroic tradition is dead?

Within a few months of the 600th anniversary of its foundation, the Order has now returned to the Royal prerogative, which means that the King has taken into his own hands the nomination of Knights of the Garter, and will in future confer the honor without consulting any political minister.

This may at first sight seem a backward step; but it means that the Order is now, is it was in the beginning, above politics. The Sovereign is not concerned with a man's political success but only with his outstanding services to the people, notes London Daily Mail.

Calculators

The electric brain which calculates without reasoning has had some curious parallels among humans, says The Manchester Guardian. There would even seem, indeed, to be some queer affinity between "lighting calculation" and lack of reason.

A few years ago a leading medical journal gave an account of a mentally defective man of 32 who could neither read nor write, yet could calculate dates past or future—as for instance, the day on which Christmas would fall in 1990—in a few seconds. Maeterlinck, too, has recorded the case of a man named Fluery, whom he encountered at Armentieres, who, blind, degenerated and confined in an asylum, calculated for him in one minute the correct number of days in 39 years, eight months, 12 days, and extracted the square root of four-figure numbers in a couple of seconds.

Even more remarkable was the case of Manoel Moreira, a blind, mentally defective Lisbon youth, who was tested by a group of eminent Portuguese mathematicians. Set to multiply sums of 12 figures by sums of six figures, divide 21 figures by 15 figures, and so on for an hour on end, he solved every problem instantly and correctly. At the end of the hour he could repeat the details and answers of every problem set.

Home, James . . . ! !

At a recent reunion of veterans who once drove London's horse cabs the opinion was voiced that the horse had one advantage over the motor—it could find its way home in a fog, says Christian Science Monitor. It is true that, as London bus and taxi drivers have again been forcibly reminded this winter, their machines are sadly lacking in the homing instinct when a London "particular" comes and "rubs its back upon the window pane." Many a bus is then in the position of James Morrison's mother, who was

Last seen
Wandering vaguely.

Where does the remedy lie? Presumably not in a return to Dobbin, but conceivably in some use of F.I.D.O. Or will there be a radar bus in the future—thus equipping Mr. Tony Weller's successor with something like those "patent double million magnifyin' gas microscopes of hextra power?"

TURKEY CARVER'S PLEA

I am very fond of turkey, but to carve one bothers me.
Instead of just one wishbone, I've a crying need for three.
With a trio at the table—seven and six and half-past two—
Each one pleading for the wishbone, what's the carver going to do?

For the ones who fancy white meat, there is plenty on the bird.
But with three demanding drumsticks, how am I to please the third?
And I never carve a turkey but a sigh or two it brings,
Since for all who ask to have one, there are not sufficient wings.

Oh, you clever turkey breeders, with your ever growing flock,
Who with skill and care and feeding have produced a better stock,
Heed this pleading of a grandpa who has need for wishbones three:
Grow a triple-wishboned turkey, so that tears he'll never see.

30 YEARS AGO

JAN. 23RD., 1917

Belleville's poultry show, which is now in progress at the market building is easily the best that has been held since the show was organized here some years ago. Last year the entries were 1700, this year the entries total 1800.

Col. S. S. Lazier and Mrs. Lazier have left for Venice, California, where they will spend three months.

About fifty young people, members of the Epworth League in connection with Holloway Street Methodist Church, visited the League at the Bayside Church recently. The journey was made in sleighs along the ice on the bay shore and upsets were narrowly avoided several times. Messrs. Pimlott and Hinchey kept everyone in good humor and their songs were quite appropriate. An enjoyable time was spent with the members of the Bayside League, the president of which is Mr. Reach. The president of the Holloway Church League is Mr. Bateman.

40 YEARS AGO

JAN. 23RD., 1907

Mr. A. Wilson of Saskatoon, Sask., is visiting his cousin, Mrs. L. Ketcheson, in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Hess entertained the "P. W." Club, in connection with the Y.M.C.A. at their home last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Hogle, who reside in the 2nd concession of Sidney township, were agreeably surprised recently by a large number of friends who during the course of a pleasant social evening presented them with a handsome hall rack. Mr. and Mrs. Hogle will take up residence in Belleville shortly.

Mr. J. P. C. Phillips has resigned his position with the local office of the Sun and Hastings Savings and Loan Company and has been appointed manager of the Belleville branch of the Monarch Bank which will open an office here shortly.

50 YEARS AGO

JAN. 23RD., 1897

Mr. Frank McKeown, manager of the Belleville hockey team has received word from the Cornwall team stating that they can not come here for a match this week.

The Citizens' Dairy delivery sleigh partly overturned in a snow drift this morning and about fifty quarts of milk were lost.

Mr. Fred Galloway is home from Buffalo, N.Y., on a visit.

Owing to the absence of Mr. J. R. Herdman, the gymnasium class at the Y.M.C.A. will be taken this evening by Mr. F. B. Stafford the Physical Director at Albert College.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What are the apes of Gibraltar?

The apes of Gibraltar are monkeys on the Rock of Gibraltar. They are the only species of wild monkeys in Europe and are called Barbary apes because they are native to that part of Africa known as the Barbary Coast.

The presence of these apes on the European side was formerly believed to prove that Spain and Morocco were linked together by land in the pleistocene period, but the absence of ape fossils in the caves of Gibraltar suggests that these apes may be descended from animals introduced there by the Romans or the Moors. Gabel Musa, a rocky mountain on the African side of the Strait of Gibraltar, is called "Montana de la Monas," the hill of monkeys," by the Spanish because it is inhabited by Barbary apes.

The Barbary ape, also known as magot, belongs to the macque family and is closely related to the baboon. It is about as large as a medium-sized dog, is yellowish white below, is tailless, has a squarish, long snout, has a naked and flesh-colored face except where matted tufts of hair protrude from the cheeks and forehead, is terrestrial, and generally goes about in droves led by a large male. Members of this species are intelligent and are often trained for exhibition purposes.

At Gibraltar they live in the caves and crevices in the promontory, especially on "Monkey Rock." The natives in the region say the Gibraltar apes came there through a secret tunnel under the Strait and that they use the same passage to return to Africa to die.

These interesting apes, which are privileged characters at Gibraltar, always excite the interest of travellers and many odd things are told about them. On one occasion, according to a common story, the Spanish prepared to retake the stronghold by surprise. The British sentinel had fallen asleep and the attack might have succeeded had not a Barbery ape, rummaging for food in the camp, knocked over a pot of beans and waked the sentry. Another version of the story is that a British sergeant observed an ape holding its ear to a drum. Investigation revealed that the noise in the drum that the ape was listening to was caused by the Spanish undermining the Rock, whereupon the British countermined, blew up the enemy and saved the fortress.

The Gibraltar apes are treated almost like sacred animals. They are jealously guarded by the British soldiers, who see that they get plenty to eat. To kill one of these apes, or even to annoy one, is a serious offense. "The British will leave when the apes do," is a saying among the Spanish in the vicinity. When the Barbary ape colony dwindles in numbers to the point of extinction, the British, taking no chances with the proverb, secretly import apes from Tangier to replenish the stock. This was done in 1740 and in 1930. In 1941, as an emergency war measure during the Second World War, all animals at Gabraltar were ordered killed—all but the secred apes.

TOLD TO BE CAREFUL

Windsor, Jan. 23 — (CP) — Windsor restaurant owners were told last night they would be "cutting their own throats" if they took full advantage of a recent Prices Board order allowing increases in meal prices.

Controls Removed From Saint John Milk Prices

Fredericton, Jan. 23. (CP)—Action of certain producers in withholding milk from Saint John consumers after failing to obtain a price increase and their decision to buy a Saint John dairy to handle their product has led the New Brunswick Dairy Products Commission to revoke its order relating to the Saint John area. This eliminates government control over the price of milk to producers and consumers in the district.

Possibility of a price war was seen if the new dairy owners or one of the other three Saint John Dairies choose to change the present retail rate of 15 cents per quart.

A meeting of 160 members of the Producers-Suppliers Association for the Saint John area announced last night that they had agreed to purchase Geldart's Dairies for $56,000 after previously obtaining an option on the plant.

Following refusal of the Dairy Products Commission to authorize a price increase, the Association began to withhold milk from Saint John Dec. 10 and resumed shipments to Geldart's last Saturday.

Early today, the Commission announced annulment of its orders for the Saint John area, effective immediately, because "it would appear that the majority of the producers concerned no longer desire the protection of the Dairy Products Act as provided by orders of the Commission."

The announcement stated that the Provincial Dairy Products Act was created to stabilize milk prices and provide an adequate return to suppliers while considering distributors and consumers. Previously, the Commission said, the business had been "chaotic" as a result of price cutting.

Republican Basis For India This Year Forecast

London, Jan. 23. (CP)—Authoritative Indian circles in London today foresaw the possibility that India will be established on a Republican basis this year in line with the resolution passed yesterday by the India Constituent Assembly in New Delhi.

The forecast was based on this resolution, proposed six weeks ago by Jawaharlal Nehru, proclaiming unanimous determination to establish an "Independent Sovereign Republic of India".

The Assembly is just at the beginning of the task of drafting a constitution for India and the resolution indicates the pattern to which it will be cut, these sources said. But there may be delays and modifications, they added.

Once drafted, the final constitution will have to be submitted to the British Parliament for approval since India is governed by the India Act of 1935, a British measure which will have to be replaced.

It is understood the British Government will facilitate passage of the approval and London Indians said they hoped the measure would come before Parliament this year.

Nehru, a leader of the Hindu-dominated Congress party and chief minister of India's interim government, in New Delhi, yesteday expressed regret that the Moslem League was boycotting the assembly, but said he still hoped it would join. He added: "There has been waiting enough".

He recalled that the Congress party had decided there would be no objection to a monarchical form of government within India's princely states provided the people approved.

"It is inconceivable that certain parts of India should have democratic freedom and certain parts should not," he said.

In Bombay, the powerful Bombay Students' Union circulated handbills urging that the interim government assume full powers as a free provisional government.

FREIGHTER IN TOW

Hamilton, Bermuda, Jan. 23 — (CP) — A wireless message received last night from the damaged Canadian freighter Tecumseh Park said she was 200 miles northeast of Bermuda and in tow of the tug Mosopelia from the United States naval operating base here.

The 7,100-ton freighter sent out distress signals last week after she was battered by an Atlantic storm. The Mosopelia reached her side Monday night but reported the ship was damaged in such a way that she could not be towed but was proceeding under her own power.

GIVEN GOOD INSTRUCTION

Toronto, Jan. 23 — (CP) — Mr. Justice Thomas Clayton Davis, who leaves for his new post as Canadian Ambassador to China soon, picked a good teacher to instruct him in the art of using chopsticks. At a dinner here last night he had Chong Ying, chairman of the Chinese community centre and unofficial mayor of the city's Chinatown give him the fine points of chopstick manipulation.

THAT OLD SALLOW LOOK

Will smoking injure health in any way? Does it take away appetite and make one lose weight? Since graduation many of my friends have taken up smoking, and when I ask them why, they say it takes away appetite and reduces.

Please tell what you think of a diet of toast, coffee and cigarettes for breakfast, coffee and cigarettes for lunch, and meat, potato and vegetables with cake or pie for dessert and cigarettes for dinner, for a girl of 18. This girl is my sister and I want to help her stop smoking if smoking is harmful. She will not listen to anything I say, because I am two years younger than she is, but I believe she will listen to what you say. (C. M.)

Smoking before you have grown up is unquestionably harmful to health.

You have not attained full adult growth and development until you are 23 to 25 years old.

There is no foundation for the notion that smoking tends to decrease weight in the great majority of instances. Only when serious pathological consequences of excessive indulgence occur is the body weight likely to be reduced.

In tests of college students (Schneider's cardiovascular physical fitness test) the grade of smokers was significantly lower than that of non-smokers. That's where smoking hits first—in the circulation, makes the oozing, seeping or percolation of blood through the capillary spaces slower. There are no capillary vessels, just spaces between cells or fibres through which the blood filters while delivering its oxygen and other essential materials to the cell and taking up a load of carbon dioxide and other waste products of cellular function to be carried back to lungs, liver, kidneys or intestine for disposal.

One demonsrtable effect associated with this slowing or weakening of capillary circulation is the lowered skin temperature of fingers and toes following a smoke. The basal metabolism of smokers is constantly below normal—average of—15, and it remains below normal sometimes for months after smoking is stopped.

A common complaint of smokers who indulge to excess is acid "indigestion," and in some instances the symptoms become so troublesome as to raise the question of peptic ulcer—or the duodenal ulcer complex; in other words, symptoms difficult to distinguish from the symptoms of gastric or duodenal ulcer. Whether there is actual ulcer or not, if the patient smokes at all, the therapeutic test, not the chemical analyses or the X-ray findings, is the criterion. The smoking must be stopped, not just moderated, and for a sufficient length of time to permit recovery from its damaging effects.

Weakness of eyesight, restriction of the field of vision and in some instances partial blindness (tobacco amblyopia) are common effects of overindulgence. Even a degree of color blindness sufficient to disqualify the individual from serving in positions where recognition of traffic or safety signals is essential, may occur if the smoker habitually plays hog. Here again, only by giving up smoking absolutely and not by just smoking less, can the victim reasonably hope to recover normal vision.

Because of the damage to the capillary circulation and the metabolism of oxygen by the cells, smoking in youth has this characteristic effect—it gives the smoker a sallow complexion comparable with that of a person twice his or her age.

QUESTION & ANSWERS

Polluted Water

Is well water that is suspected of contamination fit to use for washing clothes, dishes, face and hands?

(Mrs. G. J.)

Answer—If water is polluted so that it is not safe to drink, it is not safe to use for washing clothes, dishes, face or hands. Boiling the water for one minute would make it safe for drinking, bathing or laundry use.

Oxygen

I am a chronic case of tuberculosis. On slight exertion my pulse....please advise whether I can get benefit from the use of an oxygen mask.

(H. H. S.)

Answer—Only your physician can advise you about it.

Ann Onymous

You may send me your reducing diet. A friend advises me it will reduce me quicker than the steam baths....(Street Address but no Name)

Answer—And then again I may not. Send a stamped envelope bearing your name and address, and ask for pamphlet "How to Lose Weight Safely."

Shortage of Dairy Products Blamed On Huge Exports

Winnipeg, Jan. 23 (CP)—The National Dairy Council of Canada was told here yesterday by President Robert C. Smellie that Canadians were short of butter and other dairy products largely because of huge quantities of cheese and evaporated milk for export to the United Kingdom and not because farmers, or the industry, were unable to produce what was needed here.

"Declining milk production has reached the stage where it has become a national problem of the most pressing type," he said.

The export trade in dairy products he described as important to Canada's economy, but said it would be most difficult to continue exports on any large scale in the face of decreasing over-all milk supply and ever increasing demands of Canadians for dairy products.

There was also the question of how long Canadians would continue to accept a six ounce butter ration and restrictions on usage of other dairy products.

Substitutes Used

Whipping cream substitutes were now on the market, frozen dessert preparations were taking the place of ice cream to a large extent and the use of butter was greatly curtailed.

"It would appear reasonable to assume that if present restrictions and controls are continued to the point where there is a decline in consumer purchasing power we may eventually have a great deal of difficulty in building up consumption to the levels which would have prevailed if it had not become necessary to impose such restrictions."

The decline in milk production was a matter of national concern to every Canadian, Mr. Smellie said. It had reached the point where a choice had to be made as to whether the industry was to be a purely domestic one or continue in the export field.

"If the latter Canada must find ways and means of encouraging farmers to produce more milk."

Earlier the 150 delegates from all parts of Canada, attending the convention, were present when E. T. Love of Edmonton, a former president of the Alberta Dairy Association, was presented with a life membership in the council. The presentation was made by Past National President W. R. Aird of Montreal.

Richard and Canadiens Wax Fat at the Expense of Boston Bruins in the N.H.L. Race

Defeat Third Place Squad 4-3 to Pull Closer to Toronto Leafs

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

In the diary of Montreal Canadiens and the personal journal of Maurice Richard, ace right-winger of the National Hockey League Club, there should be whole chapters dedicated to Boston Bruins under the general heading: "Dear Cousins"'

The Habitants continued to wax fat at the expense of the Bruins with a 4-3 triumph last night—sixth straight over the Bostonians since a 1-1 draw in their opening clash of the season. The victory put Canadiens six points behind the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs, idle until Saturday.

Maurice the Rocket padded his individual sharp-shooting record in sparking the triumph with a pair of goals. They were the 27th and 28th of the season for Richard, only N.H.L. performer conceded half a chance of cracking big Nels Stewart's durable all-time record of 325 league tallies.

Besides having their budding victory streak cut short at three straight ,the Bruins found their grip on third position threatened when the fourth-place New York Rangers whipped Chicago Black Hawks, 4-2, in the night's other clash.

Within One Point

The victory at Chicago lifted Rangers within one point of the Bruins while burying Chicago deeper in the cellar. The fluttering Hawks get another chance tonight when they meet the fifth-place Red Wings at Detroit in the only game scheduled.

Richard, playing his fourth full N.H.L. season, boosted his big time goal total to 142 with counters in the first and last periods at Boston. At tha clip, and if he should last long enough, the black-haired French Canadian could pass the goal-sniping of Stewart, the "ole poison" of the erstwhile Montreal Maroons who took 15 years to become the only N.H.L. player to pass the 300-goal mark.

Elmer Lach, the driving centre of Canadien's "punch line", set up both Richard tallies. Ken Mosdell and Butch Bouchard fired the other two for the Canucks, who led all the way. Little Bobby Bauer, and defencemen Jack Crawford and Murray Henderson were the Boston sharp-shooters.

The Rangers bagged a brace of tallies in the final period to break a 2-2 deadlock at Chicago. Tony Leswick scored what proved to be the winning goal at 1:57 of the last frame, and Church Russell added another.

The Blueshirts had taken a 2-0 lead on tallies by Alfie Pike and Phil Watson, only to see Doug Bentley and George Gee knot the count.

Sports Roundup

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 23 — (CP) — One of the outstanding features of the last sports year has been the upsurge of empire boxers . . . For the first time in nearly 20 years the United Kingdom has produced a heavyweight contender in Bruce Woodcock and the other divisions are also well represented . . . Nel Tarleton, the Liverpool featherweight, was scheduled to meet world champion Willie Pep before Pep was injured in an automobile accident . . . Freddie Mills came within an ace of whipping Gus Lesnevich, the world lightheavyweight titlist . . Jack Paterson of Glasgow still is the flyweight champion . . . Ernie Roderick is a contender in the welterweight division . . .

The Sun Never Sets

Canada too has up-and-coming fighters . . . Danny Webb of Montreal, the Dominion lightweight champ and former featherweight star, is headed for Britain and Australia in the spring, if financial deals go through . . . Should a deal be made, Webb would meet Vic Patrick, the Australian champ, in Sydney for the Empire Crown . . . Johnny Greco, also of Montreal, probably will meet Roderick in Britain sometime within the next three months.

Hard Rock

Reports from Australia say that Dave Sande of Newcastle, N.S.W., is the man to take on the mantle of Rudy Robert Fitzsimmons and Tom Heeney, "The hard rock from down under." . . . Sands, Australian middleweight and light heavyweight titlist, is a quarter-cast Aborigine who comes from a fighting family . . . His father was lightweight and welterweight king of New South Wales in his day and four of Dave's brothers are ringmen . . . In a non-title bout last October Sands knocked out Jack Johnson, the Commonwealth heavyweight champion, in one round . . .

Bernie's Coming

Speaking of Australia, it was learned today that Bernborough, the great Australian stallion recently purchased by film magnate Louis B. Mayer, is scheduled to leave for the United States Jan. 31 . . . The "Toowoombah Terror" will travel in a special box to protect his injured foreleg . . . In the United States Bernborough will stand at stud in Kentucky . . .

STEVE O'NEILL SURPRISED OVER GREENBERG DEAL

Manager of Club Did Not Know His Home Run Hitter Was on Block

Eridian, Miss., Jan. 23. (AP) Manager Steve O'Neill of Detroit Tigers was a bit surprised to learn that his club owners had sold homer-slapper Hank Greenberg—but, says Steve, "We'll get along all right".

The top Tiger expects some fine performances by rookies and some improvements in regulars who were fresh from war service last season. And he says his men will fight it out with the Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees for the American League pennant.

"I didn't know the Greenberg deal was on the fire," said the big ex-catcher in an interview, "but I'd told the owners that any deal was all right with me.

"Of course we'll Miss Hank somewhat—you always miss a home run hitter you don't have. But we'll get along all right."

Steve said Roy Cullenbine, slated to succeed hammering Hank at first, did "a very good job" in the outfield last season, and although he "didn't get a lot of home runs" had a far higher batting average than Greenberg.

Birdie Tebbetts, he continued, should be able to handle the catching chores he shared last year with Paul Richards, who has gone to manage the Buffalo Club.

"Hoot Evers, Pat Mullin and Dick Wakefield ought to show improvement in the outfield, as last year was their first out of service."

Steve didn't seem coy about his pitchers, either, admitting that "Hal Newhouser is as good as Bob Feller."

CANADIENSNAMED TEAM OF YEAR IN CANADIAN SPORT

Fitting Climax to Montreal Squad's Winning Third Straight World Title

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 23 — (CP) — The passing months failed to dim memories of the prowess of Montreal Canadiens for Canadian sports editors.

In the year-end poll conducted by The Canadian Press, editors from across the country named the Canadiens as team of the year in Canadian sport in 1946 — a fitting climax to the Montreal squad's third straight National Hockey League title and its second Stanley Cup championship in three seasons.

The 26 sports editors who participated in the poll named first, second and third choices and points were awarded on a 3-2-1 basis.

They gave the Canadiens 45 of a possible 72 points, eight more than the 35 which went to Toronto Argonauts, winners for the second season in succession of the Dominion football title. Third place went to Winnipeg Monarchs Cup triumph. The Monarchs received 19 points, just one more than Montreal Royals, champions of the International Baseball League.

Take Title in Walk

The Canadiens took their NHL title in a walk. They won 28 and tied five of their 50 games for 61 points, five more than the second-place Boston Bruins. Then they brushed off the challenge of Chicago Black Hawks in the Stanley Cup semi-final in four straight games and took four out of five from the Bruins in the final.

This capture of team honors was accompanied by individual achievements for the Canadiens in the 1945-46 season.

Goalie Bill Durnan won the Vezina Trophy as the leagues outstanding netminder for the third season in succession — and his third in the league. Leftwinger Hector (Toe) Blake carried off the Byng Trophy as the most gentlemanly player.

Seven players placed on the CP N.H.L. all-star team — four on the first team and three on the second.

In the last year-end sports poll, for 1941, Winnipeg Blue Bombers won the team honors for their capture of the Dominion football championship. This time, it was the post-season conquest of the Blue Bombers that made Argos the choice for second place, after they had emerged from a bitterly-fought season as Big Four and Eastern Canada champions.

GERSON APPEAL CONTINUES

Toronto, Jan. 22 — (CP)—Appeal of Harold Gerson, 41-year-old geological engineer sentenced to five years in penitentiary on conviction of conspiracy to communicate confidential information to Soviet Russia, continued today in court of appeal at Osgoode Hall. His counsel, Joseph Sedgwick and A. W. HUSKIES DEFEAT GROUP LEADERS BY ONE POINT

Pro Basketball Squad of Toronto Begins to Click in Second Half of Schedule

By GORD PAPPER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 23. (CP)—Toronto Huskies, with a minute toehold on a professional Basketball beachhead in Canada, appear to be getting a helping hand from Toronto District Interscholastic Athletic Association teams in "selling" the game here.

The T.D.I.A.9. ,managed to get Huskies' front office to approve a six-game schedule that calls the Senior School Clubs to the court before Professional Basketball Association of America games. Lew Hayman, Huskies' Court.

The new plan, effected Jan. 17 before 3,100 Toronto fans, turned the cage game into a glowing spectacle of collegiate sport with cheering sections turning out en masse to root for home schools and Canada's lone entry in the pro circuit.

Hayman said lads now playing in the Senior Toronto League will get a good insight into the game from those "who should know how." Added Lew, "If any player in the loop shows anything and can help the club, we'll give him a try if he wants it."

The Huskies got off on the right foot in launching the second half of their 60-game schedule Tuesday by squeezing out a close 72-71 victory over the western division leaders, St. Louis Bombers. Toronto, in fifth place in the eastern loop, has 12 wins against 19 losses, and will have to go hard from here in to make one of the three play-off berths in its division.

In the final drive of the B.A.A. championship wire, the top three teams in the east and west sections get an entry.

The second and third-place clubs in each circuit play a two-out-of three game series. Winners meet on a two-of-three basis in the semi-final and the winning club goes into the final drive with the victors of the fourout-of-seven tussle between the top two in each circuit.

The final for the B.A.A. crown will be a four-out-of-seven feature.

In the "selling" of this professional cage game T.D.I.A.A. heads don't see a nickel of the gate, playing strictly as amateurs.

THE JAKEYS PAY OFF! — The hockey Leafs' quartet of injured pucksters form themselves into an exclusive sideliners' club known as "The Jakeys" (title courtesy Tim Daly) and set the initiation fee at $1 per injury, at the same time neglecting to mention what they intended doing with the funds! From this angle it looks as though Vic Lynn had been appointed treasurer. Left to right: Bob Goldham (fractured wrist), Lynn (torn shoulder muscles), Harry Watson (knee injury) and Garth Boesch (groin injury). Watson depleted the club ranks yesterday by once again becoming an active hockey player.

Kansas City Pla-Mors Move to Top of Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Kansas City Pla-Mors broke the three-way deadlock for first place in the United States Hockey's Northern Division last night by trouncing St. Paul's Saints 9-4. Previously the Pla-Mors had been tied with idle Omaha and Minneapolis for the top spot but the Millers lost their chance to stay even by ropping a 5-2 decision to Dallas Texans, leaders in the Southern Division.

Butch McDonald and Ray Powell, each with a pair of goals, paced the Kansans while Frank Ashworth, Lawrence Silvestri, Dick Butler, Wingy Johnston and Dick added single counters. Bob Pirkpatrick and Ken Davies each scored twice to account for the St. Paul scoring.

The victory for Dallas increased their Southern Section lead to 13 points. Bobby Thorpe collected a pair of goals within a minute and 11 secondes midway through the first period and helped out in the Texans' second period marker credited to Gord Petrie. Petti Lund and Squee Allen tallied the winners' third period goals while Rog Kelly notched both Minneapolis points.

Mrs. Delina Noel Prospectress For Many Years

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 23. (CP)—She's a shy, modest little woman and goodness only knows what she'll say when she sees this story in print, because Mrs. Delina Noel, of Bralorne, B.C., doesn't like publicity.

Until a delegate was heard to greet her with: "It just doesn't seem right to see you without a pack on your back," any observer would have concluded she was one of the wives of the 200 prospectors, metallurgists, and other mining experts who met here this week for the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy Convention.

But Mrs. Noel, a well-known B.C. prospector, was one of the few women attending the sessions.

She and her husband, Arthur Noel, who died a year ago, started mining in B.C. at the turn of the century where he laid the foundation of the Pioneer and Bralorne gold mines.

In 1927 Mrs. Noel began prospecting on her own—for gold. And she has been at it since.

She has her own methods for tracking down the precious metal, and her years of experience have given her a broad knowledge of geology.

In 'General' Prospecting

For a long time now she hasn't gone after gold, but has done "general" prospecting, and during the war confined her efforts to seeking scheelite, a valuable alloy source for metals used in the manufacture of war implements.

Mrs. Noel is not only a prospector but also a skilled fisherman and hunter. A number of years ago she gained country-wide fame for having killed the largest grizzly bear in Canada—it weighed approximately 800 pounds.

Mrs. Noel is interested in anything to do with mining. For years it has been considered a man's world, but she feels that shouldn't prevent any woman who's really interested in mining—and prospecting —from going into it.

Come next May when the snow has disappeared, she'll probably put that pack on her back again and be off to her old haunts. For her the prospecting season lasts until well on in October.

Women's Activities

WHITE'S W.A.

White's District.— Mrs. Albert Jones and Mrs. W. M. Westfall were hostesses to members and visitors of White's W.A. on Thursday last. Following a delicious pot-luck dinner the meeting was opened by the President, Mrs. Walter Jones. During the meeting, Mrs. W. A. Jeffery was called forward and Mrs. Glenn Meyers read an address of appreciation from the members of White's congregation for her faithful services as organist of the Church during the past years. Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson presented her with an electric table lamp. Mrs. Jeffery although taken by surprise, thanked the ladies for their kindness.

A program was arranged for the year and other business was discussed. Several offered their home for future quiltings. During the afternoon and evening a fancy quilt was completed. Two new members joined the association during the afternoon.

Fashion Flashes

THE SUCCESSOR to the popular fuchsia shades for Spring prints is a delicate cyclamen pink. It is teamed beautifully with chartreuse and a soft peacock green in a lovely silk print that is used for a jacket and frock ensemble. The skirt has a pleated section in front.

SMALL AND NEAT shapes predominate in the average Spring hat collections. A forward-posed little hat of beige felt with a double-tiered crown and rolled-edge brim, is trimmed with green feather swirls that shoot up and down. Trim is held by green ribbon bows.

AN END to the overly-full sleeve is seen in the new fur fashions. New sleeves taper gently from the elbow and have a small turn-back cuff, often with a split line. Canadian otter is looked for to compete with beaver as a smart but long-wearing pelt, made up into smart greatcoats on double-breasted, tailored lines.

THERE'S PLENTY of plaid in fashions noted at skiing resorts. Warm and cheery is a dinner dress of soft, lightweight wool plaided in red, yellow, black, green and white. The top is a fitted jacket with a black velvet collar above a high, buttoned closing. Skirt is full.

VERY HANDSOME dinner suits appear when furs are doffed. Black taffeta and velvet combine for a handsome suit. The slim skirt is of velvet, and the fitted jacket, with its bustle-back, is of taffeta the whole front bedecked with an elaborate pattern of cut-out and appliqued velvet flowers and leaves.

WON'T BE SO LONG before we'll be thinking of Spring outfits. A beautiful ensemble uses navy blue wool crepe for the all-around box-pleated skirt and the short bolero which dips in back and has wide, rounded lapels. The blouse tops, draped cummerbund, bolero lapel insets and turn back cuffs are of red, white and blue against pure white silk.

A COOL CUSTOMER

Toronto, Jan. 23 — (CP) — A cool, casual thief walked into the confectionery store of Harry Birley in downtown Toronto last night and stood near the cash-register. "Stand back from that cash-register," shouted the proprietor. The man pushed him aside, opened the till, and walked out with $27.

Perfect Prints

By ALICE ALDEN

ADDICTS of print frocks are starting off the print season in high style, what with magnificent pure silk prints, glorious colors and wonderful designs. Made to add color and charm to an evening under the southern moon or the northern lights, is this Joseph Halpert dinner dress made of a Ducharne heart and bow pattern in black, Chinese red and white. It has a soft side drape, a slit skirt and a Chinese red belt accent.

Hot Soups for Cold Days

Some old recipes for soup start with, "Take 5 lbs lean beef and 2 1-2 lbs marrow bone". That would make soup a luxury in these days of rationed meat.

The French chef depends on the "pot au feu" for his stock. Into the pot he drops bits of bone from chops, parings from the roast, scraps of dried cooked meat, the chicken carcass, vegetable parings, outer leaves of lettuce or cabbage, celery tops, parsley, vegetable water, left over vegetables, bits of cold toast—even pea pods. The result is a delectable stock from which many different soups may be made. A free English translation of "pot au feu" might be "icebox soup" for so many of the little dabs of this and that which collect in the refrigerator would blend well and add to the stock.

Soup stock is better after it has been cooled and the fat removed.

Vegetables added the last hour of cooking keep their delicate color and flavor. If cooked for a long time they discolor and lose flavor. This is an advantage in making stock ahead of time straining it and storing in a cold place. It may be kept for several days. Vegetables, cereal, etc., may be added and the soup cooked just long enough to make these added ingredients tender—seasoning is added last and judiciously.

A supply of canned soups on the shelf is a boon to today's housekeeper convenient in an emergency and often an economy for the small family. A can of vegetable soup added to home-made stock will serve a small family several meals and give a variety of vegetables not otherwise possible. Mixtures of two types of soup make interesting variations. Mix a can of pea soup and one of cream of tomato and serve "puree mongol" or with a can of chicken gumbo and one of vegetable make "soupe paysanne".

Onion Soup Supreme

2 cups onion rings
1-4 cup fat
3 tablespoons flour
3 cups milk
2 bouillon cubes
1 1-2 cups boiling water
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon catsup
3-4 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper

Peel and slice onions thinly. Break into rings. Melt 2 tablespoons fat, add onion rings and cook until golden brown. Melt remaining fat, add flour and blend. Add milk and continue cooking, stirring constantly until thickened. Dissolve bouillon cubes in boiling water and add to cream sauce. Add golden brown onion and seasonings. Bring to boiling point and serve immediately. Garnish with chopped parsley and sprinkle with finely grated cheese. Six servings.

Hamburg Vegetable Chowder

3-4 lbs. ground beef
3 tablespoons fat
2 cups canned tomatoes
2 medium carrots, diced
1-2 cup celery, diced
1 medium onion, chopped
2 teaspoons salt
1-4 cup barley
1-8 teaspoon pepper
1 1-2 quarts water
2 cups potatoes, cubed

Brown meat in fat. Put all ingredients except potatoes in a large kettle and simmer slowly one hour. Add potatoes and continue simmering an hour longer. Serve with toast or crackers as a main dish. Serves six to eight.

Emergency Tomato Soup

2 tablespoons fat
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1-2 cup finely chopped celery with leaves
2 tablespoons flour
1 bouillon cube
1 cup boiling water
2 1-2 cups canned tomatoes
2 tablespoons catsup or chili sauce
1 teaspoon sugar
1-8 teaspoon paprika
3-4 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons chopped parsley

Melt fat, add onion and celery. Cook until tender. Add flour and blend well. Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water and add to canned tomatoes. Add liquid to first mixture and stir until slightly thickened. Add catsup, sugar, paprika, and salt. Just before serving add the chopped parsley. Six servings.

Suit for daytime wear
By VERA WINSTON

READY for autumn strolling is this neat little suit. The brown hound's tooth checked wool jacket is as short as a bell hop's coat, and has dolman sleeves and a high neckline. It is worn with a heavy beige wool skirt made with released tucks below the waist. A brown wool jersey blouse completes this youthful and cosy little suit.

French Mother Expresses Thanks For Parcel Sent

Mrs. F. W. Balcanquel, of Corbyville, has received the following letter from a French mother expressing her appreciation for a parcel forwarded and distributed in France through the Red Cross. The letter was written in French and indicates to Canadian Red Cross workers that their efforts are appreciated. The letter follows:

Paris, Jan. 2, 1947

Dear Sir,

"I want to thank you for the parcel given to us from the Canadian Red Cross. I did not write to you right away because I did not know just what to write. I received the parcel for my little boy. He is 17-months old and I have a little girl one-month old.

"I can't just put into words to thank you for all you have done for us who are so far away from your nice country, Canada.

"I am writing for my children, my husband and myself, wishing you a happy New Year. I am sending a picture of my little boy, also I am sending my address if you wish to write to me.

"Please receive our best regards and thank you again.

Mr. and Mrs. Bougnaux Paul

MISSION PLEA FOR ASSISTANCE

Toronto, Jan. 23 (CP) — In response to an urgent appeal for staff assistance, Mrs. Audrey Sharpe, of Georgetown, Ont., and Miss Muriel Lowe, of Moncton, N.B., will shortly leave for the Labrador Grenfell Mission to take up auxiliary nursing duties at Harrington Bay hospital.

They will eb met at Rimouski, Que., and will be flown to Labrador, making the balance of the trip by dog team and sled.

Both are members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade. Mrs. Sharpe was one of 221 members of the brigade who served overseas in the Second World War, as was Miss Lowe.

ALARMING INCREASE

Sydney, N.S., Jan. 23 — (CP)— An "alarming" increase in the number of illegitimate births in Nova Scotia was reported yesterday by Arthur Hill, Salvation Army public relations officer for Nova Scotia.

Mr. Hill told the Cape Breton Municipal Joint Expenditure Board the number of illegitimate births last year was 1,057, which he said was a 20 per cent increase over 1945.

$3,500 IN BOUNTIES PAID

Walkerton, Jan. 23 — (CP) — Fox-hunting is not a social occasion in this district, but a war on animal pests with the added attraction of cash returns. During 1946 in Bruce county bounties of $3,500 were paid for 700 foxes killed.

HIGH WORLD PRICE SEEN WOOL THREAT

Dunedin, N.Z., Jan. 23 (CP) — The future of wool is assured for some time to come according to F. L. Taylor, mill manager of one of New Zealand's largest woollen mills, after an intensive study of recent developments abroad.

Synthetic fibres have a definite place of their own, he considers, but will not replace wool for some time. The chief threat to wool is the abnormally high world price which may force people to use less suitable synthetics.

"In my opinion the greatest field for artificial fibres lies in the replacement of cotton rather than woollen materials," he said. "A large number of manufacturers are using synthetic fibres in place of natural cotton, because there is really not enough cotton available."

UNUSUAL PRODUCTION

Brantford, Jan. 23 — (CP) — A double-shelled, double-yolked egg is an unusual production for one hen in its life but Mr. and Mrs. Beckman, farmers of nearby Mt. Pleasant, have a barred rock hen who has done it t[illegible] — in two weeks. The last one was eight and three quarter inches in circumference around the ends and seven inches around the middle.

Dairy Product Prices Not in Line With Conditions

Winnipeg, Jan. 23 —(CP)— Present retail prices for dairy products were described here today by J. Peter Nadeau, deputy administrator for dairy products with the Prices Board, as not being out of line with existing economic conditions.

Nevertheless, he told the annual convention of the National Dairy Council of Canada, a downward trend in consumption was evidenced, this trend being apart from that compelled by rationing and other restrictions imposed upon dairy products.

The removal of the consumer subsidy last June did not affect sales to any extent, he said, but the price boost and removal of the producers' subsidy last October had resulted in a slight decline in milk sales.

The president of the National Dairy Council, Robert C. Smellie, warned members yesterday that they would have to consider how long Canadians would accept present restrictions on the sale of dairy products without becoming so accustomed to substitutions that their desire for milk and cream and their by-products would become negligible.

"If present restrictions and controls are continued to the point where there is a decline in consumer purchasing power we may eventually have a great deal of difficulty in building up consumption," he said.

The point had been reached where a choice would have to be made where Canada was to retain the export trade in dairy products or restrict herself to the domestic market.

The export trade is important to Canada's economy, he said, but it will be most difficult to continue this trade on any large scale in the face of a decreasing overall milk supply.

Rawdon

Rawdon, (Special)—Miss Gertrude McMullen and her girl friend from Picton spent the weekend with friends at Ottawa.

A baby daughter arrived on Thursday to make its home with Mr. and Mrs. A. Lloyd, a sister for Donna and Jean.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McMullen, Muriel and Shirley, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Bailey and Marilyn on the occasion of the latter's fourth birthday.

The finances of all departments were found in good condition and splendid reports were given of the past year with the hope that the year ahead would be as successful.

Rev. N. Cole spoke briefly of his work on the circuit and closed the meeting.

Little Benny's Note Book

Today in school I was making all kinds of different faces at myself in my little round looking glass with the avvertizing on the back, and I saw different fellows looking at me and laffing.

Proving they must of been pritty good faces, so I made some more for good measure, even funnier, making some of the fellows laugh out loud, and Miss Kitty said, Benny Potts.

Me thinking, Heck. And I said, Yes mam? and she said, I suppose what you are doing there is something usefull and constructive?

Yes mam, I said, and she said, In what way, please?

I was proving that human beings once descended from munkies, I said

Making everybody laugh for real, and Miss Kitty said, No doubt it's all so extreemly funny, and I'm sure I have no wish to discourage naturel ability in a werld that is so sadly in need of genuine humor

Making me start to feel lucky, and Miss Kitty said, Kindly step up here in frunt of the class.

Which I did starting not to feel so lucky, and Miss Kitty said, Now make some more funny faces, and any boys who laff may remain after skool with you so you can give them ferther instruction in ancient histery. Well, we're waiting, she said.

Meening for me to start to make faces.

Which I did, and nobody laffed no matter how much they probably felt like it.

The result being I had to stay all alone and write Idle Laffter Bespeaks Idle Minds a hundred times in ink without making a blot.

British Plants Due For Spring Cleanup

London (CP)—British factories need a general "spring cleaning" to bring them back to prewar standard but working conditions did not slip as much during the second World War as between 1914 and 1919, says H. E. Chasteney, chief inspector of factories for the Labor Ministry.

That is the conclusion he reached in his 1945 report, just issued —and so little repair work and refitting has been done since then that the finding still must apply.

Chasteney reported a substantial drop in both fatal and nonfatal accidents. The 851 factory deaths during 1945 was only a little more than half the 1,646 in 1941. Injuries at 239,802 were well below the peak of 313,267 reached in 1942.

The chief inspector said the dirtiness and shabbiness of many factories was revealed "only when the blackout was removed." One firm stopped production for 10 days and put all its workers on cleaning up. Ninety-three tons of dirt, waste and rubbish was removed.

Jersey Cattle Are Still Supreme

Breeders of Jersey cattle in all parts of the world will be interested to know, says Professor R. W. Wheldon, in "London Calling, that despite the German occupation of the Channel Islands 'the dairy herd was maintained at almost its normal level,' and that there has since been additional evidence of 'determination to further the progress and interests of the Jersey breed'.

On June 29, 1940, when the Channel Islands were occupied by Germany, breeders of Jersey cattle throughout the world felt deep concern as to what would be the effect on both the people and the cattle. Until that happy day, May 8, 1945, when liberation came, information of an accurate and reliable character was not available to the public in general. In the months that have intervened since the liberation, we have had time to assess the effects of the occupation on the island and the cattle in particular.

Breeders of Jersey cattle will be most interested in what happened to the herds. Every bit of available land had to be devoted to direct food crops, it was necessary to reduce cattle stocks to a minimum. Fortunately, the great importance of the dairy cow was recognized at the outset, and while regulations limited the number of calves that could be reared, the dairy herd was maintained at almost its normal level.

At the end of the occupation, there were practically as many dairy cows on the island as at the beginning, although, of course owing to restriction in food supplies, particularly concentrates, the yield would be somewhat less.

For wartime needs, the Jersey cow had to provide not only her quota of milk but also of meat, and all farmers were expected to make, as far as they could, a uniform provision of meat as well as of milk in proportion to the size of the herd. The allocation of cattle for slaughter was very largely left to the officials appointed by the Jersey Agricultural Society. This applied also to permission to retain calves for rearing.

An Exportable Surplus of Cattle

Under normal conditions, owing to the fact that the cattle on the island of Jersey are almost entirely free from disease, particularly those diseases responsible for wastage, such as tuberculosis and contagious abortion, there is an exportable surplus of cattle. The tendency was for buyers visiting the island to purchase the better specimens. The price factor controlled the sales, with the result that every year a proportion of the best animals left the island.

During the war, those who were responsible for the welfare of the breed did their very best to ensure that the quota of heifer calves which could be reared were saved from the best cows. Inferior cows were sent to slaughter. The result has been that the general level of cattle on the island at the close of the occupation was better than at the beginning. Shortage of food had left its mark, in some cases, but on the whole the cattle came through remarkably well.

It was most gratifying to see the turn-out at the first island show after the liberation, held in October, 1945, to note the well-filled classes and the high standard throughout.

In support of what has been said about the retention of good cattle on the island, the class for aged cows stood out as one of exceptional merit. Not only had breeders carefully guarded their cattle during the occupation to the advantage of the population on the island, but since the liberation there is abundant evidence of determination to further the progress and interests of the Jersey breed.

A Constructive Breeding Policy

From many points of view, the island of Jersey is a paradise for a constructive breeding policy. The island is small, and sires of exceptional merit can be made available to every breeder. Milk recording, which, owing to the small size of the herds, tends to be somewhat expensive, was gaining ground prior to the war, and remarkable individual yields were recorded from many animals.

Although it had to be discontinued during the war, a fresh start has been made, and there is little doubt that every effort will be made to expand the movement. It is, of course, fair to say that the system of management, while well suited to conditions on the island, is not one which is conducive to the highest yields. Recording does, however, provide a satisfactory basis of comparison within the individual herd, and aids in sound breeding policy.

Since the liberation, considerable numbers of animals have been exported, and while it would be unfortunate if the cattle stocks on the island were to be seriously depleted, an export market does act as a very good stimulus to breeders.

Livestock breeders throughout the world, and in particular those interested in Jersey cattle, must have learned with pleasure that the excellent stocks of cattle maintained there in purity for many generations have come through unimpaired. Jersey breeders in particular must also have a feeling of gratification that during the difficult years they have just passed, the Jersey cow has played her part nobly.

27-Day Flight Is Cut to One

By J. D. HOLDSWORTH

(C. P. Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 23 (CP)—Sir Keith Smith celebrated the 27th. anniversary of his pioneering flight from England to Australia when he arrived at Darwin recently by modern British flying boat on the same day as he had completed the long trip with his brother in 1919.

Now 57, Sir Keith is Australian representative of a British aircraft firm and his brother, Sir Ross Smith, is dead. When Sir Keith arrived at Darwin by flying boat, it was five days after leaving England. The flight in 1919 took 27 days.

Pilots in the Royal Flying Corps during the First World War, the Smith brothers made the flight to Australia in a bid for a prize of $30,000 put up by the Australian government for the first crew to fly a British aircraft here from England in 30 days.

They were backed by the firm which Sir Keith now represents and chose for the first trip a twin-engined biplane which had a cruising speed of 85 miles an hour and a range of 1,200 miles.

Sir Keith who was the navigator spent months planning his route and two dozen stops, about half of them having only temporary flying fields.

Late in 1919 the Smiths flew from Britain, across France and the Mediterranean, from Egypt to India, and then from Singapore to the Dutch East Indies and Darwin.

The trip was completed without mishap and the two men won the prize and were knighted. Their plane today is in the National Museum at Canberra.

Tin-Can Isle Mail Collectors' Curios

By J. C. GRAHAM

(C. P. Correspondent)

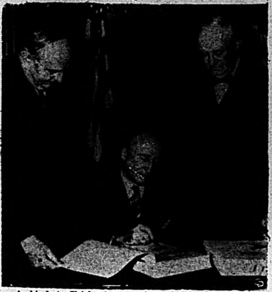
Auckland, N.Z., Jan. 23 (CP)—Destined to become valued by stamp collectors throughout the world are the "last day covers" from Niuafoou, or "Tin-can" Island, in the Tongan Group in the South Pacific. Because of earthquakes and eruptions almost all the island's 1,300 natives have been evacuated, bringing to an end the mail which was delivered to passing ships in tin cans by hardy native swimmers.

All post office equipment was destroyed when molten lava swept through the building last September during an eruption, but the postmaster, John Malekamu M., cancelled each stamp of the last mail before the evacuation with the date and his name and appointment in his own writing. "Tin-can" Island covers are always sought by collectors, and this unique cancellation will give the last dispatch added value.

The island natives have been taken to Nukualofa, the Tongan capital, where they will remain until they can be moved to a new island home which is being prepared for them near Nukualofa. The eruption last September destroyed the main village on their former island and earth tremors which have continued since indicate a further eruption is possible.

A small party of 48 natives has been left on Niuafoou to take care of the stock which has been left behind, but they will also be moved shortly.

SIGNS PEACE TREATIES WITH FOUR NATIONS



As his last official act as secretary of state, James F. Byrnes (seated) signs the formal peace treaties with Italy, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria. At the LEFT is Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Mich., chairman of the foreign relations committee, and at the RIGHT is Senator Tom Connally (D.), of Texas, who assisted Byrnes in the work of forging the peace. Byrnes, who resigned because of health, was replaced recently by Gen. George C. Marshall.

AUSTRALIA LACKS BIG LABOR FORCE

By J. D. HOLDSWORTH
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Canberra, Jan. 23 (CP) — A record total of 3,034,000 men and women of a population of 8,000,000 are employed in Australia, but many industries are still short of labor. In Sydney alone, 20,000 jobs are open.

Government officials say the reason for this seemingly paradoxical position is that demand for goods remains so buoyant it outstrips Australia's capacity to produce.

They point out that Australia's annual production of goods is higher than in 1939 but, because of the shortages created by six years of war demand still exceeds it.

Enlistments in the Australian services during the war totalled 990,000, of whom about 870,000 are back in civilian life. The remainder is made up of about 90,000 still to be demobilized, and casualties which include the war dead.

Yet the labor force remains too small to fill all the jobs that are offered, particularly in the heavier and less congenial tasks like brick-laying and foundry work.

Since the war, too, there has been more discrimination by women workers choosing jobs, although fall in the number of employed women has been arrested recently.

Unemployment is negligible, and there now is no reserve of labor and before the war. The national register showed in July, 1939, that 264,000 men and women were unemployed for many reasons, including sickness, incapacity, casual and seasonal occupation, as well as scarcity of opportunity.

However, economists warn there is no certainty the high level of employment will be maintained. They say that, under existing conditions, there is a constant tendency for wages and costs to rise, without improving living standards.

Northport

Northport—Mr. John Kingsman has returned home after a three weeks' visit with friends in Belleville, Toronto and Port Nelson.

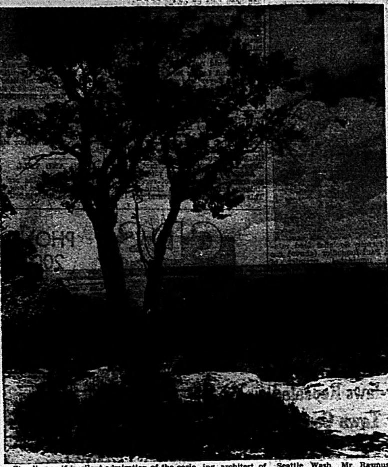
"SCULPTOR OF TIME"



Standing as if in silent admiration of the eerie vastness of the Grand Canyon, this gnarled tree was the subject for Jon Rasmussen's $500 first prize-winning black and white picture in an amateur photographic contest. A mountain-climbing architest of Seattle, Wash., Mr. Rasmussen caught the ethereal timeliness of the great canyon that humbles man. Titled "Sculpture of Time," the picture was taken at Cape Royal on the north rim.

Picton

Don. Thompson, S. Marysburgh, Elected Warden

Picton, Jan. 22. — Donald Thompson, reeve of South Marysburgh, was elected Warden of Prince Edward County for 1947, by acclamation, at the inaugural meeting of County Council here yesterday afternoon. All members of Council were nominated and all withdrew in favor of Mr. Thompson. He represents a township that has not had a warden in 31 years.

Highlight of the afternoon's proceedings was the appointment of committees. During this business, the membership of the road committee was increased three to five, the Warden being an additional member. This resulted in a lively argument, in which two reeves intimated that appointments to the committee were in the nature of a bribe for members' support of Mr. Thompson's candidature of Warden.

This the new Warden denied, stating he felt a larger committee essential to a fair distribution of work done.

Reeve Cleave—"I would like to ask why the committee was increased to five members. If you want a committee meeting you must call six people, (including the warden). It is most uncalled for. It will be an unwieldy committee. The whole council might as well be called together."

Claims Unfair Distribution

Thompson—"I feel that there has been unfair distribution of road moneys in different townships. I want to make a fair distribution. If we had a three-man committee as in the past, I do not know what would happen. The Highway Improvement Act says there shall be a three or a five man committee. If there is a stalemate, we would have to call the entire council together, this costing close to $100. In order to avoid stalemates, I feel we should have a five-man committee."

Shown Ability

Reeve N. Whitney—"I feel that Reeve Thompson has shown ability to be chosen warden. Possibly some previous reeve could have been warden too by adding two more on Road Committee. How about next year with four men remaining. It is democratic government to put a man on the committee to serve five years from now? Is that democracy? We're elected for one-year terms, not five years. I can see some sense in continuity, where unfinished projects are concerned. I haven't seen any evidenc of stalemate or conniving."

Warden Thompson charged South Marysburgh and Hillier Townships had not received a fair share of road work last year. There could be a stalemate this year.

Resents Implication

Reeve S. McQuade—"It has been said the enlarged committee is a bribe. I resent that."

Reeve Whitney suggested a three year plan of road building. He pointed out that a committee appointed last year to make recommendations, had not suggested a five-man committee.

Reeve C. Hughes—"I have sat in council ten years and in that time have never heard of a five-man committee." He asked if the chairman didn't have the deciding vote in case of a tie vote.

The vote was then taken. Yeas—C. Allison, J. Cleminson, R. Cockburn, J. C. Cooper, S. McQuaid, J. Taylor, D. Thompson, E. Vader, Nays — H. Cleave, C. Hughes, D. O. Reynolds, T. Walker, N. Whitney.

Line-up Supporters

In electing a warden here, candidates line up their supporters in advance. Since opponents of Mr. Thompson lacked a majority, they did not put up a candidate.

Financial Report of County Shows Surplus of $88,603; Hospital Reserve Fund $22,500

Hastings in Sound Condition With Surplus During Past Year of $8,270

Government of one of the richest counties in Ontario, the Hastings County Council in session on Wednesday afternoon, heard an excellent financial report presented by Garrett D. C. Morton, certified general accountant who read the lengthy document prior to adjournment of council to go into committee caucuses.

Expenditures of Hastings in 1946 amounted to $314,539.78 while revenue was $322,810.31 or an increase of revenue over expenditure of $8,270,78.

This surplus was placed in the current surplus account which now has a balance of $88,603.43. According to the capital account balance sheet the county assets are figured at $281,458.50 with liabilities none. The County has in reserve for hospital construction $20,000 for the Belleville hospital and $2,500 for a Bancroft institution.

During the brief session of the afternoon, a delegation from the Trenton Hospital Board, headed by W. H. Ireland, former member of Parliament, waited on the Council on behalf of the proposed hospital building fund and appealed for a grant of $5,000. Council laid the matter over to the Ways and Means Committee.

Thanked For Statement

After the reading of the financial report Reeve George West, Madoc, moved a vote of thanks and appreciation to the County auditor for the excellence of the report. "It is the first time that copies of such a report have been placed in the hands of individual councillors and I want to express my appreciation. It has been constructed so every one can read and understand it." The motion carried unanimously.

Recently appointed to his office here County Judge J. C. Anderson was a visitor at the Wednesday afternoon session of Hastings County Council.

Briefly addressing the body on invitation of Warden A. A. Harvie, Judge Anderson expressed his pleasure at meeting the county fathers and also of "seeing them in action."

He complimented the county on the excellence of its financial condition and on the report on finances which he heard read prior to his addressing the body.

Judge Anderson cordially extended an invitation to the warden and his council to avail themselves of the services of himself and his office if the occasion ever presented itself. He received a hearty ovation at the end of his remarks.

TWO MEMBERS ARE GIRLS

London, Jan. 23 — (CP) — Five public school pupils from nearby Lucan, ranging from 12 to 15 years old, attended a recent meeting of Middlesex county council as elected members of a junior council at their school. Apparently the power of a woman is not underestimated at the school — two of the members — the "deputy-reeve" and a councillor — are girls.

ANCIENT CAPITAL

Alexandria was founded in 352 B.C. by Alexander the Great, and was for more than 1,000 years the capital of Egypt.

Council Tables Two Motions Without Action

Hastings County Council in session on Wednesday tables for consideration a resolution of the Wellington County Council requesting the Ontario Department of Highways to subsidize up to 75 per cent, all costs of approved snow plowing. The resolution also called for "more departmental supervision on all this type of work."

Reeve P. Kirby, Deseronto, immediately called for council concurrence in the matter, but other members argued the point for some time before a motion to table the bill was carried.

Reeve Harry Harrison, Thurlow, felt that concurrence in the resolution would open up too great a field. "It is too big a thing for us to ask," he said, "for the department would see that all roads were open, and there are a few that need not be opened at all." He moved an amendment that the bill be filed.

Too Much Difference

Reeve William A. Davis, Bangor, agreed with the Thurlow official. There was so much difference in the various municipalities, he said that the extra work by the department would mean an unnecessary burden. He agreed that some roads in the county should be kept closed during the Winter. These roads, which are not repaired during the Summer would be a hazard to snow plowing machinery.

Reeve Kirby felt the Wellington county idea "was not a bad one". Roads in the south eastern part of Hastings had been kept open all winter by department and other plows. "Surely this county is not afraid that the government will send down an inspector to dig us out all the time," he said.

Only Spend Money Once

"We've been harping for years for money to get the highway link between Millbridge and Madoc finished," Reeve Davis said. "If more money is spent on Winter work then less will be available for the more necessary work. You can only spend the money once."

Reeve Wilfred Spencer agreed. "I move that this paper be received and filed," he said "for the subsidies paid to the different municipalities would vary greatly. And we have enough snow removal headaches as it is. If this resolution goes through everybody will be asking the Department to clear his own piece of road."

Reeve William West, Stirling, stated that "there are a lot of things behind this resolution that we're not aware of. I move that it be tabled for further consideration". The motion carried.

Bill Tabled

Council also tabled for further discussion a recommendation for the Agricultural Committee that it appoint a committee to investigate the possibility of the establishment of a county health unit. The present Board of Health of the County was inadequate, the recommendation stated, and the committee felt that a county unit is the answer. Council had turned down a similar recommendation last year it was pointed out. The bill was tabled.

Concurrence was given in a resolution of Victoria County asking the government to appoint more full time game wardens in an effort to prevent illegal fishing; that the minimum fine be increased and that more and better fish stocking facilities be made available.

Wolves Race Train, Slackening Up Costs Them Their Lives

Huntsville, Jan. 23 — (CP) — Three timber wolves entered into a test of speed with a C. N. R. freight train near here Wednesday — and lost. Now there are three mangled woves on the right-of-way. They succeeded in keeping ahead of the train for a long way, but slackening of speed cost them their lives.

Several Building By-laws Repealed By Town Council

Picton (Special)—As a result of repeal of several building by-laws which are to be amended later and passed, Town Council at a special meeting Tuesday night granted building permits which had been held up owing to regulations contained in previous by-laws. The McFarland Construction Co., was given a permit to erect a $20,00 machine shop. This had been held up by the fact the building inspector had refused his approval, and without which council could not act.

Can Extend Lunch Room

Walter Boyer was given a permit to extend his lunch room. Previously this had been refused on the grounds that materials were needed for more essential purposes. An injunction was secured to prevent Mr. Boyer from building. Mayor Lance Nethery and the town solicitor, F. L. Ward, K.C., were authorized to settle litigation pending between the Town and Boyer over the matter.

Another by-law was repealed governing the erection of service stations and garages on Main St. This had resulted in several applications being refused by 1946 council.

Committee Authorized

The street committee was authorized for snow plowing and sanding equipment.

The Department of National Defence (Navy) wrote stating that the ship's bell from H.M.C.S. Hallowell would be returned to the town, along with a certificate of appreciation. A committee is to be appointed to arrange a suitable ceremony for its presentation to the Town.

Council expressed support of a plan to rent Picton arena so that children may enjoy skating and be given instruction. This will not cost as much as if outdoor rinks are erected.

FREE FROM RHEUMATIC PAIN; PRAISES SYNTONA

Also Relieved Headaches and Constipation; Nerves are Relaxed; Appetite Better Since Taking Treatment of Famous Herbal Compound.

MR. B. HOUSEMAN

Nearly every day you can read in the paper how someone has obtained good results by taking a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound. This medicine has brought relief to many hundreds of local men and women and like so many others, Mr. B. Houseman, 853 Talbot St., St. Thomas, Ont., has good reason to be happy about his experience with Syntona.

"For a long time I suffered with sore, aching joints and muscles," said Mr. Houseman. "I had pains in my limbs and backache almost all the time. Many days I felt sore and ached all over. It took all the good out of me. I had a poor appetite and I was also troubled daily with constipation. I would get frequent headaches and my nerves would become so upset I didn't feel like doing anything.

"A few weeks ago, I began taking Syntona and it has already done me so much good that I have recommended it to many of my friends. It relieved the pain and soreness in my joints and muscles so that they scarcely trouble me at all. I am now free from backache and headaches. I never had anything to work so smoothly and thoroughly on my bowels. My appetite has picked up and my nerves are relaxed. I feel so much better in every way that even my work seems easier."

Let this pure herbal tonic help you as it has so many others. Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 23, 1947

30,000 Red Pine Saplings Will be Planted by County Council During Coming Year

Action Follows Address Given by Zone Forester W. E. Edwards

Hastings County Council will plant 30,000 red pine trees with a strong possibility of this number increased in its reforestation projects in the coming Spring, it was revealed at the morning session on Wednesday.

County Clerk Erle Denyes told council of the decision to purchase the pine during a discussion following a brief address on forestry and reforestation given to council by Zone Forester W. E. Edwards of Napanee.

At a previous session council had authorized its reforestation committee to purchase land for new county woodlots, and Mr. Edwards in his address offered some suggestions regarding the type of land suitable for the purpose and various ways of acquiring it. He also reviewed the new Trees Conservation Act and how it affected Hastings County farmers and lumbermen.

Land, which generally is unsuited for agricultural purposes is usually that acquired by municipalities for reforestation projects, he said, and in some cases this sort of land has been purchased for a cost as low as fifty cents and one dollar per acre.

Survey Tax Sales

He recommended that the purchasing body of the council survey tax sales, as with the assistance of the various reeves, these lands could be purchased for a low price. At the present high prices of other land, he felt that purchase at this time would not be good investment.

"Some townships," he said, "were experiencing trouble with people clearing timber off land with the result that the municipalities get the land back with nothing on it. It would be better, he continued if townships tried to retain ownership of the whole and turn it over to the county for reforestation purposes.

He urged members of council to watch these properties and not let them get out of their hands. At present there is a definite need for encourgement in the proper management of timbered lands in the county.

Discussing the new Trees Conservation Act, Mr Edwards pointed out that the county can draft its own regulations regarding the control of timber within its limits, if it is being cut for commercial purposes. These regulations, of course, would be subject to governmental approval.

"The Act," he said "will be extremely beneficial to Hastings County because it provides the county with authority to control the cutting of trees for the Christmas tree trade. He told council that there is a terrific waste each year in this business by people in the business. He urged council to pass a regulation under the act which will prevent large trees being cut for the tops with the rest going to waste on the ground.

Can be Released

Lots under patent with the pine reserved, can now be released if the owner is resident and is willing to reforest 10 per cent providing the pine does not exceed 500 board-feet measure per acre from trees six inches in diameter at stump height. This regulation also applies to lots where the pine has not been reserved, Mr. Edwards said.

During the discussion that followed Mr. Edwards address, Reeve W. J. Davis, of the County Agricultural Committee stated that he did not agree with the speaker insofar as the purchase of cheap land was concerned. That type of land, he felt, would be tucked away in far corners of the county where it could not be seen, and tree-planting would have to be done by shovel, at a heavy cost.

"His committee," he said, "had been looking at a parcel of land of 200 acres, some of it cleared and which has a small house and barn. It is bordered with similar land on three sides which can be purchased if reforestation expansion is thought of. He did not like the idea of buying land through tax sales. "He would rather," he said, "pay more for better land where the public can see what is being done along reforestation lines.

Speaking later, Mr. Edwards urged the county to get its order in for more trees at once, if it plans enlarging its present planting program. The tree situation, at present, is not good, he warned.

Outlines Plans

He outlined a governmental reforestation plan which has been embraced by twelve out of thirteen counties thus far. If the county in question so desires, it can purchase the land and sign an agreement with the government for a period of thirty years.

The government will fence the land, and provide labor and trees etc., proper supervision and maintenance for that period of time. At the end of the thirty-year term, if the county desires, it can take back the project by paying the government what was spent on it without interest. If not, the government will buy the land from the county at cost price—or operate it on fifty-fifty basis.

Makes Lioness Poultry Guard

Pretoria, South Africa (CP) — The world's most formidable "sentry" now has been installed on the farm of D. Fritz of Pretoria North, who has become desperate as a result of incessant raids on his poultry by thieves.

At first he had a large dog to watch the pens of fowls, but still the valuable fowls disappeared. Then he replaced the dog with a two-year-old lioness. The thieves haven't been back since.

Here's the latest gadget for the fisherman, hunter or cottager. This seven-foot trailer opens out into a 14 foot, flat-bottomed rowboat which, if necessary, can be unhinged to even provide two smaller boats for the children. Una Gardiner demonstrates the lightness of the bow section.

Tells Canada Saga In Store Carvings

Ottawa (CP)—For 30 years a teller of Canada's story in stone, Cleophas Soucy is working at clay models of busts and other relief carvings he hopes some day will further adorn the parliament buildings here.

Fashioning pipe clay versions of Canadian politicians, animals, flowers and crests, Soucy at 70 is anxious to resume the stone carving, now at a standstill for lack of government appropriations.

Dozens of models await reproduction and he is afraid his work will be lost unless someone is trained to continue the task. A stone-carver by trade, he began work on the story in 1916 under the noted architect, John Pearson Pearson planned the buildings so that they would contain a continuing history of the Dominion in stone. Hundreds of stone nubbins were left blank for future use.

A native of Montreal, Soucy studied his art in Boston before beginning his work on the parliament buildings. In addition to his stone work, he has done much of the wood carving in both the Senate and the House of Commons.

Currently he is working on a series of busts of former prime ministers. Most of them are in party caucus rooms but eventually will be placed in the central Hall of Fame leading from the buildings' main entrance to the library.

Soucy fears his craft is rapidly dying out in Canada and confides he can think of only two or three good stone carvers in the country. He wishes the authorities had provided him with an apprentice who could continue the story which will take generations to tell.

White Russian Exile Searching for Home

Vancouver (CP)—A 27-year-old White Russian stowaway wandering "between heaven and earth" in search of a country now is detained in Vancouver immigration building awaiting transportation elsewhere.

George Bachmetkoff, who arrived here from Shanghai aboard the Canadian Freighter Greengables Park, was born in Harbin, Manchuria of White Russian parents. Exiled after the Communist revolution, they moved to Shanghai in 1922 when George learned undertaking and embalming. After practising these trades for several years, he worked as an interpreter for the French Tramways in Shanghai. He speaks French, Russian, Chinese and his command of English is excellent. Mounting anti-foreign feeling among the Chinese and the virtual impossibility of making a living in inflation-ridden Shanghai impelled him to leave China.

Immigration laws, however, do not permit him to remain in Canada. And so the man without a country will sail again on the same ship, renamed Pappachristidos Vassilios by Greek interests which purchased her recently.

Bachmetkoff is not alone in his idea "of finding a future." Many of Shanghai's 25,000 pre-war White Russians without government aid, have had to seek cheaper, more simple living conditions in interior and coastal towns of China.

BOAT-DESTROYER

The name of the Amazon is said to be derived from the Indian word Amassona, a boat-destroyer, because the river at certain places and in certain seasons is very dangerous.

Trackage Worries Model Rail Fan

Halifax (CP) — Starry-eyed boys jumped with joy when Christmas advertising brought the familiar electric trains of post-war years back on the market. And just as happy was big Robert Davison, garage owner of nearby Rockingham, a model railway fan who already has almost 300 feet of track winding through his basement.

In the return of model train accessories to the market he sees the opportunity to expand his already extensive service, now complete with standard gauge track winding in a mystic maze about his cellar and through partitions.

In addition there is a "yard" where the trains can be shunted and made up. His first post-war expansion aim is the addition of another 50 feet of track which will allow the inclusion of several loops.

And with Mr. Davison it is not just a matter of walking into a store and buying that many feet of track. Some years ago he decided better results could be achieved by buying the ordinary tin-plate track, fitting it to sleepers and providing a copper centre rail.

Besides making his own track, Mr. Davison has made 17 hand-operated switches and lights which have been installed to tell if the track ahead is "clear." The proper atmosphere is given with the aid of an electrically-operated whistle.

Born at Durham, England, Mr. Davison came to Canada in 1908 and had his first introduction to model trains at the age of eight when he received a steam-model of a railway engine.

"It lacked tracks but made good speed in the front hall," he said.

But he has one problem. His rolling stock of three locomotives and 14 cars require a lot of track Where the cellar doorway intervenes he has constructed a removable bridge which can be slipped in place when he is "playing."

Skating Policeman Youngsters' Friend

Montreal (CP)—There are policemen on motorcycles, on horses in patrol cars and on bicycle, but the neighboring municipality of Outremont has a cop on skates.

Husky, smiling Raymond Smith pounds (or slides) his beat on ice skates and sees that all goes well on Outremont's municipal skating rink.

Up to 1,000 youngsters a day glide around the surface. If a tot falls, a cry of "Hey, Ray! Ray!" goes up

"Sure they call me Ray," smiles Constable Smith. "I've been swinging around them for three years and they all know me. I guess they could call me other things, too, when I pack them off for an hour's 'sit' on the Chalet bench for being bad."

Ray's method in handling youngsters is to make them remember he is a cop, a good friend to have around, but still a cop who means what he says when he says "no." His duties are varied [illegible] at safeguarding young skaters.

Before Ray, a civilian was on rink duty.

"That didn't work out," said Ray. "The kids knew he was a garbage man during the day so there wasn't anybody who could really do anything to them, except maybe kick them off the ice. But they know me as a cop. I direct traffic near their school every day and they find me here after classes."

No Plans Made For Exchange Of Officers of Navies

London, Jan. 23. (CP) — The Admiralty's spokesman in the House of Commons, John Dugdale, said today no arrangements had been made for an exchange of officers between the United States and Royal Navies, but declined to specify whether such an exchange might take place in the future.

"I cannot possibly give advance information on that," he told Phil Piratin, Communist, who asked if the Royal Navy might "emulate the example set by the Royal Air Force".

The R.A.F. recently announced that a limited number of American and British air officers would be exchanged for training purposes.

BLITZ BLESSING

London (CP)—The blitz was a blessing to residents near Bramley Sports Ground when it silenced a clock which every hour chimed the tune of "Boys and Girls Come Out to Play." They oppose plans to repair it.

"WHEREWOLF" VICTIM

Elizabeth Short, beautiful 22-year-old victim of a sadistic slayer who tortured her before he killed her and sawed her body in halves afterwards, is shown here. Her mutilated body was found in a Los Angeles, Calif., parking lot.

TEACH GOOD HABITS

It is more important to teach children proper living habits than to train them to be careful crossing a busy street. Wise parents also have their children vaccinated and inoculated.

For Sale--One Seat In Sark Parliament

Brechqhou, Channel Islands, Jan. 23 (CP) — Want to buy a seat in parliament? Then buy this 175-acre island off the coast of Sark.

Nearly a dozen years ago this island was taken over by the late Capt. T. A. Clarke, Irish farmer, and cattle breeder. He turned it into a beautiful farm and garden.

Then the Germans occupied the Channel Islands early in the Second World War. Capt. Clarke and his wife moved out and went to live on the Scottish isle of Mull where Capt. Clarke died in 1944.

London agents for Mrs. Clarke say the Breshqhou home was little damaged during the occupation. The island is for sale at £25,000 ($100,000).

And with it goes the right to sit as a member of the Parliament of Sark.

HONOR NOBEL'S MEMORY

Stockholm (CP)—To commemorate the 50th anniversary of the death on Dec. 10 of Alfred Nobel, inventor and donor of the Nobel Prizes, the Swedish Post Office department has issued a set of stanmps bearing the scientist's likeness, in red and blue.

NEED MORE BEDS

Oshawa, Jan. 22 — (CP) — Dr. C. D. Russell, chief of staff at Oshawa General Hospital, last night asked the hospital board to take immediate action to provide an additional 25 to 30 beds. The request was referred to the board's executive for study.

Nursing superintendent Mary Bourne told the board that during January 40 patients have been temporarily refused admission due to lack of bed accommodation and that on a recent day seven operations had to be postponed.

IF BABY IS CROSS FIND OUT WHY

HEALTHY BABIES are not cross. Your baby should not be cross. If he is, then something in his little system is "out of order." Probably Baby's Own Tablets can promptly "put it right." Mrs. H——, of Fenelon Falls, had the experience. She writes: "My little girl was irritable, feverish and sometimes sick at her stomach—what a relief it was, after giving her Baby's Own Tablets, to see how much better she was."

Sweet-tasting—easily crushed to a powder, if desired. No "sleepy" stuff—no dulling effect. Promptly effective in simple fevers, constipation, teething troubles, upset stomach and other minor ills.

Never be without a full box of Baby's Own Tablets. Sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

Body of Cardinal Lies in State

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, Jan. 22 (CP). — The body of Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve, the humble cobbler's son who rose to become a Prince of the Roman Catholic Church, lay in state in his palace here today while saddened thousands came to pay respect.

In mourning for their spiritual leader, residents of the Quebec Archdiocese and surrounding districts visited the old greystoned Archbishop's palace in Uppertown Quebec to file in an unending stream past the bier of the 63-year-old prelate.

As they passed the bier the priests and nuns of district orders sat bunched before three temporary altars erected in the modest salon chanting a continuous recital of the Rosary which began when the body arrived by special funeral train from Montreal yesterday.

The repetition of prayer for the prelate, who died in California last Friday, will cease only when his body is removed tomorrow to historic Notre Dame Basilica, where funeral services will be conducted Friday. Burial will be in the crypt of the basilica and the Cardinal's red hat will be hung from the cathedral ceiling beside those of his predecessors.

Meanwhile, high church dignitaries, including James Cardinal McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto, who will conduct Friday's Requiem High Mass, began arriving in this old French Canadian capital to pay their tribute.

Horse Loses Road In Blizzard, Pins Driver in Drift

Dundalk, Jan. 22 — (CP) — Last night's blizzard was so intense that when farmer Robert Waitts, 75, lost track of the road on a seven-mile ride and placed his trust in his horse, he wound up in a snowdrift.

The horse, too, lost the road, missed a bend, left the main road and before farmer Waitts knew where he was the cutter tipped over, pinning him in the drift. When rescued some time later, friends said he looked like "a snowball," so matted with snow were his clothes.

Picton Notes

Picton, (Special.) — Prince Edward County was swept by the most severe blizzard of the winter yesterday afternoon. Many rural roads were blocked but main highways are still passable. The snowfall was not unusually heavy or more roads would have been blocked. The wind reached gale proportions at times and brought much traffic to a complete standstill. In the evening, the winds continued but there was little snow.

Kinsmen Club

Members of Town Council were guests of the Kinsmen Club at their Tuesday night dinner. Mayor Lance Nethery was the speaker ,taking "Citizenship" as his topic. He felt that the new Citizenship Bill had added nothing to the status of Canadians. "While defence of our country is necessary, peace is the most essential, if Canada is to progress and expand," he said.

Ministers Meet

Prince Edward County Ministerial Association held its January meeting at the Baptist church parsonage. Rev. E. Todd of Rednersville, gave a paper. Rural ministers agreed to assist town ministers in conducting services at Prince Edward County Home. L. A. VanSkiver outlined a program of temperance education, which he thought could be carried out in the schools. President J. F. Lane, Wellington, was in the chair. Rev. E. J. Cusack and Mrs. Cusack served refreshments.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Baxter and Mrs. Donald Baxter are in Atlantic City this week. While there they will attend a canners' convention.

Thomas Kinney left this week for Florida where he will spend three months.

Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Lockyer entertained a group of friends of Mr. and Mrs. James Hedges, who were recently married. A social time was spent and a gift presented to the newlyweds. Mr. Hedges is prominent in softball and hockey.

The Pigtail Club, a group of young girls, has completed a number of scrapbooks of Christmas cards to be sent to young patients in the Hospital for Sick Children, in Toronto.

$100,000 LOSS AT TILBURY

Chatham, Jan. 22 — (CP)—The St. Clair Grain and Seed Company elevator plant at Tilbury was demolished by fire during the night with a loss estimated today at $100,000. There were 30,000 bushels of grain in the structure, erected eight years ago.

The fire was not bought under control until 4 a.m. Firemen worked in near zero temperature under great difficulties, but they managed to save eight corn cribs filled with seed.

The elevator is owned by the same firm whose plant here was saved two weeks ago when fire destroyed the white hybrid corn plant.

CANINE LESSON FOR JAY WALKERS

An Englishman will sometimes respect the judgment of a dog while ignoring that of a human — even if that human be a modern Solomon. So the London county council used this old English sheepdog, "Bobs," to give Londoners a lesson in traffic safety. The dog is shown crossing at the proper pedestrian crossing in a London street after he had waited patiently until the traffic officer had put up the stop sign for the traffic.

Arden

Arden—Mrs. W. Woodcock and daughter Faye, visited Mrs. Frank Loyst Wednesday.

Mr. Charlie Parks is spending sometime at Ardoch.

HOSPITAL HEAD DIES

Brockville, Jan. 22 (CP).—William G. Osmond, 55, business administrator of Brockville General Hospital, died today in Kingston General Hospital. He had been ill for some months.

Before coming to Brockville General, Mr. Osmond was in the dairy supply and cheese business, and at one time was buyer for Lovell and Christmas, Montreal. Besides his wife and one son, W. J. Osmond, St. Hyacinthe, Que., he is survived by his mother and two sisters, Mrs. W. H. Delahaye, Ottawa, and Mrs. W. H. Drummond, Brockville.

Strikers Advised To Move Back Onto the Farms

Sarnia, Jan. 22. (CP)—A suggestion to "strikers demanding an eight-hour day, a five-day week and increased wages" to "go back on the farm and gain a proper and healthy viewpoint on human problems" was made last night by T. R. Dent, Woodstock, Progressive Conservative M.P.P., for Oxford County, addressing the annual banquet of the Lambton Holstein Club.

Mr. Dent predicted "a great future" for the Holstein cattle raisers, "particularly in our export trade."

American cattlemen are "very jealous" of Canadian success in the Latin and South American field, he said, urging Holstein producers to "maintain your present high standards."

"However, you will have to breed good cattle in order to maintain your enviable position there, People don't travel long distances and put themselves to great expense in order to purchase mediocre animals. It's up to you to do a good job, and to a very real degree your future is in your own hands."

The speaker made a strong appeal to "young men in this audience" to remain on the land. "And don't bother yourselves about short hours of work, picture shows and the bright lights of the city."

Many of the industrial workers who have participated in recent strikes "should never have left the land and probably wish today that they had never done so," Mr. Dent said.

Peanuts Removed From Boy's Windpipe And Bronchial Tube

Toronto, Jan. 22 (CP)—The life of a two -year-old boy was saved at the hospital for sick children yesterday when an operation resulted in removal of one peanut from his windpipe and another from his bronchial tubes.

Hospital doctors said a wide variety of objects such as peanuts, buttons, pins and coins had been removed in similar operations, but that they had most difficulty with timothy hay seeds which spread after inhalation.

GULL CLUB BUILDS OWN GLIDER CRAFT

Dartmouth, N.S., Jan. 23 (CP) — Dartmouth residents will see an unfamiliar sight late this month if the dreams of a small group of air-minded young men and women come true.

The Gull Gliding Club of Dartmouth hopes to have its first glider in the air soon. It will be the only glider seen here for some time and the club probably is the only one of its type east of Montreal.

With only 12 active members the club decided to build its own single-seat glider at a cost of $500 instead of purchasing one already-made. Now almost completed, the craft is of the English "Kirby Kadet" type with a wing span of 40 feet.

The idea of the club originated a year ago in Dartmouth when several members of the Fleet Air Arm were stationed at the nearby Eastern Passage airport. In early 1946 a small membership had been enrolled and work on the glider began.

President of the club if Geo. Dunbar, a chemical engineer and graduate of McGill University, who is the only member to have any previous gliding experience.

He hopes to be able to assist other members of the club in passing tests set for glider pilots under new Department of Transport regulations. The club, incidentally, includes women as well as men; and all ages too.

Gen. U. S. Grant's Orderly Now 103

Winnipeg (CP)—A century of living is a long time "but I feel that my life has been full, both of sorrow and happiness," says George St. Pierre Brooks.

Young ex-servicemen at the South Winnipeg veterans' home call him "Old George" — and George would be the last to deny that the name fits. For on New Year's Day, 1947, he celebrated his 103rd birthday.

With memories of three wars, a world tour and famous personages, he is very seldom lonely. He spends his time renewing acquaintances with visiting notables—such as Paul Robeson and Joe Louis—answering mail from all parts of Canada and the United States and reading "although my eyes are inclined to tire quickly"

He is interested in persons, places, politics and the progress of his race.

George was born a slave in Kentucky and his mother was sold when he was four years old. He entered the civil war in 1861 as a personal servant, was captured, set free and finished the war fighting with the northern army as private orderly to Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, later president of the United States.

He then joined the famous Fiske Jubilee Singers and travelled around the world singing negro spirituals. The group sang before William Gladstone, prime minister of England, and Queen Victoria.

Later he travelled with minstrel shows and a circus and also took part in the Spanish-American war.

He is living in a veterans' home because of a wound inflicted to his leg during the First World War in which he served with Canadian Forces at the age of 73. His chief delights, he says, are cooking and being somewhere where there are children.

Officers Elected For Tweed Fair; Successful Year

Tweed—On Saturday the annual meeting of Tweed Agricultural Society met in the council chambers with a good attendance of officers and directors present.

President Harry M. Coulter in the chair. Secretary John Sager read the minutes of the last annual meeting.

One of the most successful years financially in the history of the fair was reported by the Treasurer, Mr. H. Rush with the auditor's report showing a balance in the bank after the year's operations.

A new cattle and horse barn had been completed and the note at the bank was cleared on this building also.

Mr. Coulter in his remarks thanked the officers and directors for the assistance they had given him.

He also paid tribute to the treasurer and secretary for their very fine reports and for the time they had given to make the fair a success during the past year.

Dates Changed

The dates of the fair were changed last year to an early date in September and the weather was all that could have been desired.

The cattle and horse show was one of the finest held any place in the County of Hastings.

The Fair has a membership for 1946-1947 of over 150 members and plans are already underway to make the Fair of 1947 bigger and better than ever.

Mr. Albert Wood, District Rep. of District No. 3 was present and in his remarks he congratulated Tweed on the success of their Fair last year.

A message was received during the afternoon from Mr. H. L. Fair stating that it was impossible for him or his representative to be present at the meeting.

A resolution was passed that an Agricultural Service Diploma be awarded to Mr. Dennis Fleming, Stoco, Ont., for his valuable contribution to agriculture and rural life in this community.

Function of the conference is to consider preparation of peace treaties with Germany and Austria and to report to the council of foreign ministers by Feb. 25. Eighteen countries are submitting their views on the treaties. Bevin is in CENTRE. On the LEFT is Sir William Strang (wearing glasses), and to the RIGHT of Bevin is Lord Hood, both British representatives.

"POOR MAN'S" ATOM SMASHER COST $50,000

Ottawa, Jan. 23 (CP) — Technicians at the National Research Council laboratories here are building what might be termed "a poor man's atom smasher."

Costing a mere $50,000, compared with the University of California's dazzling $5,000,000 effort, the Canadian model is expected to do a more efficient job for some purposes than the much publicized cyclotron.

When the National Research Council made public an outline of its work during the first year of reconversion, the electrostatic generator was given a mere four lines. Most of its details and the results of the experiments remain on the secret list.

Research physicists say the real value of the Canadian project will be its ability to give a steady voltage at various levels of generation.

Weighing about 20 tons, the machine consists of two motors which send an endless belt of nylon spinning to the top of a 16-foot structure at a speed of 3,500 feet a minute. Electrons, minute negative electrical charges, are sprayed on the belt as it moves. They are carried into a collection chamber containing air compressed to 27 times its normal density.

Electron Bullets.

Pressure from this chamber is driven down a tube to the base of the machine where it attacks the material which is to be smashed. The material then becomes radioactive under pressure from the electron bullets.

When the machine is complete it will be shipped to the government's atomic research plant near Chalk River, Ont., in the Ottawa Valley.

Another machine undergoing preliminary tests at the N.R.C. laboratories is a 1,000,000-volt lightning generator. Many manufacturing companies have sent their new equipment to the laboratory to have it tested under the pressure of man-made lightning. If the equipment withstands N.R.C.'s test it can take pretty well anything nature can hand out.

Winter drivers, brewers and pulp producers may benefit from a third experiment at the laboratory. It is the "PH Monitor," a device for automatically preserving equilibrium between acids and alkalis in any solution.

Attached to the radiator of a car, it can preserve the acid-alkali balance and prevent corrosion during cold weather. The acid content of brewing and pulp solutions is a prime factor in their production and the new device is expected to aid both industries considerably in this regard.

Shell Collection Known World Over

Sidney, B.C., Jan. 23 (CP) — A unique hobby which began about 15 years ago with the finding of an old flintlock, has made the name of Joseph Gibeault known to ammunition manufacturers the world over.

Joe Gibeault, British Columbia Provincial Police constable, lays claim to one of the largest collections of small calibre shells in Canada. The 2,700 shells in his collection range from ancient rifle balls to experimental shells not yet on the market.

Each shell is catalogued and photographed to scale, and is recorded in one of the five large books in which the historical data of the individual shell is kept.

Smallest shell in the collection is hardly bigger than a pin head, made to fire from a pistol about the size of a watch fob. Largest is for a 50-calibre navy revolver which Gibeault claimed is the world's largest. In shotgun shells, he has them from a four-gauge measuring about an inch in length, to the six millimeter size. One "history maker" is paper covered and identical to the shell credited with touching off the Indian mutiny.

Danger of fire does not worry the constable. His advice is "just duck."

Farmer Earl Feuds Against Coal Pits

Rotherham, England, Jan. 23—(CP) — The ministry of fuel and Earl Fitzwilliam, whose Wentworth Woodhouse estate has been chopped up by the steel buckets of surface coal mining machinery, are at it again.

Six new open-cast coal sites are to be requisitioned on the beautiful farm and park, says the ministry, to help meet the country's fuel crisis.

"Nonsense," says the Earl, or words to that effect. It will take months to open the new workings and the crisis will be ended by spring.

"It will be a much better estate when we have finished than before," says the ministry.

"Sheer rubbish," says the Earl in a hotly-worded statement.

"Agricultural land .. it not improved by building roads over fields which should be growing crops or grazing cattle. Neither is it helpful to the farmer to lose the greater part of the top soil, which contains humus, in the process of coal-getting; to leave on the surface of land, said to have been 'restored', clay, shale and stone.."

But probably, as it did in 1946, the ministry will go ahead.

When first warned his estate would be used for surface mining, Earl Fitzwilliam made a personal appeal to Fuel Minister Shinwell and Prime Minister Attlee. When that failed he tried to give his property away—to the National Trust, the unofficial Parks Board which preserves famous old buildings and natural beauty spots for the nation.

Despite that effort, 1,500 acres were requisitioned. Now more than 200 acres of woodland have been cut down and even the gardens of Wentworth Woodhouse have been torn up in the search for coal.

Wife Not Chattel Tells 1947 Hubby

London, Jan. 23 (CP) — Husbands haven't changed since Victorian days, says Reginald Pestell, secretary of the Marriage Guidance Council—and he doesn't like it.

"In Queen Victoria's time, a woman's husband was her managing director," he told a London conference of health visitors and school nurses.

"He regarded her as a chattel, and today this feeling persists.

"Men still believe women are on a lower plane than themselves and, after marriage, expect wives to sink their personality and submerge their individuality in that of their husbands."

Woman's resolve to establish equality with man will make marriage a healthier relationship ultimately, he said, but he questioned whether there is such a thing as an "ideal marriage."

Pestell said more advice on birth-control should be available to the public, and he expressed belief that social workers are the right people to give it. But one social worker had lost her job because she gave such advice against the ruling of the municipal medical officer of health—the man who has the final say.

Unique Black Market in Berlin

By ROSS MUNRO
(C. P. Staff Writer)

Berlin, Jan. 23 (CP) — A "barter centre" operates in the United States sector of Berlin which practically amounts to an officially-sponsored and supervised black market.

The currency is chiefly cigarettes, like any other continental black market. But there isn't a black market like this anywhere else in Europe.

The Americans appear to accept black market deals between their soldiers and control commission personnel and the Germans as inevitable.

Instead they try to discourage street corner and back room trading by setting up the centre where operations are centralized and put on an official if not legal basis.

The barter centre has been doing a roaring business for five months and seems to grow in popularity both with the Germans and Americans. British and Canadians in Berlin also patronize it.

Allied personnel go in one entrance to the big hut where the market is located, with cigarettes, coffee, canned goods or chocolate and trade them for barter points.

The goods accepted must be imported privately and articles sold in army and control commission canteens aren't acceptable.

Trade Household Goods.

At the other end of the sprawling hut, Germans shuffle in with household and personal articles they want to trade. They also receive barter points good for cigarettes, food and other goods turned in by the Allies.

The hut looks like a small town general store, with German goods heaped on wooden shelves, attended by German clerks. Allied personnel wander around buying whatever their point-score can stand.

There is no store in Germany with this assortment. You can buy Persian rugs, superb radios, furniture for your house, fine crystal, German beer mugs, dinner services, clocks and Dresden china, suit and dress cloth and cameras. Several thousand Germans daily haul goods to this centre to swap for precious points.

Late last year there was a scare that the centre would be closed when a special American investigating committee recommended the private importation of cigarettes be banned.

But Lt.-Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States deputy military governor for Germany, vetoed the committee's report and the barter centre continues to flourish.

Flatties Are Tops With Hi-Crowd

Toronto, Jan. 23 (CP) — We think shank's mares are slick, and saddles send the pedals—flatties really are the feet flatterers.

Who said that? Why, the hi-crowd.

What did they chorus? Why, just that the average high school miss today prefers and approves the current fad for flat-heeled shoes.

First to accept new styles — and sometimes first to disown them—Canada's fair collegians presently are in the mood to tramp many a mile just to find a shop sporting flatties.

Loafers, last year's' — was it yesterday's? — favorite still lead for campus informality with brown, dark red and white doing top color honors.

Saddle shoes, collegian wardrobe decorator of former seasons, seem to be making a comeback with brown and white hues sought.

If and when more supplies reach footwear stalls, hi-crowd misses are expected to cast welcome glances on shank's mares and their kindred patterns.

For the leggy, head-in-the-sky girl dressy flats remain the thing, what with criss-cross straps, sandal types and asymmetric patterns leading the way.

Other slick shoe dreams hitting new campus popularity include: Ballet slippers with black suede taking lead; ballet boot, slick ankle-hugging trick; kiltie-tongue oxfords and slide-tie Tyrolean shoes.

And of course, for the rebels—high-heeled sling pumps and baby doll pumps!

"GAS" SAYS OFFICERS "GHOST" SAYS VICAR

Leamington, England, Jan. 23 (CP) — Sentries didn't wait to issue a challenge when they saw a mysterious white shape, something like a horse, leap a hedge near the army dump and disappear.

"Marsh gas," said their officers but Rev. J. Riley, local vicar, recalled legends that the area was haunted by the ghost of Prince Rupert's white horse.

The camp stands on the site of the Battle of Edgehill, and burial grounds are within its boundaries.

TO FOIL SMUGGLERS

London (CP) — Customs authorities are assembling a fleet of trawlers and minesweepers especially equipped with radar to defeat smuggling. Radar gear will enable ships to detect smugglers' craft in the thickest fog and overhaul them when otherwise they would be helpless from poor visibility.

BRITISH VISITORS VIEW NIAGARA FALLS

Lord Hacking, president of the British Tourist Association, accompanied by Lady Hacking, are photographed as they viewed Niagara Falls as guests of the Niagara Parks Commission. The distinguished British visitors came to inspect the world-famous tourist resort as part of an American and Canadian tour which began Jan. 1 in New York, and will end Feb. 5 when they sail from Halifax for Britain. Lord Hacking, who visited Niagara in 1904, and Lady Hacking, viewing the great cataracts for the first time, described the winter setting as one of "breath-taking beauty." Here, Lord Hacking points out to Lady Hacking some special points of interest.

NEW INDIA DRUG ANTI-BACTERIAL

Calcutta, India, Jan. 23 (CP) —A drug which is claimed to be better than pencillin has been discovered by Prof. S. R. Bose of the Calcutta Medical College. The drug is derived from pieces of decomposed wood and is the climax of Dr. Bose's experiments on wood-decaying fungi for a quarter of a century. In May, 1944 he began applying his knowledge to the study of the anti-bacterial activity of these fungi.

Known as "polyporin," the drug is claimed to be specially suited for tropical countries and has been found effective in a number of major diseases such as typhoid, cholera, dysentery, carbuncles, ulcers, abscesses, troubles of the eye, ear, nose and throat.

The drug is also said to possess a degree of chemical stability which adds considerably to its usefulness. It has been found that, unlike pencillin, "polyporin" can remain in a well-balanced state without being liable to mutation or disintegration. It can be stored at normal room temperature almost anywhere without any loss of potency.

It can be administered easily and does not produce any toxic effects or depression. It can be applied to open wounds or ulcers and causes no pain or irritation. Its anti-bacterial power remains unaffected by stomach contents.

Professor Bose is still engaged in further research in order to evolve a more purified and concentrated form of "polyporin."

Two Ottawa Mothers Help Guide Schools

Ottawa, Jan. 23 (CP) — Two women now work with seven men on Ottawa's public school board, charged with educating the national capital's 8,600 children. They are Mrs. Isabel Finlayson and Mrs. Estelle Renwick.

A past president of the city's Home and School Council, Mrs. Finlayson first became a member of the board in 1945. She was the first new woman trustee in 21 years. Mrs. Renwick, a past president of the Local Council of Women, stood second in last month's civic elections and took her seat for the first time early this month.

Formerly a Saskatchewan grade school teacher, Mrs. Renwick is the mother of five children. During the war, she worked as a part time accountant at naval service headquarters here and ran a church canteen for three years.

Mrs. Finlayson, mother of three is a graduate of Dalhousie University, Halifax, and before she was married worked in the actuarial branch of the federal insurance department.

Having two women on the city's board is something of a novelty for Ottawans. Three others have been elected in the past, but only once before has there been more than one at a time. The first woman elected was Mrs. J. Lorne McDougall, in 1919. Miss M. E. Cowan, elected in 1924, and Mrs. Caroline Gullock, 1925, served together for a period.

General Marshall Will Not Accept Political Office

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Jan. 23—(CP) — Gen. George C. Marshall's unequivocal declaration that he would never take a political office is expected to spur Congress to quick action on a bill to place the presidential succession beyond possible question of doubt.

When he was sworn in Tuesday as state secretary, Gen. Marshall became the constitutional successor to the president in the event mishap removed President Truman.

Yet, two hours before taking the oath, Gen. Marshall, on his own initiative dictated a statement to the press declaring that he would "never become involved in political matters," and that "I never could be drafted."

His statement was intended to silence speculation on the possibility of his becoming a presidential candidate in 1948. He said he did not consider the office of state secretary a political appointment.

This situation, foreseen sometime ago, has brought a new flurry of bills in Congress looking toward constitutional amendments to establish a better system for presidential succession.

Interest in the point also was heightened during the last week by the alarming constitutional muddle in Georgia, where two claimants are fighting for the governorship made vacant when the governor-elect died.

Determined by Act

Presidential succession now is determined by an act of 186, which provides for the secretary of state to succeed in the event both the president and the vice president are removed.

After the secretary of state the succession goes down through the cabinet in the order in which portfolios were created — treasury, war, attorney general, postmaster general, navy and interior.

President Truman advocates a constitutional change that would make the speaker of the House of Representatives successor, instead of the secretary of state.

The problem became of immediate national interest in April, 1945, when President Roosevelt died in office and the vice-president, Harry Truman, became president.

Should Have Majority Vote

The generally popular belief is that no man should be in line for succession unless he is in office by virtue of a majority vote of the people. Cabinet secretaries are not elected but are appointed by the president.

Most extreme proposal is that in the absence of a president or vice-president an election may be called in 90 days by a simple vote of Congress. Also that, if the president wanted an expression of the peoples' will, he could call a national election for both Congress and presidency, on 90 days' notice. This would be similar to the British parliamentary system.

But the expectation is that the succession will be fixed so that if the elected president and vice-president are unable to serve the succession will go first to the Speaker of the House, then to the President pro-tempore for the Senate.

SAVE SOIL, WATER SOUTH AFRICA AIM

By BRYAN YOUNG
(C. P. Correspondent)

Pretoria, South Africa, Jan. 23 (CP) — South Africa, now fully awake and alarmed about the situation, is beginning to take wide measures to save her soil and water.

The country's soil, most of which is not rich, is eroding, and its water, in a land of few lakes, meagre forests and small rivers, is steadily decreasing.

Scientists, engineers and industrialists studying the situation say that South Africa's mining and industrial progress may be retarded through lack of water in years to come, and even today there is not enough water to meet the needs of the country. One expert goes so far as to say that eventually the Union will have to distilsea water on a tremendous scale to meet her bare requirements.

The government has adopted a policy of encouraging industries to move into rural areas, but the shortage of water makes this impracticable except in a few favored areas, and in many of these the problem will become acute in the future.

To combat these tendencies the government has embarked on a double program of establishing large irrigation projects and encouraging soil conservation. Broadly speaking the Union's irrigation efforts are being directed to "farming" out the waters of the Orange River—the country's largest river. This is to be done by building more big dams on the river and by diverting some of its waters in canals and tunnels to other rivers and dams in order to get it to the areas short of water.

Cape Province Scheme.

One scheme for the Cape Province, still in the planning stage, will provide about 200,000 acres with water and will cost £15,000,000 ($60,000,000) while £10,000,000 is to be spent on irrigation of part of the Orange Free States—driest of the four provinces.

The Cape scheme involves the building of a tunnel 60 miles long to take water from one storage dam to another, from where it will be diverted into a huge valley—the Fish River Valley — which badly needs improved irrigation.

The Free State scheme — to serve its northern area—will also need an extensive system of tunnels to irrigate 120,000 parched acres.

In the fight against soil erosion there is an increased awareness amongst progressive farmers of the dwindling fertility of the soil, but a large percentage are still hard to wean from the destructive farming methods of their forbears. However, an increasing number of "good farming" laws are being passed by parliament, and a Soil Conservation Board has been set up.

NEW ZEALAND UPS CAR BODY IMPORTS

Wellington, N.Z., Jan. 23 (CP) —A further increase in import licences for commercial chassis, in component parts, from Britain, Canada and the United States has been granted in New Zealand, to the extent of 50 per cent of similar imports from these sources in 1938.

The new increase will mean that in 1947, provided the countries concerned can make supplies, commercial chassis will be imported to the value of 250 per cent of 1938 from Britain and 150 per cent of 1938 imports from Canada and the United States.

Owing to the increase in price the actual numbers will be only about 1,800 from Britain, 1,800 from Canada, the largest pre-war supplier, and 855 from the United States.

Carmel

Carmel — Miss Ruth Brintnell spent the weekend in Madoc with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brintnell and Leigh.

A good crowd turned out for the Farm Radio Forum at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Watson, last week, and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Horton this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sills and Marion, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Latone were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. W. D. Simmons in Foxboro.

The Comrade Group of Carmel United Church held a social evening on Thursday night. Miss Iva Horton was in charge of the program. Miss Nora Dane of England, now teaching on the staff of King George School, Belleville, was the guest speaker. Mr. Garth McCreary of Plainfield showed two educational films.

Many from here enjoyed the drama in Foxboro United Church entitled "Hook, Line and Sinker," put on by the Carmel-Foxboro Young People's Group.

Consecon

Consecon — Sunday School has resumed and will meet in Consecon United Church next Sunday at 1.30 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Carter of Wellington, spent a recent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. D. Bush.

Army and Navy Veterans Lose High-Scoring Intermediate 'A' Game to Kingston Lions 9 to 8

Local Team Blows 4-Goal Lead in First Frame in Cleanly Contested Game

Belleville's Intermediate Army and Navy Air Force Veterans squad could not stand the lush road to prosperity at the Jock Harty Arena in Kingston last night, and after piling up a 4-0 lead in the first period was nudged aside from victory by a 9-8 score by the fast skating Kingston Lions.

The game played on the lightning fast ice was a wild-coring affair and incidentally one of the cleanest games seen this season on Kingston ice. Only four players were sent to the sin-bin by officials Watts and St. Louis. One of these being given the Lions for having too many men on the ice at one time.

The game was fast and furious from gong to gong with the sprinkling of spectators getting plenty of goals for their box-office fees garnished with some dazzling speed and clever plays.

Udall Star Of Piece

Udy Udall, Lions goalkeeper, after watching a quartet of Belleville pucks flash past him in the first eight minutes of play pulled up his galluses and staged a net-minding performance for the remainder of the game that rated him stardom for the joust at least. The bespectacled custodian kicked out puck after puck as the desperate Red team pulling up to within one goal on two occasions, sent flashing sortie after sortie in on the Lion's cage. Udall on one occasion while lying flat on the ice threw back three successive hard drives from the sticks of Gerow and Williams.

Coach Les Shiels sent his ace line of Williams, Gerow and Leo Goyer out to start hostilities with big Vern Goyer and Cal Yorke on the defence. The attacking trio found the fine ice to their liking and after a minute of play Timmy Williams sifted in on Udall and made no mistake from Goyer's pass.

Four minutes later Bastedo, one of the Red stars of the game flanked by Jackie Wardhaugh and Clare Williamson drove in on the Kingston goal with the former taking a perfect pass from Williamson to put the Reds two up. Jackie Wardhaugh and Bastedo raced in again on a power play and at the six minute mark to make it three.

Gerow Flashes Light

With the Reds turning on all their power Walt Gerow flashed the red light two minutes later on a pass from Leo Goyer to give the visitors a four -goal lead, and at that particular time it appeared to be a case of how many.

But they had reckoned without the Lions reserve of power. The Lions flashed to life. They raced down the winglanes and centre ice, darting and flashing in on Cook in a series of desperate attacks. Twice in the first twenty-five seconds of the second period the Numas paced by the dazzling play of Hawkins sank the puck to even the score. They had scored two in the eight minutes of the first period to make the period score 4-2.

At the two minute mark in the second heat, Hawkins had put his team in the lead for the first time and the Lions were never headed after that. They maintained a consistent heavy swooping attack that netted them five goals in this period to a single return by the Reds, Bastedo scoring his second goal of the night from passes by A. Meagher and Wardhaugh. The period ended 7-5 for the homesters.

Within Striking Distance

Early in the third period the Lions increased their lead to three when Casterton took Hawkin's pass to dunk the doughnut. The Reds flashed back to the offensive and Walt Gerow, starry leftwinger aided by Goyer and Williams scored two to bring them within striking distance.

The Belleville squad, with the second line doing yeoman service on the attack drove in on Udall time after time but were outguessed by the wily gent even as they parked themselves in a huddle around the net. He hurled back the Red threat time after time in a superlative display of goalkeeping.

Lions scored their last goal when Casterton drove a long hard shot from well outside the blue line that fooled Cook completely.

Stormed to Offensive.

The Reds stormed back to the offensive and hemmed the Lions in their own lair and with two minute to go Tim Williams, who had been outlucked nearly all night finally drove the puck past Udall to make the count 9-8. They ripped back in attack after attack but the Lions' defence held and they skated off the winners by the odd goal in seventeen.

Walt Gerow paced the Red attacks with three goals and an assist with Leo Goyer getting three assists and Tim Williams two goals and a helper. One of the stars of the Red team was young Doug. Bastedo who played an outstanding game all night. Vern Goyer was dangerous on the attack and with Cal Yorke played a heady game behind the blue line. In fact all the Red forwards and defencemen turned in good efforts.

Hawkins was the star of the Lions' troop getting himself a goal and six assists. Aiken, Bearance and Casterton were outstanding, with Udall, as was mentioned before, plainly saving the day for the winners. There was only one flair-up and that happened in the first period when Bernie Meagher and Aiken got the gate for squaring off at each other. No damage done.

The teams:

Kingston Lions — Goal, Udall; defence, Murphy, Belwa; centre, Aikens; wings, Hawkins, Casterton; subs, Bearance, Howe, Lewis, Acton.

Belleville A. and N. — Goal, Cook; defence, V. Goyer, Yorke; Centre, L. Goyer; wings, Gerow, Williams; subs, Bastedo, Wardhaugh, A. Meagher, B. Meagher, B. Gerow, Storms, Williamson, Hayes.

Referees: St. Louis, Belleville; Watts, Kingston.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Maurice Richard stretched his lead at the top of the National Hockey League scoring parade to eight points last night when he connected for two goals — his second double in Montreal's last two games — to raise his goal total to 28, which combined with 17 assists gave the fleet winger 45 points. Although idle last night, Ted Kennedy of Toronto and Detroit's Billy Taylor retained the second and third spots with 37 and 36 points. Only newcomer to the select circle was Doug. Bentley of Chicago who added a goal and an assist to move into a tie with Detroit's Sid Abel for the seventh slot.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George R. Carver, Sports Editor

Unfortunately, circumstances prevented the idea from blossoming into a reality, but it may yet take material form. And a lot of hockey-minded youngsters in the city will benefit greatly thereby.

• • •

It all started when a community-minded resident of the city, himself a former star athlete, and who has the interests of the young boys at heart, conceived the idea of having Joe Primeau, coach of the famous St. Michael's College Junior "A" squad, speak to a representative gathering of young boys of the city prior to the game here Friday night between the Irish and a Quinte All-Star hockey aggregation.

• • •

This boy-minded citizen, none other than Harold F. (Bouncer) Holway, who played with the famous Soo Greyhounds when they won the Allan Cup way back in 1924, no sooner had the idea than he went into action. He received co-operation from the YMCA to hold the meeting there between 7 and 7.15. He approached Alderman E. E. (Ted) Follwell, head of city council publicity and Ted went for the idea 100 per cent.

• • •

But "the best-laid plans of mice and men" applied itself to the picture. "Bouncer" reached Joe via telephone, and then came disappointment. Joe would have loved to do it — but he couldn't get away. The St. Mike's squad will not be able to leave Toronto until after school on Friday and they are travelling by bus. Joe was genuinely sorry, for he has a big chunk of his fighting heart dedicated to boy athletes.

• • •

But don't take the disappointment to heart too much, boys. The idea has not been dropped and in the very near future an outstanding name in hockey, quite possibly one of the members of the present Toronto Maple Leafs will be here to give you a neat talk on how to play the popular winter game. You'll be hearing more about that later.

• • •

And speaking of sport and boys, "Sport" magazine has a timely article anent this important subject in an interview with J. Edgar Hoover, head of the famous F.B.I. of Uncle Sam.

• • •

"Organized sport," Mr. Hoover said is one of our best weapons against juvenile delinquency...If we can get our kids interested, in sports, they'll put all their enthusiasm and energy into playing ball—and not lifting watches and robbing stores."

• • •

"The importance of maintaining sport as a constructive influence on the young boys and girls of today cannot be overestimated" the G-Man boss said.

"Here's a gang of young boys in an Eastern city," he said, "who did a thorough job of getting themselves into a lot of trouble. Two of them were sixteen. They got out of school at three o'clock every afternoon, and met in a clubroom over a garage. There they perfected their organization.

• • •

"One of the boys was named the leader, another was put in charge of casing new jobs, another had to take care of the loot, and a fourth was in charge of getting whatever new equipment the gang needed. In a period of fourteen days, those kids pulled off thirty-nine burglaries, and stole several cars. They threw their who community into consternation. Then, of course, they were caught."

• • •

The FBI boss pointed out that "it's logical to assume these boys might have been prevented from taking up such a dangerous pastime if they had been interested in playing football, and spent all their time and energy on the gridiron."

• • •

"If those boys had been properly guided, they would have used their organizational skills building up strong baseball, basketball, or football teams. They would have spent their energies competing for championship trophies — and not for wrist watches, bracelets, and automobiles, that belonged to other people."

• • •

"Here's a classic example of what I mean," he said. "A YMCA secretary in a midwestern town saw the same group of boys playing on the streets every day. He didn't like it, so he did something about it. He got them all in his office, and talked them into organizing a club. The club was to field teams in all sports, and go in for some social activities, too.

"There were twenty boys in that group. Nineteen of them joined the club. The FBI checked up on the men some years ago, and found that every one is a good citizen, at least moderately successful. The twentieth boy wouldn't join the club. He thought it would make him out to be a sissy. His name was Alvin Karpis, and today he's serving a life term in Alcatraz.

• • •

"I think that story proves that sports can turn youngsters from ways that lead to crime, to the right road. And that's what makes it so worth while to make sure that our sports are clean, that they provide the right background for the growing boy. We can have no patience with any evil practices trying to establish room in our sports, because clean sports mean too much to the country."

• • •

"When you find a youngster who is getting normal recognition and response, and who feels secure, and you place him in good surroundings, you will soon discover that he will satisfy his urge for new experiences in a constructive way. After all, every baseball game is a new experience. There's always the chance that you may pull off a play you've never been able to make before, like an unassister triple play, or a homer with the bases loaded."

• • •

The Belleville Bees have their "stingers" primed and are rarin' to go tonight in Memorial Arena against the Kingston Victorias in their second Junior "B" fixture of the season. Coach Whillans has his squad intact and the youngsters are full of the old vim and vigor and will battle their starry opponents to the last ditch. The tilt looks like a lively tussle and the faithful should not miss it.

• • •

The official lineups of the St. Michael's College Junior "A" squad and the Quinte All-Stars arrived late today and will be published tomorrow. The exhibition game between the two teams staged tomorrow night in the Memorial Arena has attracted district-wide attention and a sell-out crowd is expected. The RCAF band will be in attendance. Such St. Mike's stars as Fleming Mackell, Costello, Paul, Sanford, Kelly and Harvey will be seen in action while directing his Irish battlers from the bench will be the well-known Joe Primeau.

Edmonton, Jan. 23 — (CP) — When it comes to basketball there are few coaches, if any, who have attained the heights of J. Percy Page of Edmonton, and his commercial Grads Women's Basketball team.

Page, as mentor of the world-famous club from their inception in 1915 until they retired as undefeated world champions in 1940, had guided them to just about every title known to the basketball world.

They included: several city, provincial, Canadian, international and world championships. During their 25 years in hoop competition the Grads set a record unequalled in basketball history — playing in 522 official games they were on the winning end of 502.

Now he's sending out a call for another huddle of all his former warriors. He's not planning another club, it's the big reunion scheduled for June 15.

"We're planning a big celebration and we're hoping that they'll all be able to come," he said.

Mr. Page who has no intention of returning to his favorite sport has been rumored interested in another Edmonton club — Pats — an intermediate women's team. But, he says, "I'm merely in the background giving whatever assistance my experience can give."

He adds that his only sports activities for the future are his golfing and curling.

HAMILTON TIGERS SUFFER FIRST LOSS OF SEASON

Defeat Administered by Owen Sound Mohawks, Fourth Team in Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

It had to happen sometime—defeat for the mighty Hamilton Tigers, eastern Canadian senior amateur hockey champs who rode victoriously through 17 straight games in the O.H.A. senior 'A' this winter. But no one was more surprised than the old men of the Tigers themselves when the defeat was administered by the Owen Sound Mohawks, standing fourth in the five - team circuit.

Mohawks defeated the Tigers 3-1 at Owen Sound in a game postponed from Tuesday. Tigers had been snowbound at Fergus Tuesday and spent that night at Guelph. Yesterday they battled snowdrifts for five hours to complete the 83-mile trip from Guelph to Owen Sound. But they had no excuses for the result.

Keith Woodall played a brilliant game in the Owen Sound net while Cec Shears scored against the veteran Art Childs in the first period, Freddie Smith in the second. Ab Conick scored for Tigers in the third, but Jim Boddy made it 3-1 and that was that.

That senior upset overshadowed the three junior games, in which the group-leading Toronto St. Mikes walloped Oshawa Generals 6-3, Stratford Kroehlers smashed St. Catharines Falcons 11-1 and Barrie Flyers stunned the Galt Red Wings with a 5 - 1 triumph.

11,240 Watch Game

At Toronto the largest crowd to see a junior game this season—11,240 — saw the annual St. Michael's night at Maple Leaf Gardens, with the junior tilt prefaced by a game between the St. Mikes' junior 'B' Buzzers and St. Mikes' old boys. The kids and the old boys wound up 5-5, but the old boys had to send six men up the ice in the dying seconds to get the equalizer.

In the league game it was a ding-dong struggle, 1-1 after the first 3-3 after the second. Then the St. Mikes power exploded for three goals to which Gens had no reply. Harrison and Mackell each scored twice, Winslow and MacLellan getting the others for the collegians. Gamble scored twice for Oshawa, Milliard getting the third.

At Barrie, the Flyers out-skated and out-played the Wings, 1-0 in the first, 4-0 in the second. Aikin scored the first, followed by St. Pierre with two, then Fife. In the last period Mineault scored the Wings' only counter before St. Pierre's third goal of the night wound up the scoring.

At Stratford the Kroehlers were never in danger after ramming in four first period counters. Everybody except the goalie went on the scoring chart for Stratford, Kullman, scoring three, Roth, Service and Drysdale two each, Robertson and Casonata singles. Moy spoiled Pete Riggins' shutout.

'PHANTOM PHIL' CANNOT CARRY ROCKETS LOAD

Philadelphia Loses 30th Game in 43 Starts to Cleveland Barons

(By The Canadian Press)

One man cannot carry the burden of a whole hockey team — as player-coach Phil Hergesheimer of the lowly Philadelphia Rockets is finding out the hard way.

"Phanton Phil," whose prolific scoring has placed him at the top of the American Hockey League's point-getters for the last four weeks, last night saw his team drop their 30th game in 43 starts to Cleveland's Barons 6-2.

Hergesheimer, Winnipeg - born veteran of a dozen campaigns in professional hockey, took over the coaching chores from Herb Gardiner who was promoted to business manager and chief scout of the Rockets, last night he scored both Philadelphia goals but lacked the kind of support the Barons gave sharp-shooting Johnny Holota who also notched a pair.

Holota and Hergesheimer, however, remained deadlocked for the league-goal-getting title each with 32 so far. The victory was sweet for the Barons, for it gave them undisputed possession of the western division leadership over the idle Indianapolis Capitals.

Scored in Every Period

Cleveland scored in every period and gave Holota ample support with a game-winning spree in the final session. Fred Thurier, Hank Goldup, Jack Lavoie and Norman Mann added single counters.

Buffalo Bisons, one of the hottest clubs in the league, moved within two points of the Barons with an easy 8-2 victory over Providence Reds. Young Jerry Cotnoir, playing in the Providence nets for the first time couldn't stop the flow of Bison rubber.

Murdo McKay was the big gun in the Buffalo attack with three goals and an assist. Doug Lewis, Jimmy McFadden, Hub Macey, Bob Blake and Mike McMahon added single counters while Tommy Burlington and Robert Bedard were the Providence scorers.

In the league's other game Pittsburgh Hornets kept right in the midst of the western division scramble a game behind Buffalo, by whipping Hershey Bears 3-1. It was the ninth loss of the season for the Bears, runaway leaders in the eastern division.

The Hornets led all the way, Mel Hill, Sid Smith and Harry Taylor scoring in succession. Norm McAtee notched the Hershey goal on a power play midway in the middle session.

Boxer is Substituted Without Announcement

Vancouver, Jan. 23 — (CP) — The Vancouver News Herald in a newspage story today said that a second case had been uncovered of a boxer being substituted in a ring here without any announcement to fight fans.

The newspaper said that thousands of dollars were being wagered on local boxing and intimated that Mayor G. G. McGeer's recent announcement that he would seek a change in personnel of the Vancouver Athletic Commission was part of his plan to stamp out gambling here.

The News-Herald said that on Dec. 16 a fighter named Ace Carter was announced as a substitute for Floyd Steffaney of Fort Lewis, Wash., in a match with Billy Townsend of Spokane. The Herald claimed that the boxer who met Townsend was Bomber Daniels of Portland, Ore., who three days earlier had been knocked out in two rounds in Portland by Townsend.

Ald. C. Jones, chairman of the Vancouver Athletic Commission, said last night he was "not aware there was any switch for Carter."

Earlier this week Percy Butler, Negro fighter from San Francisco, was substituted without announcement from the ring for Speedy Cannon. Cannon had been scheduled to meet Townsend. However, the Athletic Commission said it had been informed of the switch from Cannon to Butler before the fight.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Even with solemn and established documents as guides, learned supreme court justices have disagreed. So, it is not surprising if some bid in bridge looks different to you than it does to me.

In many cases where our opinions differ, however, we may both be right. The decision then, it seems to me, should go to the bid that offers the best sound reasons. Fair enough?

Start working on this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠ None
♥ A K J 7 3
♦ Q 7 6 4
♣ A 8 6 4

NORTH
♠ K 7 3
♥ Q 6 5
♦ A J 5 4
♣ K Q 7

The south hand has a rebiddable heart suit, seven tricks, four high cards, three sure tricks. It is an opening bid of one heart. No argument can be found against this. So, skip it.

Could you dig up any challenges when it comes to the first reply by north? You sure could. And if you ring in your partner, we could have a tri-partite agreement of disagreements.

You may like an immediate one-jump no-trump response. The north hand certainly has the stuff for it. Five high cards are enough big cards to help a one opener make a no-trump game.

Your partner may prefer an immediate one-jump assist to three hearts. He has the material to justify it. Adequate support in five tricks with two sure will help opener make a game in a major.

My choice is for a simple takeout to two diamonds. With me, a takeout comes before an assist or no-trump. With less than six tricks, a takeout should not jump off the first round.

Since a takeout is forcing for one round, partner will give me another chance to bid. The jump heart assist or jump no-trump can be shown on the second round. This gives partner double information.

If you jump no-trump or jump assist first, you may never get to show your biddable suit. You never know when partner needs to know it.

Make the most of your opportunities.

Stewart Granger and Valerie Hobson will co-star in the Cineguild production of "Blanche Fury" which has just gone before the cameras at London's Pinewood Studios....Ginger Rogers has acquired screen rights to "Great Answers", Margaret Runbeck's novel about a newspaperwoman. Miss Rogers has formed her own company, Lincoln Productions, Inc., and will produce and star in the film.

Donald O'Connor has signed up to appear with Winnipeg's Deanna Durbin in "For The Love of Mary," as his first role since his discharge from the United States army.

Rudy Vallee has started a personal appearance tour which will include some Canadian cities....
"13 Rue Madeleine"

This addition to the screen's treatments of wartime exploits of the United States' "Cloak And Dagger Boys" in the office of Strategic Services was produced by Louis De Rochemont, who has had much to do with the success of the March of Time. It stars James Cagney and includes Annabella, Richard Conte, Frank Latimore, Walter Abel and Melville Cooper.

There is special interest in that the latter part of the action, in Le Havre and the Normandy countryside, was shot in and around Quebec City. The sequences laid in England were photographed in Boston.

Metz Suspended From Next Two Golf Tourneys

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 23 (AP)—Officials of the Professional Golfers Association announced today that Dick Metz of Arkansas City, Kas., has been suspended from competing in the next two P.G.A. sponsored golf tournaments.

The disciplinary action came as the aftermath of an incident at Carmel, Calif., two weeks ago in which, it was charged, Metz struck Fred J. Corcoran, P.G.A. tournament Bureau Manager.

The suspension was voted by a players' committee newly-formed P.G.A. Tournament Players' Committee headed by George Schneiter of Ogden, Utah. The committee found Metz guilty of violating P.G.A.'s code of ethics for "conduct likely to injure the reputation and standing of the association or any of its members."

Other members of the committee include United States open champion Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, P.G.A. champion Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., Jimmy Thompson of Chicopee, Mass., and Ellsworth Vines, Los Angeles.

Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., the seventh member, is in the east.

The two tournaments which Metz may not enter are the $10,000 Phoenix open which starts Friday and the $10,000 Tucson, Ariz., open the following week.

Corcoran declared after the incident that Metz had assaulted him without provocation outside a Carmel, Calif., restaurant. He and Metz had been in disagreement over P.G.A. policies and other matters for some time.

Mother Rolls Child In Blanket on Floor To Beat Out Flames

Stratford, Jan. 22 — (CP) — Twelve-year-old Francis Windling was saved from what might have been critical burns today by presence of mind of her mother, Mrs. Stanford Windling, who wrapped the girl in a blanket and rolled her on the floor to beat out flames which enveloped her after she had accidentally backed into a stove.

She is in general hospital suffering from painful, but not serious burns to her back.

U. K. TO BUY LARGE QUANTITY COM. POULTRY

Ottawa, Jan. 23 — (CP) — The British Ministry of Food has agreed to purchase up to 10,000,000 pounds of dressed Canadian poultry before March 31 and the Special Products Board has increased its buying price to one-half cent under the wholesale ceiling, the Agriculture Department announced last night.

MORE ADEQUATE SUPPLY

London, Ont., Jan. 23—(CP) — London will have a more adequate supply of lumber soon to alleviate the shortage which has delayed completion of emergency shelters, Mayor George Wenige promised the Veterans' Housing Committee last night.

AT THE BELLE — Departing from his usual romantic film role, Dennis Morgan plays a high comedy part as one of "The Two Guys From Milwaukee," in Warners' riotous comedy by that name now at the Belle. Jack Carson, Joan Leslie and funny man S. Z. "Cuddles" Sakall are also starred in the film.

AT THE CAPITOL — Lanny Rees and Craig Reynolds are shown in one of the amazing scenes featuring "Flame," the German Shepherd for whom the Screen Guild Release, "My Dog Shep," is named, starts tonight at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program "Man from Rainbow Valley," in Magnacolor, starring Monte Hale and Adrian Booth. Both hits are first city runs.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

England's all-star hockey team took a 4-3 lead in their nine-game series with a touring United States team by virtue of a 7-6 disputed victory at London last night. One of the previous games ended in a tie. The dispute arose when the English team were awarded the winning goal after American defenceman allegedly threw his stick.

A Philadelphia announcement yesterday said Eddie Collins, Jr., former Philadelphia Athletics outfielder, has been named assistant to Joe Reardon, in charge of Philadelphia Phillies' farm system.

The $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup for three-year-olds and up, will be run at Hollywood Park July 26, it was announced yesterday.

A resolution calling for a judiciary committee to make a broad investigation of professional sports, with particular emphasis on attempts at bribery and other corruption, was introduced yesterday in the United States Senate by Senator Joseph O'Mahoney (Dem.-Wyo.)

W.P. (Bill) White, 57, who gained fame as a one-armed baseball player and later was diamond coach and football scout at the UUniversity of Georgia, died yesterday in a Rome, Ga., hospital.

SPEED AIR TRANSPORT

London (CP) — Two leading British aircraft firms — Rolls Royce Ltd., and A. V. Roe and Company—are jointly attempting to apply jet propulsion to commercial air transport. Four Rolls Royce Nene turbo jet engines are to be fitted to an Avro Tudor airliner, which is expected to have a cruising speed of 400 miles per hour.

A LOT OF MONEY

Toronto, Jan. 23 — (CP) — Charging that controls are forcing Canadians to limp when they should run, Louis Blake Duff of Welland told the Hotel Association of Ontario yesterday that the Prices Board had been made into a sacred cow. "Up to the end of 1945, it cost us $458,000,000 to maintain prices," he said. "That is a lot of money for this silly nonsense of maintaining prices."

CHAPTER 13

Christa Maynard stood over the piano where Jake was playing sonorous chords of Chopin. Weeks of sleeplessness, with a mind wavering between loving Jake, loathing the poverty of his life, and thinking about Renny and the girl he had chanced upon at a beach resort had finally brought a decision, but at the result of that decision Christa was still uncertain. She would go back in triumph because Jake loved her and to meet Arlen Leeds was to face a challenge that Christa was anxious to accept.

"Jake," his eyes came up from the keys, "I'm going home at Christmas. Fanny writes me that Louise is giving a party on New Year's Eve and I wouldn't miss it for the world. Will you come with me?"

The music stopped. "Come with you? In the first place, I haven't the fare, and in the second, I'm not cad enough to follow you to New York and meet you secretly while you are seeing your husband and your child." He got up and put his arms around her. "Oh, my dear, I didn't mean...." as Christa drew away. "But we must begin by doing the decent thing."

"I remember everything you said that day, Jake. I've forgotten nothing."

"It's the only way," he said.

Louise's departure for Florida, which demanded the services of the entire household and circle of friends, was enough to cause her healing nerves to collapse again. On the afternoon she was to sail numerous people came in and staged an impromptu farewell party. Fanny called from Virginia to wish her bon voyage. The telephone clanged incessantly. Nora, Louise's maid was panic-stricken for fear they'd miss the boat, and Arlen sympathized with the Irish girl. Knowing that her mother had died recently and she was in need of a change as much as her mistress.

It was twilight when Arlen and Richard returned after seeing Louise wave a reluctant farewell and wipe away a sad tear. Richard was going to stay at the club during Louise's absence and Arlen was to stay on until she and Elissa found an apartment.

Richard said, "You're welcome to the place as long as you want to stay. I'm keeping the servants on. Why doesn't Elissa come and stay with you?"

"All she can talk about is a studio apartment," said Arlen. "And I'd like to see her permanently settled, too."

"I don't know why you won't let me help you get another position."

"I'm not ungrateful," said Arlen. "Renny offered. I told him that part of the fun of being in a large city was seeing what I could do for myself."

"All right. And if nothing turns up, come to see me. But you'll starve first, won't you? Determined creature. I like it in you, Arlen. I gave Toby every opportunity to make something of himself but when promotion time came around, Fanny always took him off. He's working in Washington now, isn't he? Except for Fanny, my dear, I'd like to see you married to Toby, but I'm thinking of his good when I say that. Not yours."

"Richard, will you come to see us in the apartment we haven't found yet?"

"Nothing will keep me away. Incidentally, I'm very fond of Italian spaghetti, if you or Elissa can prepare it. And some evening, Arlen, will you go to the theatre with me?"

"And people will talk," she smiled.

"I am old enough to be your father. We'll invite Renny to go. That will make it all very proper. Two husbands with no wives and one young woman without a husband. A unique triangle.

* * *

For a week Arlen seemed to do nothing except follow a talkative house agent up innumerable steps into rooms which were either too dark, too unclean, or too expensive. It was a discouraging business, lightened only by Julian's remarks and Elissa's optimism. Fifty dollars a month was all they could pay and apartments that were livable and comfortably furnished ran into higher figures. With Arlen not working and Elissa on the verge of an elopement, it was unwise to consider furnishing it themselves.

A new agent, less talkative and one who made less promises, showed them an apartment one rainy night. Arlen took off her hat as if to say," This is it." The living room was high and wide, and one side of it was glass. That an artist had lived in it and sketched on the wall figures of dogs and boats attracted rather than sent them away. There were three deep chairs, a studio-bed, several small tables, and lamps. The bedroom was small. Elissa tested the softness of the twin beds and returned with a favorable verdict. The bathroom and kitchen had recently been painted. And the rent was exactly fifty dollars a month.

For days afterwards Arlen spent her time making the apartment livable. Julian, wearing an enormous apron tied around him, waxed the floors. Elissa scrubbed and cleaned. Arlen made new draperies for the windows, covered the pillows with brilliant chintz, and bought new lampshades. She wrote to her father for books, etchings, ash trays, and linens.

She went back to the penthouse for the last time and went out on the roof. Arlen felt tired and lonely. Elissa's world had narrowed down to Julian, and her interests were in him and the outcome of his new position. Arlen tried not to think about money. Christmas was alarmingly close and there were many people to be remembered. There was but one thing to do and that was to get a position at once, and rather than go to Richard or Renny she knew she would clerk at a bargain counter.

She was saying good-bye to glamorous unreality. Coming into the drawing-room again, she walked through the long lovely rooms. Living here had taught her one thing—that luxury and money did not make people happy. Money complicated rather than lightened one's difficulties, and where money was plentiful, other problems of equal magnitude presented themselves.

When she came out in the raw cold air, hailed a cab, and later opened the door to the little apartment, a wave of exultation swept across her. She had come home!

A diploma from a business school and Louise's highly colored reference were not enough to impress employers and personnel managers. Arlen's back and feet ached from this weary trudging from one place to another, and often she had to bite down on her teeth to keep her indignation under control. Many places refused her even the privilege of making out an application, and homely aging secretaries who valued their jobs barricaded an attractive girl from an interview with their employers. "They're like people who stick pins in little children's balloons," she told Elissa one day over lunch.

At noon one day she saw Renny and she felt so disheartened and near to tears that she crossed the street to avoid meeting him. It gave her a queer excited feeling to see him on the street, and her eyes followed his tall distinguished figure in a brown swagger coat as far as she could see him.

"The city has been scoured," she told Elissa at breakfast. "I must be a very nondescript person. They don't give me a chance to tell them I can take shorthand at a hundred and twenty words a minute."

"You'll get something."

She did not mention her dwindling money because of the fifty dollars Elissa owed her. They parted on the street. Elissa was going to take her final test in shorthand. Arlen walked slowly, having no destination. "Maybe I ought to toss a coin to see what direction I should go," she thought grimly.

She passed a newspaper office and decided to go in there. Arlen gave a jerk to her felt hat, squared her shoulders, and went through the revolving door. Some one at her elbow inquired, "What can I do for you?"

"I am looking for a position."

"You can see Mr. Law and try" the young man said and gave vague directions to the elevator. "His office is on the fifth floor."

A secretary, meek from working under Rupert Law, asked, "Have you an appointment?"

Arlen in desperation dared to lie "Yes.".

When she saw Rupert Law she wanted to turn and run. Moreover, she knew at once that he was not the person to see about a stenographic position. In a luxurious office, Rupert Law determined what should or should not go in a famous editorial page. He was red-haired and brown-eyed and fierce looking. He was tall and lean and hungry looking.

"Yes?" he asked.

"I came to see you about a position," said Arlen.

"What do you write?"

"I don't write. I'm a stenographer."

He glared at her." "Who sent you?"

"Some one I asked."

"I don't hire stenographers," said Rupert Law in a voice that was almost a roar.

"I'm very sorry. I didn't know. I have always wanted to work in a newspaper office."

"That is not an uncommon desire." His fierce mouth grinned. "Have you had any experience?"

"I can take shorthand at a hundred and twenty words a minute."

"But I talk faster than that. Sit down. Take a letter and type it. I'll time you."

Her nervousness seemed to give him a keen pleasure. Rupert Law admired on one he could not dominate and when the spirit was broken, as he had broken his secretary's, he regarded the person with cold hatred. Humility enraged him.

When she put the finished letter before him, he glanced up.

"You changed a sentence."

"I improved it."

"When any one can improve my sentence,s she's hired. Sit down, young woman, and let me tell you how hard I am to work for. And stop shaking. Here.... have a cigarette."

On an afternoon free from trying labors under Rupert Law, Arlen went to call on Renny's mother and found her a reserved cultured woman from whom Renny inherited his dark eyes and Louise her expressive hands. Allison had been taken for a walk by her nurse.

"Why doesn't Elissa come to see me?" Mrs. Maynard asked Arlen. "I won't reproach the child. It is because of what has happened to Elissa that when the question arose as to whether Allison should be boarded with unsympathetic relatives or sent to a nursery school. I had no choice. I thought I was much too old to begin reading books on modern parenthood."

Tea was served by a crisp New England maid and Allison came in with crimson cheeks and cold hands.

Arlen asked, "Don't you remember me?"

Mrs. Maynard said, "This is Arlen, dear. Don't you remember?"

Allison Maynard curtsied. "How are you?"

"I brought you something," said Arlen. "You open it."

With excited fingers Allison took a small cotton "scottie" from several wrappings of paper and squealed with delight. She hugged it close, regarded Arlen with her "Renny" frown, and then went into her arms. Holding the small little body close, Arlen bit back the tears. "Christa, you left her! How could you?"

From that moment on conversation between Mrs. Maynard and Arlen languished. When Renny came, he paused in the doorway seeing Arlen on her knees in the middle of the floor making a skyscraper with blocks, and Allison regarding her attempts at architecture with an eye for improvement. Never had Christa played with her. Never in her life until Renny's mother had taken her had Allison heard a story. Christa had been so afraid Allison would catch cold and keep her awake at night or cause her to postpone a social engagement that she was afraid for the wind to blow on the child. There had been bitter quarrels, with Renny insisting that he wanted his child to be a vigorous human being and that air and sunshine and digging in the earth were necessary to healthy development.

From the doorway he said, "it's off balance. In fact, it resembles Pisa's leaning tower."

"Renny, it's very nice," said his mother.

Arlen got up from the rug. Renny said, picking his daughter up in his arms and extending a hand to Arlen, "You've behaved badly. Or perhaps I have. What have you been doing?"

"I'm assistant secretary to Rupert Law." She laughed at him. "You know him? He's the most amazing person I've ever known, Renny."

"His bark isn't as bad as his bite." He sat down on the divan with Allison on his knees.

"I know that now. He does marvelous things and if you thank him for anything, he gets furious. Meekness enrages him. I try to look hard and talk back to him but sometimes I simply quake with fear."

"You're in very good hands," said Renny.

Mrs. Maynard asked, "You'll stay to dinner, Arlen?"

"I'm sorry but I can't tonight. You see, Elissa usually buys our dinner and we prepare it ourselves."

"Then you must arrange to come some other evening."

An hour later, her face pensive in the candlelight of the little studio room, Elissa said, "I knew you'd like Renny's mother, Aunt Olive."

Arlen put down her fork. "Elissa, it isn't because of Renny that I love Allison. I love all children but she's the most attractive child I've ever seen. Her sense of humor is marvelous. I'd hate Renny or his mother to think I was a Greek bearing gifts."

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Jan. 23. (CP)—The base metal group sold off during the early session on Toronto Stock Exchange today as investor uncertainty and profit taking on a mild scale set in.

Yesterday's gainers in the base metal group showed losses in the early session.

In senior issues in the group held firm for fractional gains—Base Metals up 1-2, Consolidated Smelters 1-4, Hudson Bay 3-8 and Nickel 1-2.

Golds strengthened for several point gains in senior and junior issues.

Industrials were firm for many fractions and some points for nearly all groups.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 23 —(AP)—Liquors, motors and assorted utilities led a selective and relatively quiet advance in today's stock market although many leaders failed to participate to any great extent.

Plus signs of fractions to a point or more—a few wider "thin" jumpers appeared — held the majority near the fourth hour.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 23. (CP)—Grade A, dressed, bacon-hog, were unchanged at markets reporting early today: Hull $22 delivered; Barrie $21.75 delivered; Stratford, to farmers $21.60, to truckers $21.75, delivered.

Brantford later reported prices settled at $21.60, delivered down 75 cents.

Hospital Employee Charged With Armed Robbery

Hamilton, Jan. 23 —(CP)—Austin Craft, 44, hospital employee, of Brantford, appeared before Magistrate James McKay today and was committed for trial. He is charged with the armed robbery of the Bank of Toronto branch on James Street South. When the charge was read, he said, "I'll take a trial by judge and jury."

Detective William Stamp testified accused had entered the bank branch, and brandishing a hospital bed crank wrapped in paper, had held up employees then fled from the bank with $500. The accused, Stamp said, was captured by citizens, and a few seconds later, the detective subdued him and took him to police headquarters.

Before he was committed for trial, Craft was asked if he had anything to say, "No, I won't take up the court's time," he answered.

Craft was captured minutes after a man had passed a note to Miss Gertrude Walker, bank teller, demanding that she hand over the money.

Miss Walker dropped to the floor and the bandit, brandishing a bed crank wrapped in brown paper, ordered manager Edwin A. Wallwin to hand over the money. Two bundles of $500 were given to the man, and he backed toward the door, turned and ran.

Two bank employees gave chase with drawn revolvers. Craft was confronted by a detective who happened to be in the vicinity and with the help of two passers-by was captured.

Lloyd Spalding, a bank employee who assisted in the chase, quoted Craft as saying, "It was a good try, anyway."

Citizens Pounce on Him

As the pursued man reached the corner of Main and James Streets he was pounced upon by two citizens, Russell Woods and Clifford Lesauvage both of Hamilton, who were waiting for a bus.

They held him until Detective William Stamp, who had been nearby in a parked squad car, arrived.

"When he slipped the note thru the front of the cage I remembered for a moment the gun at my side," Miss Walker, attractive blonde teller, said. "But I decided quickly not to use it and ducked under the counter instead."

Chief Constable Joseph Crocker of Hamilton praised "the splendid co-operation of citizens who helped capture this man."

Miss Norah Lockwood, another bank employee knelt behind the counter while the hold-up was in progress and telephoned for help and a second alarm was sounded by H. L. G. Westland, lawyer, who saw the man run from the bank as he sat by his office window.

Police allege the accused was in possession of the $1,000 taken from the bank.

Officials of the Brant Sanatorium in Brantford said today that they had employed Craft from the week before Christmas until last Tuesday. He tended fires, shovelled snow and sanded roads. They said he did not return to work after taking his weekly day off Tuesday.

Since then they have discovered that a crank from a new bed at the sanatorium is missing, they said.

Woman Admits 2 Bank Holdups

Des Moines, Jan. 23 (AP)—An attractive brunette, who police said had confessed two unassisted bank robberies, was in custody today following $2,950 holdup of the Des Moines Bank and Trust Co. during the height of the day's shopping period.

Officers said Mrs. Opal Dixon, 36, of St. Louis, Mo., signed a statement admitting the $582 holdup of the United Bank and Trust Co. of St Louis last Dec. 26 as well as today's robbery, in which she threatened to "blow this place to pieces" with contents of a silver medical syringe.

Her seizure came within an hour after the woman bandit walked calmly out of the bank with a currency packed envelope, later recovered along with the syringe in a ladies' rest room. The syringe was "utterly harmless," police said.

Were Fur Coat

"I was tired of living on nothing," officers quoted the woman as saying.

Police, Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and bank officials gave this story of the holdup:

At 1:15 a pretty woman, clad in a grey fur coat, walked into the bank and approached the cage of teller Rex Cisco.

She tossed a large manila envelope on the counter, flourished the syringe over her head, and said:

"This is a stickup. This place is covered inside and out. Get busy."

Cisco placed about $500 in the envelope, shoved it toward her.

Asks For More

"That's not enough," she said loudly, raising the arm which held the syringe. "I've got enough stuff here to blow this place to pieces and me with it. Fill that package."

Cisco stuffed more currency in the envelope and she took it, casually started toward the door, and warned:

"I'm going out now. Don't any of you make a move."

The 40 patrons and 20 bank employees stood temporarily paralyzed.

Police said the woman quickly lost herself in the crowd along the street.

The arrest came 50 minutes later when the woman answering the same description was seized by two patrolmen as she emerged from an adjacent building.

Kidnapped Girl Says Ex-Convict Not Man Sought

Lodi, Calif., Jan. 23. (AP)—Lodi Police Sergeant Pat Coon told reporters that Alice Dean Devine saw Earl Shelton, 40-year-old San Francisco ex-convict, at a secret meeting early today on a rural road near here and said "this is not the man" who kidnapped her Monday night.

Coon said members of the Devine family accompanied Alice Dean to the meeting, which Coon arranged after accompanying Shelton to Lodi from San Francisco last night. Mrs. John Edward Devine, the girl's mother, also declared Shelton was not the man sought, Coon said.

Earlier, the pretty 17-year-old daughter of a wealthy Lodi vineyardist, had said Shelton's picture "looked like" the man she had said kidnapped and held her for $10,000 ransom.

Shelton, a photographic and model studio operator and dancing teacher in San Francisco, made the trip voluntarily and appeared with Coon at the interview in police headquarters here.

After the interview Shelton said he was returning to San Francisco.

When he heard he was wanted for questioning in the case Shelton rushed to San Francisco police headquarters last night armed with alibis for his time Monday night when Alice Dean disappeared.

Police then checked some of the 30 models who, Shelton said, were taking a dancing lesson from him in San Francisco, Monday evening, and indicated he was not implicated.

Alice Dean disappeared after she had gone to a photographic studio here to have her picture taken for what she was told would be part of a series of national magazine articles on the typical American girl in High School.

She was returned to her home 26 hours later by the California State patrol after having spent a night in a motor court near Sacramento trussed on a bed, she said, while her abductor smoked cigarets and watched over her.

Shown pictures of Shelton yesterday, she was quoted by Lodi police as saying that the picture "resembled" the man who held her captive. Earlier Sacramento police who sent an officer to Lodi with the picture said, the girl was "positive in her identification".

State Police today renewed their pickup message for a man known as E. W. Stiles, who had rented the tourist cabin where Alice Dean spent Monday night and most of Tuesday.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

When a Wedding Present is a Special Problem

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For the past ten years I have been private secretary to a man of high standing both in the business and social world. I am well acquainted with his family, although I have never been a guest in their home. His daughter is being married soon to the son of another well-known family, and the wedding will be an outstanding event. This young couple have a host of friends who will, of course, send them important gifts. If, as may be possible, I should receive an invitation to their wedding, will you please suggest something you think would be appropriate for me to give them?

A. B.

In your circumstance and in your relationship to this family you will show the best taste not to strive to send something consequential in appearance and price, but to send a simple something that will inevitably show good taste and that will probably be of real use. For example, a simple white crystal ash-tray; a small or medium-size serving tray (lucite or painted metal, perhaps tole); a small crystal vase (or perhaps a graceful white bud-vase for a breakfast tray); an interesting pair of book-ends, perhaps of heavy glass; four or six tea napkins, small and sheer, perhaps monogrammed; an interesting box, convenient for many uses; or a memorandum-pad, in heavy leather frame, for use near the telephone.

Her Brother is to be Best Man

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My brother is to be best man at a church wedding. Will you please tell us exactly what expenses are involved on his part? Also will you give me some suggestions for a wedding gift he could give? He is a good friend of both the prospective bride and groom.

2. My mother knows the couple only slightly. Should she give them a wedding gift also?

A. S.

1. The best man (1) provides the attire he is to wear to the wedding, as prescribed by the bridegroom-to-be, and (2) sends a wedding present to the bride-to-be. (He isn't expected to, and shouldn't be expected to, provide the flowers for any of the bride's attendants or to have any other financial responsibilities for the wedding or reception.) Any item for the new home—in silver, glass or crystal, china, linen—is appropriate as the wedding gift he sends to the bride-to-be.

2. Since your brother is to be best man, your mother will probably be invited to both the ceremony and the reception; and anyone invited to the reception usually sends a gift, even though only a simple one.

Receiving Wedding Guests at Church and at House

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If, after our small church wedding, we stand in the rear of the church to receive the guests, shall I also have a receiving-line at the reception at home?

M. C.

If, as I judge, only the few guests who are present at the ceremony are to be greeted in the church vestibule and you are to have a large reception at your home, I suggest that only you and your bridegroom receive the guests at the church, and then, if you wish, have the customary receiving-line at the home reception.

TO REMEMBER

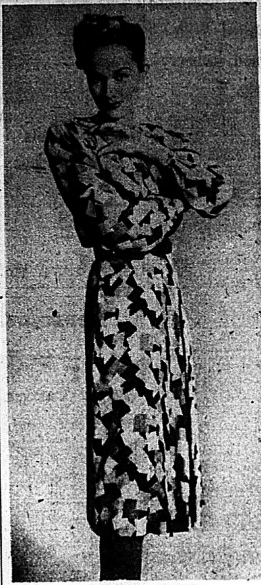
Harlequin Shirtmaker



By PRUNELLA WOOD

This colorful and well-bred shirtmaker frock, answer to any daytime doings in a sunny resort, is made of a pedigreed crepe, so it is at least doubly attractive. The print pattern is one of the least tiresome possible, for it is that old faithful, the Harlequin, here achieved freshly with swatch patch prints of numerous harmonious tints, including white and black.

Long sleeves, a single side pocket, a broad patent leather belt are styling details.

The Mixing Bowl

(By Anne Allan, Hydro Home Economist)

Hello, Homemakers! Objection to the unexpected in food is a common occurrence in most families. The habit of anticipating with pleasure the unknown in flavor and texture can be encouraged if new foods are introduced in a casual way, and slight changes to old favorites may be tried without too much risk. Here are some ideas which may be new to you:

Three Different Apple Pies—

(1) Use chopped dates combined with cubed apples and thus cut down on the amount of sugar required.

(2) Add color and flavor, and save on sugar, too, by using strawberry or raspberry jam with sliced apples.

(3) Sprinkle grated cheese over minced apples just before fitting the top pastry.

Huntsman's Potatoes—

Peel potatoes and shred on coarse grater. Pour boiling water through them and pat dry with a towel. Spread potatoes over bottom of heavy frying pan in heated dripping. Fry until crisp, turning several times. Serve immediately.

Boiled Citrus Dessert—

Prepare halves of grapefruit by clipping out the centre with scissors and running a knife down each side of sections. Sprinkle with brown sugar and place under heated broiling element for ten minutes. Top with maraschino cherry.

Luncheon Eggs—

Beat 6 eggs with a fork until well blended, then add 1-2 cup thick sour cream, 1-2 tsp. prepared mustard, salt, pepper and a pinch of chili powder. Melt about 2 tbsps. bacon fat, add egg mixture and cook slowly, stirring constantly until eggs are creamy. Sprinkle with paprika and serve.

Recream Potatoes—

Left-over mashed potatoes can be revived to their original state if they are placed in the top of the double boiler, along with a small amount of milk. Vigorous beating with a sturdy beater, will make them light and fluffy as they heat.

Mocha Gravy

After panbroiling ham, add a small amount of strong coffee to the skillet and let boil well, stirring to blend in all the ham juices and drippings. Pour the hot liquid over the ham before serving.

TAKE A TIP

1. As a substitute for pudding sauce this year try pink strained, applesauce with the addition of your favorite spice or one drop of anise flavoring.
2. To replace salad dressing, cream a package of soft cheese with 1 tsp. dry mustard and top milk to a sauce consistency, then add a tsp. of vinegar.
3. Economy in relishes is easy if you cut pencil size pieces of white turnip and dip in a mixture of paprika and celery salt.
4. To freshen rolls for a special occasion, we suggest adding a dash of nutmeg to 1-3 cup milk, sprinkle on rolls, place them in a paper bag and heat on moderate oven.
5. An open-face raisin pie will save shortening— or enable you to bake a few tarts with the extra pastry.

Her Husband Wants to Change His Business—Shall She Encourage it?

Many a husband who had his nose to the grindstone during the war, whether as a serviceman or a civilian working in a war industry, finds himself itching for a change of occupation, now that peace has come again. The serviceman doesn't want to go back to his old job; the civilian wants to try something new.

Sometimes a change is just what the individual needs. But the decision on whether or not to leave one field of work for another should certainly rest upon more solid ground than a mere desire for change. All sorts of factors should be carefully weighed, perhaps the most important being the individual's fitness for the new type of occupation that appeals to him.

It is her fear that her husband is not suited to the business he wants to get into that prompts the following letter from an "Uneasy Wife," who writes:

"My husband stuck faithfully to his machine job in a factory all through the war. Now that the emergency is over, all he talks about is getting out of the factory and going into business for himself, back in our home community."

Explaining that what her husband has set his heart on is owning a retail store, she goes on to say:

"I am skeptical about the whole idea, principally because neither of us has had any experience in the retail selling field in any capacity. I have never seen him display any talent for business and I know I have none. I'll have to confess that I'm just afraid of getting stuck with it, and I don't like it. I just can't picture him tending a store. He's more of an active, outdoor type, and really gifted mechanically."

Complete inexperience on the part of her husband in the work he wishes to enter, when he is experienced and gifted in the one he wishes to leave, is certainly a good reason for hesitation. But this wife has even better reasons for her reluctance.

For one thing, her husband evidently lacks initiative, shown in the fact that he makes no moves himself to achieve his objective but puts the responsibility on her, insisting that she "get busy and start the ball rolling" and reproaching and nagging at her because she has not yet done so. And for another thing, the whole ten years of their married life have been one long demonstration of his disinclination to have anything to do with the very type of detail a retail business would demand. Instead, he has transferred to his wife's shoulders the burden of "any job that I might be mentally or physically capable of, from mowing the lawn to figuring the income tax. He wouldn't even know where to go to pay household and personal insurance or other regular bills, much less when or how much, and he won't even discuss them."

Now if there could be any man less fitted to take on the business of running a retail store, with all its infinite detail, this would seem to be the man. Yet because of his nagging, which, she declares, will never let up "Until I at least start something," she has come to the conclusion that she "might as well get on with it."

To do any such thing would seem to me the height of foolhardiness. According to statistics, almost 90 per cent of new businesses fail. That being so, just how much chance would two greenhorns have of success in a field of which they admittedly know nothing?

If this husband insists on such a reckless move, he should at least learn something about retailing before going into it. The most sensible thing would be to get a job in a store and learn the business from the ground up, as the saying is. It would be time enough, then, to get a store of his own.

But if he won't take the time and trouble to do that, then he should certainly stay in the field he knows, and set up for himself there.

BEAUTY

When hands look hand me-down

Mrs. Homemaker seems always to have hand trouble, especially in the winter season when she may dart out into the yard to hang wet clothes on the line. Everything seems against her, as far as her precious mitts are concerned. It is as if there were a conspiracy. When she dolls up for the big date she is hand-conscious, poor dear.

She has plenty to do—too much, she often fancies. The beginning of the day is a rush and a panic, what with getting the kids off to school, finding their outdoor clothes and their books and giving Daddy a kiss to send him on his way. Then, there's the baby to bathe, dishes to wash, beds to make, maybe a little laundry work. Whew! By the time she has the baby in his carriage and is on her way to do her marketing, it seems she has been out of bed for twenty-four hours. And she hasn't given her hands a thought. Just kept them clean, dried them casually. Yes, the lotion is there, one bottle in the kitchen, one in the bathroom. She just doesn't see them.

How hands stand up under the housekeeping job is indeed wonderful. You'd think they'd be worn to the bone. It isn't fair not to do everything possible to keep them in good condition.

Be faithful to the rubber gloves, Mrs. Homemaker. Don't let your hands come in contact with water that contains strong cleaning agents. Use the gloves when you wipe up floors. That practice will prove an insurance against dark lines that appear in the knuckles and that can only be removed by scrubbing with a hand brush. For dishwashing, get the best soap you can find; one kind may agree with your skin better than another. Before washing your dishes, rinse them under the hot water faucet so the dishwater won't be greasy. You'll save your hands and you will save soap.

Soiled dustcloths are a hand menace. Have plenty of clothes, so there will always be a clean one. Wear cotton gloves when polishing silver or furniture. Protection against grime means everything.

If you like to fuss with cosmetics, you can make an inexpensive hand lotion for all the family to use. It is no trouble, and it works like a charm.

Soak sixty grains of whole gum tragacanth in fourteen ounces of stronger rosewater for three days. Add one ounce of rubbing alcohol and one ounce of glycerine. If you have difficulty getting the alcohol, your druggist will compound this for you. A few drops of perfume can be added. Apply any time. The lotion disappears in a few minutes.

CHAMBERS TO STAND TRIAL FOR SLAYING GIRL

Mass Picketing Continues Outside Noranda Mine

Strike Sympathizers Arrive From District Mining Towns

Noranda, Que., Jan. 24—(CP)—Mass picketing continued today outside the big Noranda Mines Limited plant and union spokesmen said they were determined to prevent anyone from passing through the lines and to keep food from reaching maintenance workers inside the plant. Strike sympathizers arrived at Noranda from other district mining towns.

Olivier Bretton, an official of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (CIO) which called the strike 2 months ago, said the only persons who would be allowed to pass through the picket lines were two men needed to operate the pumps which supply water to the twin mining towns of Rouyn and Noranda.

He contended that other men inside the plant now, estimated at from 15 to 20, are not necessary. The union planned to close the mill entirely except for the pumping stations.

No Disturbances

There was no repetition this morning of two disturbances which broke out at the gates yesterday when maintenance and office workers, previously allowed into the plant on passes recognized by the union, were barred entry. About 16 provincial policemen were on hand to guard against any trouble.

The company, meantime, notified office and maintenance staff not to report for work until notified.

The union is seeking a 16-cents-an-hour wage increase and a union check-off system, while the company offered a 10-cents-an-hour increase, seven of which would be retroactive to last May, but refused the check-off. The check-off demand was the main snag in negotiations which broke down in Ottawa earlier this week.

The company employed about 1,000 men when the strike began Nov. 22, about half of them union members. Company officials said yesterday there were only about 250 actual strikers and that yesterday's incidents indicated the union was starting a "power play" to keep up the spirits of the workers.

Union ranks were strengthened yesterday and today by arrival of sympathizers from other mining communities in northwest Quebec and Northeast Ontario. Three bus loads arrived from Val D'Or, Que., and others came from Malartic, Que., and Cadillac, Que., and Kirkland Lake, Sudbury and Timmins in Ontario.

400 Reinforcements

Bretton said he expected about 400 reinforcements in all and that their presence in Noranda was two-fold, as sympathizers and in case there are reinforcements for the provincial police and anything happens.

Some sympathizers joined the picket line which numbered about 400 men.

Meantime patrols of strikers, in groups of six, wandered about the streets of Noranda telling company workers they met not to go to the gate because they would not be admitted into the plant.

Provincial police took coffee and sandwiches into the men inside the plant, Canada's largest copper producer, twice yesterday, in the morning and in the evening.

There was no trouble the first time but in the evening three pickets clung to the truck taking in the food and were dragged a short distance before they dropped off. They were not injured.

Early yesterday morning, when pickets first refused maintenance and office staff workers entry to the mine, there was some shoving and scuffling and police fired a half dozen tear gas cartridges.

H. L. Roscoe, vice-president and general manager of Noranda Mines Limited, who was in Ottawa for negotiations between company, union and government officials and for the annual convention of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, is expected to return here today.

JUDGE ANDERSON HONORED

Oshawa, Ont., Jan. 24 (CP)—Ontario County Bar Association last night held a testimonial dinner for Judge J. C. Anderson, recently appointed County Judge for Hastings. The association presented him with silver tray.

Cancer Research Film Returned

Montreal, Jan. 24 (CP) — The irreplaceable cancer research film and a projector that disappeared from Royal Victoria Hospital, Tuesday, were returned to the institution yesterday by a man who first telephoned police reporting he had bought the apparatus and had just learned it had been stolen.

The film and projector are believed to have been stolen when left unattended for 15 minutes in a lecture room. Two men were seen carrying away a case about the size of the projector and police tonight were still searching for them.

The films was described by Dr. J. Ernest Ayre, expert in cancer research, as of great scientific value, showing new developments and new techniques. It is a microscopic study of individual cells in relation to cancer.

Police said the telephone call, telling of the films safety, came late Thursday afternoon while officers were conferring with John Fraser, office manager of the hospital.

The caller, identifying himself as Ernest Daigneault of Drolet St., said he had the machine and film. He was told to bring them to the hospital. He arrived half an hour later and related to the officers how the machine came into his possession.

Can't Recall Restaurant

Police said he told them he was in a restaurant on Mount Royal Ave., Tuesday when two men entered. They began talking with him and offered to sell him the machine. Daigneault said he agreed to pay $50 and the transaction was completed outside the restaurant.

Police said Daigneault also told them he did not know the men nor could be recall the name of the restaurant. He said he learned of the theft from a radio broadcast and telephoned immediately.

Det.Sgts. Fred Savage and J. Gauthier of the Montreal force called in Sgt. R. L. Trolove of the RCMP. During their investigations they questioned a number of persons on the hospital staff.

Police indicated they believed the thieves were interested only in the projector, not realizing the nature or importance of the film.

Dr. Ayre said the film could not be duplicated. He produced it after six months' work. He discounted earlier suggestions that a foreign power may have been interested in the film, saying "it is not a poison, nor an atom bomb, nor a deadly projectile, and as a doctor and a scientist I have been endeavoring to do work to aid humanity."

Wardens Can Have Snowmobiles; Trappers Will Stay With Dogsleds

The Pas, Man., Jan. 24—(CP)—It will be a long, long time—if ever — before the snowmobile, mechanized toboggan or any other new-fangled machine replaces the northland's dog-sleds. For that you can take the word of a man who should know, Emile St. Godard.

Five times in all St. Godard, now retired from racing, won The Pas Dog Derby and there were few who would dispute the derby winners' claim to the world's title in mushing. The first and last years — 1925 and 1929 — it was a 200-mile, non-stop race. The other three were 120-mile, three-lap affairs.

So when delegates to the Dominion-Provincial Fur Advisory Board's meeting at The Pas came up with the statement that winter travel is more economical with machines than dogs — they quoted an estimated cost of 25 cents a patrol mile against 90 — the indignant faithful immediately nominated St. Godard as their spokesman.

"Dog teams of the north will always have a place in the development of northern Canada," he said. "I can't see trappers going around their lines on snowplanes, anyway."

Dog teams can be "fueled" by fish and caribou. But it is neither easy nor inexpensive to distribute gasoline or diesel oil throughout the sub-Arctic. And while present high prices of fish and horsemeat have raised the cost of a team, they may not last. A few years ago five or six horses — a goodly supply of food for a team — could be bought for little or nothing.

Then he led his ace. There were numerous instances of drivers becoming lost in blizzards but being led to safety by a wise team. To date, no machine could do that — or if there was he hadn't heard of it.

Game wardens may patrol on snowmobiles if they wish. It appears the trappers will stick to the dog teams.

ARBITRATION SEEN AS ONLY METHOD TO SETTLE STRIFE

Indo-China May Become Smouldering Volcano Erupting Hatred And Unrest for Years

By DOON CAMPBELL

Hanoi, Indo-China, Jan. 24 (Reuters).—With no armistice or political settlement in sight in the fighting between French and Viet Nam Nationalist forces, arbitration may be the only way to prevent Indo-China from becoming a smouldering volcano erupting hatred and unrest for years.

Battlefield tactics, smashing homes and burning villages, are getting nobody anywhere and although both sides admit the folly of fighting, neither the French nor the Viet Namese seem able to reach a truce.

The Viet Namese would like Indo-China to be placed on the agenda of the United Nations Security Council.

Failing that, they would like a third party or group of third parties to mediate.

Viet Nam exeremists are believed here to be directly responsible for the trouble precipitated by their armed uprising Dec. 19, but a French official, with Liberal inclinations, conceded that "regrettable mistakes" have been made in past French policy in Indo-China.

The commonest criticism by observers here cites the "colossal ignorance" of Paris of local conditions in Indo-China.

Opinion both here and in Saigon is that everything depends on Paris and some observers said "Paris has n idea what's happening here."

There is some criticism of the United States, China and Britain with regard to the international implications of the situation.

One question I have heard is: "What have the Chinese, British or Americans done to encourage the Nationalist aspirations of 20,000,000 Ammamites—is it any wonder if they turn towards Moscow?"

A number of influential Annamites look towards India and Burma as sources of material as well as moral, support.

Couple Married On Picture Set

Hollywood, Jan. 24 (CP).—Joy Ames, 21-year-old brunette, was married to 27-year-old Dick Landry yesterday in a real-life wedding on a motion picture set.

Two set pianists played "Here Comes the Bride", electricians overhead pointed their arc at the stage and property men wheeled up two platforms for photographers as the dancers, who met while working in "My Wild Irish Rose", carried out their decision to be married on the set.

The bridegroom's swallow-tailed coat and striped trousers and the bride's filmy white gown were from the studio wardrobe department.

Best man was star Dennis Morgan and the matron of honor was actress Andrea King.

Religious Bodies Must Sing 'King' If Using Schools

Toronto, Jan. 24 (CP).—Civic Board of Education by a vote of 11-8 last night rejected a motion that religious bodies might use public school premises for meetings without singing "God Save the King".

The board's finance committee had recommended that the stipulation be discarded for meetings of the Jehovah's Witnesses, who had said that at meetings in school premises proceedings would be opened with a prayer.

Trustee Blair Laing said that "any loyal Canadian group whether religious or not should be prepared and proud to sing the National Anthem."

Trustee W. R. Cockburn said that "this particular religious body intends to open meetings with a prayer, and in the past we have not insisted upon too strict interpretation of our regulations."

In the heated debate trustees were told by Business Administrator C. H. R. Fuller that the regulation had been in existence for 25 years. He could not answer a question as to why it had been included in the by-laws in the first place.

Trustee Harold Male said: "If His Majesty were here he would probably laugh at us."

PONTIFICAL MASS CELEBRATED FOR LATE CARDINAL

Cardinal McGuigan Assisted by Cardinal Spellman of N. Y. and Apostolic Delegate

By GEORGE KITCHEN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, Jan. 24 — (CP)—The centuries-old rites of the Pontifical Requiem Mass were celebrated in Notre Dame Basilica today by James Cardinal McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto, for his fellow Prelate, Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve.

The mass was to be followed by the burial of Cardinal Villeneuve, 63-year-old Archbishop of Quebec who died in California a week ago today, in the subterranean crypt of the cathedral, resting place of the bodies of two of the three cardinals who preceded him in Canada.

As Cardinal McGuigan celebrated the mass before the great cathedral altar, now draped in mourning, Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York, Archbishop Hildebrando Antoniutti, apostolic delegate to Canada and Newfoundland, and high-ranking prelates of the church in Canada and the United States sat in the chancel.

It was the second high pontifical mass for Cardinal Villeneuve, the humble son of a Montreal shoemaker who rose through the priesthood to become the 4th Canadian to enter the Sacred College of Cardinals. He was appointed to the Purple 14 years ago after becoming Archbishop of the Archdiocese.

The first mass, a public ceremony, was celebrated in the cathedral yesterday by Bishop Georges Leon Pelletier, now administrator of the Archdiocese, shortly after the body was taken through the streets in solemn procession amid the tolling of church bells from Cardinal Villeneuve's former palace.

Yesterday afternoon, Cardinal Spellman officiated at the Office of the Dead the solemn ceremony during which prayers are recited for the soul of the departed. Cardinal McGuigan and Archbishop Antoniutti took part in the service.

THREAT OF JAM

Cornwall, Jan. 24 (CP)—Threat of an ice-jam similar to the one that drove about 15 east Cornwall families from their homes last spring was seen here today as huge ice blocks once more began to pile upon the banks of the St. Lawrence River The severe cold snap earlier this week were caused the ice to heave and thrust upon the banks, but township police officials hoped that milder weather today would end the danger.

Daring Daylight Holdup Nets Two Thugs $3,200

Toronto, Jan. 24 —(CP)—Squads of police fanned out through the West Toronto area today in a hunt for two armed men who robbed a bookkeeper of $3,200 in a daring daylight hold-up.

Milton Newman, bookkeeper for the D. Vlev Plastics, Ltd., noticed two men tinkering with a car at the curb as he got off the street car near the firm's office after getting the money, which he carried in a satchel, at a bank.

One man, facing Newman, pointed a revolver at him. The other came up from behind and pushed a revolver in his back. One said "hand it over" and they seized the satchel, jumped into the car and drove away.

The robbery took place at 11:35 a.m. and not long after police found the car, which had been stolen, abandoned four blocks away.

TO INCREASE FEES

Welland, Jan. 24 (CP).—Faced with mounting deficits, Welland County General Hospital Board of Governors have decided to increase rates for ward and semi-private patients by 50 cents a day. The ward patient rate now will be $3.50 per day. Private rooms are to be available at rates based on "comparative disability" with the minimum charge $7 per day.

'PAID IN BLOOD' FOR RIGHT TO DICTATE TERMS

Russia Opposes Small-Power Demand for Equal Voice in Writing Treaties

London, Jan. 24 —(AP)—Russia stood firm today in rejecting small-power demands for an equal voice in writing the German and Austrian peace treaties, declaring that the Big Four powers "paid in blood" for the right to dictate peace terms.

Feodor T. Gousev, deputy Soviet foreign minister, sharply challenged claims by Canada, Australia and others of the smaller powers to the right to full participation in the deputies' conference, now preparing preliminary treaty drafts for the Big Four foreign ministers meeting in Moscow in March.

"This right to draft treaties was not grabbed," Gousev snapped at last night's session, authoritative American sources reported. "It was bought with the greatest amount of blood."

Australia's Col. W. R. Hodgson had protested that the smaller powers were given scant opportunity to determine what went into the treaties for Italy and other Axis satellites and now were being denied a full voice in the German and Austrian settlements. Canada took a similar stand.

Informants said Gousev declared that the Big Four made the major decisions during the war and should continue to do so in the peace treaties.

French, British and American deputies were reported as not averse to the small-power demands for seats at the conference table, but no decision was made and, for the present at least, the smaller nations will continue to appear only on invitation.

Hodgson asked that every active allied belligerent be given a full voice in writing the German and Austrian settlements and proposed at the same time that the Potsdam agreement be enlarged to give smaller powers an "active part" in the control of Germany.

OFFICERS ARREST MENTAL PATIENT

Winnipeg, Jan. 24 (CP).—Acting on advice from Dr. C. H. Lewis, assistant director of the Hospitals Division of the Ontario Health Department Winnipeg police arrested a man they said was Melville Willkie who escaped from the Penetanguishene, Ont., mental hospital in November. Willkie had been committed in 1933 after murdering his wife and child.

Officers found him in a ward of the General Hospital here recovering from pneumonia. They were unable to say how Dr. Lewis had learned of his presence in the hospital.

DENIES BUTLER STORY OF THREAT OF WITHDRAWAL

Elder Statesman Says No Threat to Leave Empire Was Made At 1921 Conference

By WILLIAM STEWART

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 24 — (CP) — William Morris Hughes, 82-year-old former Australian prime minister who attended the Empire Conference at London in 1921, today said there is no truth in a statement by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler that there had been a threat of withdrawal from the Empire by representatives of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and India attending the 1921 meeting.

Dr. Butler, President Emeritus of Columbia University, made the statement in a New York speech Wednesday.

The elderly Australian statesman, familiarly known as 'Billy' Hughes, said the 1921 meeting discussed such matters as trade, consultation of Empire members before appointment of governors-general and problems of communication.

The only report of Dr. Butler's statement published here quoted him as having said that "Autralia, Canada, New Zealand and India threatened in 1921 to withdraw from the Empire by revolution if necessary" but Hughes was also shown another version in which Butler's reported statement referred only to withdrawal of these Empire countries from the meeting — not from the Empire.

Hughes, Member of Parliament since 1901, was in his shirtsleeves dealing with correspondence when approached in his downtown office. He said neither version of Dr. Butler's statement contained "an ounce of truth."

Quebeckers Speculate About Successor To Cardinal Villeneuve

Quebec, Jan. 24 —(CP)— Quebeckers speculated today about a successor to their spiritual leader, Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve as archbishop of the Quebec archdiocese and a possible member of the College of Cardinals.

Two names most prominently mentioned were those of Archbishop Alexandre Vachon of Ottawa, and Bishop Maurice Roy of Three Rivers, Que.

There also was speculation about the possibility of the appointment going to Archbishop Joseph Charbonneau of Montreal, Msgr. Antoine Roy, bishop of Edmundston, N.B., Msgr. Camille Leblanc, bishop of Bathurst, N.B., and Msgr. Georges Cabana, bishop of Winnipeg.

Archbishop Vachon and Bishop Roy, the former in his early sixties, and the latter in his forties, both are former Quebeckers.

It was noted that Vatican circles indicated last week when Cardinal Villeneuve's death was announced that some time might elapse before a new appointment was made.

Informed circles here said the first step in replacing Cardinal Villeneuve will be the appointment of a new archbishop to head the archdiocese.

For the present the administration of the archdiocese has been placed in the hands of Bishop Georges Leon Pelletier, former auxiliary bishop to the late cardinal who now has become vicar capitullary and administrator.

Owner of Dogs Which Killed Woman In Miami Given Five Years in Jail

Miami, Fla., Jan. 24 (AP) — Joseph Munn was sentenced to five years' imprisonment on a charge of manslaughter growing out of the fatal attack of his pack of pit bull-dogs on Mrs. Doretta M. Zinke May 16, 1945.

Defense Counsel George Worley said he would ask a new trial and Judge Ben Willard set arguments for Tuesday. Munn continued at liberty under $5.000 bond pending the action.

County Solicitor Robert R. Taylor decribed Munn's dogs as "a pack of wolves." He charged that Munn knew his dogs were vicious and that he had received complaints against them prior to the attack on Mrs. Zinke.

Mrs. Zinke died an hour after her body was found torn to bits only a short distance from Munn's kennels, and Taylor asserted that she had a right to be there because Munn had a manuscript belonging to her.

Munn was brought to trial under a statute holding the owner of vicious animals responsible for attacks by them if it is shown that the victim exercised all precautions to avoid the animals.

Munn ordered the pack consisting of nine dogs killed after the attack.

Detective Testifies Accused Admitted Strangling Child

Mother of Rusnak Girl Leaves Court During Hearing

St. Catharines, Ont., Jan. 24 —(CP)— Sidney Chambers, 34-year-old stationary engineer, today was committed for trial on a charge of murder in the Christmas week slaying of nine-year-old Marion Rusnak.

Detective James Anderson said at the preliminary hearing that Chambers told him Jan. 3 that he strangled the child in the room of his dormitory at a canning factory Dec. 23, the night the girl disappeared.

The committal was ordered by Magistrate H. D. Hallett after hearing evidence of six witnesses. The hearing required about 45 minutes. The court room was crowded to capacity and scores of curious persons were unable to gain admittance.

Chambers was transferred later today to the county jail where he will be kept under day and night guard until he appears at the supreme court jury assizes scheduled to open Feb. 24 .

Chambers, dressed in a brown jacket and trousers, blue sweater and white shirt, open at the neck, remained quite calm and almost disinterested throughout the proceedings. His gaze was fixed through the court room windows into the market square and at times there was almost a half smile across his lips.

Not Represented.

Following the evidence of each witness, Magistrate Hallett asked the prisoner, who was not represented by counsel, if he wished to cross-examine the witness. Chambers replied: "No sir."

After Mrs. Betty Smyth testified, Chambers, when asked if he wished to cross-examine the witness, half hesitated and almost began to say something, then looked away and answered "no sir."

Crown Attorney E. H. Lancaster, K.C., conducted the Crown presentation which drew a chain of evidence around the accused.

Detective Anderson testified Chambers was arrested Jan. 3 at 9:30 a.m. on a charge of attempted suicide. The arrest followed his discharge from hospital where he had been admitted Dec. 31.

He was remanded to jail on Jan. 3 and at 8:30 p.m. was taken to a police where he was questioned by Detective Anderson and Inspector Wood. A statement was taken in connection with the attempted suicide charge.

Gave Regular Warning

The detective said Chambers was given the regular police warning about his statement.

Chambers answered freely and he was not threatened, nor was there any inducement made to him, the officer said. Inspector Wood left the office to obtain sandwiches and coffee for Chambers who had requested food.

Detective Anderson said that as he proceeded to question Chambers about his reasons for attempting suicide Chambers said: "I want to tell you the whole story."

Anderson then summarized the story as related to him by Chambers.

On Dec. 23, Chambers had been uptown. He walked down James to Welland avenue. On Welland avenue he met a small girl coming out of a house. He spoke to her and told her if she accompanied him to his room in the canning factory he would give her a Christmas present for her brother.

After she was in the room she went to the window to make an outcry and Chambers said he went after the child and put one hand over her mouth and one hand around her throat. He held her in this position for about a minute. Then he released her and she fell to the floor. He said he pumped her arms and tried artificial respiration but it was no use. The child was dead.

Has Nothing To Say

Chambers declined to question Anderson. In response to a question from the magistrate, the prisoner said he did not want to call any witnesses and "I have nothing to say now." He was told by Magistrate Hallett that there was sufficient evidence to commit him for trial and he was led to the cells.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rusnak, parents of Marian, were in police court, and Mr. Rusnak gave evidence at the hearing. Mrs. Rusnak, moved by the story and following the committal sobbed as she was assisted from the room.

Mrs. Betty Smyth, of St. Catharines, identified Chambers as the man she had seen with the child in front of the Rusnak home about 5:30 Dec. 23. She did not know the child, witness said.

Mrs. Smyth said she was admiring Christmas decorations in the homes along the street when she noticed a man standing on the sidewalk in front of 45 Welland Avenue talking steadily to a child.

"It was the steady talk which drew my attention. I heard him say something like this: 'We'll go and get a present and would the baby like a rattle.' I had thought the man was someone I knew so I took a good look at him but I didn't know him. He wore a fedora and an overcoat, was clean shaven and had bluish grey eyes."

"I felt at the time that there was something peculiar. I didn't know Mr. Rusnak, so I thought then that it might be the girl's father. I turned around and looked and saw them cross Welland Avenue to the corner of Wellington Street.

Was Carrying Parcel

"I forgot to say," continued Mrs. Smyth, "that the child had a Christmas package and she carried it with her arms crossed in front of her."

Witness said she next saw the man who had been with the child in a police line-up and he was identified as Chambers. She pointed to Chambers in the prisoner's box today as the same person.

Mr. Rusnak said that on Dec. 23 Marian had returned from a show and had been sent out to obtain a bottle of milk. He had given the child 16 cents and her mother had given her an empty bottle.

"Have you seen your daughter since?" asked the Crown Attorney.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, January 24 (CP) — Synopsis: A storm centred just east of James Bay is sweeping rapidly eastward causing snow in Northern Ontario and snow and freezing rain in Western Quebec this morning. In Southern Ontario warm air from the central United States has pushed temperatures up 15 to 20 degrees above those of yesterday morning. Behind the James Bay storm centre, cold air from Northern Manitoba is moving southward. The cold air is expected to reach the Georgian Bay and Haliburton regions by tonight, bringing a return of cold weather to most of the province for Saturday. In the Lower Lakes Districts, the current mild spell is expected to continue through Saturday.

NEW COLOR FILM AT CAPITOL THEATRE NON-INFLAMMABLE

A new measure of fire protection for theatres is seen in Republic's new color film "Trucolor" which is processed on a special stock of film which is non-inflammable. Danger from fire when ordinary types of film are used had previously made the utmost caution necessary on the part of theatre projectionists.

The current feature "Man From Rainbow Valley" showing at the Capitol Theatre is the first film shown in the city which has been processed on the new type duplitized stock with the safety base. A special cement is used for splicing the new film, the new process giving by far the clearest pictures of any color process yet developed.

Sales of Motor Licences Slow

With the deadline for 1946 markers only one week away, only approximately one-fifth of the normal number of automobile and truck markers sold have thus far been disposed of at the Belleville motor licence office, it was stated today by Fred T. Symons, Licence issuer.

"However," said Mr. Symons, "the sale of markers has been fairly steady since they went on sale at the first of the year but there are still approximately 80 per cent to be distributed and undoubtedly there will be the usual last minute rush."

Ordinarily there are in the neighborhood of 5,000 markers for passenger cars sold at the Belleville office in addition to those sold to truckers. Drivers' licences number considerably more than the above total.

In preparation for the expected rush of city and district residents to secure their permits, the local issuer has arranged for an extra girl to assist over the weekend and until the rush is over.

Presentation Made To Lynn Fair By Junior Farmers

Junior Farmers of Hastings County paid honor to H. Lynn Fair, agricultural representative for the county for the past nine years, at a farewell social event at the Stirling community hall early this week.

Despite icy road conditions all nine of the Junior Farmer organizations in the county, from Maynooth in the north to Melrose in the south, were well represented.

Dancing was enjoyed throughout the evening with refreshments being served by the Girls' Club of Cooper.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Fair were given seats of honor with Allan Ketcheson, president of the County Junior Farmers reading an address. David Fargey, vice-president, on behalf of the junior farmers made a presentation of a substantial purse on behalf of the junior farmers.

Roads Expenditure Will Be $159,289 this Year Chairman Harrison Tells County Council

Estimated expenditure of Hastings County Council on its roads and bridges system in 1947 is $159,289.06 according to a report submitted to council today by the new Roads and Bridges Chairman Reeve Harry Harrison, Thurlow.

The Hastings County-Belleville Suburban Roads Commission has estimated its expenditure at $7,500, the report stated. The city of Belleville will contribute as its share of the cost, $1,875 which with the county's 25 and the government 50 per cent subsidy will make up the amount.

Maintenance costs for 1947 amount to $98,000 and this includes costs of labor, materials, snow plowing, crushed rock, resurfacing, dragging, dust layer, weed cutting, culvert repairs, machinery repairs and the purchase of snow fence. Also included in this estimate is cost of insurance, office expenses, etc. New machinery will cost the county some $13,000 giving a total maintenance estimate of $118,000.

According to the report new road construction plans call for several comparatively small jobs which will cost between seven and eight thousand dollars and this plan also calls for the completion of the Madoc-Belleville highway.

Paving Costs Jump

Paving costs jumped tremendously during 1946, Chairman Harrison pointed out in the report, and these may go higher in 1947. Therefore estimate of costs to complete the Madoc highway is difficult to arrive at, but they will be included in the roads by-law for the coming year.

The report also recommended that the same rate of 3.93 mills be levied for roads and bridges expenditure. This levy with the city of Belleville's share on suburban roads and the departmental subsidy will make possible an estimated expenditure of $144,289.06.

There is also available an amount of $15,000 of the unspent portion of the 1946 by-law which will be added to the 1947 estimate making up the total estimate of $159,289.06.

Not Looking Ahead Claim

Previous to the adoption of the report there was some discussion of the matter. Reeve R. K. Neal, Marmora Village, felt that the Roads Committee was not looking far enough ahead. Maintenance costs, he said, have been increasing each year and the only way to reduce these costs was the construction of permanent roads.

Committee Chairman Harrison said the council will definitely complete the Madoc road this year a stretch of 3.6 miles and it also expects to embark on a program of progressive construction.

Reeve Charles Rush, Hungerford, was of the opinion that while permanent roads was a good idea, this is not the time to launch an extensive program.

"There will not be a man left on the farms of Hastings County if such a program was started," he said. "The farm laborers and some farmers themselves would jump at the chance to work on the roads and its better pay. I suggest that this program be laid over until the labor problem is at least partially solved."

G. A. Freeman Elected President Belleville Chamber of Commerce

General manager of the Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing Company of Canada, G. A. Freeman was elected president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce at the weekly directors' luncheon meeting held in the Chambers Thursday noon. Mr. Freeman succeeds Lorne McDougall who had acted in the above capacity for the past year.

Vice presidents named were Harold C. Seldon and T.A. Tucker with Bruce Lattimer being chosen as treasurer by acclamation when Clarence Jewell, the one other nominee for the position, requested that his name be dropped.

In accepting office as president of the Chamber of Commerce Mr. Freeman expressed his appreciation to directors for the honor and for the confidence they had placed in him.

"With the assistance of the new executive I will do my utmost to build the Belleville Chamber of Commerce into a real active organization," stated Mr. Freeman.

Retiring Directors Thanked

In relinquishing his duties as president of the Chamber Mr. McDougall expressed his appreciation to the retiring directors, pointing out that they had spent a great deal of time over a period of years. Retiring directors I. G. Hefkey and J. A. McIntosh had served the Chamber for a period of ten years.

Tribute to J. J. Trudeau, as head of the tourist and publicity committee was also paid by Mr. McDougall. The new tourist booklet listing all tourist accommodation in the district and which would be available in the Spring, was a distinct credit to the committee, he said. This booklet will be issued free to tourists.

Civic Minded

Before closing Mr. McDougall referred to the election of Mr. Seldon and Mr. Tucker, both of whom, he said would work untiringly for the success of the Chamber. Mr. Seldon's interest in municipal matters was indicated by his being a member of the Board of Education and through his being chairman of the Retail Merchants' division of the Chamber. As head of the membership committee of the Chamber, Mr. Tucker had worked hard for increased interest on the part of the retail merchants.

Mr. Lattimer, as member of the city council, would work for better co-operation between that body and the Chamber of Commerce.

In closing Mr. McDougall expressed his appreciation for the co-operation of the directors during the past year and offered his full co-operation and support to the new president.

Jamieson Bone, on behalf of the directors, thanked Mr. McDougall for the time and effort he had given to the Chamber of Commerce, pointing to his efforts, through the Industrial Commission, to acquire new industry for the city.

Asks Increased Interest

Harold Seldon, a chairman of the retil merchants' division, reported on the progress of the campaign to increase the interest of all merchants in a retail merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce. Approximately 80 per cent of the merchants have already signified their interest in the matter.

The retail merchants' division of the Chamber would be administered and financed by the merchants and would plan its own program, the express purpose being the expansion of retail trade through promotion of various projects.

These would be to bring about agreements as to delivery service, closing hours and holidays; provision of ample down-town parking facilities; establishment of policies for retail promotion, arranging of special events such as Christmas promotions, window displays, spring and fall openings and co-operative advertising, and the establishment of closer relations with outlying districts.

Report Proposes New Wing For County Home

Recommendation that serious consideration be given by Hastings County Council to the erection of a new wing on the County Home for the aged, was embodied in the report presented to council by Deputy Reeve Harry Coulter, Hungerford, chairman of the Home Advisory Board for 1946.

The existing verandah has been condemned and must be torn down immediately, the report stated. More room is definitely needed on the first and second floors and the construction of the new wing is the only answer. When the verandah is taken down there will be no fire escapes but these are included in the plans of the new wing.

The report stated that extensive repairs and decoration had been completed during the year and also pointed out that there was a serious shortage of bedding in the institution.

Inspecter Heard

Mr. Earl Ludlow, inspector of homes for the aged, for Department of Welfare, Toronto addressed the council, briefly and pointed out that the most important things needed today in order to take proper care of these old folks, are convalescent homes; boarding homes for those who can afford to pay for their keep and proper supervision.

In Canada he said forty per cent of the people over seventy year of age are on Old Age pensions. The Dominion has 70,000 people over 70 years of age 200,000 of whom are on old age allowances. There are 775,000 people in Canada over 65 years of age and many thousands of these are unable to look after themselves. There are less than 5,000 beds in the country to look after these people. "The most important problem of old age" is not a financial one but a place to live and someone to take care of them.

Mr. Ludlow paid fine tribute to Superintendent and Matron, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sandercock of the Hastings County Home. "These people are doing a fine job," he said "especially in view of the fact that they are handicapped by the shortage of help problem."

He had noticed, he said the extreme need of expansion in the home here and felt that the coming year was a good time to embark on a such a project. He promised the fullest co-operation of his department if, the council committee decided to go through with the construction of the proposed new wing.

Y's Men's Club To Supervise Teen Age Dances

President Archie Boyd presided at the regular dinner meeting of the Y's Men's Club on Thursday evening when Lorne Crabb gave a talk on the joint inauguration of the Port Huron and Sarnia Y's Men's Clubs. Part of the ceremony took place on the international Blue Water bridge joining the two cities. Traffic was stopped on the bridge for about 20 minutes.

Representatives of all Y's Men's Clubs in the district attended. The guest speaker at the banquet which was held in Sarnia was Rev. Mr. Sheehy, who spoke on "The Master of the Atomic Age", and dealt with the qualifications of a good Y's Man.

At an executive meeting of the Belleville Y's Men's Club prior to the luncheon, an invitation from the Teen Agers for the Y's Men's Club to supervise their Friday night dances at the Collegiate was accepted, and Roy Menary was appointed chairman of a special committee to look after this.

Max McGuire was sergeant-at-arms, and Lorne Crabb song leader, and two interesting films were shown by Jack Wilson.

Plans to hold initiation and installation of new members on Thursday, Jan. 30 were discussed and Vic Lancaster was appointed chairman of a committee to handle all details.

OBITUARY

CHARLES F BOARDMAN.

(Formerly of Sidney Township)

Charles Fraser Boardman, formerly of this district, died suddenly at Alberni, British Columbia, recently.

Born in the 7th. concession of Sidney township 82 years ago, the late Mr. Boardman was a son of the late Moses Boardman and his wife, the late Frances Devlin. When a young man he went to Manitoba and carried on business there for many years. Of late years he lived retired at Alberni, Vancouver Island.

Surviving him are one married daughter, Laura Frances, and one son, James Milne; two sisters, Mrs. James Fargey, Belleville, and Mrs. Arthur Wensley, British Columbia.

LATE MRS. ALMEDA WESSELS

The funeral of Mrs. Almeda Wessels, wife of Mr. Walter Wessels, was held from her late residence, 71 Lewis street, on Thursday afternoon. The service there and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. H. O. Eastman, pastor of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church.

During the service in the home a vocal solo was rendered by Mrs. H. B. Wellbanks.

The bearers were Oscar Poste, Joseph Poste, Walter Wessels, Ted Wessels, Bruce Kemp and William Ross, all of whom are grandsons of the late Mrs. Wessels.

LATE MRS. MARGARET I. STEWART

(Plainfield)

On Thursday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Margaret Isabel Stewart, widow of James Stewart and late residence Plainfield, was held from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell street. The service in the chapel and at Belleville Cemetery where entombment took place was conducted by Rev. A. C. Campbell of Plainfield United Church.

The bearers were Sherman Parks, Stanley Hazard, Roy Badgley, John Ritz, Clarence Marshall and Harry Byers.

MISS MADELINE A. ELLIOTT

((West Huntingdon)

Stirling, Jan. 24 —(Special)— Miss Madeline Annie Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Elliott, 3rd. concession of Huntingdon township, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Thursday morning after an illness of ten days' duration.

The late Miss Elliott was born in Huntingdon township twenty-five years ago and all her life was passed there. She was a member of the West Huntingdon United Church.

Surviving her are her parents; five brothers, James and Harold of West Huntingdon, Robert of Belleville, and Glen and William both at home; two sisters, Mrs. Benjamin (Hilda) Aker, Frankford, and Shirley at home.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

ROBERT H. (Harry) MACKIE

(Belleville - Toronto)

Robert H. (Harry) Mackie, formerly of this city, died in his sleep at Peterborough on Wednesday night or early Thursday morning. He was in that city on business for the Imperial Oil Company of which he was sales manager for the Central Ontario Division, with headquarters at Leaside, Ontario. He was in Belleville last week and was apparently in excellent health.

To many friends in this city the announcement of the death of Mr. Mackie will bring much regret. He was born in this city and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mackie. The early years of his life were passed here and when living in this city he attended St. Michael's Church. He resided at 447 St. Clements Avenue, Toronto.

Surviving him are his wife; one daughter, Marilyn, and one son, Robert; also several brothers and sisters.

The late Mr. Mackie will rest at the Corrigan & O'Brien Funeral Home, Moira Street West Sunday afternoon. The funeral announcement will be made on Saturday.

DAVID C. FORRESTER

Oshawa, Jan. 24 (CP)—David Clement Forrester, 60, city ticket agent for Canadian National Railways since 1929, died today. Before coming to Oshawa he was stationed at Port Credit, London, Ont., Buffalo, Montreal and Toronto.

He served 13 years as treasurer of the Oshawa Kiwanis Club. He retired as treasurer in 1945.

He was a native of Clinton. Surviving besides his widow and two sons, all of Oshawa, are sisters in Trenton and Denver, and two brothers, Fred of Exeter, Ont., and Roy of Orono, Ont.

Canada's New Ambassador To China Honored

Toronto, Jan. 24 (CP) — David Croll, Liberal member of parliament for Toronto Spadina, said Wednesday that "from what I can learn" the Canadian parliament at its forthcoming session will pass legislation granting to Chinese Canadians the right to bring their wives and unmarried children into this country.

Mr. Croll spoke at a dinner tendered Mr. Justice T. C. Davis, Canada's new ambassador to China, by Toronto's Chinese community and he predicted that the righting of "this great wrong" would greatly strengthen the ambassador's hand in his dimplomatic mission.

From the new ambassador — 57-year-old native of Prince Albert, Sask., and former high commissioner to Australia—came assurance that he would do all in his power to further strengthen the ties of friendship between the two nations.

He spoke of the material aid that Canada has given China—both during the war and since, from both public and private funds. He paid tribute to Chinese resistance against Japan and said that had it not been for China's success in pinning down huge Jap forces for years before and after Germany invaded Poland the outcome of the war might have been different, or it might still be going on.

From Canadians he solicited support for the Aid to China Fund which seeks to raise $2,500,000 this month across the Dominion and he spoke of the great hardships suffered by the nation which covers one-twelfth of the world's land area and has one-fifth of its population.

It was a dinner of mayors. The chairman was Chong Ying, unofficial mayor of Chinatown. The new ambassador is a former mayor of Prince Albert, Sask., and he was welcomed by Mayor Saunders of Toronto. Mr. Croll, who did not elaborate on his remarks about action he expected parliament to take with respect to Chinese immigration, is a former mayor of Windsor.

Believe U.K. May Have Formulated Plan on Palestine

By ERIC DOWNTON

London, Jan. 24. (Reuters) — Belief the government may have formulated a policy on Palestine was expressed today in quarters close to the Jewish agency "shadow delegation" now assembling in London.

This policy may well be revealed during the conference on Palestine due to resume at St. James' Palace next Monday after an interval of four months, these circles say.

In the face of growing public uneasiness and pressure over Palestine, it is contended, the government has probably speeded up the process of formulating a definite policy—lack of which has recently given rise to considerable criticism.

Says Highway Dept. Not at Fault For Fatal Plunge

Toronto, Jan. 24 (CP) — John Millar, Ontario's Deputy-Minister of Highways, declared that the Monday morning death of Ernest Pope, Toronto transport driver whose truck plunged over the Rouge River bridge, was "an act of God." The deputy-minister said no negligence could be charged to his department over Pope's death.

Earlier this week the union to which both Pope and George Humphrys, fellow employee of the Direct-Winters transport concern who was killed last autumn at the same place, criticized the department for delay in routing traffic over the alternate bridge now under construction.

"A department inspector went over the road at 1.15 on the morning in question," said Mr. Millar, "and found it in good condition. Shortly after that rain began to freeze on the road and that is what probably caused the truck to skid into the guard rail."

He said sanding crews are on 24-hour stand-by duty, ready to go into action when roads are reported beginning to coat with ice.

C.F.L. Asks For Discharge of Labor Relations Board

Toronto, Jan. 24 (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Labor has presented a brief to the Ontario Government urging repeal of the province's collective bargaining legislation and dismissal of the present personnel of the Ontario Labor Relations Board.

The brief, claiming the federation represents 300,000 workers, charged the board with "obvious bias against those trade unions which are free from foreign affiliation and control."

The federation, which has no affiliation with United States labor organizations, said "the present members of the board should be dispensed with and — the board so reconstituted as to eliminate direct representation of both unions and employers."

Opposition was expressed to "the so-called union security" system on the grounds it deprives workers of their freedom of choice in joining or staying out of a union.

The brief described the federation "as a fraternity of free and undominated trade unions," said half the 300,000 members of "these free Canadian unions" live in Ontario but "they are not all formally affiliated with the C.F.L."

Says Company Outwitted Enemy

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—The General Electric Company, by acquiring United States rights to hard metal processes developed by the Krupp firm in Germany, "outwitted the Germans", the company's counsel said at its anti-trust trial here.

The non-jury trial, postponed because of the war, began yesterday before Judge John C. Knox.

"We drove a good bargain with Germany and the country (United States) gained enormously," Walter Gordon Merritt, General Electric counsel, said in his opening statement. Use of the metal processes during the war "was greatly to our advantage," he said.

Accused of violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law in a five-count indictment are General Electric and its subsidiaries.

They are charged with conspiring to monopolize production and control prices in an international cartel involving "tungsten, carbide and all other combinations of tungsten, tantalum, titanium and carbon, particles of which are bound by iron, cobalt or nickel."

Safe Crackers Rob Creameries of $200

Perth, Jan. 24—Burglars entered the Land o' Lanark Creameries Tuesday night through the engine-room door and, after blowing the safe, made off with $200 in cash. The robbery occurred some time between 9 and 11 o'clock as footprints of two men were quite visible in the fresh snow which had stopped falling around 11 o'clock. They climbed over an eight-foot iron fence and after forcing the engine-room door broke through another door leading to the office.

According to Chief of Police Carson Smith, the job was the work of experts who knew how to handle the nitro. After blowing the safe they opened a number of envelopes which contined moneys for the cream patrons, missing a $5 bill in their hurry. All the local chief has to work on was a two-foot wrecking bar and a man's shell rubber which was picked up after the robbery was discovered.

Mr. Mackenzie Robertson, Belleville, is the owner of the Land o' Lanark Creameries.

Progress

The story of the progress and new discoveries in the field of medicine was related in Montreal a few days ago and the statement made that progress and discovery in the field of medicine far outweigh and are of much more significance than the instruments of death such as the atom bomb, flame throwers, jet projectiles and newer formulas for deadlier and more destructive explosives. D. G. Jassby noted that the atom bomb killed tens of thousands of individuals but sulfa drugs and penicillin had saved hundreds of thousands in the recent struggle. "New guns, new tanks, new airplanes killed tens of thousands of soldiers but atrabine alone had saved tens of thousands from malaria and death," he said. Blood plasma saved thousands of soldiers who might have died as a result of the effects of bomb and shell and "when thousands of others would have died from dirt and unsanitary conditions other drugs less well known had played their part in the war effort and were now being used to take a very important part in everyday life of the civilian."

An example of progress was offered in penicillin which showed results in the treatment of pneumonia by saving many lives. In the First World War according to Mr. Jassby fatal pneumonia cases numbered twenty-four per cent while in the later struggle fatal cases had amounted to no more than one-half of one per cent. With the production of atrabine for malaria when Allied supply of quinine had largely been cut off, this new drug while having innumerable advantages over quinine, had the advantage of costing only six cents for an entire treatment of malaria, compared to many dollars for quinine.

Other drugs than can truly be called wonder drugs were of the greatest of value to health strength of the forces.

Modern medicine is a story of wonderful progress. It opens up a whole new vista of agents which will be no doubt discovered to help man in time of illness. The swift unfolding of these discoveries and of discoveries yet to be made cannot but hold before humanity the coming of an age as strikingly important as the atomic bomb's arrival was in warfare for as the speaker said, "we are right on the threshold of learning about atomic energy in the field of medicine." Those who have followed the newspapers realize that science expects utilization of this mysterious energy in the healing of man's ills as well as in lightening his burdens.

Weather-Conscious

Everyone is weather-conscious especially since the improved forecasting of weather conditions. With the thoroughness of the present day predictions, householders are on their guard and are prepared against the invasion of storm and cold. Nor does the modern forecast leave the readers in doubt, they are not left to imagine in dread how long a cold spell may last, they are told when it will pass. In the very details it has been noticed how exact are the reports. Sometimes there is mention of a flurry of snow about such and such a time, and true to promise, at the expected time, the snow arrives, just a flurry and in a spell it is over.

At the present time those who enjoy pondering on cold weather had the experience of reading on Wednesday that it was a lot warmer around the South Pole than in many parts of the United States and no doubt of Canada. On that day according to Associated Press staff writer Alton L. Blakslee who is with the U. S. Navy Antarctic Expedition at this time sent word that the temperature there the day before had ranged from a low of 29 to a high of 31. At the same time it was just 14 degrees at Washington and 24 below zero in Minnesota.

One of the attractions of the greatly expanded service given to the weather by newspapers and radio is that the people can appreciate the situation over a very large section of the Continent and how one section compares with another.

Weather reporting today is something of value to the business world and to those who travel, especially those who drive cars in winter. There is given them a fairly safe guide in the decision whether to make a trip on a certain day or not.

Newspaper offices know how many inquiries come in regarding the weather forecasts. The weather is still a great factor in the course of human events and experiences.

The weather bureaus map conditions over a very wide area. One has only to read the synopsis of reports to see how exactly modern methods of collection of data make it possible to take a long foreview of the conditions over the whole of the North American Continent.

The Buckwheat Cake

(New York Herald Tribune)

When the mercury holes up in the porch thermometer, when the wind seems determined to remove the one loose brick in the chimney and the snow is both deep and drifting, then the buckwheat cake in the farm kitchen is at its brown and seasonable best. There are few things equal to the buckwheat cake — when properly organized and multiplied — to bulwark man against a zero morning and a spell with the snowplow.

Where the buckwheat cake is indigenous and has literally sprung from the thin soil on the farm's poorest two-acre lot, the buckwheat cake is quite capable of standing alone at breakfast, with little more added than a third cup of coffee and a refilled syrup pot.

This delightful sufficiency of the farm buckwheat cake is the result of the unlimited way it can be supplied from a two-handed sizzling iron griddle and a couple of hundredweight of buckwheat flour ground at the local mill. Butter lavishly layered between the hot cakes offers no problem while Guernseys live, and although last spring's sugaring was not of the best, there are always enough gallon cans of syrup to last until the end of February.

Fractures Beaten

(Windsor Star)

Not so many years ago, the person who suffered a fracture of the neck or spine was doomed either to death or permanent disablement. That day is past. We have reports from Sir Reginald Watson-Jones, great British bone surgeon, telling of the miracles that were accomplished in dealing with fliers who suffered these grievous injuries. The almost unbelievable record of 95 percent restoration to duty was achieved.

This is more than an outstanding chapter in the history of wartime medicine. It is a beacon of hope for the people in peace. The lessons learned during the conflict have not disappeared with the laying down of arms. The same skill and technique continue to operate, robbing heretofore fatal injuries of their terror.

Price of Faith

If we prize our Christianity and the Christian Church as much as we say we do, we can scarcely hold ourselves aloof from our obligations and responsibilities as Christians and we cannot allow our churches to appear half-filled or less Sunday after Sunday. Nor can we expect them to function properly if we are unwilling to give them more from week to week than the equivalent of a box of candy, a package of cigarettes, the price of a theatre admission or even a glass of beer, comments Brockville Recorder and Times.

RAPTUROUS GREETING

To be met by racing feet,
Little girl or little boy,
Homeward coming down the street,
Is, I think, supremest joy.

To be met along the way
With so rapturous a kiss!
For the labors of the day,
There's no higher wage than this.

To be hailed with such delight
And so radiant a smile,
Sets the troubled world aright
And makes every care worth while.

There's no triumph that's above
This for all men, come what may:
To deserve the children's love
At the closing of the day.

About forty boys were present at the talk given by Mr. Frank Weeks at the YMCA last night on the subject of electricity and they were much interested in the practical illustrations he used. Boys who were not present, missed a good time.

Washington Spotlight

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Jan. 24 —(CP)— O. Max Gardner, former governor of North Carolina and more recently an assistant treasury secretary, is expected to be a first-class ambassador to Great Britain if his friends don't kill him with kindness before he leaves.

Ever since the appointment was announced the ambassador-designate and Mrs. Gardner have been wined and dined almost nightly, including Sundays, and every day is filled with similar appointments until sailing time, Feb. 6.

Most of their invitations are from foreign missions in Washington and they cannot refuse.

Aside from the protocal-dictated parties, the Gardners are tremendously popular in Washington and their friends all want to give going-away parties.

The climax came Sunday when a telegram reached the Gardners at a large reception, asking them to be guests of honor on the ship that will take them to England.

But what worries the new ambassador most is the impression this partying has given some British circles. He has been reported in London as a liquor connoisseur, and the papers there have said that mint juleps will be the standard embassy drink.

"Ive never mixed a mint julep in my life," he said recently. "And I'm no expert on liquor. I was 40 years old before I knew there was any other kind of liquor other than North Carolina corn."

Mr. Gardner's first trip abroad was on a cattle-boat in 1904 when the University of North Carolina football team travelled that way for some games in England. He was team captain.

"I was chambermaid to 394 Montana steers," he said.

He has made several trips since. On Feb. 6 he and Mrs. Gardner will sail from New York on the biggest and most luxurious of the American liners — the America.

Mr. Gardner succeeds W. Averell Harriman whom President Truman recently recalled from London to become commerce secretary.

Selection of Gen. Marshall as secretary of state will save the treasury about $10,000 a year in salary. Gen. Marshall, on terminal leave as chief-of-staff when he went to China as special envoy, will receive about $15,000 a year in pension and allowance no matter what other job he takes. In his new job he will remain on his regular compensation instead of taking the $15,000 paid secretaries of state. Of that amount about $5,000 is recoverable in income tax so the saving is about $10,000 a year to the treasury.

There are close to 200 war veterans in the present House of Representatives and about 125 of them turned up recently to organize an unofficial association. Immediately the suggestion was advanced that the group combine to fight for veterans' legislation but the majority ruled that sort of thing out. The association will be for comradeship and social purposes only, if the majority have their way. The House Veteran Affairs Committee has 27 members of whom 18 are war veterans and 14 of them veterans of the Second World War.

Mrs. Roosevelt To Unveil Statue Of Late President

Southampton, Jan. 24 (AP).— Sir Campbell Stuart, president of the Roosevelt Memorial Committee, announced today that Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt has accepted an invitation to unveil the statue of her late husband in London April 12, 1948.

Financed by popular subscription, the memorial will be erected in Grosvenor Square, site of the United States Embassy.

FEDERAL GOVT. WILL NOT PAY MORE SUBSIDIES

Maritime Coal Dispute Continues After Deadlocked Day of Discussions

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 24 (CP)—Government-guided wage negotiations aimed at settling the strike-threatened Maritime coal industry's wage issue continued in the light of a federal pronouncement that no additional subsidies would be granted to bear the cost of pay increases.

Still deadlocked after a day of conference, the United Mine Workers of America (C.C.L.) and Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation went into their second day of talks here separated by about $1.50 a day per man on wages for the 13,000 men in eastern Canada's biggest coal field.

Labor Minister Mitchell, it was learned, told the conferees the federal government was not prepared to pay out any further subsidies to enable Dosco to pay raises.

The union seeks a flat $2.50 a day for its day-paid men, with a 15-per-cent increase in pay for contract workers. The company has offered, in return, graduated increases running up to $1 a day, dependent on the amount of coal produced.

Dosco officials attending the conference said last night that to pay the top demands of the U.M.W. would place an additional $4 a ton on Maritime coal to be paid by the consumer.

Can Not Pay Demands

The Dosco officials, it was learned told the conference the company could not pay the demanded raise without either boosting the price of coal or obtaining further subsidies.

Argument on "ability to pay" was one of the chief points of the Dosco case, it was learned. The corporation claimed it could not meet the wage demands at all, and it also lodged a protest against absenteeism by employees which it claimed cut down production per man per working day.

Freeman Jenkins, president of district 26 (Maritimes) of the U.M.W., said last night the union representatives were not discouraged at the apparent impasse.

"We will do all in our power to arrive at a satisfactory solution by the end of the month," he declared.

It is at the end of the month—Jan. 30—that the U.M.W.'s current contract with the coal operators in the Maritimes expires. If no contract is signed by then, Mr. Jenkins, said, the workers will walk out.

Closed Session Of Dairy Council Held in Winnipeg

Winnipeg, Jan. 24 (CP)—The annual convention of the National Dairy School of Canada entered its last day here today with a closed session devoted to discussions on ways and means of increasing milk production and other matters pertinent to the industry.

Yesterday's election officers saw R. C. Smellie of Russell, Man., returned as President for his second term, with Lea Marshall of Jarvis, Ont., and G. M. Carlyle of Calgary elected Vice-Presidents.

J. G. Taggart, chairman of the Agricultural prices support board, told the convention that floor prices could logically be expected to aid in dairy production through the stabilizing effect they would have on the industry.

A reduction in the cost of transferring from producer to consumer without the necessity for any government subsidy could also be expected, he said.

Floor support prices would enable a farmer to know that living in a semi-controlled economy he would not be running the risk of finding prices dropping to unhealthy lows and therefore he would be able to plan his production along sound lines.

Where no floor prices existed a farmer whose operations covered several fields, such as dairying and wheat farming, would be inclined to drop the unremunerative one after a bad year in it.

Since census figures indicated that less than seven per cent of Canadian farmers drew their major income from dairying, unseasonable lows might under such circumstances have a disastrous effect on dairy production. With floor prices in effect, the price of dairy products would not be expected to drop so much that farmers would eliminate their herds.

WASN'T FOOLING

Hamilton, Jan. 24 (CP)—When L.-Bdr. C. R. Tilley volunteered for overseas service he wasn't fooling. He returned here yesterday, one day short of seven years after leaving for "an unnamed East coast port." He hopes to bring his wife and two daughters to Canada soon.

NANO'S OSTEOPOROSIS

You know Nano, of course. Maybe you call her Mom, but about the time she is or should be a grandmother she qualifies for the title Nano.

Anyway, about that time in life Nano seems to develop a predisposition to osteoporosis—increased porosity, softness and fragility of bones due to depletion of calcium (lime).

Now this same condition is as common in men past middle age as it is in women past middle age. But oddly enough, Nano, when you get it, eminent specialists maintain, it is post-menopausal osteoporosis and so you'll probably get some "shots" of estrogenic hormone, which may do a lot for your general well-being, although that line of treatment, it seems to me, is beside the point.

These eminent specialists describe "post-menopausal osteoporosis" as a deficiency of calcium in the bones; they believe it is not so much a fault of the calcium metabolism as it is a disorder seated in the bone substance — but they are vague about this hypothetical disorder in the bone itself. They do find the calcium and phosophorus contents of the blood normal but calcium excretion in the urine is increased. To my mind increased excretion of calcium in the urine is a fault of calcium metabolism. With this increased calcium excretion in the urine, there is a greater tendency for stones to form in kidney, collecting basin ureter or urinary bladder (this has nothing to do with gallstones).

In postmenopausal osteoporosis the spine and pelvis are chiefly involved. Thus if Nano suffers a slight jolt or injury which, in her younger days, would not have kept her out of the game more than a day or two, and then complains of a new pain in the back, she rates a careful medical or surgical examination and an X-ray picture or two if the physician or surgeon advises it.

An ounce of prevention—but that's the trouble, neither Nano nor any one else who has not yet felt any manifestations of osteoporosis or recognized the manifestations he or she has felt, will bother with this prophylaxis, as a rule. However, here it is:

Make it your business to consume a quart of milk every day—milk or its equivalent in cheese, cream, butter, eggs particularly the yolks, and various items in which milk is a large ingredient. And supplement your regular diet with wafers or capsules that supply good daily rations of calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D. I said rations, not doses. Rations applies to food dose applies applies to medicine. This supplemental calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D is food that is as essential as fat, protein or carbohydrate—but as a result of steady shortage of calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D through years your bones have become depleted, porous, soft, easily injured or broken. The great drawback about this is, darn it, than one can't expect any notable benefit from it in less than a year.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Until Tomorrow

You claim that on a good diet a person may lose two or three pounds a week. My dear doctor, I lost a little over three pounds in about two hours in the steam room this morning. What can you say about that? (F.S.T.)

Answer—That is nothing unusual—three pounds of sweat—but don't worry, you'll get it back by tomorrow. It is childish to imagine you can reduce by sweating profusely—the water (and salt) so lost will be restored to the body in the next 12 to 24 hours—if you are wise enough to drink water and take some salt to replenish it. There is one good, safe and, in the long run, satisfactory way to reduce. That is by restricting your caloric requirement. In the booklet "Rules for Reducing" I tell you how to do this without endangering health. For a copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope—of ordinary size.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What is the difference between beer and ale?

"Beer" and "ale" are of Teutonic origin and occur in Anglo-Saxon as "beor" and "ealu." Formerly they were synonomous and they still are often used interchangeably.

In 1872 M. Schele De Vere, in "Americanisms; the English of the New World," wrote: "Beer, without the addition of a descriptive noun, is very rarely heard in America, ale being generally used where the Englishman would say beer."

The popular beverage served in English "pubs" is called beer or bitter, but it is not an imitation of German lager beer (Bier), as American beer is, but what Americans call ale.

Of "ale" and "beer" H. W. Fowler wrote in 'Modern English Usage": 'in the trade, and in statistics and the like, the two words are distinguished in meaning. But in ordinary use, as at table, both denote the same thing, including the pale and excluding the dark varieties of malt liquor; the difference is that beer is the natural current word and ale is a Genteelism."

"Beer" is used generally to denote all the fermented malt beverages known specifically as beer, ale, porter and stout, which are all made from essentially the same ingredients. Malt is grain, usually barley, that has been germinated. In making malt the grain is soaked in water and kept damp until it begins to sprout. When the sprouting has proceeded to a certain point the grain is dried and the process of germination halted. Malt acts to convert the starch in the grain into dextrose, from which alcohol is produced. Corn, rice or some other grain cereal is usually added to the malted barley. Hops give the beverage its characteristic flavor and aroma and contribute to its keeping qualities.

As made in America ale differs from beer because different types of yeast are used, fermentation takes place at different temperatures and a different quantity of hops is used. Ale is fermented at a higher temperature, contains more hops and is sweeter than beer. British porter and stout are varieties of strong, dark heavy ale. As a rule ale has more body to it than beer has.

Even the Federal government and the American brewing industry find it hard to draft definitions distinguishing clearly between beer and ale. The common impression is that the alcoholic content of ale is greater than that of beer. That is generally, but not necessarily so. In the United States the percentage of alcohol in both beer and ale ranges from three or four to nine percent by volume.

The alcoholic content of a beverage is about one-tenth of one precent more when the percentage is based on volume than when based on weight. Beer having five percent of alcohol by volume would have about four and five-tenth percent by weight, and liquor containing 45 percen alcohol by weight would contain about 50 percent by volume.

Little Prospect Of Settlement In Coal Dispute

Ottawa, Jan. 24 (CP).—Following two days of negotiations which apparently have resulted in deadlock, company and union spokesmen in the Maritime coal wage dispute were scheduled today to lay their cards on the table of Labor Minister Mitchell.

However, there appeared little prospect of a settlement of the dispute which threatens a strike Jan. 31 of 13,000 miners, members of the United Mine Workers of America (C.C.L.). Both disputants ,according to informed sources, have refused to give ground on their terms and the government has made known that it will not pay subsidies to finance wage increases asked by the miners.

The miners were understood to be still sticking to their original demand for a general wage increase of $2.50 a day, while the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, largest Maritime operator, continued to hold out an offer of graduated increases up to $1 a day.

Dosco has claimed inability to pay the demanded increases, stating that without subsidies the company would have to add $4 a ton to the selling price of its coal.

The union delegates to the government-sponsored conference challenged the size of this suggested price raise and offered figures by which it claimed the additional cost would be considerably less than $4.

Freeman Jenkins, president of U.M.W. Local 26, said at the opening of negotiations this week that a general strike would be called JJan. 31 if satisfactory terms could not be met. The strike was authorized by an 80 per cent vote of miners in District 26.

Doctors Request Higher Fees From Maritime Miners

By JOHN TRACY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Glace Bay, N.S., Jan. 24 (CP)—Union Miners, seeking wage increases for themselves, have come face to face with requests from their doctors for higher fees, but the outcome of their differences may mean better medical service for 28,000 people in the South Cape, Breton colliery towns.

When the miners meet next month to talk over the request of the Glace Bay medical society for 50 per cent increase, the agenda is expected to include a plan for co-operative medicine to replace the present system where each doctor may have as many as 2,200 potential patients compared with an average of 1,100 in nearby Sydney.

The differences between the society and the miners arose when doctors asked for a 20-cent increase over the 40 cents a week checked off each miner's pay to cover medical treatment of himself and his family well as ordinary drugs except for certain "special" one, like penicillin.

The 13 doctors, whose total income from the check-off in 1945 was estimated by United Mine Workers oficials as $130,000, said the drugs they provided were costing them 25 to 30 per cent of their income and that the cost of drugs as well as that of maintaing a practice had increased.

When the subscribers' committee failed to vote the increase, the doctors stopped supplying drugs but said they were prepared to discuss with the miners some other plan of medical treatment.

There are indications that neither miners nor doctors are satisfied with the present system which Dr. John R. McNeil, society president, says offers no incentive for a doctor to specialize because he may be busy 24 hours a day.

The plan that both sides have in mind would provide more doctors and opportunities for specialist treatment for the people of the colliery towns.

In commemoration of her service as a troopship in two great wars, H.M.T. Aquitania and her crew were presented with a bronze plaque when she docked at Halifax by the heads of the three armed services in the eastern area. Shown here is Capt. J. D. Snow, ship's captain, receiving the plaque from Major-General Foster, C.B.E., D.S.O., commanding Eastern Army Command. Capt. Snow expressed the personal appreciation of himself and the crew for the award which read: "Presented to H.M.T. Aquitania for her services rendered in two great wars by all ranks of the Canadian armed forces."

St. Joseph's Industrial Training School at Alfred One of the Best in Canada

By SHANE MACKAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Alfred, Ont., Jan. 24 (CP) — Capable hands, occupied minds and healthy bodies—these are the factors which make St. Joseph's Industrial Training School at this old Ontario village 35 miles east of Ottawa one of the foremost delinquents' homes in the Dominion.

Operated by quiet, friendly men who have devoted their lives to juvenile reform, members of the Roman Catholic Order of the Christian Brethren, the school is probably the most up-to-date of its kind. Its newest building, housing trades shops, dormitories, a laundry and a printing plant, was finished less than a year ago.

Britain's leading delinquency expert, H. S. C. Rees, told reporters after a visit to St. Joseph's last weekend we had seen most reformatories in the United Kingdom and many on this continent, but "never one so finely equipped"

"These 135 boys have things I've seen lacking in many a large private school," he added. "They've got a school to be proud of and I think you'll find most of them don't let it down."

Honor Roll in School

In the reception room of the rambling, grey-stone "old building" is an Honor Roll listing the names of 364 boys who joined the armed forces. Fifteen gave their lives in action overseas.

"We try to get the prison atmosphere out of their minds," intense, youngish Brother Georges said. "The school has only been in operation since 1933, but already many of the boys look on it as their home. They come back for visits."

The school's two main buildings are situated on the main street of Alfred, but the property extends beyond the village into the country where there are two large barns, house, four Clydesdale horses, chickens hogs, a tractor and healthy herd of Holstein cows.

During a tour by Mr. Rees, Brother Urban, St. Joseph's "field man," was going over his files before a trip to Fort William. It was his job to find homes for the lads when they left and to keep a check on their progress.

"We always try to find a new home for them because it's almost invariably the ones who go back to their old environment who get into trouble again," he commented.

Search Resumed For Child's Body In Thames River

London, Ont., Jan. 24 —(CP)— Search was resumed today for the body of five-year-old Bobbie Avery, swept to his death in swirling icy currents of the Thames River here yesterady in sight of townspeople watching helplessly as firemen in a frail rescue craft came within a few feet of the child's bobing head before he disappeared from sight under broken ice.

The boy, son of an army Sergeant stationed here, was playing with his four-year-old sister on the fringe of solid ice rim in the river when he fell into open water. A woman crossing the bridge under which the children were playing, gave the first alarm.

Soon a small craft, manned by firemen Ed Hothersall, Fred Garfat and Mort Burns, attempted to come within reaching distance of the child.

Scores of people on the bank unable to help the rescue attempt themselves, shouted directions and pointed out the position of the little head still showing as swiftly moving currents carried it out of reach.

The men were within 50 feet of Bobbie several times, but could snatch him from the freezing Thames waters, a change of current swirled him out of reach

Finally a strong current swept the child under an ice field and he disappeared from sight.

Sailors from the Canadian Naval barracks, H.M.C.S. Prevost, were called in with a larger boat equipped with search lights as the evening grew dark, but a blinding snowstorm made visibility too poor to continue the search.

WANTS ARGENTINE WHEAT

London, Jan. 24 (Reuters). — Britain has bought or is on the point of buying half a million tons of wheat from Argentina for shipment during the first half of this year, responsible grain trade quarters in London say.

There is no official confirmation yet from either London or Buenos Aires, but it is recalled that similar trade reports, some weeks ago, of the big purchase of Argentine oils and oilcake were eventually confirmed in every detail.

It was officially disclosed in the House of Lords Wednesday that the gap in wheat supplies for Britain and the colonies during this half year has been exactly 500,000 tons.

"GUN" IN HOLD-UP

Det. William Stamp, who helped catch Austin Craft, 43-year-old sanatorium employee accused of the $1,000 hold-up of the Bank of Toronto in Hamilton, Ont., displays the "gun" used in the robbery. The "gun" turned out to be a crank used to raise and lower sections of hospital beds and it is believed it came from an institution in Brantford, Ont., where the accused was employed. The suspect was captured by bank employees, two pedestrians and Det. Stamp three minutes after the robbery.

'Gogama Mayor' On Way to Shows

Toronto, Jan. 24 (CP).—One of Northern Ontario's more colorful figures, Joe LaFlamme, self-styled "mayor" of Gogama, northwest of Sudbury, will blow into town today accompanied by his three tame moose and a deer — which animals he hopes to exhibit to city school children while on his way through.

Mr. LaFlamme, who is well over six feet in height, and has a luxurious beard, was at one time a Montreal policeman and heavyweight wrestling champion of Quebec Province. When he a nounced to the citizens of Gogam one day that he was now H Worship Mayor Joseph T. L Flamme, not a dissenting vo was heard.

With his tame moose and de he is on the way to sportsme shows in Montreal, Boston, Ne York and other points under t auspices of the Carling Conserv tion Club.

His last appearance in Toron was 21 years ago when he broug 10 dogs and five tame wolves a attempted to drive them down o of the main streets. The wolv were too nervous of city traffic make the venture a real success but not half as nervous as t pilot of the plane which flew the down. Especially when all of t animals conducted a free-for- in the plane's cabin.

Blunt Warning Against Partition Of Holy Land

London, Jan. 24 (Reuters)—A blunt warning that any attempt to impose by force partition of Palestine, might "set the whole Middle East aflame" was made last night by Jamal Husseini, vice chairman of the Palestine and higher executive, after his arrival here.

The Egyptian delegation's anti-partition solidarity with other Arab representatives, who, like Husseini, are here for the Palestine Conference expected to be resumed next Monday, was emphasized by Abden Rahman Hakki Bey, Egyptian Minister to Syria and Lebanon and a leading member of the Egyptian delegation.

Husseini said "any such move would produca in Palestine violence much worse than that occurring there today. Creation of a Jewish state in Palestine would be like placing a bomb under our very national existence and we are ready to fight against it."

United Church Members at Marsh Hill Hold Meeting

Preceded by a bountiful supper served by the Ladies, the annual congregational meeting of the Marsh Hill United Church was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Finkle last week. Despite adverse weather and slippery roads, a large number gathered for the hour of fellowship and to hear reports of the year's activities.

The meeting was presided over by the minister, Rev. A. L. Shorten, who conducted a brief devotional period before the business period. The secretary, Berson Mitts, who was re-elected to that office, read the minutes of the last meeting. Reports were heard from the Sunday School, which has a balance of over $40. and the W.M.S., which raised $124. The Treasurer, E. B. Finkle, reported a balance of $203, and Leslie Finkle, as Treasurer of the M. & M. Fund, reported that with some money still to be paid, $129. had been raised. This amount is in excess of last year's givings.

Thanked for Co-operation

In his report, the minister thanked all for the spirit of co-operation and the loyalty which had been shown. One of the valued members of the congregation was removed through death during the year in the person of J. H. Frederick, while the congregation suffered the loss as well of the Marisette family, who moved away. The membership stands at 76. During the year there were two baptisms, two burials and one wedding. Mr. Shorten called for continued effort on the part of all in order that the Church might have a more important place in the lives of more people in the community.

The elections resulted in the following being appointed: Allyn Finkle was appointed as an elder, replacing C. Marisette; Fred Heasman and Rosswell Reid were elected to the Board of Stewards. The two treasurers were re-elected. Garnet Searles and Allyn Finkle were appointed as Ushers and Offertory Stewards, to be assisted by David Hollinger, Harry Coulter and Frank Lough. Miss Currie was appointed assistant organist, with the organist, Dorothy Mitts being re-elected. The visiting committee is composed of Mrs. Bert Searles, Mrs. F. Heasman, Mrs. Alex. Tanner, and Mrs. Harry Coulter. The Sunday School Superintendent, Leslie Finkle, was re-elected. Lois Mitts was appointed Secretary Treasurer with Berson Mitts as assistant.

Use Unified Service

After considerable discussion it was decided to use the unified Service in the coming months. This form of service, to begin at 10:30, will combine the Sunday School and Church Worship service. The members of the congregation noted with satisfaction the willingness of Kenneth Breeze to act as caretaker of the Church, and arrangements were to be made with him immediately. The meeting closed with prayer and the benediction.

Women's Canadian Club Hears Illustrated Lecture on Malaya

On Thursday afternoon the Sunday School hall of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was well filled with members of the Women's Canadian Club, to hear an illustrated lecture on Malaya, by Mr. Hubert Banner, an honor graduate of Oxford University, who spent twelve years in British Malaya and the Dutch East Indies. The colored slides accompanying the lecture were beautiful in color and scenery, interesting from the viewpoint of entertainment, and enlightening as an educational project.

Introducing his subject the speaker said: "This is the land to which the Right Honorable Malcolm MacDonald is going as Governor. His appointment is dramatic, for British enterprises have developed Malaya until it is now the most productive area of its size in the whole world. Little is known of the origin of the Malaya, but judging from their oriental features it is accepted as fact that their ancestors were originally Chinese."

"The Portuguese were the founders of the first colony, at Malaya, where they built a fort in 1511. They were followed in the seventeenth century by Dutch settlers, and the British arrived in 1809. Their leader decided to settle at Singapore because all the trade routes seemingly passed through that site. This has since changed from a barren place of low mud flats to a thriving trade centre of modern buildings.

Right Man for Position

Explaining the present status of British Government on the Malayan Peninsula Mr. Banner said: "The former Government of Malaya has been a joint council of native sultans and of British representatives, but recent changes have been made leading to the development of a local self government, which includes several other states and some of the nearby islands, to be known as "The Malay Union". This has not been enthusiastically welcomed by the natives, as they are very jealous of the pure-blooded Chinese in their country, and of other oriental tribes, all of whom will be on a more or less equal footing with themselves in the new legislature. However, Mr. MacDonald is a very tactful and diplomatic man and I feel certain he is the right man for this position."

Country Improves

"Under British supervision the country has improved in many respects. Transportation has changed from bullock carts for jungle travel, and houseboats on the slowly-moving rivers, to fine highways, the best in railroad service and comfortable accommodation on river steamers.

Agriculture has developed along several lines, particularly in the improvement of native products such as rubber trees, the first of seedlings being planted in 1876. Now 2½ million acres have been converted into well-kept rubber estates, producing one-half the world's supply. Cocoanut trees have been developed until now, one tree produces as many as 300 nuts in a season. Malayan tea is coming to the fore and will appear on European and American markets before many years. Palm oil is important to Malayan trade, taking the place of whale oil for cooling machinery, and being used extensively in the production of vegetable shortenings as well as for the manufacture of soaps. The yield of rice, which is the staple food for native and European inhabitants alike, has been greatly increased by irrigation.

Best of Schools

In the field of education too, England has given the natives the best of schools from primary to those for higher education, as well as in medical service, so that, in spite of the intense heat Europeans may live very comfortably if they observe ordinary rules for health, one of which is to always sleep with a mosquito net over the bed. Temperatures range from 67 at night and 85 at noon to 98 or 100 at three p.m.

Two aboriginal tribes include a Negro type, nomads and non-agriculturists and a second, who are tree dwellers. All have some sort of Spirit Worship or are Mohammedans. The women produce the beautiful embroideries which are similar to that of the Chinese, and the men spend their time fishing and hunting the wild life with which the tropical jungle abounds, for tigers, leopards and wild buffalo may sometimes invade the villages.

Not Distasteful

Taking all things into consideration life for the English civil servant is neither distasteful nor inconvenient as the homes supplied for them contain everything in the way of modern conveniences with a view for their protection from "intruders", and the Governor's duties could be far more complex than they are in Malaya, where he will receive a cordial welcome as England's representative, and where tropical scenery and modern buildings will combine to form an ideal background for every day activities.

Rawdon

Mission Band

Rawdon (Special) — Mount Pleasant Sunbeam Mission Band convened Saturday afternoon at the home of the leader Mrs. Burton Sharp. There were seventeen in attendance.

Shirley McKeown played quiet music and the president Ruth Linn gave the call to worship.

Tweed

Congregational Meeting Held; Reports Given

Tweed, Jan. 24.—The annual congregational meeting of St. John's United Church was held Wednesday evening in the Sunday School room with all departments well represented. Rev. A. L. Sisco presided over the meeting. Secretary T. C. Graham read the minutes of last year's meeting. All departments reported a good year. Mr. W. S. Gordon, superintendent of the Sunday School reported for the Sunday School in the absence of Billie Beatty, secretary. Mr. Gordon made an appeal for a teacher for a teen age boys' class and also for an adult men's class.

S. H. Connor in reporting for the senior choir mentioned the newly organized junior choir of 27 members. This, he said, entailed alterations to the platform, etc. Mr. Connor thanked the Women's Association for their kindness in providing the material for platform, also for rods and drapes.

The newly organized Harmony Club for newly married couples was reported by the president, Emerson Hodgins. He reported 51 present at the last meeting. The reports for the other departments were very encouraging.

The report of the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of over one thousand dollars was most gratifying.

Meeting closed by benediction by the pastor. The W.A. ladies served a pot luck supper. This was voted on to be an annual congregational get-together feature.

ce that time," they said, evy had been raised to 10 and more recently they een informed by the De- ent of Municipal Affairs he school could not be fin- less than 19 mills and that er to raise debentures, the of every municipality in- d would be necessary."

information, Reeve P. , Bancroft, stated was giv- delegation of the Bancroft Board when it waited on Department of Municipal s in Toronto.

Verbal Fire

artment of Education rep- ative Gordon L. Duffen outlining the plans and ad- ges of the high school area m went under verbal oning fire of the northern ve Clarke Rollins, Wollas- emanded assurance of the tment that the levy would e increased over the ten as estimated by the De- ent, because there is a limit to taxation on the municipalities in the area involved."

Mr. Duffen stated that he felt sure there would be no increase in the estimated 10-mill levy. "Yes," insisted Reeve Rollins "but what assurance can we get?"

"That all depends on the number of new children you dig up in the near future," smiled Mr. Duffen. "They tell me they come in threes now up around your way."

County council had passed a by-law last year making Bancroft the central point for a new district area high school. It is the largest area of its kind in Ontario and according to reeves of the district is functioning well.

More Students, Higher Costs

Mr. Duffen explained that the original estimate called for a 90-student school and after a survey of costs had been made the levy had been set at 5 1-4 mills. This, however, did not include cost of transportation. Later it had been estimated that the district could furnish at least twice the number of students as originally mentioned, and as this called for a much larger school, the levy had been raised commensurately.

"There is an awful mix-up somewhere that has got to be straightened out," Reeve Kellar said. He told the council that the delegation from the Bancroft School Board had waited on the Department of Education and had been told they would be subsidized up to 75 per cent of the cost, but when the delegation waited on the Department of Municipal Affairs it was informed that levy would be nearly twenty mills. The delegation was also informed that no debentures could be issued until the consent of every municipality had been received.

It was now estimated, Reeve Kellar said, that the school will cost $300,000 instead of $200,000 as formerly laid down.

"The present hold-up," Reeve W. J. Davis said, " was the debentures. Contracts should be signed immediately so that work can be started. He mentioned plans called for a machine-shop in the school twice as large as the original.

"[illegible] and pupils of the district," he said, "are making good efforts and getting behind the project. If we can arrange the missing link between the Departments of Education and Municipal Affairs, then we are away to a good start."

He suggested that a meeting of all municipal councils in the area be called with Mr. Duffen in attendance so that a better insight into the financial procedure could be secured. Mr. Duffen agreed to such a joint gathering as, he said, "it is not the intention of our Department to have the local people pay a twenty-mill levy, but it is its intention to have a good high school there."

In his early remarks, Mr. Duffen outlined the origin of the high school area idea, saying that now the establishment of such schools is made by county council by-law.

300-Pupil School Best

A survey revealed that the best type of school was one that could accommodate 300 pupils in a district with a population of 10,000 and an assessment up to $10,000,000. "The trouble with the poorer districts like Bancroft," he said, "is that the assessment there is only $750,000, whereas if it was 7 1-2 millions the levy would be much smaller. It was very necessary to the Department that it know the population of the areas.

Mr. Duffen stated that the establishment of a high school area in North Hastings had set a mark for the province. Last June there were 82 students in attendance. In the fall this number increased to 152. Eventually, he predicted, over 300 boys and girls from the district will be in attendance, some of these coming from long distances and who had never attended high school before. The new school is hoped to be in operation this year.

Several Meetings Held

"Hastings County Committee had had several meetings with his department," he said, "and the possibility of three school areas in the county had been discussed, one in the centre, one in the south and the present one in the north.

The average cost per student in a good school of 300 pupils is $300 he pointed out. This would amount to $68,000 while transportation would cost another $28,000., or a total cost of $96,000. The government subsidy of 75 per cent would take care of $72,000 of this leaving $24,000 to be levied. This would amount to three mills on an assessment of between 7 and 8 million dollars.

In the southern area, the committee felt the Belleville Collegiate Institute would be the logical school for the cost of education now to the townships is two mills and this, plus cost of transportation, one mill would be equal to the cost of the high school area project.

Crying of Baby Warns 34 to Flee Burning Building

Ottawa, Jan. 24 (CP)—Fire of unknown origin on Thursday destroyed a three-storey apartment block, causing damage estimated at $30,000 and driving 34 persons to the street in sub-zero weather. There were no injuries.

Crying of a three-weeks-old child gave the alarm. Simon Dermer was awakened by the baby, saw the flames and quickly aroused other occupants in the building. The tenants got out, clad only in night attire, or with fur coats hastily grabbed as they made their escape.

A. Sampson Presented With Gift by Associates

Toronto, Jan. 24—At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of Chateau-Gai Wines Limited, Mr. A. G. Sampson, the President and General Manager, was presented with a sterling silver flatware service.

The presentation was made by his fellow directors as a token of appreciation to Mr. Sampson for his most successful guidance of the affairs of the company in the past ten years. Due to his foresight and salesmanship, production facilities have been broadened and developed both in Canada and abroad.

Mr. Simpson is well-known in Canadian newspaper circles as a Director of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association.

Clear Six Miles Of Highway to Get Boy to Doctor

Owen Sound, Jan. 24 (CP) — Russell Jack, eight-year-old boy who badly cut his tongue at play Wednesday, had four stitches sewn in it Thursday after six miles of highway had been cleared by emergency crews to evacuate him from his parents' snowbound house.

The boy was taken from his Proton Township home to Dundalk for the operation after road men had battled through four-foot drifts to clear a path. Apart from a sore tongue, he is none the worse for the experience, and is resting at the Dundalk home of his grandfather, William Jack.

WANTS TO LEAVE HOSPITAL

New York, Jan. 24 — (AP) — Babe Ruth has so far recovered from the effects of his recent serious operation that he's beginning to get impatient to leave hospital, Mrs. Ruth disclosed today.

"He's improving daily," she said, "but as long as this cold weather continues the doctors won't even discuss letting him go home."

The former home run king has been in hospital nearly two months. He was admitted Nov. 26 for the announced treatment of a "sinus condition" and was on the operating table for two hours January 6.

Treasured Relics Of Indian Life Presented to University

London, Ont., Jan. 24. (CP) —A collection of Indian relics including some rare pieces has been presented to the University of Western Ontario by the heirs of William Ellerker, a pioneer of Lambton County.

The Ellerker collection, gathered over a period of 65 years, contains some fine specimens of Attawdrian weapons, nine ceremonial spears, three fishing spears, an unusual type of wedge shaped granite chisel, leather working tools used by squaws, and a variety of arrowheads.

Similarities Seen In Murders Of Two Children

Manchester, England, Jan. 24—(AP)—Two Scotland Yard homicide investigators Thursday joined the hunt for the slayer of 15-year-old Sheila Gowrie after noting similarities between the death of Manchester's "Little Red Riding Hood" and Norma Dale, four, who was found murdered on a Yorkshire moor last September.

The right shoe was missing from each body. Both little girls died of strangulation. The body of each had been carried from the scene of the crime.

The body of the Gowrie child, slain while carrying a gift of food to her grandmother, was found huddled against the back door of her home yesterday. Unlike Norma Dale, she apparently had not been raped, police said.

Detectives discovered Sheila's missing right shoe in a back yard two doors from the Gowrie home.

Still sought was the can of meat Sheila was taking to her grandmother's and which was never delivered.

Police admitted failure to establish a motive for the crime.

Windsor Mayor Will Deal Sternly With Bribery

Windsor, Jan. 24 —(CP)— Mayor Arthur J. Reaume Thursday sounded a warning to persons having business dealings with the city of Windsor that any suggestion of attempted bribery of municipal officials or elected representatives would result in immediate action.

The Mayor said he proposed to discuss with Controller Tom Brophy his remark at a recent city council meeting.

During a discussion on parking meters, Controller Brophey said: "The only one who ever made any representations to me that there might be something in it for me was a representative" of a parking meter company. The Mayor said he would also draw the controller's statement to the attention of the company.

"I have complete faith in the city officials and members of city council and know they are aware of the trust imposed in them by the citizens of Windsor," the Mayor said. "I feel confident that an attempt at bribery would not get very far.

"However, I shall make it clear to firms intending to do business with the city that such action will not be countenanced."

Controller Brophey, in a prepared statement, said "I can only repeat that a representative of one of the parking meter firms indicated to me that there might be something in it for me if I could push his meters and get them on the streets.

"Such remarks, naturally, are not made in public and it would be impossible for me to prove my charge to the satisfaction of a court."

Pete Horeck Scores Four Goals Against His Old Team as Wings Defeat Chicago Hawks by 8-2

Many of the Injured on Toronto Team Nearly Ready for Duty

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The die-hard hockey fans at Detroit's Olympia had an uproarious time last night—11,705 of them — as their favorite Red Wings plastered an 8-2 defeat on the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks in the night's only National Hockey League encounter.

Pete Horeck rang up 4 goals against his former Chicago teammates, highest individual Detroit score since Adam Brown got three against Boston in the opening game of the 1945-46 campaign. Detroit had a 2-0 edge when the second frame started and Horeck's first goal came at the two minute mark of that period, but a whistle was blown just before Horeck scored, and Red Hamill of the Hawks protested so vigorously that he got a 10-minute misconduct penalty. Linesman Ed Mepham won the ensuing debate by convincing referee Stan Pratt that the whistle had been blown by one of the enthusiastic fans.

So Horeck's goal was allowed, on top of the first period scores by Jimmy and Roy Conacher. Mosienko made it 3-1 and Horeck came right back with another. Then Hamill scored, and Syd Howe, leaving Detroit ahead by 5-2 as the second period ended.

The third period was all Detroit, Reise scoring at 3.14 and Horeck at 12.32 and 13.04.

It simply left Chicago deeper in the cellar, now seven points behind Detroit.

The league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs meanwhile got right down to business in practice at Toronto for Saturday's home game against the New York Rangers. Montreal Canadiens, six points behind the pace-setters, likewise concentrated on preparations to entertain the third-place Boston Bruins. There are two games each on Saturday and Sunday, the latter fixtures having Toronto at Chicago and Detroit at Boston.

At Toronto, big Harry Watson was back on left wing alongside centre Syl Apps and rightwing Bill Ezinicki, and Watson apparently was in top shape after being out of action for three weeks with a knee injury. He skated for half an hour after the other Leafs had gone to the showers.

Coach Hap Day said he'd use Watson on Saturday against Rangers, for part of the game anyway. That gives the Leafs 11 forwards, but the league leaders' rearguard still isn't up to snuff. Wally Stanowski, and Jimmy Thompson and Gus Mortson will still carry the load.

The injured Garth Boesch, defenceman from Winnipeg, will be on skates Monday and just possibly will be in the line-up at Montreal next Thursday. Bob Goldham is still weeks away from active duty. And Vic Lynn's return to left wing is doubtful for some days.

Lineups For Tonight's Game

WEBB AND MEL TANGLE FEB. 3RD IN MONTREAL

Lightweight Champ Will Have to Concede Seven Pounds to Adversary

Montreal, Jan. 24 (CP)—When Danny Webb and Gus (Pell) Mell do battle here a week from Monday, it will climax one of Montreal's hottest fueds since the Castilloux-Greco fight last August.

Both Montreal fighters, along with their respective handlers, are tossing harsh words, charges and counter charges back and forth as the result of Webb's withdrawal from the original bout a month ago.

Webb, holder of the Canadian lightweight crown, has left a trail of impressive victories behind him in England where he served with the Canadian Army in Canada. He was placed high among the Dominion's fighting after defeating Castilloux for the lightweight championship last fall.

Danny has a lot of confidence in himself, but will have to concede his adversary seven pounds as the young Negro battler is expected to weigh in at 132—seven pounds lighter than the weight requirements for the non-title bout.

May Get Crack At Title

Prospects for a crack at the British lightweight crown with Vic Patrick are bright for Danny as cables from Sydney, Australia, have offered the Montrealer $12,000 for the bout or a $6,000 guarantee plus two other fights with 25 per cent gate cuts. The trip to Australia hinges on whether he can get by Mell.

Mell goes into the fight a 7-5 favorite and the odds promise to rise as the fight day approaches. The 21-year-old slugger is working hard to meet the weight limit. He will have to drop three more badly needed pounds before he can qualify for the match.

Mell, who gave up his featherweight crown to move in heavier weight brackets, has an impressive win over Patsy Brandino, Hamilton, Ont. battler and showed well against Castilloux in a title match when he floored the former lightweight king twice only to lose a close decision.

Mell has a contract to meet Willie Joyce in a Boston Garden headliner Feb. 3—if he gets by pugnacious Danny Webb.

DALLAS TEXANS UNDEFEATED IN ELEVEN GAMES

Increase Lead in Their Division of U. S. League to 15 Points

(By The Canadian Press)

The high-flying Dallas Texans ran their string of victories to 11 straight last night by whipping Tulsa's skidding Oilers 6-2 in a United States Hockey League game. The victory increased the southern division leaders' margin to 15 points.

A four-goal flurry in the second period clinched the affair as Bobby Thorpe, Ken McKenzie, Gus Bellemarre and Len Halderson scored in succession. Dallas added another pair in the final period by Norm McKay and Joe Desilets. Johnny Ubriaco and Bob Wycherly were the Tulsa goal-getters.

The game was thrown into a turmoil in the second period when referee Jim Arnott disallowed what appeared to be an Oiler goal. The crowd littered the ice with missiles of all sorts and coach Gus Marker notified Arnott that Tulsa was finishing the game under protest.

The defeat dropped the Oilers behind Fort Worth's Rangers who took over the southern section's second spot by beating Minneapolis Millers 4-2. Vernon (Wimpy) Jones tallied twice and collected two assists and Ken Kilrea counted once and had three assists. Maurice Vaillancourt notched both Minneapolis points.

In the league's other game Omaha Knights, sparked by Barry Sullivan who notched a pair of goals, defeated St. Paul Saints 4-2 to move back into a tie with idle Kansas City for top spot in the northern division. George Homenuke and Blinky Boyce added the other Omaha tallies while Dave Baker and Mitch Pechet scored for the Saints.

Hockey Leafs Come and Go But Tim Daly Goes on Forever

By WILF GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 24—(CP)—"The future champeens of the world is (sic) now on the ice."

The man with the manner and figure of Falstaff leaned on the rinkboards as he watched Toronto Maple Leafs at work with the above quotation emphasized, at least to himself, that Tim Daly is some shakes as the talking goodwill ambassador of the Leafs

The roster shows Daly as head trainer of Connie Smythe's National Hockey League team. In a sense he is. He sees the players' sticks are kept in trim. But it is as a morale builder and a man of many words — most of them out of tune with each other — that the one-time lightweight fighter shines.

Over the years Tim, now 63 and a shuffling figure of 220 pounds, has absorbed so much kidding from players that it now rolls off him like wool at a sheep-shearing and there can be no doubt of his affection for the Leafs individually. Or their regard for the fat man.

Also over the years the one-time piano polisher has developed the quaint technique of speaking of himself in the third person.

Like this: "Tim is the rookies' pal. Tim treats them like babies sometimes to make them happy.";

For occasional lapses Smythe has given Daly the verbal heave-ho so often Tim can't count them. Each time Daly has disregarded the instructions to be fired and returned for work as usual.

"Tim is a man who will never retire," said Daly. "Where else can Tim get a job and travel around the country with someone else paying for it?"

But if Tim is the butt of the Leafs' pranksters he also is a man of some dignity and humor. They tell a story of Leafs being on the road and, according to Leafian strategy strangers were to be kept out of the dressing room. So Tim hoisted his 220 pounds (portly front included) into the open doorway and none could pass.

Came the stranger who asked: "Who do you think you are — Smythe?"

And the answer: "No. Tim Daly is more impressive."

JOHNNY LONGDEN WANTS TO RIDE 3,000th WINNER

No Other Rider Even Close to Canadian Jockey in the Matter of Winnings

By BILL BECKER

Arcadia, Calif., Jan. 24 (AP)—Jockey Johnny Longden—Mr. Moneybags of the hoss-booting profession—is up to his old tricks.

And they are still paying off for him and his supporters, who are legion at Santa Anita, where Little John is nearly always at his best.

In fact Longden, was so far ahead of other jockeys at the last tabulation of winners, the $2 bettors were reported considering erecting a monument of Longden next to the bronze statue of Seabiscuit which adorns the Santa Anita entranceway.

Hard work has been the answer to Longden's success. When he was 17 he went to Canada from his native Wakefield, England, and worked in a coal mine at Taber, Alta., as a mucker for $2.50 a day. In 1927 he began riding on the Western Canadian circuit and graduated to American tracks in 1933.

Johnny, nearing 40, is perhaps the richest jockey in the business, with assets estimated at $1,000,000 including a 500-acre cattle ranch in Nevada and a home in Arcadia, near the scene of some of his greatest triumphs.

But he won't quit, he says, until he has ridden his 3,000th winner. As he just passed the 2,600 mark, that means probably three or four more seasons in the saddle.

Longden sets an American turf record every time he boots another one home. No other jockey comes close to his lifetime total of victories.

In 20 years of riding, Longden has won more than $5,000,000 in purse money, hitting a peak of $981,977 in 1945. He "slipped" to $708,859 in 1946.

In his first 101 starts of the current meeting, he finished in the money 62 times, an average of better than 60 per cent, which any racing form student will recognize as super sharp.

Last of 153 trainloads of Canadian war brides reached Toronto Union Station yesterday. A total of 11,605 brides and 5,003 children have reached Ontario homes, including yesterday's complement, and of that number 5,706 brides and 2,276 children are living in Toronto. Emerson Burnett (above) greeted his wife Rosalie and 5-months-old Katie, whom the Toronto veteran saw for the first time.

READY FOR ALLIANCE

London, Jan. 24 (CP).—Prime Minister Attlee said yesterday in the House of Commons Britain is anxious to enter into negotiations for a treaty of alliance as soon as the new French government is ready to do so.

(In Paris official circles the Attlee statement was warmly received. A French foreign office spokesman said that "we are just as keen as Mr. Attlee, and we hope the negotiations will get under way in the nearest future."

(Official quarters believe the Anglo-French negotiations will start and possibly be completed before the Big Four Foreign Ministers go to Moscow in March to discuss the German peace treaty.)

"SNOWY OWL" by T. M. Shortt, Ornithologist.
The above illustration shows the snowy owl in his southern surroundings.

Down from the icy wastes of the Arctic, the Snowy Owl glides into a farmyard. Driven from his northern home by the periodic scarcity of lemmings, his favourite rodent food, the valuable bird seeks rats, mice and other despoilers of food and grain. Thus the snowy owl earns protection from us by helping to conserve our food supplies.

* "The people of Canada can perform a useful service to birds by providing food and shelter . . . when their food becomes temporarily inaccessible."

* An excerpt from—CONSERVATION AND WINTER HELP FOR OUR BIRDS, by J. L. Baillie, Jr., one in a series of pamphlets published by The Carling Conservation Club.

THE FARMER—a Conservationist
The farmer, in knowing the difference between harmful and useful birds of prey and in protecting the latter, helps both himself and the cause of conservation.

Kingston Vics Win Junior 'B' Tussle From Belleville "Bees"; Plumley Stars for Winners

Score is 4-2 With All the Markers Coming in the Third Period

Mr. Plumley 4, Belleville Bees 2.

That would be the best way of describing the Junior "B" tussle at the Memorial Arena on Thursday night, when Kingston Victorias took the measure of the local squad by the above score and the winners should hang a wreath of roses over the brow of Ray Plumley, their goalie, who kicked out dozens and some that he did not see. It was the finest exhibition of goal tending that has been seen in the ice igloo in some time and the little boy from Napanee won the plaudits of a highly partisan crowd.

Mr. Plumley stood between his team and a loss on the night's play. The Belleville crew, off skates for more than three weeks due to thaw and postponed games, had much the better of the territorial play and definitely had more shots than the Vics on Rollins but it was almost impossible to penettate the goalie's armour. He was uncanny on close-in drives and the long ones were "duck soup" to him. He continually outguessed the puck carrier and he was helped in some instances by "Lady Luck," when the rubber took a crazy bounce over the goal instead of going into the twine. He was also assisted by the Belleville squad, who tried to drive the disc through his pads instead of picking the corners.

A Trifle Heavier

The winners were a trifle heavier than the locals and used their weight to good advantage. The speed of the rival teams was evenly divided although the Vics broke quicker on their plays and the home squad had a lot more skating to do to break up the plays. The Vics had a great deal on the locals in the way of condition and their drives were more sustained. The contest was played on a lightning fast sheet of ice and in fact it was a little too fast for the teams in the first period, when many passes went astray, and the type of hockey was ragged. The second period was closer and more hefty bodychecking was seen, while in the third frame Belleville distinctly had the better of the play but were beaten on the breaks.

Eleven Penalties Given

There were eleven penalties handed out during the tussle with Belleville drawing five. There was considerable high sticking and elbowing but the referees ruled with an iron hand and at no time was the contest out of control. The penalty of playing with a broken stick was invoked in the pastime, Hurst being the offender. It is permissible this year to play without a stick but not with any portion of the broken stick in the player's hand. As was stated before the first frame was a little ragged and although both goalies were tested, Belleville had the most opportunity to score. Lay and Dandy served time for highsticking and Plumley was forced to make a dozen close-in stops in the two minutes.

In the second canto the boys started to rough it a bit and after Hurst went away for playing with the broken stick, J. Green and W. Shepherd was chased away for high sticking and before they got back Dugan was sent away for the same offence and shortly after Good took a rest for hooking. Rines was badly shaken up, when he crashed into the boards, at the south end but was able to continue after attention by the trainer. Belleville then went on the offensive and Utman had Plumley beaten but the Napanee kid just got his stick on the rubber, when it was heading for the corner. Day missed a beautiful chance on a fine setup by Reeves and the same player was put in the clear by Wardhaugh but he shot into the goalie's pads. Rollins at the other end had a very easy night and the teams went to the dressing rooms all square.

Had Goalie Beaten

Wardhaugh had Plumley beaten early in the third but the rubber bounced over the twine when the goalie got his stick on it. Day was sent away for blocking and was absent when Murray took a pass from W. Shepherd and beat Rollins on an angle drive. Some seconds latter Rollins beat McGeein when he was in alone and when McCue was sent away for blocking. Belleville took up the offensive but again Plumley was too clever and helped by overanxiousness of the locals. When McCue returned he was handed a shovel pass from McGeein and he made no mistake. Reeves took a rest for high sticking and while he was "sitting it out."

Rines and W. Shepherd combined to put the winners three up.

J. Green Gets First One

Ten seconds later Plumley was pulled completely out of the net when J. Green and Don Semark manoeuvred into position with Green flashing the red light. Murray came right back on a break-away and retained the three-goal margin for his team. Shortly before the bell Don Semark was put in the clear by J. Green and he made no mistake. For the Kingston club outside of Plumley, who played an outstanding game, the front line of W. Shepherd, Rines and Murray looked the best with Utman on the defence for the locals playing a sound, steady game while up front Don Semark, Huck Reeves and Day went well. Harry Wardhaugh at centre played well until he tired with Hurst using his body to good advantage, and he cleared well. The team as a whole showed the effects of good coaching and although they may not win the group, they play an entertaining brand of hockey and deserve the support of the fans of the district.

The lineups:

Kingston Vics.: Goal Plumley; defence, Clark and Dandy; centre, W. Shepherd; wings, Rines and Murray; Alts., LeSarge, McCue, McGeein, Jackson, Dugan, D. Shepherd and Good.

Belleville Bees: Goal, Rollins; defence, Utman and Hurst; centre, Wardhaugh; wings, Reeves and Day; Alts., Bone, Haggis, M. Green, J. Green, Semark, Milligan and Lougheed

Referees: "Speedy" St. Louis and "Toots" Holway of Belleville.

CAPITALS MUFF CHANCE TO TIE WITH BARONS

Indianapolis Drops 5-4 Decision to Up-and-Coming Springfield Indians

(By The Canadian Press)

The old lamp lighter of long ago, the fellow with the snowy hair, might have been a help to Indianapolis Capitals last night when a power failure at their home rink caused the lights to go on and off three times during an American Hockey League game.

The Caps, who had a chance to move into a tie for the western division lead with the idle Cleveland Barons, dropped a 5-4 decision to the up-and-coming Springfield Indians. The power failure delayed the game when the Caps seemed about to rally, and the Indians protested on the grounds of poor lighting.

Cliff Simpson, among the league's top scorers, twice put Indianapolis in a tie after play resumed, but Paul Courteau scored on a rebound at 14:1 of the final period to give Springfield victory before the lights went out for a third time.

Johnny Quilty, Harry Frost, Eldy Kobussen and Bill Summerhill accounted for the remainder of Springfield's goals while Steve Wochy and Hugh Millar notched the other Indianapolis markers.

The victory boosted the Indians into third place in the eastern division over the idle Providence Reds — the necessary berth needed to qualify for the Calder Cup play-offs.

In the league's other game Hershey Bears and New Haven Ramblers, first and second place teams in the eastern division, fought tooth-and-nail for the first two periods but let up in the final 20 minutes to finish in a 3-3 deadlock.

The Bears were ahead 2-1 at the end of the initial session on goals by Don Grosso and Gordy Bruce which offset Alex Shibicky's scoring effort for New Haven.

Lloyd Ailsby and Allen Kuntz put the Ramblers in front 3-2 late in the second period but Bruce came back with his second goal of the night to knot the count.

No games are scheduled tonight.

Fernand Gauthier, Detroit, who garnered assists on three of the Horeck goals.

CLINCH FIRST PLACE

Sudbury, Jan. 24 (CP)—Sudbury Wolves clinched first place in the Nickel District Hockey League last night when they scored a 4-3 win over Copper Cliff's Junior Redmen. All four teams in the league play one more game before the playoffs get under way Feb. 3, but the order of finish now is certain—Sudbury Wolves, Copper Cliff, Sudbury Legionnaires and Creighton.

Tatter McClellan was the big gun in last night's game, scoring all of the losers' goals on passes from Yacker Flynn. Nick Evanshen scored twice for the Wolves, with his linemates, Moe LaForge and George Hastie, adding the other goals.

NATURAL RUBBER STOCK SOLD AT SMALL PROFIT

London, Jan. 24 — (AP)—Sir Stafford Cripps, President of the Board of Trade, reporting government-owned stocks of natural rubber amounted to $164,048 tons on Dec. 27, told the Commons today that it was being sold at a profit of less than one-third of a cent (United States) a pound.

Average cost of the rubber, delivered, Sir Stafford estimated, was 15 5-8 pence a pound and the average sale price was 15 13-16 pence (.3156 cents profit).

Sports Roundup

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 24 (CP).—One of the most brutal and sadistic aspects of athletic endeavor is the way in which unscrupulous managers send sick, crippled or incompetent fighters into the ring to be butchered. . . . A move against this practice was revealed Wednesday night at the boxing writers' dinner when Col. Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Boxing Commission, said that the commission last year suspended 285 fighters and revoked 61 licences . . . one of the big reasons for the suspensions was to prevent "punchy" boxers from competing in the brutal sport.

* * *

ROMAN HOLIDAY . . .

Eagan's remarks recalled unfortunate ring incidents of recent years. . . . For instance, there was the case of Ernie Schaaf who died after a New York fight with Primo Carnera in the 30's. . . . Several months before Schaaf had been badly beaten by Max Baer and it was contended after his death that he had not fully recovered from his injuries when he went into the ring with da preem. . . . As Carnera never was noted for his punching prowess, that explanation seems likely.

Then there was the case several years ago of a well-known Negro heavyweight who was scheduled to fight in Philadelphia. . . . The Philly Boxing Commission doctor okayed his physical condition and said that the fighter's eyesight, which was known to be somewhat impaired, was satisfactory. . . . Just before the fight, the boxer was called up by his draft board. . . . The government medicos found that one eye had been removed and the other had 20 per cent vision.

Last year there was another striking example of the lengths to which fight managers will go to make a few thousand dollars. . . . Marty Servo, a competent welterweight, took the crown away from Freddie (The Red) Cochrane early in the year. . . . The next match Servo had was with Rocky Graziano, rought, hard-punching middleweight. . . . Servo was obviously overmatched but the fight drew a big gate and the youngster was thrown to the wolves. . . . He emerged from the beating he took with a smashed nose that ended his boxing career. . . . Servo never even got a chance to defend his title.

* * *

FALL GUY . . .

Local sportsters are chuckling over the case of Charlie Trippi, the all-American Georgia halfback. . . . During the football season Trippi was given more than his share of publicity in a carefully worked out drum-beating campaign by Col. Larry MacPhail of the baseball Yankees. . . . MacPhail was obviously grooming Trippi to step into a slot with the local professional football team next year.

About 10 days ago Trippi announced he had signed with Chicago Cardinals of the All America Association. . . . Later on it came out that Trippi had been tabbed by the Cards before the season had even started and MacPhail's campaign was useless.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 24 (CP)—At this time, with curling approaching the mid-winter peak, it can be said the ancient game has picked up a new and interested fan in Viscount Alexander.

He might even become a devotee, as have other Governors-General before him. That remains to be seen but he has thrown his first stone, in a game at Montreal, and will see more of curling a week hence when Ottawa Valley and Quebec champions of the Royal Caledonia Curling Club play for the Governor-General's trophy at Ottawa.

That is one of the biggest winter social events of the capital and, until 1939, this final was played on the Rideau Hall rink, built by the Earl of Dufferin but torn down in 1939

A peculiarity of this match is that it is played with irons instead of the usual granite stones used in a sport which probably has more Canadian participants than any other—well over 200,000.

Certain brash folk, when not in the hearing of those with the burr of the Highlands still in their voice, claim the game originated in The Netherlands, others say Scandinavia. But mention that to no Scotsman for in his land they played the game in the 16th century, and the Scots brought it to Canada when British Highland units in Lower Canada fashioned curling irons of canon balls and played what was called "bowling on ice."

Now, by right of constant conquest, Manitoba is considered the curling cradle of the nation, and the assumption is the Selkirk settlers—more Scotsmen—took the game to the Red River Valley, where records show the first game was played in 1876.

Today, the experts say, Manitoba's curlers are in a class by themselves when it comes to sweeping and the win of Winnipeg's Howard Wood in the recent Nipawin, Sask., bonspiel bodes no good for competitors in this year's championship race.

As I keep telling you, a takeout to a suit comes first in the order or choice of bids. With no more takeouts, assist. With neither a takeout nor an assist, bid no-trump if you do not pass.

A takeout to a new suit is forcing for one round. You can then show your assist or no-trump values. In this manner you are able to show your biddable suit that might otherwise be hidden from partner.

Come back to this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠ None
♥ A K J 7 3
♦ Q 7 6 2
♣ A 8 6 4
NORTH
♠ K 7 3
♥ Q 6 5
♦ A J 5 4
♣ K Q 7

South opens with one heart. Although seven tricks are in this hand, the opening one bid shows only five. The other two tricks may or may not need to be shown later.

First reply by north is a simple takeout to two diamonds. His non-jump response shows only three of the five tricks in this hand. He may show his other two tricks later.

In an undetermined trump suit, partner should not jump until he sees 11 tricks. It may take that many tricks for a game if the final trump is a minor. North has not yet seen more than ten tricks.

The second bid by south is a takeout to his rebiddable hearts; two hearts. Why not jump to three hearts? The trump suit is not yet determined and south has not yet seen more than ten tricks.

North is now ready for his second bid. He has no more takeout suits. With adequate support for hearts he is now ready to assist. His assist is a one-jump to four hearts.

Why is north able to jump? His assist determines the suit that will be trump. It is a major. Only ten tricks are needed for a game in a major suit. He sees that many tricks.

This jump tells south that north has five tricks. With his own seven, south now sees 12 in their pair; a good chance for a slam.

His ears and eyes have told him.

Are too many doctors as bad for the patient as too many cooks for the broth? Hollywood, repeatedly being diagnosed as being in a decline, is probably worried about this latest threat with so many persons bursting into print with causes and cures for the illness.

Latest diagnosis comes from Variety, the trade paper with its fingers always on the entertainment pulse, which lays the blame on lack of original story material because "most Hollywood writers are afraid to take a chance on their own creativeness."

Bogie Doesn't Show.

"Dark Passage," the latest film starring Humphrey Bogart, doesn't show him until the last reel but Lauren Bacall, his co-star, is seen throughout. The film uses the same technique of having the camera as the eye of the principal player which Robert Montgomery uses in "Lady in the Lake."

The British film industry's high pressure campaign to convince the public that British pictures can more than hold their own with Hollywood — has run into unexpected difficulties.

Supporting a move for amendment of present legislation, the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association of Great Britain and Ireland has asked the government to reduce the quota of British films they are required to show on the grounds there are not enough British films available.

AT THE BELLE — When "Two Guys from Milwaukee," Dennis Morgan and Jack Carson meet up with two lassies from New York, Joan Leslie and Janis Paige anything's likely to happen—and does—in Warners' rollicking new comedy of that name closing tonight at the Belle Theatre.

Metz Permitted To Play in The $10,000 Tourney

(By The Canadian Press)

Certain rumblings of discontent in the ranks of the Professional Golfers Association have appeared in the United States recently. At Phoenix, Ariz., Dick Metz of Arkansas City, Kas., was permitted to play yesterday in the $10,000 Phoenix open though P.G.A. officials said his suspension, made Wednesday, from the Phoenix and Tucson tournaments would stand. At Chicago, sponsor Charles S. May said the all-American golf tournament at Tam O'Shanter, the game's richest meet, was slashed by one-third to $30,000 because of lack of co-operation on the part of the P.G.A."

Metz was suspended by the P.G.A. as a ersult of a fracas at Carmel, Cal., two weeks ago in which Fred Corcoran P.G.A. tournament bureau manager, claimed Metz struck him.

A dispatch from Miami yesterday said Kingarvie, 1946 King's Plate winner from the stables of R. S. McLaughlin, Oshawa was among 27 horses listed for the $10,000 added Bouganville Handicap to be run over the turf course at Hialeah Saturday Feb. 1.

A representative of an auction concern said at Arcadia, Cal., yesterday that Louis B. Mayer may dispose of the 65 horses he has in training at an auction sale the last week of the Santa Anita season, and that Mayer would possibly make a decision within 48 hours. There have been rumors recently that movie magnate Mayer would dispose of his entire racing stable.

Pepper Martin, former St. Louis Cardinal star whose dazzling display of base running featured the 1931 world series, yesterday signde a Brooklyn contract as a "field man" in the Brooklyn Dodgers' farm organization. Frankie Frisch, another "Gas House Gang" alumnus, was offered a similar contract.

Polly Hodder, captain of Middlebury College women's ski team yesterday came down the one-mile descent at Vermont's bread loaf mountain in 2:02.2 to edge out Dorothy Burden of McGill University and lead Middlebury to a win over McGill by a fraction of a point for team honors.

At Fall River, Mass., Bobby English, 128, of Fall River, and Jimmy Callura, 126, of Hamilton, fought to a fast 10-round draw last night.

AT THE McCARTHY—Anthony Wager plays the part of (Pip as a boy) in Charles Dickens' "Great Expectations," starting today at the McCarthy Theatre.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit Red Wings' leading scorer, Billy Taylor and Sid Abel were the only members of the National Hockey League's big seven to increase their point total last night as the Wings whipped Chicago in the only game scheduled. Each garnered an assist Taylor's moving him into a second-place tie with Ted Kennedy of Toronto, and Abel's giving him sole possession of the seventh spot. Taylor and Kennedy now have 37 points apiece, eight behind Maurice Richard of Montreal. Abel has 32 points his point last night shoved Doug Bentley out of the select circle.

The Leaders	G.	A.	Pts.
Richard, Montreal	28	17	45
Kennedy, Toronto	18	19	37
Taylor, Detroit	13	24	37
Schmidt, Boston	15	20	35
Bauer, Boston	19	15	34
M. Bentley, Chicago	12	22	34
Abel, Detroit	14	18	32

EAT REGULARLY

Meals should be at convenient and reasonable hours. The digestive tract functions better, like other parts of the body, if placed on a regular schedule.

AT THE CAPITOL — Monte Hale and Kenne Duncan, shown in an exciting scene from Republic's "Man From Rainbow Valley," a musical western in Magnacolor, now showing at the Capitol. On the same program "My Dog Shep," the smartest dog in Hollywood, starring Lanny Reese and William Farnum. Both features are first city runs.

CITY OBJECT TO FENCE

London, Jan. 24 (CP)—It was an ignominous retreat for "Holy Roller," probably her first. When the battle scarred tank that ambled to victory through Europe and which was brought back by the First Hussars moved off from her proud position outside a local armories it was to the indoor protection of another armouries. Small boys had made it necessary to fence her in for her own protection and the city objected to the fence.

CORK GROWS HIGH

Cork oak trees grow to 30 feet in height, and their trunks reach a diameter of three or more feet.

CHAPTER 14

"That's silly, dear. It's natural that you should love the child of the man you love."

"But it's Christa's child, too." She made a despairing gesture with her hand. "You see? It's all so complicated. Is Julian coming tonight?"

"Yes. We're going to read."

"Is that what I've heard for the past few nights when I was trying to write letters?"

"I read until I get tired and then he reads. Marvelous pastime for people who haven't any money. Of course I'm not so hard up since I've been working at the shop full time. I'm saving to pay you back the fifty you lent me."

"You may consider that a wedding present."

Elissa smiled. "Optimist!"

• • •

When Arlen said that there was not a dull moment working for Rupert Law, she was putting it mildly, but she admired him so much that the snubs of meek little Miss Street were bearable. It fell to Arlen to keep persistent writers, insurance salesmen, and irate subscribers from the red-haired editor. He worked like a fiend, and one night after Miss Street had gone home with a severe headache, he asked Arlen to take some letters from him. In the midst of dictating, he paused and said savagely, "stop writing and tell me about yourself. Who are you, anyway? You're not a bad secretary and you have a way of handling people. They always got by Miss Street. You did yourself, you remember."

Arlen touched her yellow hair and smiled at him. "I'm not afraid of you. Does that surprise you? You roar a great deal but I know that you increased Harlan's salary when his wife had a child and you keep a blind man on because you haven't the heart to stop his salary."

Rupert Law grinned with pleasure. "Woman, put on your hat and come to dinner with me. And if we can get seats, we'll do a play. In asking you, I'm not raising complications with a certain young man, am I?"

Arlen folded her notebook. "There is only one young man who might be jealous. If you hear a plane roaring overhead, you'll know it's he."

"No other young man?"

"No."

And Rupert Law knew it was not the young man who flew a plane, but the one about whom she said "no" whom she loved.

• • •

When the lights went on during intermission of a play, Richard Brandon said, "Renny do you see what I see? At the end seat over there? You can't miss them. No wonder we couldn't get her tonight when we called. Elissa said she was probably working."

"Arlen and Rupert Law," said Renny.

Until the lights went out and the velvet curtains parted, Renny did not take his eyes from them. They were talking earnestly. Arlen wore a severe dark little dress with a crisp white collar, and her bright hair lay softly against her head. The red hair of Rupert Law was like a stop signal in comparison with other heads of more sombre hue. Whatever it was he felt, seeing the blonde head close to the brick-colored one, he did not know but it was a distinctly unpleasant feeling. Jealousy, an imp in him prodded? Absurd.

But he was jealous. "I'm not jealous of Toby," he thought, and once more the wise imp in him prompted, "because you know she thinks of Toby only as an amusing and lovable boy. Rupert Law is not a boy. He's powerful and famous and highly intelligent."

Richard held back his laughter with a polite hand. "You and I were going to do so much for Arlen Renny. And what did we do but introduce her to Toby, whom Fanny snatched away, and then turn her out alone? She's turned the tables on us, old man. A lot of women would give their right eye to be sitting next to Rupert Law in public. And there sits Arlen like a pleased child, enjoying herself immensely.

At a bar very late that same evening Rupert Law grinned and said, "Love? My dear young lady, I have never been in love. I've never had time. My love is my work and my child is my newspaper. And if you are going to look fresh in the morning—and I insist that you do—I'd better take you home." His brown eyes softened. "No, I'm not going to fall in love with you. I'm going to be one of the men who didn't. Broken hearts are not in my line. Can you visualize the mellow look in my eyes. If you'll got to dinner with me and a play occasionally, I'll reward you by being the best friend you ever had. Waiter, give me my check."

When Arlen returned from lunch one day, she found Toby pacing the corridor outside her office.

"Why, Toby! When...."

"I've been waiting an hour. I got the afternoon off. Oh, I made up a pathetic story that I had to go to New York at once. So up I came in my little plane. Let me look at you. I can't get used to the winter duds. If only you knew how much I've missed you."

"I've missed you, too, Toby."

"Won't Simon Legree let you have the afternoon free? It's a perfect day for flying. I won't see you again before Louise's party and that's three weeks off. Let's celebrate and take a sky tour of Manhattan and dine at the best place we can find."

"You're tempting me. I'll see what Simon Legree says."

Rupert Law looked up scowling. Arlen came to his desk and put her white gloved hands on it.

"What do you want?"

"I'd like to have the afternoon off. A friend of mine has flown up from Virginia and wants to give me a sky tour. I've never been in a plane and it sounds exciting."

"Does he have the proper licenses?"

"I haven't asked him but I think so."

He put his face in the paper again. "Very well. But don't come back complaining of airsickness." He added, glancing up with a grin, "That's an awful looking hat you have on. I hope you lose it."

"Is there something you want to do before I go? I like this hat."

"Tell Miss Street I am positively not to be disturbed this afternoon."

From the plane Arlen looked down at the tips of skyscrapers and at the domes and spirals of churches and temples. Specks of people below looked ridiculous in their hurrying. Motor cars were like an endless ribbon of black. Arlen though, "And usually I'm down there, too, with the jostling crowd, and as each person down there carries in his heart for the moment either happiness or hurt, my thoughts are not far from Renny." At first white-caps had danced on the Hudson and then from a greater height the tapering smoke from slowly moving boats and ferries looked no more than smoke from a cigarette. As the plane roared toward New Jersey, the Manhattan skyline looked jagged and crowded.

It was good to feel the clean December air against her face. Toby, in a great fur coat, looked pleased and proud of himself. Arlen knew she was glad to see him and that there would never be any one quite like Toby. Was it because men like Rupert and Renny were strong and self-sufficient, while Toby needed her strength? Beneath all her love for Renny, suppressed, and working under Rupert's fiendish energy, it was good to soar above Manhattan, above everything, and gaze at the New Jersey fields that looked like great blocks of brown tile.

Toby brought the plane to a perfect landing.

"Like it?" he asked.

"It was wonderful."

"You should see how red your face is."

"Are you going to take me to dinner looking like this?"

"I'd be proud to take you to dinner anywhere just as you are."

"You should see how red your ears are, Toby."

He selected a small restaurant with soft lights and soft music. Arlen shivered with cold when she threw off her short fur jacket and took a cigarette from his leather case. The hat that Rupert had hoped she would lose was a small black velvet beret.

Toby said, "I'll try not to be serious tonight but do you realize that now that I've got that job in Washington and am making good, you have about three weeks in which to make up your mind to be Mrs. Toby Sanner?"

"I know. Is your mother coming to Louise's party?"

"She wouldn't miss it. She's coming up several days in advance to buy some clothes. Is Rupert Law still the howling dog of the editorials? What's Renny doing? And is Elissa married to the beautiful Tarzan?"

"One question at a time, please."

"Don't answer them. I've got to be serious tonight. I've got to know."

"Don't crowd me into a corner, Toby."

To the waiter he said, "Bring me a highball. Very stiff."

"And is that what you are going to do if I turn you down? Order highballs—very stiff?"

"That's the only way I know how to forget. I told you what you'd be sending me to if you turned me down."

"Don't threaten me, Toby. You're spoiling today. You make me feel that I'm a kind of monster if I don't marry you. It isn't fair. You see, I know about marriage—the good kind, the bad kind. It's a lot more than romance and passion and taking vows. I don't mean that it should be provincial and dull, but nowadays so many people get married with the idea that if it doesn't work out, there's always Reno. I couldn't. If I should marry you, I'd try to make myself the woman you needed, and I'd make a home for you. I'm not a career woman. I'd hate to think of getting old with nothing to love except a job."

"I see what you mean," said Toby, looking through his highball glass.

Arlen smiled. "You want to clip my wings, Toby, but you've got to think about clipping your own. They've flown higher than mine."

"I could trust you," said Toby. "Why, I wouldn't be afraid to go away on a business trip and leave you, and the nice part of it would come when I came back with lovely presents. I won't change my mind about you. My high flying wings were clipped the night I walked into Louise's and saw you. And I'm jealous—jealous as the devil of Renny and Rupert and even Richard."

Arlen leaned over and looked at his wrist watch.

"If you're flying back, you'd better start. Your mother will be worried."

"And you are going out to see me off."

A little later Arlen's hand waved as she saw his plane take flight and vanish to a moving speck in the clear night sky.

Elissa was not in when she reached the apartment. Wearily she pulled off her hat, kicked off her shoes, and curled up on the divan. Her life, thought Arlen, was like so many doors, and all the doors were guarded except Toby's. Christa barred Renny's. Work barred Rupert's. Toby's door was flung open wide.

Little Benny's Note Book

Mrs. Hews came to see ma this afternoon and I listened to them talk on account of not having anything else to do, and ma said, Did you hear The Cuttings on the radio this morning, Maud?

No, I missed them, unfortunately, Mrs. Hews said. Were they intristing? she said, and ma said, Very. Mrs. Cutting was idly going through Mr. Cutting's pockits, and low and behold she came across a letter that seemed to indicate that he was corresponding rather warmly with a woman that Mrs. Cutting had never even heard him mention.

Oh shaw, I just would have to miss them on a day like that, Mrs. Hews said. Well, go on, what happened? she said, and ma said, Well, it was all very innocent and strictly a bizzness letter, and naturelly Mrs. Cutting hadn't really sispected him of outright deceet.

My, I should hope not, Mrs. Hews said and ma said, Still it was quite thrilling while it lasted.

Aw G, ma, you and Mrs. Hews ought to listen to The Human Spider some time if you're intristed in something thrilling, I said. It's 5 o'clock every afternoon. Just wait till I tell you what happened yesterday. The Human Spider discovered where all the atom bombs are hidden, so he got the idea to make them all explode at once and start a chain reaction that would stop all human and animal and vegetable life, and he would of did it, too, if Mark Manly hadn't parralyzed him just in time with a ray from his Gamma Ray Machine, so what's a old letter in a pockit compared to that? I said, and Mrs. Hews said, Oh goodness.

Oh dear, ma said. Why dont you go out and find some of the boys and play some nice quiet games? she said.

Which I did, finding Puds Simkins and Shorty Judge and playing we were the last 3 people alive on earth in the ruins of the empty lot.

SCORE FLEE FIRE IN NIGHT CLOTHES

Montreal, Jan 24—(CP)—One woman was seriously burned and nearly a score of roomers were forced to flee in their night clothes in below-zero weather on Thursday when an oil lamp exploded, setting fire to an east-end rooming house.

The woman, Mrs. Rose Gagnon, 44, was taken to hospital with severe burns of the face and hands.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 24 (CP)—Volume continued heavy and prices rose as trading progressed in the early session of Toronto stock exchange today. Volume for the first three hours was 1,176,000 shares.

A belated rise occurred in base metals which had reacted without anticipated upsurge following news earlier this week of price increases in the metals.

Senior golds continued a steady climb in fractions and points for most issues trading. Juniors reflected the general trend by boarding several good gains.

Industrial gains were numerous with papers firm, financials and liquors up fractionally and utilities strong.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 24 —(AP)— The stock market today tried to keep Thursday's late rally going but was only partially successful.

Moderate irregularity ruled near the fourth hour.

Dome Mines was a standout in the Canadian list, showing a gain of 1 1-4 at mid-day. McIntyre was up 1-2 and Hiram Walker 1-4. C.P.R., off 1-8, and Distillers Seagrams, down 1-4, were in the yielding division.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 24 —(CP)— Prices for Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs, were unchanged at markets reporting early today: Stratford, to farmers $21.60, to truckers $21.75, delivered; Hull $22 delivered, Brantford $21.60 delivered.

GROUNDHOG SEEN AT DUNDALK

Dundalk, Jan. 24 — (CP) — A groundhog was seen yesterday cavorting in the snow on John Weldrick's farm near here and led to speculation that an early spring was in the offing. Usually it is not until Feb. 2 that the animal is supposed to stick its nose outdoors to sample the weather.

DETECTIVE

"No," said the father.

Mrs. Irene Lepierre testified Marian was in her apartment when she arrived home about 5:15 p.m. Dec. 23. The child, a frequent visitor and companion at the Lepierre apartment, was looking at Christmas cards. She had returned cookie tins which Mrs Rusnak borrowed.

"I told her that I had a Christmas present for her brother (Johnny, aged 10 months), and she said she would drop in on the way back from the store. She came back shortly with a bottle of milk and I gave her the present.

"As she was leaving, I told her 'don't open it before Christmas', and Marian replied 'no, my mother won't let me'"

The package contained a toy drum and a pair of blue wool socks for the baby. It was wrapped in two sheets of gift paper, one plain red and one plain white with several seals and stickers

Mr Lancaster produced similar gift paper in court today and as soon as she saw it Mrs Lepierre said: "Oh yes, that's it"

Found Paper

Constable William Watson, who assisted in the investigation, said that Dec. 25, while searching at the canning factory yard on Lake Street, he recovered the Christmas wrapping paper which Mrs Lepierre had identified as the paper which contained the gifts given to Marian The officer estimated that the paper was found 50 to 65 feet from Chambers' quarters

Joseph Phelan, Welland Avenue grocer whose store is a block from the Rusnak home said Marian Rusnak, whom he knew, came to the store about 5:15 p.m. Dec. 23 and purchased a quart of milk.

The little girl's disappearance on the eve of Christmas shocked and saddened this quiet Niagara Peninsula manufacturing city. Hundreds of townsfolk devoted part of their Christmas holidays to helping police conduct an extensive search for clues to the child's whereabouts. Searchers moved from house to house and fanned out into suburban areas.

Police did not find the body and they expressed belief it might have been burned in the canning factory furnace. Particles sifted from the furnace ashes were examined by experts who announced they were bone fragments. Further tests were to be made and it has not yet been stated whether the bones were human or animal.

Canadian Legion Given$2,000Grant By County Council

Picton, (Special) —Several grants were made by Prince Edward County Council yesterday. These included $750 to Prince Edward Publicity Committee, $500 to Salvation Army Receiving Home, Toronto; $200 to local branch of Salvation Army; $100 to Canadian National Institute for the Blind; $50 to Agricultural Council; $2,000 as an initial grant to Picton Post Canadian Legion.

There was a lengthy discussion concerning road expenditures. The sum of $115,000 is the expended this year, providing that out of this amount one or more bridges on which the province pays 75 per cent subsidy, is constructed, and providing that an amount not exceeding $7,000 is spent on new machinery, the county's share of which latter expenditures is to be paid out of Road Machinery Reserve account, and that in event that no bridges are constructed or no machinery purchased, the county road expenditure is to be set at $100,000.

Expenditures Proposed

Proposed expenditures were apportioned as follows: construction of roads and culverts, $38,500; maintenance $45,000; new machinery $7,000; machinery repairs $1,000; miscellaneous, $12,000; construction of bridges $12,000. Total $115,000.

Council decided to advertise for a power grader, fully equipped with snow plow and accessories with a minimum of 66 horse-power for 1948 delivery.

All surplus and obsolete road equipment was ordered sold. Orders for calcium chloride are to be placed at once.

The Road Committee was left to consider purchase of a tractor, gravel loader and mower.

Public School Inspector A.T. Brown outlined the High School Area plan.

Outlet Beach Discussed

A discussion concerning outlet Beach was laid over until spring when a visit will be made there. Due to high water last year, motorists used a new road through private property. This was fenced and cars could not get on the famous beach. Several councillors suggested a road behind the sand dunes on the beach as a solution to the problem.

Requesting council make a grant toward the Legion Memorial Hall were Col. Gerald Allison, M.D., Sherriff H. J. Collivver, Mayor Howard Reid, Mayor L. Nethery. A building had been purchased for $10,000, Col. Allison said the rebuilding and renovation of this block might cost $30,000. No specific amount was asked. Council gave $2,000, enabling repairs to be made. Matter of a large grant will be dealt with later.

Rate Increased

The 1946 rate of payment to the Children's Aid Society was increased by three cents a day to total 85 cents per day per child. Work of the superintendent, Miss Violet Anglin, was commended by council.

Salary of Mrs. E. Ellsworth caretaker of County buildings, was increased by $150 a year to $600. Salaries of Mr. and Mrs. G. Cockburn, superintendent and matron of Prince Edward County Home, were increased $150 each yearly.

BROKEN MAIN CAUSE

Queenston, Jan. 24 (CP). — School children of this village had a holiday Wednesday when it was thought the newly-installed water pipes had frozen. Water pressure was insufficient to maintain the school boiler, and residents were forced to go without water in many sections. It was later found that a broken main was the cause of the trouble.

Men Present Fashion Show At 50-50 Club

Picton, Jan. 24 — The ladies took a back seat when a fashion show was presented as part of the program at the meeting of the 50-50 Club of Picton United Church. Men acted as the models and according to the announcer, who described the models as well as the dresses, they were "chic," "demure," "lovely," "dainty," "alluring" and "loveable."

Evening gowns, bathing suits, sports wear, and even nightgowns were modelled with nonchalance by the men, never a blush appearing. As commentator, Ed. Williams wore a Paris model evening gown.

A girls' orchestra, dressed in hill-billy outfits, provided music. Members were Evelyn McGinnis, Grace Lockyer, Jean Campbell, Marion Welbanks, Ruby Ward, Margaret Harris, Aileen Brown, Barbara Warren.

A Mock Trial.

A mock trial concerned a breach of promise suit, in which a spinster had tried to entrap the defendant into a marriage proposal. Damages of $5,000 were asked but the jury found the defendant had kindled a flame in the heart of the plaintiff and therefore was guilty of arson in the fourth degree, and damages of one cent were imposed.

A men's group song, with members taking all parts, was another humorous feature. Box lunches were enjoyed.

The 50-50 Club is composed of married couples and each office is held jointly by a mister and a mistress. There were seventy present.

St. Catharines Bd. Defies Threat, Awards Contract

St. Catharines, Jan. 24 (CP).—Threatened with issuance of writs against every member of the board, and application for an injunction to restrain awarding of a contract for the new $375,000 collegiate addition, St. Catharines Board of Education last night defied the threat and authorized entering into an agreement with the contractor and the immediate start of construction.

The board acted on the advice of the Ontario Municipal Board and the city solicitor after an unnamed group of ratepayers, represented by a local legal firm, had protested to the Municipal Board chairman against the awarding of the contract and had threatened issuance of writs and application for an injunction.

The action follows the calling of tenders in 1946 for an addition to the collegiate, after the electorate had approved a by-law for $200,000 to erect the building.

Having insufficient funds on hand, the board appealed to city council. The old by-law was withdrawn and this year a $375,000 by-law was passed by the electors. Those now seeking to upset the awarding of the contract contend that a new by-law having been passed, new tenders should be called.

Says Ottawa Govt. Is Socialistic In Liberal Clothing

St. Catharines, Jan. 24 (CP).—Canada's present government is "Socialistic in Liberal clothing," said Richard G. Lewis of Toronto, speaking yesterday before local Rotarians. Mr. Lewis recently returned from a visit to England. What he saw there impressed him greatly and served to confirm more strongly his views on British Socialism which, he said, is just one step ahead of Canada.

Mr. Lewis said public ownership of the CBC was not entirely conducive to free speech, as had been exemplified several times recently. He suggested the next move would be some form of control of the press, and then, he said, freedom of speech will be no more.

Stirling Fair Elects Officers; E. Bailey, Pres.

The annual meeting of the Stirling Agricultural Society was held in the Department of Agricultural office last week with President Ewart Bailey being re-elected to office. Vice presidents named were Donald Heath and Ray Shortt, while secretary is R. E. Fox and treasurer is W. H. Patterson.

President Bailey reported a successful year while treasurer's report showed a substantial balance on hand after all indebtedness had been paid.

Directors named included Don Heath, Ben Bleecker, Ray Shortt, G. Pyear, H. Detlor, Ewart Bailey, Earl Wallace, Clarence Fitchett, W. A. Sutherland, George Carlisle, H. Brown, W. N. Heath, C. Vance, V. Heath, C. Nelson and Don Campbell.

Associated directors are S. Holden, C. Potts, Art Pyear, A. O. Dalrymple, George Sutherland, J. C. McGee, W. Elliott, George Pollard, H. R. Thompson, Thos. Solmes, John Morrison, G. L. Johnstone, William Fitchett, Dr. R. B. Murray, P. Utman, W. Finch and J. F. Pollock.

Lady directors included Mrs. K. Weaver, Mrs. Walter Elliott, Mrs. Arthur Pyear, Mrs. J. B. Thompson, Mrs. J. C. McGee, Mrs. M. Vandervoort, Mrs. Nina Morton, Mrs. W. West, Mrs. Alex Bush, Mrs. Gilbert Thompson, Mrs. Gordon Bailey, Mrs. J. B. Belshaw and Miss Gena Spry.

The ladies' section of the prize list was left in the hands of Mrs. Gordon Bailey, Mrs. Arthur Pyear, Mrs. N. Morton and Mrs. J. B. Belshaw to revise.

During the meeting a hearty vote of appreciation to Mr. H. L. Fair was unanimously passed for his untiring efforts on behalf of the society for the past nine years.

POLICE COURT

Convicted of breaking and entering and of stealing an outboard motor from the private garage of Ernest Ferguson on Hillcrest St., two local youths, 17 and 18 years of age, were sentenced in local police court Friday morning by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

One of the youths was sentenced to three months in the Ontario Reformatory, while the other, who was without a police record of any kind, was given suspended sentence for one year.

The court was of short duration with only a few cases listed for hearing, including two of intoxication. The arson charge against George McGillivray, who is charged with setting fire to a West Bridge Street rooming house, was again enlarged on the strength of the pyschiatrist's report. The accused had pleaded guilty on his first appearance in court with sentence being deferred.

Carmel-Foxboro Unions Present Splendid Comedy

Foxboro (Special) — On two successive nights last week members of the Carmel - Foxboro Young Peoples' Union presented the spirited three-act comedy entitled "Hook, Line and Sinker." While there was a good audience the first night, a capacity crowd in the United Church Hall acclaimed the second performance. From the rise of the first curtain until the end of the last act, there was evidence of intense interest and great enjoyment on the part of all present.

The play, written by Edith Loring and produced with the permission of the Samuel French Company, was directed by Rev. A. L. Shorten. Members of the cast have been receiving much-deserved praise for the way in which each part was played. Though this was the first full-length play in which any of the cast had taken part, yet both speaking and acting were executed as if by experienced players. Characters were well portrayed, and despite the fact that the play was rehearsed for less than three weeks, the audience had the feeling that those taking part were 'at home' on the stage.

Had Many Troubles

The story of the play concerns a young man named Harvey Hook, played by Percy Priest, temporarily in charge of a summer resort hotel, the Jolly Inn. While his aunt, owner of the Inn, is in hospital, Harvey has many troubles, caused by the arrival in one day of several guests and friends who make things most difficult for him. On hand at the Inn as the doleful clerk, is Happy Jordan, portrayed by Harvey Homan. He first greets Angel Benedict, one-time fiancee of Harvey Hook, played by Reta Christie.

Two guests at the hotel are the meek, yet determined Septimus Sinkers taken by Douglas Ross, and his domineering wife, Edna, played by Luella Homan. Harvey's present fiancee Cherry Reynard, by Stella Gay, and her aunt Mrs. Amelia Crossword, played by Ann Marie McCullough, together provide a source of much merriment on their arrival. Matters are complicated by Lester Line, a friend of Harvey, played by Glenn Priest, and also by Bonita Smalley, taken by Isobel McCullough. Lastly, Mrs. Hallem's arrival with a French refugee for adoption, makes matters worse before there is a final straightening out of Harvey's affairs. This last character was portrayed by Muriel Homan.

Community Singing

Between acts entertainment was provided by the Misses Jean and Shirley Finkle and Roscoe Mormon, besides community singing which was enjoyed. The sale of tickets was in charge of Jack Empey. As the young people prepare to give their play at several places, they wish to thank the ladies who so kindly helped in preparing the scenery and stage, also for assistance at rehearsals and on the nights when the play was presented.

Following the plan on the second night, the members of the cast were entertained at the parsonage. This is the first project of the joint young peoples' union and the joint Young Peoples' Union and has already proved to be an outstanding success.

Hillier

Hillier — Mrs. Leslie Jones is spending some time with Mrs. Searles Noxon of Wellington who has been very ill, but is much improved in health.

The Wellington doctors, Thompson and Sarles, accompanied by their wives, attended the medical convention in Toronto. Dr. Allison, who is practising with Dr. Sarles, looked after the sick while the doctors were away.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Collier have had the Bell Telephone installed on 41 line.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Beer of Belleville were Sunday guests at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Benway.

Several from here attended the hockey match at Wellington on Thursday night.

Mr. Delbert Boyle is under the doctor's care. Mrs. Boyle is staying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Ainsworth of Wellington, during Mr. Boyle's stay at the hospital.

Abbott Doubtful Of Calling New D-P Conference Now

Finds No General Desire Among Premiers for Parley

Ottawa, Jan. 25 (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said today he could not see what useful purpose a new Dominion-Provincial Conference would have at this time and he found no general desire among provincial premiers for such a conference.

He was commenting at a press conference on requests by Premier Drew of Ontario for a new Dominion-Provincial Conference.

Mr. Abbott said that while he was not shutting the door to the possibility of a new conference he could not see what use one would be now. No province had advanced alternative proposals to those put forward by the Dominion in the budget and in the new formula outlined to all provinces within the last two weeks.

The Dominion had failed in its efforts to reach agreement with all provinces at a conference in 1941. As a result a year later it was obliged to negotiate separate agreements with the provinces for exclusive use of the personal income and corporation tax fields during the war.

The Dominion tried again to reach over-all agreement at a conference in 1945. When it failed federal authorities were forced to seek individual agreements and this procedure now was having some measure of success.

There was nothing constitutional about a Dominion-Provincial conference. The Dominion and the provinces were autonomous in their fields and all federal authorities could do was issue invitations. No one could be forced to come to a conference.

If taxation agreements were concluded with all the provinces then the Dominion would be ready to call a general conference to the last Dominion-Provincial Health Insurance, Public Investment and Social Security Programs. Those programs, advanced to the last Dominino-Provincial Conference, were dropped in the later offers to the provinces, but Mr. Abbott said they had not been abandoned.

Mrs. Evelyn Dick Virtually Assured Of Second Trial

Toronto, Jan. 25. (CP)—Mrs. Evelyn Dick, it was learned today, is virtually assured of a second trial in Hamilton on a charge of the torso-murder of her husband at some date in April, or earlier.

The same goes, an authoritative source told The Canadian Press, for her father, Donald MacLean and her one-time friend, William Bohozuk, also charged with the slaying last March 6, of John Dick.

If the trio should not come to trial before April it will mean they have served a year in jail waiting for their case to be disposed of, although Mrs. Dick was tried and convicted last October and then granted a reprieve and a new trial.

When Bohozuk and MacLean came up last October the woman's refusal to testify brought a postponement of their trial to the January Assizes and on Monday the trial judge in Hamilton will be asked to stay proceedings further pending the Ontario Attorney-General's appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada for a ruling on the admissibility of certain evidence.

The decision to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada before proceeding against the three charged with the murder of the street car driver whose torso was found on Hamilton mountain was taken here last night.

At Ottawa it was said today that proceedings would be handled expeditiously. The Supreme Court sittings open Feb. 4 and a decision appeared likely before the end of March if leave for the appeal is granted.

The Spring Assizes open in Hamilton on March 17 and here it was felt that any decision by the Supreme Court would probably be arrived at in time to fit the torso murder case into the Spring docket.

Should there be a delay to such a time that the Spring docket was cleaned up in Hamilton, it was said the Spring Assizes could be adjourned for two to three weeks, thus paving the way for an immediate start on the torso trial as soon as the Supreme Court decision is received.

Driver Ditches Motor Transport To Avoid Train

Under ordinary circumstances a motorist makes every effort to avoid going into a deep highway ditch, but it was no ordinary circumstance which caused a driver for Smith's Transport to turn his twelve-ton transport into the ditch at Marysville early Saturday morning.

The transport driver, proceeding east out of Belleville, turned the corner at Marysville just at daylight and a moment later was horrified to see a Canadian National freight train crossing the highway in front of him. Unable to stop on the slippery highway the driver as a last resort swung his heavy vehicle into the ditch to avoid crashing into the train.

The driver escaped injury and the transport was undamaged, but twelve tons of freight had to be removed from the van before the vehicle could be brought back onto the road.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Jan. 25—(CP)—Synopsis: Mild air of Pacific origin covers Southern Ontario this morning. In this region cloudy and foggy weather is reported this morning. Cold air covers Northern Ontario and extends as far south as the Georgian Bay and Haliburton regions. This cold air will move eastward during Saturday without reaching Southern Ontario. A storm centre now over Southern Manitoba is moving very rapidly southeastward and should reach Lake Superior late today. With the approach of this storm snow is expected in Northern Ontario and some rain in Southern Ontario late today.

Canada is Seeking Full Voice In Writing German Peace Pact

By JACK SMITH

London, Jan. 25 (AP). — The four-power foreign ministers' deputies, scheduled to hear Canada's views on the German peace treaty, today postponed the meeting after the Canadians said they were not ready to talk.

A semi-official Canadian source said Canada never would be ready to talk until she were assured that a presentation of her views now would not jeopardize her rights to participate in subsequent deliberations on the German peace.

United States sources said Canada, seeking a stronger voice in the treaty-making, had "indicated informally" that she would boycott deliberations on the German pact unless assured that she could take part in later discussions.

Yesterday the deputies, in response to a written request from the Canadian delegation as to whether participation today would jeopardize Canada's future participation, said only that they would be glad to hear her views.

Meantime, disagreement still was apparent between the Soviet Union on the one hand and the United States, Britain and France on the other on the extent to which other "small" powers should be allowed to take part in drafting treaties for the March big four meeting in Moscow.

Feodor T. Gousev of Russia criticized South Africa and Australia for bringing up questions of peacemaking procedure. He recalled that in the role of chairman this week he had instructed them to confine their discussions to the German problem itself.

Gousev's criticism of the Union of South Africa followed a statement to the Big Four deputies from E. K. Scallan, acting High Commissioner for the Union in London, who declared the Potsdam Agreement on Germany should be revised promptly to give nations outside the Big Three a part in German administration and to improve the German economy, which he said held a threat to peace.

He opposed cession to Poland of German territory east of the Oder and Neisse Rivers and to France of the Saarland and asked reconsideration of the current rate of German coal exports, reparation deliveries and industrial dismantling.

Scallan's demand for a revision of the Potsdam accord followed similar representations by Australia the day before.

BRITISH-RUSSIAN ALLIANCE TREATY STANDS—STALIN

Declares Some Changes Must be Made Before Pact Will be Renewed Another 50 Years

London, Jan. 25 (AP)—Prime Minister Stalin says he and Foreign Secretary Bevin are agreed that the 20-year British-Russian treaty of alliance still stands but declares that before it is extended it must be rid of what he terms weakening reservations.

A note from Stalin to Bevin to this effect was made public by the Foreign Office last night and London newspaper hailed the note today as making for better relations with Russia. The government attitude was not immediately clear.

Previously publicized were Bevin's Dec. 22 radio statement that Britain "does not tie herself to anyone?" The interpretation of Pravda, Soviet Communist Party newspaper, that this repudiated the 1942 alliance and the British government's denial that this was true.

Last night's foreign-office disclosures showed also that Stalin himself had expressed puzzlement over Bevin's statement to Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery in Moscow recently and that Bevin had reassured Stalin in a note that "it is certainly not my view" that the treaty was dead.

In his note, Stalin referred to his reply and also to Bevin's proposals that the treaty, set up for 20 years, should be extended to 50 years.

"It is now clear that you and I share the same viewpoint with regard to the Anglo-Soviet treaty," the Soviet leader said. He declared that the explanations of Bevin and the British government left "no room for misunderstanding."

"Before extending the treaty," he added, "it is necessary to change it, freeing it from the reservations which weaken this treaty."

Last night a well-informed source expressed belief that Britain, in view of the newly-published notes, might be willing to go farther and take out what Stalin referred to as "reservations" as well. It was not immediately clear what Stalin meant by "reservations."

TIME NOT RIPE FOR STUDENT EXCHANGE —STALIN

Moscow, Jan. 25 —(Reuters)—Generalissimo Stalin told Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, chief of the British imperial general staff, during their recent meeting that the present moment was not quite appropriate for an exchange of Soviet and British student officers, Tass News Agency said it learned from competent sources yesterday.

Polish Voters Intimidated Say U.S. Embassy Observers

Warsaw, Jan. 25 (AP) — Intimidation by the Communist-supported government bloc parties caused "frustration and regimentation" among Polish voters in last Sunday's parliament elections, United States Embassy observers of the election reported today.

They told Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane that the attitude of the Poles toward the election was one of "cynicism, hopelessness, fear and abject submission." They said the bloc parties, with the armed forces, produced mass open voting and cited a long list of violations of Polish constitutional and election laws.

Lane said he would forward to Washington next Wednesday reports on pre-election and election-day developments, based on the observations of the embassy personnel and other Americans who visited all sectors of Poland before and during the election. Unofficial returns gave the government bloc 90 per cent of the vote.

Ambassador Agrees

Lane, asked his opinion of the reports, said his views coincided with the note sent by United States State Department to Warsaw and Moscow in advance of the balloting which criticized the election set-up as guaranteeing neither free nor unfettered voting.

Jakub Berman, Undersecretary of the Council of Ministers, said the Polish Government would consider abolition of the Ministry of Public Security "after the complete liquidation of the underground," possibly this year. Security police were accused by Vice-Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, head of the Opposition Polish Peasant (P.S.L.) Party, of intimidating and arresting party members.

Berman said the security police would be included within the structure of a Ministry of Public Administration under the contemplated plan.

The embassy observers said they found no secret voting booths in any precinct. They reported many arrests of PSL members, with one jail in Kielce holding 1,000 prisoners.

The observers said that the voters feared to talk about the election and that the feeling prevailed that the results were a foregone conclusion.

British Prepare Report

The observers said, among other things, that the voting in Lublin was disorderly and probably thousands were unable to vote before the polls closed. Only those openly pro-bloc were afforded the first opportunity to cast a ballot. In Gdansk the army brought out a display of tanks.

The British Embassy, headed by Victor Cavendish-Bentinck, also was preparing an election report for London.

Informants close to Polish Government circles remained silent on whether Poland would formally declare in Britain that Cavendish-Bentinck was regarded as persona non grata in Warsaw because of testimony in a war crimes trial that he received military and government secrets from the Polish underground.

The informants added, however, that Poland was making it clear that it would be advisable for Britain to send another ambassador to Poland.

MAY POSTPONE MURDER TRIALS TO GET RULING

Blackwell Will Apply for Adjournment So Appeal Can be Made to Supreme Court

Toronto, Jan. 25 (CP) — The Crown today faces opposition in its plan to seek a postponement of murder trials of three persons accused in the Hamilton torso slaying of John Dick.

Attorney-General Blackwell of Ontario announced last night that the Crown will apply to the Supreme Court sittings in Hamilton Monday, when the murder trials were scheduled to open, for an indefinite postponement to permit a government application to the Supreme Court of Canada to review the Ontario Appeal Court judgment granting Mrs. Evelyn Dick, one of the three accused, a new trial.

But at Hamilton Walter J. Tuchtie, counsel for Donald MacLean, Mrs. Dick's father, said he would oppose any grounds for adjournment. Goldwyn A. Martin and Henry Schreiber, associate counsel for the third accused — William Bohozuk, one-time friend of Mrs. Dick—said that Monday they would seek immediate trial or release of their clients.

All three counsel emphasized their clients had been in jail for almost a year.

Mrs. Dick was first tried last October, convicted and sentenced to be hanged. She appealed the case and the appeal court ordered a new trial. MacLean and Bohozuk also faced trial last fall, following Mrs. Dick's conviction, but their trial was postponed when she refused to testify against them.

The decision to take the case to the Supreme Court of Canada was reached yesterday at a conference between senior law officers and Attorney-General Blackwell.

Must Determine Right

That conference first agreed that the grounds on which Mrs. Dick was granted a new trial

MARITIME MINERS THREATEN STRIKE ON JANUARY 31

Negotiations Under Govt. Mediation Over Wage Contract Break Down

Ottawa, Jan. 25 —(CP)— A general strike of coal miners in the Maritimes Jan. 31 threatened today after the breakdown of wage negotiations staged nere under government mediation.

With less than a week to go before the expiration of work contracts covering 13,000 miners, men and employers were in an ironclad deadlock over wages, and the union was standing by a "no contract—no work" attitude.

A three-day conference here under department of labor auspices failed to solve the impasse, and when it broke down yesterday the disputants were still widely separated after laying down their final propositions.

The United Mine Workers of America (C.C.L.), representing virtually all Maritime miners, had reduced its demands considerably, but Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, which employs the bulk of the workers, remained by its original offer of graduated raises up to $1 a day, conditional upon more production.

Originally, the U.M.W. sought a $2.50-a-day general increase for daily-paid workers, 15 per cent for contract workers, double time for statutory holidays worked, a company contribution of five per cent of the payroll for a pension fund and a 15-cents-a-ton royalty to be paid by the company to a miners' welfare fund.

At the end of three days, the union had reduced this list to $1.40 a day for datal men, eight cents a ton for the Welfare Fund and the original demand for a Pension Fund. The company remained by its $1 offer.

UNAWARE OF ROBBERY

Toronto, Jan. 25 —(CP)—Five persons stood nearby, unaware that a robbery was taking place a few feet from them, as two bandits last night rifled the cash register of the Imperial Bakery and escaped with $150 in a car allegedly driven by a third member of the gang.

MERCHANT FOILS THUGS

Toronto, Jan. 25 (CP)—As he fought three armed, masked men who attempted to hold up his west-end men's furnishings store last night, Morris Gold, 38, was beaten on the face with the butt-end of two revolvers. The thugs finally gave up the attempt and ran out of the store without any loot.

REVISED BASIS ON WHICH GOVT. SEEKS AGREEMENT

Ready to Pay Provinces Stipulated Figure For Exclusive Use Of Tax Fields

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 25 (CP). — New Brunswick, Manitoba and Saskatchewan have tentatively accepted a Federal Government offer which will give the Dominion virtually exclusive use of personal income, corporation and inheritance tax fields. The new offer, if accepted by all the provinces, will cost the Federal treasury a minimum of $206,158,000 a year.

Finance Minister Abbott made these disclosures last night in a 2,000-word statement outlining the new Federal proposals. the new payments are calculated at $12.75 per capita on the basis of 1942 population plus 50 per cent of 1940 provincial income and corporation tax receipts and statutory subsidies provided for in the British North America Act.

This represented an increase of $25,000,000 over the payments offered the provinces in the budget last June and an increase of close to $70,000,000 over the payments offered at the Dominion-provincial conference which broke up in failure last May.

The finance minister said this is how the new minimum payments would compare with those offered in the budget and to the Dominion-Provincial conference:

	New Minimum Offer	Minimum Budget Offer	Original Minimum
P.E.I.:	$2,100,000	$2,000,000	$1,140,000
N.S.:	10,870,000	8,900,000	6,900,000
N.B.:	8,773,000	7,000,000	5,500,000
Que.:	56,383,000	50,900,000	40,000,000
Ont.:	73,969,000	67,158,000	45,500,000
Man.:	13,512,000	10,900,000	8,800,000
Sask.:	15,256,000	13,400,000	10,800,000
Alta.:	13,986,000	11,900,000	9,600,000
B.C.:	18,120,000	18,100,000	9,800,000

Under the new proposals, if the governments accepted the offer most advantageous to them, the 1947 estimated payments to the provinces would be:

Prince Edward Island, $2,285,000; Nova Scotia, $12,134,000; New Brunswick, $9,433,000; Quebec, $63,011,000; Ontario, $73,969,000; Manitoba, $14,218,000; Saskatchewan, $15,684,000; Alberta, $14,840,000; and British Columbia, $21,353,000.

MUST FACE TRIAL

Wiesbaden, Germany, Jan. 25 —(AP) — Wilhelm Von Opel, 76, dean of German automobile manufacturers, must face another denazification trial, despite his conviction last week on charges of being a "follower" of Nazism.

The new trial was ordered by president Theo Jacobs of the denazification court, after German trade union representatives protested that his sentence — a fine of $200 and court costs of $3,600—was "too light." The union officials said they intended, to present evidence at the second trial.

Once-Beautiful 'Darling of Paris, Friend of Benito, Goes on Trial

Bordeaux, France, Jan. 25 —(AP)—Madelein Corabouef, who once had a love idyll with "My Benito" Mussolini and shot a French ambassador whom she blamed for breaking up the romance, will go on trial Wednesday, charged with acting as a spy for the Nazis.

The once-beautiful darling of the pre-war Paris literary and theatrical world now is 37 and has become so nervous that doctors have been giving her sedatives.

The daughter and granddaughter of French artists, Miss Corabouef was married at 17, divorced two years later, and then became a newspaperwoman who called herself Magda de Fontanges. She was on terms of warm friendship with numerous political personalities in the early 30's.

In 1936 she went to Italy to help "celebrate the Fascist era" and managed an introduction to Mussolini through the French ambassador, Count Charles de Chambrun.

Later, after the romance soured, she blamed the ambassador, and fired two revolver shots at him in a Paris railway station in 1937.

The shooting caused a sensation, but the case never came to trial.

She is charged with hiring herself out as a Nazi spy for $42.50 a month plus expenses and for denouncing several Frenchmen to the Germans.

At her preliminary hearing, she said she had given the Germans only valueless information that lulled and misguided them.

Plane Plunges Into Czech Airlines Craft at Airport

Relatives and Friends Of Victims Witness Tragedy

London, Jan. 25 —(CP)— A Rome-bound plane carrying settlers from South Africa crashed and burned in a takeoff from Croydon Airport today, killing at least 11 of its 23 occupants.

Two of the 18 passengers were missing. Ten persons survived. The plane had five crew members.

Relatives and friends of the victims witnessed the tragedy. The twin-engined plane owned by Spencer Airways faltered momentarily as it became airborne in a light snow and then plummeted to the field, crashing into an unoccupied Czech Airlines craft. Both ships burst into flame.

Three of the passengers, believed among the dead, were white-hooded Nuns bound for Nyasaland as missionaries.

Many of the passengers were members of families of ex-servicemen, offered free passage on the 6,000-mile trip to South Africa where they planned to make their homes.

Some Uninjured.

Some were uninjured. The first to leap from the burning plane was Mrs. F. E. Hampson, 55, of Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, who was on her way home from a holiday visit here. She suffered only minor abrasions.

One of the Nuns apparently gave her life to save an ex-serviceman, en route to Johannesburg in search of work.

"My hair was singed by the flames," the survivor, George Wright, said. "I remember trying to help a Nun out of the plane, but suddenly she turned around and pushed me outside."

Air Commodore Vernon Brown, chief inspector of accidents for the ministry of civil aviation, said the Rome-bound plane was "burned out."

Two passengers and five members of the crew — one believed to be the air hostess—were taken to Croydan General Hospital. All suffered from shock but none was believed seriously hurt.

Eleven bodies have been recovered from the wreckage but their names were not immediately available. The pilot, Capt. Ted Spencer, of Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, was killed.

Four or five persons were saved.

Three mechanics working on the aircraft on the ground jumped clear and escaped injury.

Relatives and friends of the passengers saw the crash but flames prevented them from going to the rescue.

Among the dead recovered from the plane were two children, one only a few months old. Two other passengers were unaccounted for two hours after the crash.

Baxter Warns of Giving Germany Favored Position

Hamilton, Jan. 25 (CP)—Beverley Baxter, Canadian-born member of the British House of Commons, in his first speech in Canada since arrival in New York, New Year's Day, warned yesterday that while Germany must be built up again, the danger exists that she may hold her position between Russia and the western powers as a "blackmailing position."

Cardinal Rests In Crypt Of Ancient Basilica

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, Jan. 25 (CP). — The body of Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve rested today in a place of honor in the crypt of 300-year-old Notre-Dame Basilica, mourned by the thousands who knew him better by the simple name of "the good father".

The prelate, whose death in California a week ago ended 15 years as the spiritual head of French-speaking Roman Catholics in Canada, was buried in a tomb in the crypt yesterday after a Pontifical Requiem High Mass before the high altar of the storied cathedral.

Soon, his red tasseled Cardinal's hat will be strung, in keeping with church tradition, from the high ceiling of the basilica near those of the three churchmen who preceded him as Cardinal and Archbishop of the Quebec Archdiocese.

His Cardinal's ring, emblem of his high office, will be kept with other treasured relics of the church. His golden cross of the Oblates, his religious order in life, was buried with him in the plain oaken casket that had been used in accordance with his request for a coffin of common quality.

The High Pontifical Mass, celebrated by James Cardinal McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto, was attended by 40 Archbishops and Bishops from Canada, the United States and Mexico, representatives of Government and the Judiciary and members of Cardinal Villeneuve's family.

Condemned Man May be Saved By Confession

London, Jan. 25 —(Reuters)—Last-minute confession by a prisoner in a Liverpool jail may save the life of 38-year-old Walter G. Rowland, condemned to die for the murder of a 40-year-old woman during a blitz raid on a Manchester city, newspaper accounts said today.

The man in the Liverpool jail, said to be Rowland's double, has confessed to the killing of Mrs. Olive Balchin who was beaten to death with a hammer. The accounts said the director of public prosecutions would be informed of the confession.

When the death sentence was passed on Rowland in Manchester last December he vehemently protested to the jury: "May God forgive you! You have condemned an innocent man. Somewhere someone knows I stand innocent."

In 1934 Rowland was sentenced to death for killing his two-year-old daughter. However, the sentence was reduced to life imprisonment but he volunteered for the army while serving his life term and was released in 1941.

City and District News

FIRE DISCOVERED JUST IN TIME

Believed by firemen to have been deliberately set, a fire on the third floor of a warehouse building at the rear of Walkers' Ladies' Wear store on Front St., was discovered just in time on Friday afternoon with the fire department extinguishing the blaze before much damage had been done. The building, is owned by Mr. T. C. Thompson and is a large stone structure.

A chimney fire on Everett St. resulted in a second alarm for the department Friday evening but the blaze caused no damage.

TWEED MAN ARRESTED FOR ISSUING WORTHLESS CHEQUES

After leaving a trail of worthless cheques from Georgetown, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Colborne and Trenton, George Barry, 24, of Tweed, has been arrested in the city by local police and has been returned to Trenton to stand trial.

Charges against Barry include false pretenses, forgery and uttering of forged documents with an amount of over $200 being involved. The accused will be returned to each of the centres in which the offences are alleged to have been committed.

R.C.M.P. CONSTABLE ADDRESSES MOVIE CLUB

As part of the program of the "Youth and Police Movement" being sponsored nationally across Canada by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Cpl. H J. Ade of Ottawa, addressed the Saturday morning "Movie Club" at the McCarthy Theatre, giving a general talk on safety measures.

Next week, Cpl. H. Speers, of the Belleville detachment of the R.C.M.P. will address the pupils of Picton schools while later it is expected talks will be given in Belleville schools.

County Votes Sum Of $5,000 To Trenton Hospital

Hastings County Council at its closing session on Friday unanimously voted the sum of $5,000 to the building fund of the proposed new hospital to be erected in Trenton. Council was approached on the matter by a delegation from the Trenton Hospital Board of Governors headed by Mr. W. H. Ireland who acted as spokesman for the appeal.

Grants to the northern municipalities were ordered paid and these included those of $300 each to the townships of Carlow, Mayo, Dungannon, Wollaston, Limerick, Tudor and Cashel, and $200 to Elzevir and the Wollaston-Lake boundary the grant to be divided between the two townships. Grants will be payable on June 1, 1947.

13 By-Laws Approved.

Thirteen by-laws a new high in county council business received their third reading on Friday afternoon. One of them called for the prohibiting of any but wire fence along county roads.

Warden A. A. Harvie in a brief address expressed his appreciation for the co-operation given him by members of the council during his first session as head of the county. He hoped, he said, that the coming year would be one of prosperity and success.

Friday noon members of the council were guests at a luncheon held at the Bar-B-Q restaurant, of Mr. Joseph White, insurance executive of Toronto. Brief addresses were given by the warden, ex-wardens at present active in council and chairmen of the various county committees.

Large Quantity Hardwood Being Shipped Out

Hardwood from the forests of North Hastings is pouring into the maw of Canadian business at a rate that, according to representatives of that district, exceeds any over a large period of years.

Chemical companies are absorbing the greater majority of maple while other firms are purchasing all other varieties.

The wood is being hauled from the woods to Maynooth where weekly long lines of freight cars transport the cordwood lengths to the various destinations.

During the past month, according to a reeve of a northern municipality in the city on County Council business, one firm chartered seven large trucks for haulage purposes with men working 24 hours a day on two shifts.

Weather conditions have been almost ideal for the work with the woods holding plenty of snow and lakes affording short cuts for transportation.

Timberjacks are reported to be getting $4.40 per cord for cutting. Lumbermen are hauling cordwood to the city at the ceiling price of $13.00 per cord.

Canon Daw Dies, Former Rector Of Christ Church

The Rev. Canon Samuel Daw, who was rector of Christ Church here slightly over fifty years ago, died in Hamilton on Friday in his 89th year. It was during his time that the organ in Christ Church was removed from the gallery at the front of the church to the chancel and the surpliced choir introduced.

Born at Bay Roberts, Newfoundland, Canon Daw was educated at St. Augustine's College, Canterbury, Eng. He returned to Canada as a young man and was ordained deacon and priest at Ottawa. He was deacon at the age of 22 years and priest at the age of 23.

He served at many churches in the Ottawa diocese, moving later to Christ Church, Belleville. He went to Hamilton more than a quarter of a century ago and took over the Church of St. John the Evangelist. His charge there was interrupted during the Great War when he went overseas as chaplain with the 120th (City of Hamilton) Battalion.

In addition to his work at the Church of St. John the Evangelist, Canon Daw served as a chaplain at the Mountain Sanatorium almost since its inception.

Surviving is his widow, the former Jessie Fraser of Ottawa, who is now in her 84th year, and three sons, Alexander Fraser Daw, Charles Edmund Daw and Rev. William Henry Daw. Three sons gave their lives in the First Great War, and a fourth died shortly after.

A private funeral will be held from the residence of his son, Rev. W. H. Daw, on the Old Sanatorium Rd., on Monday afternoon. Interment will be in Hamilton Cemetery.

Prices of Eggs Slightly Easier

Fresh eggs were slightly easier in price on the local produce market on Saturday with firsts selling as low as 40 cents the dozen, although the general price was from 43 cents to 45 cents.

Pullets eggs sold generally at 35 cents with mediums bringing 38 cents the dozen.

Fowl was fairly plentiful with the general price being 40 cents the pound, although capons sold up to 45 cents with well finished birds fetching up to $2.75.

On the outside market potatoes were plentiful at $1.40 to $1.50 per bag, while winter vegetables such as carrots and parsnips brought 50 cents the peck. Sauerkraut was 15 cents the quart and cabbages a dime.

Apples were in fairly good supply with top grade McIntosh, Spy and Delicious fetching 90 cents the peck or up to $3.25 the bushel.

Police Blotter

Between the hours of eight and nine Friday evening sneak thieves entered the residence of Major G. Earle, 43 Henry Street, local head of the Salvation Army, and stole a typewriter and $6 in cash after ransacking the house. Entry to the residence was gained by forcing a cellar door, it was reported to police.

Although it turned out to be merely a case of not noting exactly where he had left his vehicle, George McCrory, Stirling, had a few anxious moments when he returned to where he thought he had parked his truck only to find it missing. A search for the vehicle followed, the truck later being discovered on the lot to the rear of Nicholson's Service Station. The owner thought he had left it behind a local hotel.

Leslie Seeley, R. R. 5, Belleville, reported to police his spare wheel, tire and tube had been stolen from his car which had been parked in a local parking lot Friday evening. Two blankets inside the car were also missing.

A second incident of breaking and entering was reported to Provincial Police by Clarence Milligan of Hillcrest who claimed a suit of clothes was missing from his residence.

were that "the learned judge was in error in admitting any of the statements of Mrs. Dick on the basis that the rules of evidence relating to admissibility of confessions applied to all of them, and that the Crown had not discharged the onus of proving that they were voluntary and that therefore all of the statements given by Mrs. Dick were inadmissible in evidence."

Further, in the words of Mr. Blackwell's statement, the conference found that "even if the statements were admissible the trial judge either misdirected or non-directed the jury." That was the summation of the Appeal Court's judgment.

Attorney-General Blackwell's statement continued: "If the first ground of this judgment is right in law, on the new trial of Mrs. Dick Crown Counsel would be unable to submit and the learned trial judge presiding at the trial would be unable to admit if submitted in evidence any of the statements made by Mrs. Dick."

Decision Arrived At

Then came the decision of the legal rights:

"Under these circumstances it was the opinion of those present at the conference that to secure a proper disposition of the above pending trials it was first necessary to have determined, if possible by the Supreme Court of Canada, the question of admissibility in evidence of the said statements.

"By reason of the judgment of the Court of Appeal, Ontario, granting Mrs. Dick a new trial, being an unanimous judgment, it will be necessary on application for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada to establish that there is a conflict between this judgment and that in a Court of Appeal in another Province of Canada.

Wishes Opinion.

"Whether or not leave to appeal will be granted by the Supreme Court of Canada or, if granted, will establish that it is open to the trial judge to admit these statements, is a matter about which the conference wishes to express no opinion.

"It is however, the opinion of the conference that the courts of Canada, of which the Supreme Court of Canada is the last resort, should take the responsibility of determining whether it is open to the trial judge who will be presiding at this and other trials to consider admitting these and like statements.

"Immediate application is being made to the Supreme Court of Canada for leave to appeal, and at the opening of court in Hamilton on Monday next counsel for the Crown will apply to the presiding judge to postpone proceeding with these cases until the matter is determined as a result of the proposed application to the Supreme Court of Canada."

John Dick, Hamilton street railway employee, was slain last March and his dismembered body was found on the Hamilton mountainside March 6.

Investigation of his death brought second murder charges against his widow and Bohozuk. They are charged in the death of an infant whose body was found in Mrs. Dick's home, encased in cement.

MARITIME MINERS

A union statement issued here after a meeting of the District 26 U.M.W. Board—which travelled to the capital in a body—declared its latest proposition was its "minimum non-negotiable demand" and said the company offer was "completely unacceptable."

It also rejected as "unnecessary and futile" Labor Minister Mitchell's plan, reiterated to the conference, for a board of conciliation under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, as originally proposed by the government.

The labor department, in another statement after the conference, said it would hold itself in readiness to set up a board, despite the union rejection.

Warned on Legality

It warned, too, that a strike called before an inquiry by a conciliation board would not be legal.

Some hope existed today that action might be taken by Washington international offices of the U.M.W. in an attempt at settlement. John Owen, special representative of the office, left for Washington just before the conference broke up, and a union officer said word probably would be heard from international headquarters before the contract expiration deadline.

But in the meantime the U.M.W. warned that, in the event of failure to meet the union's minimum demands, "responsibility for what may follow will certainly rest with both Dosco and the government..."

District President Freeman Jenkins pointed out a vote of the Maritime membership had authorized a strike call if a "satisfactory" contract were not obtained, and he said it would be a case of "no contract—no work."

City Comparatively Free Of Major Crimes During Past Year Says Chief Probert

Number of Cases Increase From 1,607 in 1945 to 2,414 in 1946

Although the number of cases before the court increased from 1607 in 1945 to 2414 in 1946, the city was comparatively free of major crime during the past year according to the annual report compiled by Police Chief Walter Probert.

The increase in the number of cases before the court consisted mostly of traffic by-law violations, disorderly conduct charges offences against the Highway Traffic Act and against the Liquor Control Act. There was a notable increase in the number of forgery charges and in charge of uttering forged documents, but this was the result of seven persons being investigated.

The amount of money collected in fines and fees during the year totalled $31,355.75 as against a total of $15,619.22 the year previous, and $10,470.70 in 1944. Disposition of cases showed that 1,933 persons paid fines and costs out of court, while 122 were committed without option and 113 were committed to jail terms in default of payment of fines. Twenty cases were dismissed and 69 were given suspended sentence. Eighty-eight persons were committed to higher court.

96 Vehicle Accidents

The report showed that there had been 96 motor vehicle accidents reported to the department of Highways, Toronto. Forty-three persons were injured in the above number of accidents, one being fatally injured. This is an increase of 16 accidents over the previous year, but five less persons were injured and two less persons fatally injured.

Thirty-two motor vehicles were reported stolen in the city during the year and all of these were recovered as well as eight vehicles which were recovered for other police departments.

Stolen bicyles were definitely on the increase numbering 346 as against 233 for the previous year. Police recovered 293 of the bicyles stolen last year.

Drunkenness on Increase

That drunkenness is also definitely on the increase is shown by the fact that 675 such charges were laid as compared with 461 the year previous and a mere 286 in 1944. However, other breaches of the Liquor Control Act remained at about the same level as in other years with 30 charges of "consuming" being laid as against 27 the year previous and 96 charges of "having" as against 89 in 1945. Charges of having liquor not acquired on the individual permit dropped from 26 in 1945 to 21 in 1946

That police "cracked" down on persons violating the local traffic by-law was shown in the 473 such charges as against 306 the year previous. Careless driving charges dropped from 78 in 1945 to 66 last year, but speedsters increased to 116 in 1946 as against 25 the year previous.

Failure to observe stop streets was another bugabear for motorists, 161 being charged under this section as against a mere 10 the year previous.

79 Breaches Radio Act

A total of 79 persons omitted to purchase their radio licence and paid in court for their negligence to do so.

Breaking and entering offences remained at the level of other years with 30 such incidents being reports as against 28 in each of the two previous years. Theft offences numbered 46, just one more than in the previous year.

Motorists were more careful about driving while intoxicated as was shown by the fact that there were only 13 such convictions as against a total of 30 the year previous while there were seven motorists convicted of dangerous driving.

970 Dogs Registered

Dog tags issued during the year totalled 970 with the Humane Society Officer destroying 180 dogs.

There were 29 convictions under the Income Tax Act, as compared with 14 the year previous, while the Wartime Prices and Trade Board prosecuted in 17 cases.

The number of males before the court totalled 2312, or a considerable increase over 1945, while the number of females before the court dropped from 118 in 1945 to 102 last year.

One of the most noticeable increases was in the number of transients given overnight shelter at the police station, with 625 such persons being registered as compared with 325 the year previous and 358 in 1944. The number of occurrences reported totalled 4,448 as compared with 4,152 in 1945.

Crime On Upward Trend

"Crime throughout the country is on the upward trend," stated Chief Probert in his report, "but we have been fortunate to be free from major crime. We did have two breaking and entering cases that bordered on the major crime type, the loss in these two cases amounting to $1,700. However, with the exception of these two cases, the more serious crimes of breaking and entering, theft and forgery have all been brought to a successful conclusion with offenders brought before the court."

"The value of radio for police work cannot be stressed too greatly," continued the police chief. "During the past year the radio was an important factor in the apprehension of eight persons who had broken into business places. These persons were arrested right at the scene of their crimes. Therefore I feel that good radio equipment is of vital importance in the efficient functioning of the police department."

ESQUIRES EDGE MOUNTAIN VIEW BOMBERS 39-36

Two Periods of Overtime Required to Return a Winner

Thursday night at Mountain View, Esquires local cage entry in intermediate "B" basketball league eked out a narrow 39-36 win after two periods of overtime. The win elevates the locals into a tie with Trenton Flyers for the league lead with two wins and one loss each.

The game started with Esquires taking an early lead that threatened to turn the game into a runaway but Mountain View came back strongly in the closing minutes of the fray and at half time the locals lead 15-13.

Game Roughens

In the second half the game roughened by considerably and as a result the play was rather ragged at times. Both teams were evenly matched and at full time a tie score of 33-33 was in evidence.

It was decided to play a five-minute overtime session but at the end of the period the teams had each scored two points.

In the second overtime period the locals finally came out on top outscoring their rivals 4-1 and the game ended 39-36.

For Esquire the big gun was Ralph McCabe with 12 points and Johnny Hayman with 10 points, while for the Bombers Hamilton with 12 points and McGee and Allan with eight were the chief marksmen.

Esquire—Mason 3, Whiting, 5, Pigden, Wright 2, Willard 2, McCabe 12, Faulkner 3, Coppell 2, Hayman 10, Dickens.

Mountain View—Crabbe 4, McGee 8, Smith, Denning 2, Hamilton 12, Marsh 2, Allan 8, Dodsworth, Miller.

Born at Crookston the late Mr. Emerson was in his 49th year, and was a son of Mr. Matthew Emerson and the late Mrs. Emerson. For the past 30 years he resided in Thurlow Township. He was a member of Plainfield United Church and fraternally was a member of Tweed Lodge A.F. and A.M., and Moira Chapter No. 7 R.A.M., Belleville.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Blanche Collins; his father; one daughter, Mrs. Kenneth, Campbell, Belleville; three sons, Carmen, Vernon and Glen, all at home; one sister, Mrs. Miles Benedict, and one brother, Mr. J. R. Emerson, both of Thurlow Township.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell street, until Sunday afternoon, then at his late residence; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

BIRTHS

OTT — Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Ott (nee Jean McCabe) 1216 Edinburgh St., New Westminster, B.C., are happy to announce the arrival of their daughter, Imajean, at St. Mary's Hospital, on January 22nd., 1947.

MALLORY — Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mallory are happy to announce the birth of their daughter at the Belleville General Hospital, January 17th., 1947.

IN MEMORIAM

BALDREE — In loving memory of my dear daughter, Mrs. Mary Baldree, who passed away January 26, 1943.

A beautiful memory, dearer than gold,
Of a daughter whose worth can never be told,
Alone, unseen, she stands by my side
And whispers, don't grieve, death cannot divide.
Deep in my heart a memory is kept
Of one that I loved and will never forget,
And although the years be many or few
I always will be thinking, dear Mary of you.

—Ever remembered and sadly missed by mother, Mrs. M. Wannamaker.

W. J. Tanner Given Appointment As Weed Inspector

W. J. Tanner, former reeve of Rawdon Township and weed inspector for Hastings County in 1946 was re-appointed by County Council today to that office which he will hold "at the pleasure of County Council" at a salary of $8 per day and expenses while working in his official capacity.

Council also granted $1,000 to its 1947 publicity committee which will co-operate with similar bodies from Prince Edward County and the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

Outlines Plans.

Speaking on the point, Reeve S. A. McCarey, Tweed, 1946 chairman of publicity, outlined extensive plans laid down by joint publicity committee of the three organizations for 1947.

He urged the organization of a County Tourist Association which is at present in vogue in neighboring counties. These publicity organizations get together, air their problems, and finally present them to the Ontario government.

"If we are to cater to the large industry," he said, "we must have a county organization that will back up the tourist resort owners of the county."

Reeve McCarey told council that several thousand new tourist pamphlets would be available soon.

County Health Unit

Other business included the appointment of a committee composed of Councillors P. J. Kirby, Charles Rush, W. J. Davis and S. A. McCarey and the Warden, which will investigate the possibilities of a county health unit and report to council as a whole at the June session.

On motion of Reeve George West, Madoc Village, and following lengthy discussion, council ordered a condensation of the annual auditors' report. It was felt that too much detail "which no one reads" was presented in the report, and printing costs could be reduced considerably by a more compact statement of items.

Turn Down Resolution

Council also turned thumbs down on a Wellington County resolution requesting a 75% government subsidy on costs of clearing snow from approved roads.

Reeve Charles Rush said the Ontario Minister of Highways had been very generous to rural municipalities in more ways than one and "I am not in favor of tantalizing him to this extent."

Reeve Charles Buskard, Deloro, agreed with the Hungerford reeve. "What sort of thing is this council trying to do?" he asked. "Yesterday we concurred in a motion for tax exemption for $2,000 wage earners. Today we want to ask for subsidies. We can't take it away and expect to get it, too."

The motion of Reeve P. J. Kirby for concurrence was defeated.

Council, however, concurred in an Oxford County resolution asking the Ontario government to subsidize villages of 1500 population and under, for sewage disposal projects.

TAKES OATH

At the end of his long journey from China, General of the Army George C. Marshall is shown as he took oath of office as secretary of state in the presence of President Truman at the White House. Before taking the oath, General Marshall declared that he can never be drafted for the presidency or other political offices.

One of Most Glaring Extortion Attempts Says Magistrate

Kitchener, Jan. 24 — (CP) — Commenting that it was one of the most glaring extortion attempts he had seen, Magistrate Polson in police court today sentenced thrice-widowed, middle-aged Mrs. Rosanna Jones of Oxenden to two years in penitentiary. She was convicted a week ago of attempting to extort $5,000 from the late William Egg of Waterloo, in August 1944, after receiving $2,500 in settlement of a breach of promise to marry claim.

Consecon Lake Locality

WINTER

Another winter with its snow,
Its stinging storm and blighting blast,
How fast the seasons come and go
And summer joys so soon are past!
Another winter, dread and drear,
A-dealing death to fruit and flowers,
When but the tempest's voice we hear
Amid the slow and lingering hours.

But sweet the silence of the snow,
The ermine-covered cedar spires,
The vigor in the winter's blow,
The homely light of friendly fires;
The ringing stroke of skaters' steel
The laugh and shout of restless youth
To native hearts make sweet appeal—
These joys that winter brings in truth.

—Helen B. Anderson.

Consecon Lake is now a snow-covered plain protected by the gaunt, grey leafless trees and the spire-like cedars along the shore. But it forms a fitting playground for skaters and hockey players. Some years ago it was a thoroughfare enlivened by the music of sleigh bells, but that is now ancient history. Sunday being a fine day a number of young people assembled on the ice to enjoy skating and hockey. Unfortunately Walter Miller was struck by a hockey stick inflicting a wound near the eye, which required several stitches. Another young man came home with a swollen lip, but with no other mishaps the afternoon was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morton and Mrs. W. H. Anderson were tea hour guests of Mrs. James Morton on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield French are now residing in Belleville and Mr. Frank Root is manager of French's mill.

Mr. and Mrs. Lance Davern spent a few days in Toronto.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carley who recently celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary at the home of their daughter Mrs. Ralph Preston and Mr. Preston, Wellington Road.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Palmer on the birth of a son in Picton hospital Jan. 14.

Mr. and Mrs. Lew Wallbridge, Huff's Island, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morton.

Melville school is now equipped with lights, piano, phonograph and radio.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Cruickshank entertained a party of friends on a recent evening guests including Mr. and Mrs. Ross Cruickshank and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kinnear, Mr. and Mrs. Will Morton, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morton and Mr. Clifford Carley and Muriel. A delicious supper was served and cards enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thompson having sold their farm at Doxsee's, have purchased a home in Melville and are now decorating it for occupancy.

Miss June Garbutt is taking violin lessons from a teacher in Belleville, and Miss Muriel Carley is taking piano lessons from a Wellington teacher. Friends wish them success in promoting music in the home that has been of late years sadly neglected.

On Jan. 25 Scotsmen the world over, will be honoring their beloved poet, Robert Burns. His songs, sung by my mother have endeared to me his memory. The following is from his poem Cotter's Saturday Night:

From scenes like these, old Scotia's grandeur springs,
That makes her loved at home, revered abroad;
Princess and lords are but the breath of Kings.—
'An honest man's the noblest work of God'.

Point Anne

Point Anne—Mrs. W. Akey entertained a large number of guests on Wednesday evening in honor of Mrs. Mac. Akey, whose birthday it was. A very enjoyable evening was spent in playing bingo. Following this the gathering was called to order and Mrs. Morley Akey read a short address and presented a beautiful table model radio to the guest of honor, who in a few words thanked the guests for their gift. The hostess then served dainty refreshments assisted by Mrs. Verna Akey, Mrs. Ruth Sweete and Miss Lillian Insley. Mr. Earl Wilson and Mr. Harold Ellis played several numbers in violin and guitar which were much enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Williams spent the weekend with Mrs. B. Williams and family of Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Daly Cummings Mrs. A. Akey, Mr. Bill Akey and Mr. Reg. Cox motored to Cobourg on Monday and attended the funeral of the late Mr. Charles Howard.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the family of the late Albert Dafoe who passed away on Jan. 18 at his home in Shannonville. The late Mr. Dafoe was a former resident of Point Anne for a number of years.

Mrs. Percy Akey entertained the weekly euchre club at her home on Wednesday evening. The prize winners were; Mrs. M. Whalen, Mrs. B. Charlton, Mrs. F. Whitehead, consolation Mrs. W. Juby.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Carter spent Tuesday with friends in Roslin.

3rd Sidney

3rd Sidney (Special) — Communion service was held at Aikens Church on Sunday morning with an inspirational message by the pastor Rev. H. H. Hillis. During the service a solo was rendered by Mrs. Perry Hamilton.

Mrs. Elmer Coyle and daughter Miss Jean Coyle, of Colborne spent the weekend with Mrs. Coyle's sister, Mrs. Lee Grills and her mother, Mrs. McDonald who is spending the winter months with Mr. and Mrs. Grills. Miss Jean Coyle is leaving soon to enter the Hamilton General Hospital as a nurse-in-training.

Mrs. Selburn Westover is spending this week with her sister, Mrs. Clarence Hay who was able to return to her home from the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday last.

Mr. Andrew Langstaff spent the weekend in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. George Denike, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Denike and family were dinner guests on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pound, 3rd of Thurlow.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Moon and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hubble spent the supper nour on Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot Bailey, 2nd Line.

Miss Ruth Spafford, of Belleville spent Sunday at her home here.

TELEVISION OPPOSED

London, Jan. 25 — (Reuters)—Fight promoters, theatrical managers and those concerned with variety and stage productions, were charged Thursday night in the House of Commons by J. Lewis, Labor member, with opposing television in Britain.

Television in Britain, Lewis said, is a "20th-Century child staggering for its life against large vested interests running entertainment in this country."

Plans for television were announced by assistant Postmaster-General W. A. Burke in reply to Lewis.

Burke said that arrangements had been made for a two-way link between London and Birmingham.

TEACHERS' PAY RAISED

St. Catharines, Jan. 25—(CP)—Because of difficulty in obtaining substitute teachers after regular teachers had been granted general $300 increases in a new salary schedule, the Board of Education Thursday night raised the pay of substitutes. Public school substitutes and unqualified collegiate substitutes will now get $7 a day, increases of $1 and $2 respectively. Rates for qualified substitute collegiate teachers were boosted from $7 to $10 per day. The increases take effect immediately.

GIVEN FIVE YEARS

Sedalia, Mo., Jan. 25—(AP) — Mrs. Barbara Middleton, 22, was sentenced to five years in prison after her conviction on a manslaughter charge in the death of her baby daughter.

The prosecution said the 13-month-old child suffered fatal injuries Nov. 29 when Mrs. Middleton bumped the baby on the floor to discipline her.

County to Seek More Equitable Costs in Administration of Justice

A new agreement covering distribution of costs of administration of justice be among Hastings County, the City of Belleville and the town of Trenton, will be sought by Hastings County council in the immediate future.

The present agreement which has been in force for the past 20 years calls for a blanket grant of $6,550 annually from the City of Belleville and $2,880 from the town of Trenton. The county, it was pointed out, pays the balance of cost, regardless of the amount.

New Record Costs

Seeking of a more equitable agreement was an aftermath of the financial report item of administration of justice costs which set a new high record in 1946 at a sum over $40,000.

Actual cost to the county in 1946 for administration of justice amounted to over $50,000, it was stated. This amount is subsidized by the Ontario Government but the average cost to the county has been roughly $16,000.

The county pays all insurance, fuel, hydro office expense, stationery, jail expenses, salaries etc. The county fuel bill in 1946 was $2,779.40 and roughly $700 of this amount was spent for heating Shire Hall.

$10,000 Increase

Increased costs, salaries, additional staff in the county jail, and an upsurge in crime are responsible for the record increase in costs of administration of justice. Of a county expenditure of over $300,000 in 1947, over one-seventh of this amount was spent for administration of justice. There was an increase of over $10,000 in 1946 over costs of 1945.

Twenty years ago when the present agreement was drawn up between the county, city and the town of Trenton, salary costs were roughly one-fifth of what they are at present.

Whereas there were one jailer and one turnkey at that time, the staff has been tripled. Jail salaries at that time were $1,720. Today they exceed $6,000. Crown Attorney's fees are almost five times the amount of twenty years ago.

Five-Year Agreement.

Any agreement, it was pointed out, drawn up among the three municipalities, must remain in force for five years, and must have the endorsation of the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario.

Reeve Geo. Montgomery, of Frankford, chairman of the Administration of Justice Committee in 1946, told council that extra trials and more prisoners, heavy jury costs were responsible for the increase.

Council was also informed that of 254 prisoners lodged in the county jail last year, only 69 were from Hastings County, the remainder coming from Belleville, Trenton and outside points.

CHANGED HANDS THREE TIMES

Kirkland Lake, Jan. 24 (CP)—A revolver which changed hands three times last week and ben allegedly was used in a gunfigh with law officers was a former police weapon, it was revealed here today. Three local residents yesterday paid fines of $110 altogether for illegal transactions over the gun.

Police said today that one of the three, Dennis Wheeldon, fined $10 and costs, was a former member of the Teck township police force and one-time chief constable of nearby Larder Lake.

MARTIN AMBULANCE SERVICE, LTD.

210 CHURCH ST. ◆ BELLEVILLE ◆ PHONES 3350, 3351

MARTIN'S AMBULANCES
24 HOUR INSTANT SERVICE

This widely used ambulance service, operated the first private ambulance in Belleville and District, and since that time has safely transported thousands of patients. We have endeavored to procure the latest and most modern equipment at all times and shall continue to do so.

Due to the ever-increasing volume of ambulance calls received each year and in order to maintain the very best service possible we have recently added a second ambulance to our motor equipment.

This new Custom Dodge Fluid Drive, like our present LaSalle Ambulance is completely equipped for all emergencies. It has the latest type stretcher and carries complete medical and First Aid supplies for the patients' comfort.

With the addition of this second ambulance we now feel we are in a position to give faster, more efficient, 24-hour service, than ever before.

We take pride in the appearance and cleanliness of our equipment and shall consider it a mark of favor to have you inspect our ambulances at any time.

Scotland and Burns

One hundred and eight-years ago a boy was born who was destined in a brief thirty-seven years to create a body of songs and lyrics which are the treasure of Scotland and the English-speaking world and of humanity the world over. Not a day passes, not a night comes but in his home country or in the far-flung lands of the globe his songs are sung in great gatherings or in obscure hamlets, in the homes of the great or the concert halls of the world. One man only among the untold millions who have been born can claim such fame, Robert Burns, born near Ayr Scotland, January 25th., 1759. He stands alone in his supremacy, the matchless songster of humanity. Other lands have produced great writers of song, but none has touched the human heart so profoundly as this native of rugged and true Scotland.

Not many in all earth's teeming inhabitants have been so great as to have their birthday honored as he by celebrations not on one occasion only but year by year. Burns' birthday is marked in the home and in the hall, in the press of the world and on the latest of man's means of communication, the radio, and wherever Scots, the sons of Scots abroad and Burns' lovers anywhere foregather.

Why this should be is clear. He is the perfect expression of the song of the human heart. He knew the heart throb, he felt as the millions of earth feel, the humble and the great and that he puts into the form of matchless verse. Burns loved humanity with an understanding heart. That human basis is at the root of greatness. His is not the art that is pure art alone, his is linked with the heartbeat of every man, woman and child. So the world understands him and his lyrics become as no other lyrics, the perfect expression of humanity.

His songs sprang in the main from his emotional experiences and he linked them to music and verse, popular in his country, a real folk music. Burns knew a vast treasury of common songs and many of these he refined and transmuted into deathless lyrics. He hummed and mused over these in the light of his experiences and would go home from the fields to commit them to writing. Many of his most popular songs were created in this way.

He has left a heritage of song which can never die. There is only one Robert Burns because he was true to his inspiration and to the human heart. His songs stand alone among the creations of the songs of other men. His are based on the heart of the Scottish people.

No other race has so been blessed in song as his lyrics have blessed the people of Scotland. He has become the music of the heart of Scotland. He is a vital force whose influence is felt by the people of his race and of the kindred races of the British Isles and of the English-speaking world.

Robert Burns wrote other works but lyrics, among these being his "Tam o' Shanter," "Cotter's Saturday Night," "Jolly Beggars Cantata," numerous satires. He wrote one of the great songs of freedom of the world, "Scots Wha Hae." He sounded the note of humanity in "A Man's a Man," and struck the chord of human brotherhood "the world o'er." He has enshrined Scots life, sentiment and words in the heart of mankind.

Behind this great achievement of song, which is unique in the world, is felt the spirit, the soul of Burns interpreting his race. With such a heritage his race and the songs he sang must endure to the end of time.

Britain's Overseas Trade

Publication today of the United Kingdom overseas trade returns for December has revealed that the provisional volume of exports during the whole year equalled that for 1938. At the start of the year the export volume was considerably below that of prewar years — the average for the first quarter was 84% — but this was balanced by substantial rises in succeeding quarters: figures are 98, 104 and 112 respectively.

Holidays were also instrumental in effecting decrease of exports in December. The total was $331,600,000 — $36,800,000 less than November. The position in December appears more favorable, however, if shipments made under U.N.R.R.A. and to United Kingdom forces overseas are excluded since this brings the total for the month to $322,400,000, a fall of only $28,800,000 on the corresponding November figure.

Imports in December at $468,000,000 were $29,200,000 below the peak figure for October. Re-exports at $20,800,000 were highest for over a year.

The make-up of Britain's exports in 1946 was very different from that of 1938. For example, whereas raw materials (mainly coal) accounted for 12% of the total exports in 1938, they comprised less than 4% in 1946. Manufactured articles on the other hand went up from 77.6% of the total exports in 1938 to 86.3% in 1946. Machinery and vehicles were the largest groups of exports last year accounting together for one quarter of the total.

Speed of Sound Great Barrier

(Newsweek Magazine)

The speed of sound — 764 miles an hour at sea level — is the great barrier through which the rocket-powered airships of the future must hurtle. At that speed, the smooth flow of air around the plane breaks down and forms a "burble" that may destroy the pilot's control or tear the plane apart. It is believed that Geoffrey D. Havilland, the famous British test pilot who was recently killed when his radical jet plane disintegrated suddenly on a test flight, met his death that way.

No one knows what lies beyond the "trans-sonic" speed line, but in theory it is believed possible to control a plane if it can cross the danger zone quickly enough. Recently the Army Air Forces announced that the Bell XS-1, the first of its aircraft designed to fly faster than sound, will get its maiden test in early December, at Munroe Army Air Field, Calif. A rocket engine is designed to drive it 1,700 miles an hour at 80,000 feet. For the first flight, a less powerful engine will be used and top speed kept to 600 miles an hour, under the sound speed range. Speed will be increased on subsequent tests on the basis of data gathered by Chalmers (Slick) Goodlin, 23-year-old test pilot.

Plate From Churches

(London Times)

An exhibition of plate from the city churches has been opened at the Victoria and Albert Museum,

The earliest exhibits are a group of five chalices of the reign of Edward VI—that is to say, about a quarter of the known examples of that date. There are also several beautiful Elizabethan chalices, and in the reigns of James I and Charles I come the first flagons — which were needed because so few chalices were left after the Reformation. Jacobean flagons are also on view.

The late 17th and 18th century examples show how much larger a proportion of church than of domestic silver plate continued to be gilt after the time of James I.

A flagon of 1636, from St. Anne and St. Agnes, bears the verse:

This potts for holy wine, This wine's pure blood.
This blood true life, This life contains all good.
Not potts, but soules, Are fitt to hold such wine
Such blood, such life, Such good. O
Christ take mine.

Advice on Snow Shovelling

The public may well be grateful to Medical Examiner William J. Brickley for advice which should be followed during the winter season. Persons suffering from heart and kidney ailments should under no condition attempt to shovel snow. This is laborious work and may well mean sudden death to those not in top condition. Don't carry heavy bundles and don't overexert in any way. It is timely advice, says Boston Post.

TRIBUTE

Long years of service done;
 Touched glasses, brim to brim;
Room thronged, and everyone
 Gathered to honor him.

Eyes with delight aglow;
 Many to speak in praise.
Everything meant to show
 Glory in well-spent days.

Pride in the useful life;
 Joy in the gracious mind.
After the test of strife,
 Never regret to find.

Fortune and fame are not
 All that they seem.
Years nobly lived are what
 Capture esteem.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

Jan. 25th., 1927.

Mr. Victor Lemon of the staff of the Bank of Commerce here spent yesterday at his home in Madoc.

Mr. Fred Embury of the staff of the Bank of Montreal here has been transferred to the bank's branch in Kingston.

The Stratford G. T. R. team defeated the local G. T. R. team here by a score of 7 to 1. The following composed the Belleville G. T. R. team: Lloyd, Gibson, Hagerman, Amo, Riggs, and Doran, subs, Carmichael and Seeney.

Ex-Mayor R. J. E. Graham has been appointed city solicitor to succeed the late Stewart Masson.

30 YEARS AGO

The members of the Hastings County Council were serenaded by the excellent band of the 254th. Battalion. The band under the capable leadership of Bandmaster Hinchey assembled in the ante room at Shire Hall and after the Warden had been selected, rendered three patriotic selections. Warden McLaren on behalf of the council thanked the band.

The members of the city and county councils will be entertained at a banquet this evening at the new Children's Shelter Building on Dundas Street East.

Following are the officers of the Patriotic Campaign in this city: President, H. W. Ackerman; vice presidents, Stewart Robertson and Arthur Jones; secretaries, O. H. Scott and H. B. Stock; treasurer, J. G. Moffatt.

40 YEARS AGO

Jan. 25th., 1907.

An interesting hockey match took place at the arena when the team representing the Belleville Portland Cement Company was defeated by the G. T. R. team. The ice was in fine condition and the play at times was fast. The Cement boys, however, could not stand the pace set for them by the railroaders and the result was that they were defeated, the score being 7 to 2. The following composed the teams: Cement Company: K. Phillips, T. Ford, H. Franch, E. Green, M. McNab, J. Thompson and J. Dowrie; Grand Trunk: H. Pringle, J. Ford, G. Cornish, E. Schultz, G. Bowen, B. Shepherd and H. Clare. Referee, W. Allen; goal umpires, C. Pratt and F. Wallace.

50 YEARS AGO

Jan. 25th., 1897.

The old Baptist Church at the corner of Coleman Street and Moira Street West, lately occupied by the Belleville Business College, of which Mr. Robert Boble is the owner and principal, was destroyed by fire last night. The fire was discovered about eight o'clock in the evening by Mr. Stinson, the miller at Cooper's mill. It was with great difficulty that the house next to the college, owned by Mr. Joseph Blackburn and occupied by Mr. Phillip Canniff was saved. Seven months ago Mr. Bogle traded his college property at the corner of Pinnacle and Hotel streets for the Baptist Church property. The Baptist congregation took over his building which was at one time a roller skating rink and eventually a church proper will be erected on the site. Mr. Bogle has obtained quarters for the college in the Metropolitan Block at the corner of Front and Campbell streets and classes are being carried on without any loss of time. The burned building was built by the Baptists a little over twenty years ago. It was a brick building.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who wrote the Negro spirituals?

The spirituals are sacred folk songs created or modified by the Negroes in America.

Although many or them have been arranged and interpreted by known composers, their words and music are traditional and their individual authorship is not known.

Many of the spirituals apparently developed in Negro communities and are the expression of group rather than individual experiences and aspirations. The Negro has always had a tendency to put his experiences into song and it is probable that Negro bards began to create or to adapt the spirituals soon after their subjection to slavery and their conversion to Christianity.

The spirituals seem to have grown up almost spontaneously among the Negroes as they gathered in the fields and cabins and in the churches and meeting houses on the plantations. They combine Christian sentiments with rhythm and music possessing African characteristics. Some of the spirituals in the West Indies and South America contain traces of direct influence from Africa, but those on the North American mainland show few, if any, traces of a direct African heritage.

They are characteristic of the Negros but original with them only in mood and arrangement. Often they are merely old religious or secular folk-songs of the white man reworked to suit the mood and fancy of the Negro. Some appear to be based on long-forgotten English, Irish and Scottish songs that the Negroes picked up and modified generations ago. Many are based on fragments of Biblical stories told dramatically and vividly.

When the Negroes began to create or to adapt folk songs and hymns is not known. Some pieces undoubtedly date back nearly two centuries. It is said that the favorite "plantation songs" among the Negroes of slavery days are best preserved among the Cherokee Indians of North Carolina.

The Negro spirituals are remarkable in that, though born in slavery, they contain no note of bitterness. No effort was made to record the spirituals until after the Civil War and they were not fully appreciated by musical critics until after they were introduced to the public in 1871 by the Fisk Jubilee Singers.

A peculiar type of music developed by the Negro minstrels in Trinidad is called Calypso. Calypso songs, accompanied by the guitar, are sung by the Negroes in a French patois interspersed with Spanish and Hindu idioms and words or in English with an odd British accent.

Prof. N. G. Balanta, a native of West Africa, spent many years in an effort to trace the source and history of Negro spirituals. "Christianity," he wrote, "was the force that breathed life into the innate musical talent of the African in his new environment. Far from his native land, despised by those among whom he lived, knowing the hard taskmaster, feeling the lash, the Negro seized Christianity, the religious compensations in the life to come for the ills suffered in the present existence. The result was a body of songs voicing all the cardinal virtues of Christianity—patience, forbearance, love, faith and hope—through a modified form of primitive African "music."

Needle Protests Furiously

Fort Erie, Jan. 25—(CP)—President Dick Wraight of the local Kinsmen Club accompanied 55 members of the club to Buffalo, where they were entertained at the city's criminal investigation laboratory. Wraight submitted to a test by the lie detector and made a positive statement: "I cannot tell a lie." The nedle jumped furiously in protest.

Von Papen Tried Before Court Of Denazification

Nuernberg, Jan. 25 (CP) — Franz Von Papen went on trial before a Germany denazification court Friday after unsuccessfully challenging the Bavarian tribunal's right to hear the case.

The seven-man court proceeded with the trial of charges that Von Papen was a supporter of Adolf Hitler in the palmy days of the Nazi regime.

Conviction can mean 10 years at hard labor for the 69-year-old German diplomatic ace, who once served as Hitler's vice-chancellor.

Public Prosecutor Werner Fiebig told the court he intended to prove that:

1. Von Papen helped Hitler to power and "sustained Nazism financially and politically."

2. Von Papen, as creator of Hitler's first cabinet, promised the Fuehrer he would dissolve the Reichstag and lift the ban against the wearing of the uniform by Storm Troopers.

3. Von Papen dismissed 24 high administrative officials because they opposed the Nazis.

4. Von Papen "undermined" Kurt Schussnigg's Austrian government and thus paved the way for Anschluss.

The prosecutor maintained that Von Papen, ambassador to Austria and later to Turkey, "held positions obtained only by Nazi leaders or supporters." During the war crimes trial, Von Papen protested that he was innocent of Nazi affiliations and the tribunal, while holding him to be a political conspirator, said it was unable to find him guilty of war crimes or crimes against the peace.

Austria Unable To Pay Reparation Says Karl Gruber

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

London, Jan. 25 —(AP)—Karl Gruber, Austrian foreign minister said yesterday his country would be unable to pay reparations to anyone.

Gruber told a press conference that if Austria was to be the free and independent nation advocated in the Moscow declaration, "the conditions making freedom and independence possible must be provided."

Yugoslavia has asked the four-power foreign ministers' deputies framing the German and Austrian treaties that Austria be made to pay reparations to compensate in part for German-Austrian war damages suffered by the Yugoslavs, estimated at $11,000,000,000.

Gruber said Austria, if made to pay reparations, would not be able to stand alone economically and added categorically: "we deny all claims."

The foreign minister, who with other Austrian officials will present their country's views to the deputies Thursday, also denied that Austria could afford to lost any of her territory and hope to survive as an independent country.

British sources said Col. W. R. Hodgson of Australia called yesterday for a separate international peace conference for Austria, declaring that the Austrian treaty should impose no unjustifiable burdens of humiliations.

These sources said Hodgson told the deputies that the treaty should be concluded quickly and that occupation troops, which he termed a burden on Austrian economy, should be withdrawn immediately after the signing ceremonies.

Trapper Receives Large Annuity

Sault Ste. Marie, Jan. 25 (CP) —William Dunnville, 47, who lives in a one-storey log cabin at Bell's Point, four miles from here has received official word that he is to receive an annuity from the state of his father, Robert Gustavius Dunnville, 91-year-old "Irish Whisky King" who died last year.

Dunnville, who came to Canada in 1919 after serving in the Royal Navy during the First World War, said he has received an annuity from $44,000 since he came here. He now is to receive $2,000 and an annuity from $160,000.

He lived at Thessalon, 55 miles east of here, for many years, and built a large home there but recently sold it and moved to Bell's Point.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD BOY WANDERS TEN MILES

Leamington, Jan. 25 — (CP)—Ronnie Simpson, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Simpson who resides near Kingsville, caused a major furore in the district when he couldn't be found yesterday. Search parties scouted the vicinity but Ronnie was found accidentally, miles away from the area searched. He had walked 10 miles and won't say why.

HEART FAILURE, DIGITALIS, VITAMIN B COMPLEX AND WALKING

A correspondent (now nearly 79) told us here the other day of his experience with heart failure, digitalis, vitamin B complex and daily walks. It was a happy experience, as compared with the experiences of many persons who have had digitalis but not vitamin B complex or daily walks as treatment of heart failure.

To keep the record clear let me repeat what I have said here many times about digitalis, and remember, please, I give merely my belief or opinion, which is shared by very few good doctors, and I'm not authority. If I had heart trouble, disease or failure of any kind I would not take digitalis on my own—but if I consulted physician for advice or treatment and the physician prescribed digitalis I'd take it as the doctor ordered and keep my smart notions to myself. I hope all who read this will see what I mean. I have no sympathy or patience with the kind of d.f. who consults a physician and then deliberately ignores or fails to follow any part of the doctor's advice or treatment.

In most cases of heart trouble where digitalis is "indicated" or beneficial according to standard therapeutics, an optimal daily ration of vitamin B complex is "indicated" and beneficial, according to my notion. I regard B complex as a real heart tonic I doubt that digitalis can of itself improve the "tone" or the function of the heart—although it may stimulate or whip up the tired, weak or failing heart for a few hours or days, if that is desirable.

So my suggestion to doctors who believe in and prescribe digitalis in cases of heart failure, and to people who, regardless of my advice and the advice of real doctors to the contrary, elect to take digitalis on their own, is that each dose of the drug be combined with or administered or taken in or with an adequate amount of vitamin B complex, and that when the digitalis is discontinued the B complex be continued as a good heart "tonic" every day the year around. At any rate this can never do anybody any harm.

As for walking—that, too within the limitations imposed by the individual patient's condition — which only his doctor can gauge —is the next best remedy we have for heart failure of whatever kind or cause, and particularly in cases of thrombosis coronary occlusion or myocarditis It is the ideal remedy for heart failure (lost compensation) due to valvular leakage, in my opinion. In all cases the daily walk should be graduated by the physician who knows the patient's condition and its effect should be regularly gauged by the physician from time to time. A short walk two or three times a day is generally better than a longer walk once a day. In any case the walk at first should be only on the level, not uphill, until walking on the level brings back a little reserve power for such increased effort.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Lost Spare Tire

Following your "Rules for Reducing," which proved not at all difficult, I have reduced sixteen pounds in about as many weeks. I am certainly glad to have lost the "spare tire" I have been lugging around for several years. Feel years younger than I did, too. (Mrs. M. E. F.)

Answer—Thank you, Ma'am. Easy, natural way to reduce is by physiological regulation of diet and general habits, not by "going on a diet" which tears you down. If you are overweight send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope for booket "Rules for Reducing."

Tuberculosis

Should a young woman with tuberculosis be permitted to stay home? Neighbor who has it is outside constantly and my four little sisters play in the yard too.

(C. R.)

Answer—The children should not be permitted to be so exposed to possible infection. Best thing for the young woman with tuberculosis, and for every one who associates with her or lives with her, is a few months sojourn in a tuberculosis hospital or sanatorium, where she will at least learn how to protect others from contracting her tuberculosis.

Deafness

My father has benefited so much from eating several ounces of wheat germ daily that his deafness of years has practically disappeared. His general health is much better than it had been too. Thanks for the tip. At our house we swear by "Ol Doc Brady"—may your shadow never grow less. (C.E.M.)

Answer—Adequate daily ration of vitamin B complex in any form (wheat germ is rich in it) has brought marked improvement in many cases of deafness. Send stamped self addressed envelope for pamphlet "Head Noises and Deafness."

Judge Reserves Judgment In Espionage Probe

Ottawa, Jan. 25 — (CP)—Judgment will be handed down Monday in the 16th of 18 trials connected with the Canadian espionage probe.

County Judge A. G. McDougall reserved his decision late yesterday afternoon at the conclusion of argument and evidence in the trial of Henry Harris, Toronto optometrist, on charges of conspiracy to obtain and to forge false passports.

Climax of the trial of the 54-year-old native of New York, a resident of Canada for 47 years, was his own appearance in the witness box at the call of defence counsel A. W. Beament of Ottawa.

Harris denied any connection with Russian activities, said he had never known any Russians, had never allowed his office or its phone to be used on their behalf and had never sought a false passport.

He said Sam Carr, vanished former Labor-Progressive national organizer and alleged Russian agent, had been a close friend of his and that it was not uncommon for them to go to cities like Ottawa, Montreal and New York for weekend vacations. But he had never guessed that Carr was a Russian agent.

Denies Complicity

His denials of complicity embraced Russian Embassy documents giving his office address and his telephone number, saying his number could be called to arrange meetings and referring to "Doctor Harris."

He admitted the authenticity of Ottawa hotel registers showing that he had been in Ottawa on two occasions whose dates coincided with Embassy notes of meetings, one attended by "Dr. Harris Henry" and the other by "the doctor." The Embassy report on the latter said "the doctor" reported no progress was made with the passport.

Harris denied that he had ever attended such meetings. The last he had heard of Carr was through a letter or postcard from Cuba about a year ago.

Tangible Leads Developing In Mutilation Slaying

Los Angeles, Jan. 25 —(AP)—Police investigating the mutilation slaying last week of 22-year-old Elizabeth Short, known to her friends as the "Black Dahlia," today had several tangible leads, the first to develop since her bisected body was found in a vacant lot.

An envelope containing her social security card and an address book with scores of names of men and women was received at the post office, addressed to "Los Angeles Newspaper." The envelope was addressed with letters clipped from newspaper headline type, and read: "Contains the effects of the Black Dahlia. Letter to follow."

"These are effects of Miss Short," said police, "but we believe they were mailed by someone who had no connection with the killing; possibly by a former landlord."

Also in the envelope was a bus baggage claim check dated Jan. 9, five days before she was killed.

Authorities will check all the names in the address book.

Colonial Coach Lines Purchase Independent Runs

Peterborough, Ont., Jan. 25 — Colonial Coach Lines, Ltd., have bought the franchises and equipment of three independent bus companies run by different members of the Denure family here, it was learned yesterday.

Taken over are:

The Peterborough-Trenton and Peterborough-Tweed runs operated by Edward Denure.

The Peterborough-Port Perry line run by Fred Denure.

Colonial Coach Lines operate a service between Toronto and Ottawa. No price has been mentioned in the transactions.

Masked Gunmen Enter Station

Toronto, Jan. 25 — (CP) — Early today at Port Credit on the Queen Elizabeth highway near Toronto, two masked gunmen entered the service station operated by Bruce Lambie, and pointing pistols at Lambie and his helper Harry Whitehead, made the men lie on the floor.

Securing the men with binder twine, they took the contents of the till and were about to leave when a customer, Leslie Austin, came in. He was also covered by the pistols and trussed up.

The gunmen left, presumably making a getaway in a car.

After freeing themselves the 3 men in the service station notified Toronto township police, who investigated.

Vancouver Police Chief, 7 Officers Are Suspended

Vancouver, Jan. 25 — (CP) — Two full - dress investigations were underway here today with Vancouver's new police chief — 42-year-old Walter Mulligan — right in the middle of both of them.

Believed to be the youngest man ever saddled with the responsibility of this west coast city's 500-man law enforcement body, Mulligan was named acting chief of police last night as the Board of Police Commissioners ordered an immediate investigation into the force and announced the suspension of Chief A. G. McNeill, his assistant Norman Corbett, two detective inspectors and four detectives.

Only a day earlier the 195-pound Irishman, as head of the Criminal Investigation Bureau, had ordered a probe into professional boxing here following disclosure that "ringers" had appeared on recent fight cards and that gamblers were active at the ringside.

Last night's moves by the commission climaxed more than three weeks of rumor-filled, behind-the-scenes action with Chief McNeill refusing to reorganize his department on instructions from Mayor G. G. McGeer. The instructions called for the city's three vice-squads to be brought under Mulligan's department.

The commission said Chief McNeill, slated for retirement April 9, would receive pay for leave of absence to that date, but suspended the remainder—including the heads of the morality and gambling squads — without pay. Sixteen officers affected by the elimination of the gambling, liquor and morality squads, were reduced to the rank of first class constables in the uniform branch.

However, there was strong opposition to the police shakeup. Thursday Acting Prosecutor Gordon Scott resigned because he "disagreed with Mayor McGeer's policies" and earlier Magistrate Mackenzie Matheson left the Police Commission saying he was "dissatisfied" with it.

Made no Estimate Of Shareholders Gains Says Conroy

Toronto, Jan. 25 (CP) — Pat Conroy, Secretary of the Canadian Congress of Labor, in a statement last night declared that he had made no estimate of the gains to shareholders of Noranda copper mine resulting from the recent five-cent increase in price of copper.

In a news story carried by The Canadian Press Wednesday Mr. Conroy had been quoted as saying that the increase would bring more than $5,000,000 a year to Noranda shareholders.

In his statement last night Mr. Conroy said that when called by a Toronto newspaper reporter Wednesday on the matter he gave no estimate of any kind, "let alone one that might apply particularly to the Noranda Mining Company."

Mr. Conroy said that he had told the reporter that "it seemed like a nice new year present to the copper industry," and that the reporter himself did the estimating that the increase would amount to $5,000,000 for the entire industry. "I agreed that failing an immediate check-up the increase would probably amount to that figure for the industry as a whole."

Will Not Enforce Deportation Law

Ottawa, Jan. 25—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced Friday that the government has decided not to continue to enforce legislation permitting the deportation of persons of Japanese origin. However, assistance will be given those who wish to depart voluntarily.

It was understood this action was taken after lengthy cabinet consideration and stemmed from a recent privy council decision confirming Canadian orders-in-council for voluntary shipment of Canadian-born and British-subject Japanese to Japan.

Mr. King said that nearly 4,000 of the 24,000 Japanese in Canada had returned to Japan voluntarily. Among these were "the Japanese whose deportation would have been necessary had they not gone voluntarily."

The order-in-council passed Dec. 15, 1945, permitting deportation as an emergency measure has been repealed. Also repealed, is an order authorizing the establishment of a special commission to investigate the loyalty of persons of Japanese origin.

However, the government is retaining authority to provide free passage and financial assistance to persons of Japanese origin wishing to go to Japan.

A third order repealed concerns the revocation of Canadian status of naturalized persons of Japanese origin who leave Canada. This does not, however, restore the status of persons who already have lost such status.

London Taxi Driver Slugged By Lone Bandit

London, Ont., Jan. 25 (CP)—A lone armed bandit early today slugged Max Gobie, 21-year-old London taxi driver on Oxford Street near the suburban Crumlin sideroad after an unsuccessful attempt to rob him, and made his getaway in the taxi.

Gobie told police his passenger pulled a gun when they were about 10 miles from the city and said "I have to take your money and the car."

"I refused to give him the money in my pocket and he started to dash me on the head with the gun. After he had beaten me he took the car and headed for No. 2 highway," the driver said.

Provincial police were notified and a dragnet was thrown around the entire district.

Police Use Tear Gas to Break Up Demonstrations

Lahore, India, Jan. 25 (AP) — Police used tear gas today to break up demonstrations protesting the arrest of high-ranking Moslem League leaders and the Punjab provincial government's decision outlawing the Moslem League's National Guard.

More than 30 Moslems were arrested, bringing the total of arrests to nearly 100. Seven Moslem League members of the Punjab provincial lgislative assembly were taken into custody for shouting defiant slogans in violation of a public safety ordinance after they left a party caucus in assembly chambers. The deputy chief assembly whip of the Moslem party was seized.

Moslem merchants in Lahore, in Delhi, 275 miles to the southeast, and in Bombay, 900 miles to the south, closed their shops in protest against the Punjab government actions, and protest meetings were called in major Delhi and Bombay mosques. Bombay province's 2,500,000 Moslems were ordered to strike.

Punjab province's population is predominantly Moslem, but its government is made up of a coalition of anti-league Moslems.

Moslem Merchants Close Their Shops

New Delhi, Jan. 25 — (AP) — Moslem merchants closed their shops in Lahore, Delhi and Bombay today in protest against the Punjab provincial government's outlawing of the Moslem League's national guard and the arrest of eight League leaders.

Protest meetings were called in major Delhi and Bombay mosques.

In Delhi, Siddic Ali Khan, national commander of the volunteer, semi-military guard, appealed to League and guard members throughout India to "maintain peace and discipline and to wait the orders of the high command."

Yesterday, after the ban was announced in the Punjab provincial capital of Lahore, league leaders in Bombay called for a strike of the 2,500,000 Moslems in Bombay province today, and in Lahore nearly 100 persons were hurt and at least 30 arrested in a police charge on demonstrators.

The government of Junjab, in northwestern India running up into the Himalayan foothills, said it had banned the national guard — and at the same time the Hindu youth organization, Rashtriya Sevak Sangh — to "prevent expansion of private communal armies which could be harmful to the peaceful position of the country."

Ontario Premier Hopes Conference Will be Held

Toronto, Jan. 25 — (CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario today made public the federal government's proposals of tax relationships between the Dominion and the provinces, and revealed that he had written Prime Minister Mackenzie King that the proposals might indicate the federal government is prepared to reconvene the Dominion-Provincial conference.

The Ontario premier released the letter sent to him by Federal Finance Minister Abbott and his own reply, addressed to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, in which Premier Drew said "I do hope Mr. Abbott's letter . . is an indication that you now are prepared to reconvene the Dominion-Provincial conference which adjourned last May on the motion of the Dominion government.

"I assure you," said Premier Drew's letter to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, "that the government of Ontario will be ready to attend such a conference in Ottawa at any time and there examine and consider all proposals on their merits. We are most anxious to arrive at a settlement which will be just and fair to the people of every part of Canada."

Women of Malone Organize Community Club

Marmora (Special) — Last October the women of Malone got together and formed the Malone Community Club. At the present time this energetic organization boasts of a membership of twenty-eight. The president is Mrs. George Fox and the vice-president is Mrs. Harold Long. The duties of secretary-treasurer are handled by Mrs. Albert Nickle. Meetings are held twice monthly and while the main business is generally quilting, there is the occasional meeting with a miscellaneous program. Quiltings are held in various homes of the members and on Wednesday a quilting was held at the home of Mrs. Rose Derry, and the customary pot luck dinner at a nominal charge. Many of the members are wives of members of Nickle L.O.L. 285. This lodge is concerning itself with the erection of a new hall in a more central section of the district to replace the one which having done duty for so many years would need a considerable sum to put it in repair. So Malone Community Club has decided to give the lodge what assistance it can in the matter of funds. L.O.L. 285 is hoping to hold a county celebration on the 12th. of July this year to further this object.

THE NEW YEAR

Our yesterdays, touched by the hand of pain,
Our days of loss and our days of gain,
Days, grim and old, soiled by sin's dark stain,
God takes away and gives us again
Days pure and white as the fresh, new snow,
The new year's dawn with sky aglow,
And courage to meet the days to be
From the power of the past forever free.

We need not mourn o'er the days now dead,
No tears o'er their bier be it ours to shed;
We need not grieve o'er their loss and pain,
For better days will come again;
Nor dread the dawn of each new day's sun
With the chance of a prize when the race is run,
"For as thy days, thy strength shall be"
Is the promise of God to you and me.

Trenton

V.O.N. Elects Year's Officers

At the recent annual meeting of Trenton branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses held in the Eastern Star Hall, the following officers were elected for the year 1947:

President, Mr. R. F. McInnis; first vice-president, Mr. Walter Murray; second vice-president, Mrs. M. Dixon; third vice-president, Mrs. A. S. Oliver; treasurer, Mr. J. Owen; secretary, Mrs. J. J. Macnab; medical adviser, Dr. J. W. Farley; conveners of committees: finance, Mr. N. H. Banfield; car, Mr. R. Haker; publicity, Mr. J. Ormiston; remainder of executive, Mrs. A. B. Hill, Mrs. J. Pinch, Mrs. T. Spear, Dr. J. W. Farley, Mr. H. S. Blakely, Mrs. C. V. Graham; board of governors, Mrs. R. F. McInnis, Mrs. J. Parker, Mrs. W. B. McClung.

Awarded Operational Wings

Squadron Leader James B. Kerr, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Kerr of Hotel Gilbert, Trenton, who lost his life in July, 1944, while serving with the Royal Canadian Air Force on Air Operations has been posthumously awarded the Operational Wing of the RCAF in recognition of gallant service in action against the enemy. Word to this effect has been received by Mrs. Kerr from Wing Commander W. A. Dicks for the Air Officer Commanding, Ottawa, Ontario, and reads as follows:

"Dear Mrs. Kerr:

It is a privilege to have the honor of sending you the Operational Wings and Certificate in recognition of the gallant service rendered by your son, Squadron Leader James B. Kerr. I realize there is little which may be said or done to lessen your sorrow but it is my hope that these "Wings", indicative of operations against the enemy will be a treasured memento of a young life offered on the altar of freedom in defence of his home and country."

At the time S/L Kerr was reported missing he had nine enemy planes to his credit and just a short time before had been promoted from the rank of Flight Lieutenant. He had already made a name for himself and had earned the name of Trenton's ace flyer for he had taken part in many sweeps over enemy territory. His exploits and those of his navigator "Butch" Clarke, of Middlesex, England, who trained and flew with him in their Mosquito bomber, were published in British newspapers.

The many friends in Trenton and district of this gallant flyer will remember him in other years as a hockey and lacrosse player and boxer and he was well known in the province especially among sportsmen.

ST. PAUL'S W.A. MEETING

Marmora (Special) — Mrs. J. M. Brownlie was re-elected president of St. Paul's W.A. at the annual meeting held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. R. Pearce. Others elected to office were:

First Vice-president, Mrs. R. G. Winters; recording and corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. D. Lavender; Dorcas secretary, Mrs. J. R. Reynolds; assistant Dorcas secretary, Mrs. R. G. Winters; treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Hickey; Living Message secretary, Mrs. J. A. Rice; delegate to Diocesan Annual, Mrs. R. G. Winters.

The meeting opened with Bible reading and special prayers and Litany taken by the rector, Rev. J. M. Brownlie. Minutes of the first meeting, that of organization, were read and approved, followed by the treasurer's report given by Mrs. J. W. Hickey. The report of Mrs. A. Niblet, Dorcas secretary, mentioned the sending of a bale to the Synod office for its later despatch to an Indian school. Letters of thanks from the Diocesan secretary and also the lady in charge of the Indian school congratulated the branch on its progress in so short a time since its formation and also on the good work done by a membership of its size. Mrs. Hickey gave the report for the Living Message. Rev. J. M. Brownlie, conforming with the rules, read the constitution and bylaws of the W.A. before conducting the election of officers. Mrs. J. M. Hickey consented to carry on the duties of Living Message secretary until the return from holidays of Mrs. J. A. Rice. It was decided to send a donation towards the purchase of a gift for the retiring Diocesan president, Mrs. J. DeP. Wright. The president and secretary will meet a delegation of the ladies of St. Andrew's W.M.S. to arrange for the observance of the World's Day of Prayer. The February meeting is to be held at the Rectory. Two new members were added to the role. The study period was taken by Mrs. J. M. Brownlie, who used a book written by the Rev. Guiton, of India, entitled "Kangra Interlude." Mrs. H. R. Pearce then served lunch, receiving later a hearty vote of thanks for her hospitality.

Mrs. J. M. Brownlie closed the meeting with prayer.

MOIRA W.A.

Moira, Jan. 25.—At the home of Mrs. Wallace McInroy, Moira W.A. served dinner to the members and wives of the official board of West Huntingdon circuit and in the afternoon held the January W.A. meeting with the president, Mrs. George Foster taking charge.

Scripture lesson from Psalm 34 was read by Mrs. Clarence Fitchett and prayer offered by Mrs. Warren Harlowe. A reading by June Williams and a piano solo by Grace McInroy were much appreciated. A splendid paper on "progress" prepared by Mrs. Nelson Welsh was read by Mrs. G. Thompson. A solo by Mrs. Don Holbert and a reading by Mrs. Stewart concluded the program. The meeting closed with prayer.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

The regular monthly meeting of the hospital auxiliary was held in the nurses' residence, on Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. Charles Cameron, the newly elected president in the chair.

Mr. Englestad, the hospital administrator, addressed the meeting with reference to the auxiliary work and Miss Laura Johnston, director of nursing, gave a report of the indigent work.

Plans were discussed for the annual bridge and euchre to be held in February and the annual fashion show in March.

IVANHOE W.M.S.

The January meeting of the Ivanhoe W.M.S. was held on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. S. Prest. During the day a quilt was completed and at noon hour a delicious pot luck dinner was served.

Mrs. G. Wood, president of the organization, had charge of the meeting during the afternoon. Letters were read in appreciation of cards sent to shut-in members. Several members paid fees. The annual reports for 1946 were found very interesting. Rev. J. F. Everson conducted the installation of officers for 1947.

Miss Cora Prest, leader of Group 1, had charge of the program, the theme being, "Fulfilling Our Church Membership in Witnessing for Christ". Four members gave readings from the Missionary Monthly. Mr. Everson offered prayer. The study book chapter was presented by Mrs. S. Prest. Mrs. M. Reid gave a short reading, and Mrs. Everson offered prayer for the society and for missionary workers everywhere. Master Jack Wood accepted the offering. Total proceeds for the day amounted to $22. The meeting closed with the benediction.

Bride-Elect Entertained At Many Showers

Miss Barbara Joan Coleman whose marriage takes place today, (Saturday, January 25) in Albert Street United Church, Oshawa, Ont., to Mr. Eric Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cooper, of Belleville, has been entertained at a number of pre-nuptial parties.

Mrs. George Sanders, Simcoe Street South, Oshawa, was hostess at a miscellaneous shower, the gifts being arranged in a box decorated in pink and white. Each guest also contributed a recipe to the bride's cook-book. The hostess was assisted in serving lunch by a number of the C.G.I.T. girls.

Mrs. Harry Norton, Mrs. J. Reed and Mrs. Robert Lee were hostesses at a crystal and linen shower held in the Sunday School rooms of Albert Street United Church. A large carton decorated in blue and white held the many gifts. The hostesses served dainty refreshments. A miscellaneous shower was given by Mrs. Henry Lee at the home of Mrs. Clayton Lee, 232 James St. The gifts were packed in a silver and white box. A mock wedding was enacted which created much merriment, the "service book", autographed by all the guests, was later presented to the bride-elect. Mrs. Clayton Lee and Mrs. George Ford assisted the hostess in serving lunch.

Mrs. Walter Jackson, of Tylor Crescent, was hostess at an evening party when the bride-to-be was the recipient of a table lamp, Mrs. C. C. Baxter read an address, and Miss Joan Jackson made the presentation. Several contests were enjoyed and Mrs. Frank Higginbottom, elocutionist, contributed several readings. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Clarence Heard and Mrs. Don Cutler served dainty refreshments.

Nearly $2,500 Required to Obtain Quota for TB Fund Says Chairman

Second Reminder Being Mailed Those Who Have Not Replied to Appeal

Post-Christmas contributions have brought the total received from the sale of Christmas Seals this year to $5,041.22, according to an announcement made today by Mr. D. L. Storey, Chairman of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association.

"As it stands now," he pointed out, "we are much below our objective of $7,500.00. The money we have asked for through the sale of Seals is necessary to finance our T.B. preventive work during 1947 and it would be a great pity if the work planned for this year were to be curtailed in any way. Tuberculosis prevention and control benefit not only a few, but everyone, and for that reason we are depending on everyone's help."

Mr. Storey added, however, that if all who have made no remittance would do so now, the goal set for the recent campaign would be reached.

A second reminder to those residents of Belleville and Hastings County who have not yet replied to the appeal of the 1946 Christmas Seal letter sent out by Hastings County Tuberculosis Association is being mailed, Mr. D. L. Storey, chairman of the Seal Sale Committee, stated this morning.

"Our committee feels confident that the majority of these people have every intention of helping, through their purchase of Christmas Seals, to carry on our local fight against tuberculosis," Mr. Storey said. "But these have been busy days for everyone and such failure to respond to our appeal has, we are sure, been caused by pressure of other interests."

Late remittances, he said, can be mailed to Christmas Seal headquarters, Box 154, or 51 Highland Ave., or dropped in personally. The telephone number is 1985.

Christ Church Senior A.Y.P.A. Elects Officers

The regular weekly meeting of Christ Church Sr., A.Y.P.A. was held on Tuesday evening, at St. George's Hall on Station Street.

Annual reports were given by the retiring executive and election of a new executive was held. The officers for 1947 are as follows:

Past President, Mr. Lloyd Gladwell
President, Mr. George Meades
Secretary, Miss Jean Green
Treasurer, Miss Audrey Stewart
Worship Convener, Miss Rita Lancaster
Study Convener, Miss Betty Holst
Fellowship Convener, Miss Shirley Johnson.
Service Convener, Miss Dorothy Nokes

Rev. Grant Sparling was present and praised the retiring executive for the work they had done in the past year and directed a few words of encouragement to the new officers.

Legion Thanked For Gifts Sent

Comrade Ernie Dainard, chairman of the Christmas Tree Committee for the Canadian Legion has received a letter from Padre Lambert of Christie Street Hospital which speaks for itself. The Legion Branch in this city presented gifts to veterans in Canadian hospitals this past Christmas season.

The letter follows:

Christie Street Hospital,
Toronto 4, Jan. 14, 1947.

Mr. E. J. Dainard,
Chairman, Canadian Legion,
Christmas Tree Committee,
187 Front Street,
Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Dainard,

I want you to know that the parcels you so kindly sent for distribution to the patients at Christie Street Hospital, from Belleville and district, arrived in perfect condition and were distributed, first, to the Veterans of your district, of which there were very few, and then to others who we felt would appreciate them most.

On all the patients' behalf, I wish to thank you and your friends for these lovely gifts and to extend to you, not only this but also our very best wishes for a very Happy New Year.

Yours very truly,
Sidney E. Lambert, Lt. Col., O.B.E. Chaplain,, Christie Street Hospital.

BURIED NEAR MAGDEBURG

Simcoe, Jan. 24 (CP)—Word has been received here that Sgt. Milton Ray Smoke, D.F.M. who lost his life on Feb. 20, 1944 on a raid over Germany is buried in a cemetery near Magdeburg, Germany.

Belleville Hospital On Approved List

Belleville General Hospital has been awarded full approval of the American College of Surgeons for the year 1946 as revealed through their annual survey.

The listing which includes many hospitals throughout Ontario, indicates hospitals of 25 beds or more which have complied satisfactorily with the fundamental requirements that assure the best care for the sick and injured.

Capacity of the Belleville General Hospital is given as 180 beds and 38 bassinets, the institution being under the control of a board of governors and owned by an association.

Requirements

The association director of the college, Dr. Malcolm T. MacEachern, stated that the hospitals are reconsidered for approval each year, and listed the following summary of the fundamental requirements for approval:

1. Modern physical plant, assuring the patient safety, comfort, and efficient care.
2. Clearly defined organization, duties, responsibilities, and relations.
3. Carefully selected governing board with complete and supreme authority.
4. Competent, well trained superintendent responsible to the governing board
5. Adequate and efficient personnel, properly organized and competently supervised.
6. Organized medical staff of ethical, competent physicians and surgeons.
7. Adequate diagnostic and therapeutic facilities under competent medical supervision.
8. Accurate, complete medical records, readily accessible for research and follow-up.
9. Regular group conferences of the administrative staff and of the medical staff for reviewing activities and results so as to maintain a high plane of scientific efficiency.
10. A humanitarian spirit—the primary consideration being the best care of the patient.

3,118 Approved

In all 3,118 hospitals in Canada and the United States have qualified for approval following the 29th annual survey completed on December 31st.

Dr. Irvin Abell of Louisville, president and chairman of the Board of Regents, commented that in 1946 more was expected in the way of conformance with the requirements than could be required during the war when certain insuperable difficulties prevailed. For the first time since hospital standardization was started by college in 1918 when only 89 hospitals were approved, there is a decline in the number of approved hospitals compared with the previous year. In 1945 the total was 3,181 approved hospitals, or 63 more than on December 31, 1946.

Ratepayers Endorse School Area Plan

The ratepayers of Marsh Hill School (S.S. 20 Sidney) turned out in force on Friday to vote unanimously in favor of Township School Areas. The meeting was held in the school house with Mr. Morley B. Sine presiding as chairman and Leslie Finkle acting as secretary.

Many questions on the larger school administration were directed to Public School Inspector R. H. Macklem who indicated that there were many advantages both to children as well as tax payers under the School Area system of running the schools.

Reeve Fred Campbell and Mr. Clifford Reid, chairman of S.S. 20 Thurlow, counted the ballots which showed that this progressive section wanted the best for the children.

Refreshments were served by the ladies of the section assisted by Mr. James Campbell, chairman of the Marsh Hill Board of Trustees.

The Experts Say . . .

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 25 (CP) — As far as 1947 is concerned it looks as if Canadian housewives will continue their trek from store to store, hoping to find a stray pound of shortening.

International trade in fats and oils this year is estimated at approximately 50 per cent of requirements and since Canada depends largely on imports for edible fats and oils we can expect continued shortages for some time.

Under the term "shortening," the Food and Drug Act of Canada includes "butter, lard or lard compound, or a combination of other edible vegetable or animal fats or edible oils."

Home economists of the consumer section, department of agriculture, say too many persons use the word "shortening" in too narrow a way. The economists think of lard, or home rendered and clarified fat, from pork, beef, veal, chicken or even browned drippings, as possible shortenings.

Rendered fat from pork, beef, veal or poultry may be used for baking or pan frying.

In roasting meats or poultry the excess fat should be poured off during cooking, leaving only sufficient fat in the pan for basting and later for gravy. In this way the fat is not darkened as much as it would be if left in the pan for the full roasting time. Such dripping may be used in meat and vegetable dishes and for pan frying.

Looking for something new with which to fill the cookie-jar? Here is a recipe for spiced drop cookies which has been tested by home economists of the department of agriculture.

Ingredients: one third cup clarified smoker or fresh pork fat (or other shortening); one-half cup brown sugar; one-half cup honey; one egg, well beaten; three-quarters cup thick unsweetened applesauce; one-half teaspoon baking soda; one-half teaspoon baking powder; two cups pastry flour (or 1¾ cups all-purpose flour); one-half teaspoon cinnamon; one-quarter teaspoon nutmeg; one-quarter teaspoon salt; one cup chopped raisins (optional.)

Cream fat and sugar thoroughly. Add honey, mixing well. Add egg and beat well. Add applesauce in which soda has been dissolved. Sift together the dry ingredients and add with the raisins to the creamed mixture. Drop by teaspoonful on a greased baking-sheet. Bake in a hot oven for 20 minutes. The quantity makes between five and six dozen.

Yum-yums are good as their name—Mix together 1¼ cups flour, one-half cup butter, two tablespoons brown sugar. Mix and pack in a square tin. Then mix 1½ cups brown sugar, one cup rolled cocoanut, one cup of nuts, two eggs well beaten, pinch of salt, one teaspoon vanilla. Spread on top of first mixture and bake in a moderate oven.

Fashion Flashes

JUST WONDERFUL are the new ensembles being prepared for Spring. A three-piece ensemble has a wrist-length cape in a two-tiered effect posed over a slim skirt of matching black wool. The gray and white striped wool jacket is shutter-pleated below a horizontally striped yoke. Tuxedo front of cape repeats jacket stripes.

Leather, Believe it or Not!

By PRUNELLA WOOD

EVEN RIPLEY would want a double-take on these gloves when it's revealed that they are leather, and not tweed as they seem to be. The effect is gotten by a new colorgraphic process which can reproduce anything a designer's heart can fancy, on the leather surface. And for keeps, too, as the colors are safely washable.

Another comeback is that of the fine fabric evening wrap, which is seen in brocade, in slipper satin, in lame, as well as in wool. Bright red woollen is used for a long, fitted wrap that drapes over one shoulder in a cascading scarf. Deep gauntlet cuffs and pointed back fullness are other accents of the coat which is lined in white satin.

Discernible trends for next season are visible in mid-season fur shows. New-looking is a greatcoat of a natural otter made with notched collar, turnback cuffs and pocket flaps. It is a double-breasted model with buttons of gold-rimmed brown suede.

Plain pretty is the word for many of the new Spring hats that eschew bizarre styling. A small, forward-posed, head-hugging hat of straw braid is trimmed in front with clusters of softly contrasting flowers, bows of moss-green velvet ribbon and a drape-scarf of harmonizing chiffon.

There's a new-look to an old fashion—the shirtwaist dress. A simple shirtwaist top of beige silk chiffon joins up with an all-around pleated skirt of beige silk crepe. Gold-mesh buttons on top, and gold-mesh tailored belt.

Nothing so pretty as the white organdie frock for very youthful party-goers. At a recent style show, a six-year-old stole the show with her beautiful white organdie frock with big puffed sleeves and a big bow sash of blue silk taffeta embroidered at the ends with pink silk rosebuds.

GUM ARABIC
10-17

If your hat veiling has gotten wet from a shower, dip it into a solution of gum arabic, which you can buy at your drug store. Dissolve one tablespoon of gum arabic in one cup of hot water. It may take an hour or two to completely dissolve. Dip the veiling in the solution and spread it flat on a towel to dry, keeping the edges straight. When dry, press it carefully with a warm iron. If the veiling is very fine, lay tissue paper over it before pressing.

St. Andrews U.C. Marks Year Of Activity

Marmora (Special)—Highly encouraging reports from the various organizations of St. Andrew's United Church were received at the annual congregational meeting held in the church on Wednesday evening under presidency of the pastor, Rev. E. M. Cadigan.

Conditions in Denmark

Rev. H. Christiansen of Springbrook gave an interesting address upon some of his experiences and impressions formed during a recent visit to his native Denmark after an absence of eighteen years. The destruction he had noted there was not so much the physical, he declared as that in the minds of the people. They were uncertain as to whom to stand by, those to the east of them or those to the west. One thing they were able to tell, however, was the difference between a German kid and a Nazi. As he encountered old friends he found an eagerness on their part to know something about Canada. There seemed to be a longing on the part of the youth to get away from Europe, but he felt there was a place for the young people in their own country to avail themselves of. Speaking of Norway and Sweden in conjunction with his own native land, the speaker said the people feel individually that they had a duty towards their neighbor. In his final remarks he mentioned that he took part in a memorial service for a Danish airman and on the occasion preached for the first time in his life in Danish in a centuries old church. "Christ has all the answers to all our troubles" he said in conclusion.

Progress of Congregation

In giving his report Rev. Mr. Cadigan said that he felt that the good spirit shown in 1946 would be hard to duplicate again. He commented most favorably on the services rendered by the senior and junior choirs and the valued work of Mrs. F. Litt the organist in that connection. He also reported that 237 had joined on profession of faith since the Crusade for Christ commenced, of which number 139 joined last year, 39 had also been received in membership at Zion Church on profession of faith. He called attention also to the formation of the Glee Club among the older ladies of the congregation in January 1946. This club meets once a month and its members are the best attendants proportionately at the church's services.

Women's Association

Two officers of the W.A. reported for that organization. The president, Mrs. T. Cousins mentioned that ten regular meetings and a special meeting were held last year with an average attendance of fifteen members Three circles function in Marmora and one in Deloro.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. F. R. Wells. Receipts were shown to be well over thirteen hundred dollars. Six hundred dollars had been allotted to the Church Board.

In the absence of Mrs. H. R. Haacke, who is ill, Mrs. H. A. Burwash gave the report of the W.M.S. There is a membership of twelve and the average attendance at meetings was ten. Eight regular and three special meetings were held in the past year. The year closed with all financial obligations met and a small balance on hand. A new report was next forthcoming, that of the Cubs. H. V. Forbes related that in the first year of their formation from October 15th 1945 to the end of June 1946, there were 36 boys in the movement. After payment of all expenses there was $4.75 on hand. From October 14th 1946 to January 20th 1947 the number of boys reduced owing to some having reached the retirement age. There were now 21 boys and with further expenses having been met, the balance on hand had reached $8.99.

The three choirs were next heard from through the following: Senior choir, Mrs. F. Litt; Junior choir, Mrs. T. Dickson; Deloro Junior choir, Mrs. H. C. Barlow.

E. C. Prentice reported for the Sunday School. The enrolment was 75 and the average attendance was 67. Receipts of $172.48 were about twenty-one dollars in excess of 1945. The year finished with a creditable balance on hand.

Speaking as chairman of the Pension Fund Committee, Gordon Jarvis had the gratifying statement to make that the objective of two thousand dollars had been passed to the extent of eighty-five dollars.

James Sproul for the Missionary and Maintenance, showed receipts for the year to be about 437 dollars enabling the church to give well as it met its allocation.

The treasurer's report was presented by A. W. Drew. It revealed that givings had been at a high mark and in addition to the meeting of annual obligations, it had been possible to appreciably reduce the debt. Zion Church was also mentioned as having increased its givings. At the close of the report a motion was passed that the splendid work of Gregor Murray as treasurer for the past five years, terminated through his removal to Madoc be noted in the minutes and that a letter of deep thanks be conveyed to him. The activities of the Glee Club were described by Mrs. A. H. Connor. She remarked that there was an average attendance of twelve at their meetings and that out of the money accruing from their fees, they had been able to have fruit and flowers sent to the shut-in and sick.

The activities of the C.G.I.T. and its fourteen members was reviewed by Mrs. T. Dickson.

Appointments

The appointment of session members and the Board of Stewards including replacement of retiring members resulted as follows:

WINS DECORATION

For "conspicuous aid to the people of Belgium and the government during the war," Mrs. Suzanne Silvercruys Stevenson, sculptress, of East Norwalk, Conn., is decorated with the Order of the Crown of Belgium, the highest honor the Belgian government can give a woman. The presentation was made by her brother, Baron Silvercruys, Belgian ambassador, during colorful ceremonies at a hotel in New York City. Mrs. Stevenson is well known in Ottawa, where her brother formerly served as Belgian ambassador.

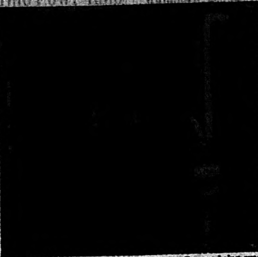
GEORGIA FLOOD MAKES "DISPLACED PERSONS"



Members of a marooned family in Rome, Ga., are being evacuated from their flooded home by boat. The Oostanaula and Etowah rivers, swollen by almost three weeks of rain, poured into the west section of the city and drove out at least 100 families and threatened some 500 others. A mix-up of orders, caused by dual control of Georgia's military department, delayed arrival of National Guard trucks ordered to Rome to aid evacuation of flood victims.

6,878 Ex-Servicemen Studying At Present for Varsity Entrance

Ottawa, Jan. 25 (CP) — A Veterans Affairs Department spokesman said Friday it was expected that by the end of August the number of former servicemen taking university-entrance training in Canada would be fewer than 500 and probably the present network of special schools would be replaced by one central school, probably at Toronto or Hamilton.

Should the number of students left to be trained for university by August make it uneconomical to provide a special school, they might be sent to high schools.

The deadline to apply for university-entrance training is fifteen months after discharge and the "peak of applications now is passed." However, there are still discharges to be considered and those desiring such training will be accommodated the spokesman said.

With the anticipated change in the vocational training plan the spokesman stressed that veterans moved to schools at other sites will be given free transportation. Married students living away from their wives will receive an additional living-away allowance. At present the university-training enrolment across Canada is 6,878. The peak was reached last July when nearly 14,000 ex-servicemen were enrolled.

Recently veteran students taking university-training at Brockville filed a protest resolution with the department charging the department was putting an eight-months' maximum on the course, a cut of one month. They charged that this move would reduce to six months the course of students who enrolled only this year.

The Brockville students claimed no man could fit himself for university with only six months' training and pointed out that in most Canadian high schools the course took five years.

A departmental spokesman said this was a misrepresentation of a departmental announcement. The program is not more restrictive now, but it was indicated that students failing to show progress would not be carried along.

It was stressed, however, that the student with low academic standing will be "seen through" the course so long as he shows he is making headway in his studies to enter university.

Fair Clippies Give up Busses For Saucepans

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(C. P. Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 25 (CP) — London has said farewell to the girl with the leather satchel and the clinking ticket puncher.

The few remaining "clippies"—girl bus conductors — have been compulsorily retired to make room for men returning to civilian transport with campaign ribbons showing against the sober blue of their tunics.

Back among the saucepans and breakfast dishes after four years as a "clippie" is dark, petite Doris Burns, 26, now keeping house for her ex-soldier husband at Richmond, Surrey.

"Sometimes when I'm washing up after dinner, putting the saucepans in their racks, I find myself murmuring 'Three on top and two downstairs.' It was fun while it lasted but I wasn't really sorry to quit. Too much rush and tear."

If she lives to be 100, Doris says she will never forget the workman who refused to get off her bus when she told him it was full.

Refused to Budge.

"He just stuck there on the stairs leading to the upper deck and refused to budge. And I refused to start the bus till he did. I suppose it was the old British bulldog spirit—refusing to give way. The bus waited nearly 10 minutes and the other passengers began to get annoyed. So I fetched a policeman.

"That did it. He got off and we went on. But when we reached Hammersmith an inspector bawled me out for being late."

Doris said what she dreaded most in the war were the flying bombs. There was no warning of their approach as they could not be heard above the noise of the bus.

"One night when we were passing through Kensington it seemed as if a giant had sneezed inside. Everything went 'woosh!' and I found myself sitting in a passenger's lap with half the people on the floor.

"A 'doodle-bug' had crashed across the street and it's a miracle we didn't turn over. All the windows were cracked but nobody was really hurt.

"But I was in a state of nerves for a week afterward and got a bit snappy with people who didn't offer the correct fare. Well, that's all over and done with now . . ."

CREAM REPRESENTS QUEBEC

Quebec, Jan. 25 (CP)—Four of 11 trophies up for competition in the 34th annual Province of Quebec bonspiel today were in the hands of victorious skips, with the spotlight held by R. C. Cream, who led his Quebec Victoria Victoria Curling Club No. 2 rink to a 12-3 victory over J. P. McKee's Montreal Heather Foursome to mark the fifth time Cream has won the British Consols trophy since it was donated in 1937.

Winner of the trophy, emblematic of Provincial Granite Curling supremacy, will represent Quebec Province in Macdonald Brier Tankard play to be held in Saint John, N.B., this year.

HARTUNG EXPECTS DISCHARGE

Houston, Texas, Jan. 25 (AP) —Clint Hartung, the Hondo, Tex. baseball star who brought $35,000 and four players from the New York Giants yet re-enlisted in the army, is ready to take a crack at predictions of two years ago which hailed him as another Babe Ruth.

The six-foot five-inch, 215-pound United States Army Air Forces sergeant expects his discharge within a few weeks but hopes to increase to about 260 before reporting to the Giants for spring training. He thinks a little extra weight will add to his hitting and throwing power. Which, publicity reports say, are in a superman class now.

Victor Sifton Honorary Colonel Ordnance Corps

Montreal, Jan. 25 (CP) — Victor Sifton, publisher of The Winnipeg Free Press and former Master General of Ordnance, today holds the commission of Honorary Colonel of The Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps.

The commission and an illuminated address, in recognition of Mr. Sifton's wartime work with the ordnance corps, were presented to the Winnipeg publisher Thursday night at a banquet marking the end of a day-long tour by 150 businessmen and military officials of the Ordnance Depot at suburban Longue Pointe.

Maj. Gen. J. H. McQueen, present Master General of Ordnance, made the presentation. Defence Minister Claxton and Lt. Gen. C. Foulkes, chief of General Staff, were among the guests.

Mr. Sifton paid tribute to the devotion of his former staff. He suggested establishment of a military college of science under the supervision of the Master General of Ordnance and emphasized the need for more technically-trained officers.

ESCAPES UNHURT

Alice Devine, 16, daughter of John Devine, wealthy grape shipper, of Lodi, Calif., was returned safe and unharmed to her parents after being kidnapped. This is a late picture of the girl posed with a cluster of grapes. The girl's father was reported to have found a ransom note on a woodpile in the rear of the family home after being directed to the woodpile by a mysterious phone call. The amount of the ransom was not disclosed.

Joe Laflamme Calls Wolves "His Friends"

Toronto, Jan. 25 (CP) —With three tame moose and a deer, Joe Laflamme, Gogama's most colorful inhabitant, arrived here Friday on another of his rare but conspicuous trips.

The sturdy French-Canadian with long flowing hair and beard streaked with grey, is en route to sportsman's shows in Montreal and major United States cities. He stopped here at the invitation of the Carling Conservative Club.

A lover of children—perhaps because so many mistake him for Santa Claus — Joe's ambition while in the city is to display his "wild tame friends" to adolescents.

On his last trip to Toronto several years ago he brought a pack of ten dogs and five wolves and tried to drive the obstinate animals down a downtown street. The dogwolf pack refused at times to follow a straight course, consequently tying up traffic.

The same thing happened on Broadway in New York in 1926 and traffic was snarled for blocks.

Joe shies and gives a backward wave of the hand when asked if he is recognized as mayor of Gogama, which is north of Sudbury. He was reported to have announced to the citizens of Gogama that he was now His Worship Mayor Joseph T. Laflamme and that not a dissenting voice was heard.

Since an illness which forced him to "take things easy", Joe, who says he was 58 last March, has not made much effort in the past few years to capture and tame more wolves, which he calls "his friends."

He does not hesitate to add however, that "they're like women—you can never really tame them."

Chaplain, Alter Boys and Mothers Feted by C.W.L.

Marmora (Special) — The executive of the Catholic Women's League were hostesses on Wednesday evening to their chaplain Rev. H. J. Farrell, the altar boys of Sacred Heart Church and the boy's mothers, at an entertainment in Sacred Heart School. The program opened with the president Mrs. J. Black welcoming the guests and assuring them of the great pleasure it afforded the executive to have the opportunity of entertaining them for the evening. The program consisted of games and contests for the boys and also a few contests for the ladies. Mrs. William Shannon won a song contest and Mrs. E. D. O'Connor won the prize for having the greatest number of articles in her purse. Mrs. Black read two appropriate poems entitled "The Sanctuary Boy" and "My Little Dog". Miss Mary Hughes gave a comic reading "A Boy's World."

Rev. Father Farrell then rendered two songs in his pleasing tenor "Danny Boy" and "The Rose of Tralee."

Mrs. Black gave a reading entitled "What William Henry Did" and Fernand Provost also gave a reading entitled "Benny Gets the Dominoes."

The boys were each presented with a crucifix and a cruciform medal in a leather case and each boys' mother also received a similar medal as a souvenir. The boys also received a copy of the poem "The Sanctuary Boy."

A delicious lunch was then served with the tables gaily decorated for the occasion.

Rev. Father Farrell then addressed the boys briefly and on behalf of the boys, Carl Johnston tendered a hearty vote of thanks to the ladies and Mrs. Fred Johnston expressed the thanks and appreciation of the mothers.

ONE-MAN SHOW

New York, Jan. 25 (CP)—Raymond Duncan presented a three-act play here last night which possibly outdid all previous dramatic efforts in concentration on a single subject.

The subject was Duncan himself; the eccentric brother of the late Isadora Duncan wrote, produced, handled the simple sets—and played all the parts in the "play," which he said was the story of his life. He even played the part of a French crowd.

Duncan, 72, recently arrived in New York from Paris where he spent many years as an expatriate. His sister Isadora in the 20s created a form of dancing which was widely publicized as being a modern adaptation of ancient Greek forms. Duncan is noted for the fact that he invariably wears a homespun Greek toga, sandals and shoulder-length hair.

Holloway Street Church Reports Excellent Year

On Wednesday evening, the members and adherent of Holloway Street United Church gathered in the basement for the annual meeting. After a short devotional period conducted by Mr. Wm. Slavin, the pastor, Rev. Chas. A. Perkins, reviewed the work of the past year, speaking particularly of the highlights. Previous to this meeting a compiled report showing the finances and activities of each organization had been given to the people. "This report," said the pastor, "suggests co-operation, hard work, loyalty and a desire to share with others the good things of life. It has been a year of notable endeavor and progress, both in material and spiritual things."

During the year 73 were received into the fellowship of the church. During the same period 19 were removed—ten by letter and 9 by death. The names of the latter were read by the pastor and the congregation stood in silence after which prayer was offered.

An outstanding highlight of the year's work had to do with the special effort on the part of the Crusade group. The name "Home Visitation Evangelism" reveals something of the requirements and demands placed upon those who engaged in such a splendid endeavor for the Kingdom of God. Not only did the Crusaders receive a blessing themselves but were able to be a blessing.

New Heating Plant.

One of the material highlights of the year was the installation of the new heating plant and the final payment for the same. Said the pastor: "All of us recognize the fact that a strong church—a church best equipped to do the best work must have features of physical attractiveness such as a comfortable building well heated and ventilated. When the repairs, made necessary by the installation of the new heating plant and now under way, are completed the members and adherents of this congregation will enjoy worshipping in just such a church."

Mr. Perkins then made reference to the choir. "No organization," said he, "is more needed than the choir in the work of the church. It leads in the service of song. It helps provide the setting for worship. It creates a fellowship." He paid a personal tribute to the leaders and members for their splendid assistance throughout the year and challenged any possessing the talent and not already in the choir to come and help.

The report of the nominating committee was presented by Mr. A. Campbell with Mr. Allan Lennox reading the names. As no further nominations were received from the floor, it was moved and duly seconded that nominations close. The secretary was then instructed to cast a ballot for the following:

Elders, elected for three years —T. Ketcheson, O. Denyes, W. Potter, F. Elgie, J. Scriven.

Stewards, elected for three years—G. Dobbs, J. White, W. Jones, T. Poste, B. Moorman, B. Mason, L. Hopkins.

Special Program.

Throughout the evening special musical numbers were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. E. Moynes, Mrs. E. Hubbs and Mr. Wm. Connor, and the Y.M.C.A. Boys' Choir. In addition to these numbers a technicolor film showing a number of interesting scenes in connection with a recent congregational meeting, when the notes were burned signifying that the heating plant was completely paid for, was presented by Mr. A. Campbell, while Rev. T. Buchanan, a missionary from India through the same medium depicted something of his work among the Bhils in that distant land.

At an opportune time Mr. G. T. Woodley voiced the appreciation of the congregation for the splendid leadership given by the pastor and his wife. He made particular reference to the sermons preached Sunday after Sunday, saying, they are challenging, thought-provoking, definitely evangelistic and helpful.

A tasty lunch was then served by members of the Energetic Club and the splendid congregational meeting was concluded.

ROMAN BATH

Shortage of electric power at pumping stations often causes a shortage of water in Rome. So if you happen to be there when there is such a shortage — just do what the Romans do. Three-year-old Marinella Scarnati is doing it here. She has bathed in the minimum of water and is getting the final rinse with a saucepan of water poured over her by her mother.

VERBAN A HOLDOUT

Philadelphia, Jan. 25 —(CP)— General Manager Herb Pennock of the Philadelphia Phillies had his fifth holdout on his hands today—second baseman Emil Verban.

Verban, asking more money, returned his contract unsigned to the Phils yesterday and Pennock let loose with a statement about all his dissatisfied baseball players. (Pitchers Schoolboy Rowe and Tommy Hughes and outfielders Ron Northey and Del Ennis are the other Phil holdouts.)

"EARLIEST and BEST" TOMATO

Introduced by us several years ago and by sheer merit it has outsold all other varieties among both home and commercial growers each season, in every part of Canada. Customers repeatedly tell us "Earliest and Best" is still better than we claim. Produces large, beautiful, solid, perfect shipping tomatoes, earlier than any other variety. High grown type without core, and most beautiful red with finest flavour. No cripples, scalds, cracked, wrinkled, uneven, scarred fruit, and often ten fruits in a cluster. Amazing yielder. "Giant-Killing" Rangers Seek to Enhance N.H.L. Reputation by Beating Leafs

Only Four Games Scheduled This Weekend and Leafs Could Increase Margin

(By The Canadian Press)

The "Giant Killers" of the National Hockey League, Frankie Boucher's New York Rangers, will tackle the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs tonight in an attempt to enhance their reputation by handing the Leafs the third-straight setback in meeting between the two.

The fourth-place Rangers, who tumbled the Leafs 3-2 and 2-0 in their last two clashes, will have a little extra at stake because with a bit of luck they could pass the Boston Bruins' third position this weekend.

One point ahead of the blueshirts, the Bruins play two weekend contests—against the second-Canadiens at Montreal tonight and at home against the fifth-place Detroit Red Wings Sunday night. With Milt Schmidt, starry centre, out of action the Bruins may be hard put to it in both clashes.

Schmidt aggravated a back-injury in the Bruins Wednesday night game with Montreal, when the Canadiens inflicted a 4-3 setback on Boston, and did not make the trip to Montreal." Club officials said he may be able to play against the Red Wings however.

Veteran Bill Cowley, himself just recovered from an injury, will take over Schmidt's centre spot between Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart.

The Rangers, only team in the six-club circuit to hold an edge over the second-place Canadiens in season's meetings, still would show a debit balance to the Leafs even should they win tonight's contests The Leafs whipped them five straight times before New York's victories in the last two meetings.

With only four games scheduled on the weekend, two each night, Toronto are the only club beside Boston who make a double stand. The Leafs will attempt to enhance their six-point edge over Montreal when they go on to Chicago to meet the last-place Black Hawks after the Saturday night game in Toronto.

Term Given For Deceptive Advertising

Brantford, Jan. 25 (CP) —Wm. Judson Bernard, 33, Toronto promoter of a dance and floor show here last New Year's eve yesterday was sentenced by Magistrate R. J. Gillen to serve six months in the Ontario Reformatory after his conviction on a charge of causing to be published advertisements for promotion of the dance that contained statements "untrue, deceptive and misleading."

When Bernard appeared in court last week he pleaded guilty to that charge and elected trial by a higher court on charges of stealing a micraphone and gross indecency.

He was arrested January 1st. and had been in custody since.

WALLY MASTERS NAMED COACH OTTAWA TROJANS

Announcement Probably Means "New Deal" for Luckless Club

Ottawa, Jan. 25 (CP)—Bold challenge for football supremacy came out of the Ontario Rugby Football Union cellar today with the announcement that Wally Masters, famous United States college backfielder and former Rough Rider star in the big four has signed to coach Ottawa Trojans in 1947.

The announcement apparently meant a "new deal" for the luckless Trojans who fought gamely through their O.R.F.U. schedule season without winning a game and drew such pitiful home crowds that their home games were curtailed.

Masters, besides being a top-notch mentor who knows Canadian football thoroughly, has solid American connections and would be a valuable import-selector should Trojans decide to go in for U. S. players.

Masters will arrive here tomorrow from Philadelphia and establish residence in Ottawa.

Dave Sprague, manager of the Trojans, intimated the club has "three or four" players in mind, including two backfielders who previously have played Canadian football, an American blocking guard, and a "good Canadian end" who played on eastern circuits last fall.

"Ninety per cent of last year's team will be back," he said, "but it won't be like last year."

"Last season we had only youngsters—high school men. they matched other teams in statistics, but they couldnt score. There was nobody a man could look up to for support— they were 11 rookies."

Promised New Deal

In 1947, Dave promised, it will be different.

"There are six teams in the O.R.F.U., and we won't be last," he said, with the air of a man making an understatement.

Masters is no stranger here and though he played only four games of Canadian football, his prowess on cleats is well-remembered.

Now nearing 40, Masters came to Ottawa as one of the earliest American imports, in 1932, accompanied by Swede Carlsen, another U. S. star. After playing four games, for Ottawa Rough Riders, both were suspended by the Big Four as professionals.

After that, Masters coached the Rough Riders the following season, and stuck around to manage a St. Lawrence baseball league team and Ottawa Senators of the Canadian-American league, calling on his experience as a professional pitcher with Washington Senators of the American League and other minor league ball teams.

Before leaving for Philadelphia in 1935, Wally also coached St. Patrick's College footballers in the local high school curcuit.

As coach of the Trojans, Masters repaces Arnie McWatters, who recently announced he would be unable to handle the Trojan bench this year because of the many hours the job demanded from his work.

CLUBS BATTLING FOR HIGH STAKES IN FOUR GAMES

Results Will Directly Affect Stands in East and West Divisions

(By The Canadian Press)

A half dozen American Hockey League clubs will be battling for high stakes in crucial weekend games the outcome of which directly affects their stands in the eastern and western divisions.

Particularly in the western section where but five points separate fourth place from first, the stands may see quite a bit of juggling. Cleveland Barons, western divison leaders, will be out to increase their single game lead over Indianapolis Capitals in a pair of road games against Springfield Indians Saturday night and New Haven's Ramblers Sunday.

Indianapolis Caps, with their high-scoring stars Les Douglas and Cliff Simpson challenging for the individual league scoring honors, take on the eastern division leading Hershey Bears Saturday on Hershey ice and then return home for a Sunday game with the fourth-place Providence Reds.

Providence has a Saturday night game at St. Louis. A sweep of their weekend series would catapult the Reds into the all-important third place spot in the eastern division which Springfield holds by a half game.

Buffalo Bisons travel to Philadelphia for a Saturday night affair with the lowly Rockets and then take on the up-and-coming Pittsburgh Hornets in Buffalo Sunday.

The Hornets, fourth place western division club, have a Saturday contest at home with New Haven and are a game behind the Bisons.

Sports Shorts from Britain

By JACK SULLIVAN
(C.P. Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 25 (CP) — Suggestion by Sir Patrick Dolan, chairman of the Scottish fuel efficiency committee, that football associations in Britain ban midweek games as an aid to coal production, will not be carried out by the English Football Association.

Secretary S. F. Rous said association officials have had regular conferences with government authorities, "and they have raised no objection to midweek matches."

Rous said Saturday replays of English Cup matches would cause postponement of league matches which, in turn, would have to be played in midweek later in the season.

The Scottish Football Association decided any replays necessary should be played on Saturdays and this action brought a letter of congratulation from Prime Minister Attlee, who added that the government was giving attention to the effects of midweek sporting events on coal production.

One of the most disappointed entrants for the Women's World and European figure-skating championships at Davos, Switzerland, was Britain's champion Daphne Walker.

Her hard-luck story started last December, just before the British championships at London's Wembly Stadium, when she sprained a tendon in her ankle. A tight bandage and lots of pluck enabled her to carry on and win the title.

She went to Prague, Czechoslovakia, to give an exhibition and aggravated the injury. X-ray examination revealed an ankle bone had been chipped and now she is limping around Switzerland, impatient for the day when she can don skates again.

The championships, with Barbara Ann Scott, of Ottawa, a contender, start January 31.

Russia has made a move to cleanse its football of rough tactics.

The all-union committee on affairs of physical culture and sport said recently that changes have been made in the Soviet rules to "help referees carry out a decisive struggle against any appearance of roughness on the football field."

It announced also a warning will be given for interference, with a "penalty throw" for purposeful delay or simulating injury. A second offender will be sent off the field.

The report from the Soviet coincided with calls by some British sports writers and cluf officials to clean the game in Britain.

NAMED PLAYER OF YEAR

New York, Jan. 25 (AP)—Stan Musial of St. Louis Cardinals, National League batting champion and most valuable player, has been named player-of-the-year for 1946 by the New York Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association and will receive the Sid Mercer Memorial award at the chapter's annual dinner and show Feb. 2.

The award named in honor of the late Sid Mercer, former chapter member, will be tendered Musial for his "outstanding achievements as a batsman and his rich contributions in skill and sportsmanship to baseball."

Sports Roundup

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 25 — (CP) — After some of the most dolorous sportspage comments in recent years on the future of professional athletics, the National Football League has made commissioner Bert Bell a "czar" with similar powers to those of the late baseball boss, Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis . . . The move is not surprising as sports writers throughout the United States have warned professional sports leaders that a few more scandals such as the New York Giants' "fix" plot would kill games as box office attractions . . . As athletics became a major industry gambling syndicates also rose until they threatened to overshadow the very games of which they are an outgrowth . . . No pro football is taking steps to get back in the driver's seat . . . Other sports may follow suit, including baseball where Judge Landis' stern rule has given way to the benign leadership of Happy Chandler . . .

How's that Again?

Rocky Graziano, the New York middleweight, says he will knock out champion Tony Zale in the first round of their return bout for the title . . . Seems to us we heard a rumor that Zale knocked out Graziano in their first meeting last fall . . . But "The Rock" is an optimistic bloke . . . Although he built much of his reputation fighting welterweights, he adds: "I'll fight anyone — heavyweights —anybody, especially Zale."

Grove or Hubbell?

Bell (N. Y. Journal-American) Corum says in a column analyzing the four new choices for baseball's Hall of Fame that Lefty Grove was a better pitcher than King Carl Hubbell . . . Says Bell: "The mealticket of the Giants had a greater appeal to the public. He was the people's pitcher and they loved him, as they should have because he was superb. But when Grove whipped that jump ball at a batter off the end of the buggy-whip left arm . . . Well, then, he was feeding 'em something to remember him by. And they have."

Corum notes that the other two new Hall-of-Famers — Mickey Cochrane and Frankie Frisch — were among the best football players in American college history . . . Mickey played for Boston U.; Frisch with Fordham . . .

Boxing's Tragedy

Dan (N. Y. Mirror) Parker yesterday devoted his entire column to similar comments on boxing to those made in this space . . . Parker scathingly denounced fight managers who ruthlessly exploit their youngsters and mentioned, in particular, one Joe Matone, who is paralyzed on the left side, deserted by his managers and cut off the Sport Alliance relief fund after getting $150 in three payments . . . Said Parker: "Joe Matone must have been a sick boy the night he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage in a Philadelphia ring. His managers must have had small regard for what happened to him when they booked him for the four 10-rounders in four successive weeks. . . . If Joe Matone had been stopped in time by a manager, a doctor or a boxing commission who had some concern about the boy's future, he might not be a cripple today."

Scarface Capone Critically Ill

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 25 (AP)—Scarface Al Capone lay critically ill today in his 25-room villa on nearby Palm Island, and one of two physicians in attendance said he doubted if the former Chicago gang leader would recover.

The pudgy ex-gangster, who suffered a stroke of apoplexy Tuesday, took a sudden turn for the worse yesterday and a specialist said he had contracted pneumonia in both lungs.

"I doubt very seriously if there is a chance for recovery," said Dr. Arthur J. Logie, chest specialist. "It is impossible to say how long he will last."

ONLY TWO POINTS SEPARATE FOUR TEAMS IN LOOP

Owen Sound Defeats Hamilton Pats; Stratford Beats Staffords

(By The Canadian Press)

Apart from the Hamilton Tigers a terrific race developed today in the Ontario Hockey Association's five-team senior "A" group. The Tigers, eastern senior champs, naturally were still far in front, their first defeat of the season Wednesday at Owen Sound having made only a minor dent in their 18-game record.

But only two points separated the other four teams today. Owen walloped the Hamilton Pats 4-2 and Stratford Indians scored another 4-2 triumph over Toronto Staffords in Friday night's other game.

That leaves Tigers, at 34 points, just 10 games ahead of Hamilton Pats, Owen Sound and Toronto Staffords, all tied at 14, and Stratford Indians two points farther back.

The veteran Chuck Shannon, bespectacled defenceman, and goalie Keith Woodall were heroes of the Mohawks' triumph at Hamilton. Shannon scored two goals and Boddy got the other two, but Woodall came up with sensational saves against Pats' sharpshooters in all three periods. He missed only on shots by Gluck in the second and Tim Smelle in the third.

At Stratford the Indians got two quick goals and Staffords promptly equalled them. They went through the second period without a goal, and then Stratford got the clinchers in the last frame.

Wally Zuke got the first two Stratford goals and when Bill Walsh was sent off for holding Staffords took prompt advantage, McKeown and Roubell scoring. In the third period Walt Scherer of Stratford was in the cooler when Stratford got the winner, a goal from Sparky Weller. Elmer Steele made it 4-2 before the five-minute mark, and from there on Stratford showed a strong defence against Staffords' aggressive rushes.

Today it's the juniors' turn, with a jackpot on points. Both games at Toronto are four-point fixtures, Stratford Kroehlers at Toronto Young Rangers and the mighty St. Mikes at Toronto Marlboros. There's four points hung up also for the St. Catharines Falcons at Windsor Spitfires encounter. Oshawa Generals clash at Galt Red Wings in tonight's other game.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

A furious debate over the future of sport in England is developing in the walks of a recently concluded nine-game hockey series between a touring United States amateur team and one composed of English all-stars. Though the series was a financial success—gross take was $80,000—and England won five of the nine games, criticism has been levelled at the manner in which the English team was selected. Believing the American team to be a set-up after losing four of six games in Sweden, the British Ice Hockey Association fielded a team of native sons. When the Americans tied the first and then won three straight games, England was strengthened with resident Canadians and won the last five games.

The News Chronicle took a gloomy view, saying British hockey was "at the cross roads." Joining the critics, proud Scots claimed the association had overlooked five good amateurs from the Highlands.

Tami Mauriello, the Bronz Bulldozer, scored a technical K. O. over John Thomas, New York Negro heavyweight, after flooring him four times in the first round and three times in the second at Detroit last night. The referee stopped the fight after the seventh knockdown. Mauriello weighed 201, Thomas 192.

Frankie Frisch, former Pittsburgh and St. Louis Cardinals manager and recent addition to baseball's Hall of Fame, said yesterday at New York he was not going to join the Brooklyn Dodgers' organization. Branch Rickey, Dodgers' president, said Thursday he could use Frisch.

The crack Toronto Malvernette Club relay team, winner of the United States indoor title the last three seasons, last night won the women's relay race in the Philadelphia Inquirer track and field meet at Convention Hall in Philadelphia. The Malvernettes covered four laps on the 12-laps-to-the-mile track in 1:14.3. Tuskegee Institute was second and Philadelphia Turners third.

MAY GRADE FIGHTERS

New York, Jan. 25 —(AP)— The campaign to do away with fighters who wind up walking on their heels took a new twist today with a proposal to have beak-busters graded like race horses.

The idea came from Dr. Cilian B. Powell, member of the new York State Athletic Commission grade ear-scramblers under five classifications, depending on what they've done in the ring. It would range from world champions in a class "A," down to class "E" boxers who have won fewer than 20 matches. Powell would bar from the ring altogether fighters who have lost 15 bouts in a row.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 25 — (CP) — It may just be that this is Jack Adams' last year standing back of Detroit Red Wings players' bench as manager-coach in the National Hockey League. He loves it, just as he loves life generally, but after all these years Adams is said to be about ready to devote himself to the business end of the club.

The way Red Wings are not flying this season is hardly likely to inspire Adams to stay on the coaching bench and out on the road with the team if he doesn't have to and the word is that Tommy Ivan of Brantford, may coach the Wings come another season.

This was the dope Jack (London Free Press) Park picked up a year ago and he says now:

"Judging by developments along the hockey front in the past month or so it would not be making too wild a guess that our prediction of last season may become a fact when the 1947-48 campaign opens."

Ivan, so the grapevine said last fall, was offered the Detroit job under Adams last fall but chose to guide Indianapolis of the American Hockey League. He's done so well there he should manage the vault into the N.H.L. without too great strain.

Up in Ontario's north they'll be happy to hear that little Maxie Bennett, the Cobalt boy who helped Sudbury to a junior hockey championship as a linemate of Canadiens' Toe Blake, has landed right side up in Buffalo. He's on a full-time contract to the Buffalo Bisons hockey club assigned to coach Buffalo youngsters in hockey's arts and aid the Buffalo Municipal League in any way he can. Maxie, a blond pocket-sized thunderbolt was always a shade too small to make the N.H.L. but Ivan (Hamilton Spectator) Miller recalls how, as a Syracuse star, he scored the winning goal after 132 minutes 41 seconds in a play-off against Cleveland in 1938.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge experts use some method of ace-and-king showing in their search of slams. In vogue are three types; cue bidding, Blackwood, and The Kibitzer convention.

Cue bidders show specific aces, kings, voids, singletons. First they agree on a trump suit. Then they start telling each other the controls they have in key suits.

Blackwood pairs exchange information until one of them sees a slam possibility. Then they show their quantity of aces. After that, if necessary, they show their quantity of kings.

The Kibitzer users first agree on a trump suit and discover at least 12 tricks in their pair. Then they show their quantity of aces and kings together in code replies to four no-trump.

We have been messing with this deal:

NORTH
♠K 7 3
♥Q 6 5
♦A J 5 4
♣K Q 7

WEST	EAST
♠A 9 4 2	♠Q J 10 8 6 5
♥9 4	♥10 8 2
♦K 10 9 8	♦3
♣9 5 2	♣J 10 3

SOUTH
♠None
♥A K J 7 3
♦Q 7 6 2
♣A 8 6 4

South opens with a heart; north responds two diamonds; south rebids two hearts; north then jumps his assist to four hearts.

By this time south has discovered two of the three essentials that give a player slambitions. He has found a satisfactory trump suit and has discovered a total of 12 tricks in their pair. The third need is to learn if they have enough aces and kings. So, he bids four no-trump. With Kibitzer replies, this requires north to state in one answer how many aces and kings he has.

The reply here is five spades; signal for showing only one ace and two kings. This tells south that a grand slam is dangerous. It warns him to be content to go to and stop at six hearts.

When south played this hand at six hearts, west came out with an opening lead of a club. Consider how south was able to take his 12 needed tricks.

It is not as easy as it looks.

150 DEPOSIT BOXES TAKEN

New York, Jan. 25 —(AP)— Eight bandits held up employees of Silver's Baths in Coney Island early today and carried off 150 deposit boxes containing valuables belonging to the guests who slept soundly through it all.

Unable to determine the amount of loot, detectives questioned guests as they awoke, listing their claims.

The Baths, with their overnight accommodations, are popular because of the hotel-shortage.

The Movie Column

By TOM KENNEDY
(C. P. Staff Writer)

"Sinbad The Sailor," starring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Maureen O'Hara, is basically the story that has been told several times a year ever since the era of the nickelodion.

Nonetheless, like its predecessors, it has a redeeming feature. It's pleasant to look at, which is better than being original, dull and ugly-looking as some more pretentious films areas.

Maureen O'Hara comes thru as the usual proud beauty who does not say much. Her job is to look beautiful and she does it extremely well.

Bogart at it Again.

Prohibition-bootlegging and the petty gangsters are gone. But Humphrey Bogart lingers on, still portraying the bad-mannered little man with predilections for killing other little men for no good reason at all.

The latest in series of characters gone wrong is "Dead Reckoning," with Bogart as a former United States army paratrooper out to "get even" with someone who "done his buddy wrong." You've heard the story before. It's been told before. Next in the series: "Dark Passage" with Humphrey and Lauren (The Look) Bacall, much shooting and little good manners.

More and Better Snow.

England's Gainsborough studios recently sent an expedition to the French Alps to evaluate the area as a possible setting for "Snowbound." The expedition cabled back suggesting that Ontario would be a better setting. Ontario at the time was neck-deep in the aftermath of a blizzard.

Certificate of Heroic Action

Toronto, Jan. 25 — (CP)—For "heroic action and presence of mind" in the rescue of a woman from Lake Ontario last March, Thomas Jamieson, of Toronto, was presented with the Royal Canadian Humane Association certificate by the Police Commission yesterday.

AT THE CAPITOL — William Elliott, Donald Barry, Joseph Schildkraut and Charles Judels, shown in an exciting scene from "Plainsman and the Lady," Republic's exciting new picture, a colorful epic of the days of the early west, which opens Monday at the Capitol Theatre. The added hit, "Below the Deadline," stars Warren Douglas and Ramsay Ames. Both attractions are being shown for the first time in Belleville.

AT THE BELLE — Way up in the lead in popularity are Tom Drake and Elizabeth Taylor featured with that M.G.M. "Wonder Dog," "Lassie," in the new Technicolor outdoor drama, "Courage of Lassie." Early stardom is predicted for both of these talented youngsters. "Courage of Lassie," opens at the Belle today, ending on Wednesday.

WILL HANDLE QUICKLY

Ottawa, Jan. 25 (CP)—Appeal of the case of Mrs. Evelyn Dick to the Supreme Court of Canada will, if it is take nup, be dealt with experitiously, it was learned here today.

It was understood that the case, now awaiting application for leave of appeal, likely will be dealt with by a Supreme Court Justice in the near future and, if it is upheld, the appeal will be heard during the forthcoming sittings of the Supreme Court opening Feb. 4.

Should the case com eup during these sittings it is likely a judgment will be handed down before the sittings end in March.

WANT MORE GAME WARDENS

Woodstock, Jan. 25 (CP).—Oxford County Council yesterday filed a resolution of the Victoria County Council which urged the employment of more full-time game wardens and the tightening of regulations against illegal fishing. Council also decided to take no action on the resolution of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham which sought to have the $2,000 minimum income tax exemption allowed Members of Parliament granted to all workers in Canada.

CHAPTER 15

When Elissa came in ,she said, "I had a leter from Christa today. She's going to be at Louise's party, too. That should climax a lot of things."

Arlen opened her eyes on the first Christmas spent away from the house in Ruxton. She had decided against going home, knowing that her presence would be to much like a test of her father's affections, his daughter on one side, his second wife on the other and that all Karen's elaborate plans for parties would be upset with her stepdaughter in the house.

The studio-living room was decorated with holly, a wreath was hung at the broad window, and a small artificial tree trimmed in silver and red perched tentatively on the table.

Breakfast was a feast of waffles and maple syrup.

"Christa is in New York," said Elissa. "You had gone to bed when she called last night."

"You and Christa have been friends a long time. You don't have to apologize to me, Elissa if you want to see her."

"She said that Renny met her and she's staying at a hotel. Renny's mother threatens to leave if she comes to the apartment. Her voice had the same lazy drawl. It always whines a little," Elissa lighted a cigarette and put her elbows on the table." I wonder what she is up to. She wants me to come to see her today. First, of course, you can Julian and I are going to dinner."

"I told you I wouldn't be the third party. No, you go out with Julian and I'll rest and go to dinner about six."

At one Julian came, dressed in new clothes, and he and Elissa went out..

At five o'clock, after a long lonely afternoon visualizing scenes between Renny and Christa, and Elissa and Christa. Elissa defending her, the telephone rang and Arlen heard Rupert's voice.

"Get your hat he said," "We're going to a party."

"I'd better dress first, Rupert. What kind of party is it?"

"They call it a cocktail party but I doubt if we get anything to eat. Reporters, artists, and a few cartoonists thrown in. What are you doing alone on Christmas afternoon? Didn't the plane buzz up from Virginia?"

Arlen said, "No. Instead, a boat came from Europe."

"You're talking in riddles, again I'll grab a cab and be right up."

Arlen said, "Thank you, Rupert," and he wondered why her voice sounded so grateful.

In a suite at her hotel, Christa Maynard's strange eyes were live coals. Elissa sat stiffly, angrily. Her rebellious bangs had been blown askew by the wind.

"Renny's mother won't see me!" Christa cried in the tones of an outraged child "She threatens to leave town and take Allison with her if I try to see her. Allison is my child. Oh, if only I had not come back I could create a nice scandal. I could sue for divorce and name the Leeds girl as correspondent."

"Yes," Elissa retorted sharply, "and have every mother in the country threaten to lynch you for deserting your child' Arlen—correspondent! You make me laugh, Christa. Arlen has been out with him once.'

Christa turned on a high heel. "And you? What a nice mess you've made of things. All my friends have been faithful, and now I come back and find you living with this girl."

"Who knows more about faithfulness than you'll ever know." Elissa relaxed and looked at her calmly. "Christa, did you come back for a divorce or because you are tired of Paris, or Paris is tired of you, and you want Renny for a refuge?"

Christa lifted her arrogant head "I came back to get a divorce. Jake McLean is in love with me. But I'm not going to vanish as easily as that. I'm not going to have Renny's mother and Richard and Arlen Leeds think they're driving me back. That would be simple, wouldn't it? Renny wants me back, I'm his wife."

"How do you know he wants you back? Because he was courteous to you, because he kissed you when you stepped off the boat? You ought to know that out of respect he'd do that."

"You're here only because you want to take back to that girl what I say."

"You asked me to come. How do you know Arlen loves Renny?"

"Fanny wrote me. She had the loyalty to tell me what you wouldn't tell me—that Arlen Leeds wants Toby, too, and Renny, a married man."

"I'd like to remind you," said Elissa with a bored air, "that you are talking like a Puritan spinster. A married man indeed! And what have you been doing for a year? You are married and your new romance has progressed to a proposal of marriage. Christa don't be tiresome. Don't be naive. You'd be doing the gallant thing for every one concerned to get a quiet divorce and go back."

"I won't be humiliated by being discarded to the delight of you and all Renny's friends."

Wouldn't it be more humiliating if Renny got a divorce from you? He could. I dare say. If you want to be defiant about it, if you want to leave the mess you've created with triumph, then take action before Renny takes it. Christa, you can't fight the right thing. Decency will come out on top every time. Nothing you can do or say will will change Arlen's feelings toward Renny. Fifty years from now she'll still love him. You're only punishing yourself, this Jake McLean, and half a dozen other people who deserve to be happy."

"Im going to Louise's party with Renny."

"You probably invited yourself. Richard gets red in the face when your name is mentioned."

"Louise doesn't hate me. I asked Renny to take me."

"And put him such a position he couldn't refuse." Indignation lighted Elissa's brown eyes." You want to go and flaunt at Arlen and Richard and all the guests a faithful husband, a lover in the background, and a new dress from Paris."

"You've never talked to me this way before," Christa said.

"There are a lot of things I never did before," Elissa replied. "For instance working in a gift shop, living in a two by four apartment, cooking my own meals, and being in love with a boy who takes me to a movie occasionally. I'm doing all those things, and I'm happy. I'm going to marry Julian Heywood at Easter. He asked me today at dinner We're going west and buy a ranch. I'm sick of taking advice from people who don't know how to live their own lives, who look upon love as a meal ticket and a one-way passage to Paris. You can write a happy ending to the story of an orphan who wore hand-me-down clothes and kept up a proud front when her heart was breaking. I'm going to be happy if I have to live on raw carrots and sleep on a straw bed."

Elissa looked up. "Christa, the happiness of several people depends upon which way you make up your mind, which is about as dependable as the wind."

"I'm sorry we had to argue like this, Elissa. No one can see my side. I've been terribly unhappy."

"You'll know when you divorce Renny that you've lost your best friend." Elissa got up and buttoned her sport coat. "I dare say he'll make a generous settlement on you."

Christa looked troubled. "Elissa, forgive me for being so upset and angry. and do come again."

"This is the only time in my life I ever felt superior to you. You always made me feel so small and plain and—wrong."

There were not chairs sufficient to seat the stream of peope who constantly came in, profuse with holiday greetings. It did not matter if one were not introduced to the person next to one, for the stranger either wrote a column or a dramatic criticism or might be a lowly cub reporter. Tonight red-haired Rupert Law was a target for only mild interest in comparison with that focussed upon the girl he had brought with him. People whispered, "Look he even has a hair cut and his suit is pressed. He's wearing a different necktie too—a brand new one."

Rupert said to Arlen, "You're in the spotlight. I'm always in the spotlight because I hate it. Gossip will say that Rupert Law brought a gorgeous blonde to a party and will immediately dig into your past."

"My past is unblemished," said Arlen, "except that once I was sent to the principal for pulling a girl's pigtails, once I mistook the clergyman for a salesman, and once the car actually did run out of gas. Will they ask for my autograph, do you suppose?"

"If they ask me, I'll tell them you have a dual personality," said Rupert, taking another cocktail. "One personality makes clever retorts and the other is a worried young woman. I've seen you meditative, my dear Arlen, and you have what is commonly known as a load on your mind. What, more people coming in. And the drinks are getting weaker and there's nothing to eat. Let's go some place else some place where we can talk if we can fight our way through this mob."

They went to a deserted alcove of a hotel balcony.

"Look here," said Rupert, "I like to help people, particularly beautiful maidens in distress. I understand you Arlen. You don't like to hurt people because you know what it means to be hurt. You're supersensitive and there's a streak of the Salvation Army lass in you that makes you like to be needed."

"There's a boy who loves me" she said, "and I have a week to make up my mind whether I'll marry him. He's weak because nothing has ever been done to make him strong. He never saved the best part of the cake until last. For all his jaunty airs realism terrifies him."

"What did the boat coming to New York have to do with it?" he asked with a cigarette between his lips.

"It brought back the wife of the man I love. That I know, Rupert. I love him."

"And what a laugh people would get if they knew I'd turned out to be a heart-throb column! Listen to me, don't marry the boy who needs you. Don't accept half measures, Arlen. All or none, I say. Never marry a man to reform him. I despise men who put their heads on woman's shoulders and ask them to make men of them. When you marry, put your security and happiness in the hands of a man and lean on him! Don't let your shoulder be the leaning place for a weakling. Am I hard and arrogant? Yes! They've been my weapons. I'll despise you if you make more of a coward of a boy who is already a coward."

(To Be Continued)

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating lam stew for dinner, nothing exter but better than fish, and I said, Hay, ma, can I have anything I want for supper on my berthday?

Your berthday is still in the dim future for land sakes, ma said. You've got plenty of time ahead of you to worry about what you're going to eat, she said, and I said, I'm not worrying. ma, I'm just planning. You allways give pop liver and onions on his berthday, so why cant I have my choice on mine? I said.

I believe the boy has quite a point there, pop said, and I said, Sure I have, ma. So can I, ma, cant I? I said.

Oh, I dont see any reason why you cant choose the menu, when the time comes, as long as it's not something outlandish like 6 courses of ice cream, ma said, and I said, I wouldn't even order 3 courses of ice cream, ma. Anyways, I'm not even thinking of ice cream All I'm thinking about is soop, I said

Soop, for land sakes? ma said. Why, 9 times out of 10 you never even finish your soop unless you're prevailed upon with threats and arguments, she said, and I said, I know, ma, but I'm thinking about a special kind of soop, I'm thinking about alfabet soop.

I must say I cant see anything special about alfabet soop, ma said, and I said, There is about the kind I'm thinking about. I want alabet soop with the noodles not spelling anything except Happy Berthday, I said.

Well of all the ideas, if you tell me where those special noodles are on sail, I'm sure I'll be glad to pick up a package for the great occasion, ma said.

Being sourcastic, and I said, They're not on sail anywheres, ma. What you're suppose to do is take a reguler package of alfabet noodles and pick out all the letters except the ones that spell Happy Berthday, I said. How about it, ma? I said.

Oh, eat your nice stew, ma said.

Meening no.

FLEET RETURNS FROM SOUTH

London, Ont., Jan. 25—(CP)—From sunny Florida to the grey, raining skies of London, five small aircraft returned today after a four-week return flight from Toronto to Miami.

The fleet left Toronto on Jan. 6 and stopped here to have snow skiis removed and wheels fitted for the southward trip. The planes were among hundreds that participated in the Miami air cruise.

The planes will proceed to Toronto as soon as weather conditions permit.

Pilots are A. Eversfield, captain of the flight; Sally Wagner, Gene Baycroft, Alex Martin and E. Day all of Toronto.

DIES IN GAS CHAMBER

Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 25 — (AP) — Marshall Perkins, a 59-year-old Negro convicted of raping a 13-year-old white girl, died in the state penitentiary gas chamber today, protesting his innocence to the end.

"I never raped nobody," he said. "I wouldn't die lying. God knows I'm innocent."

Perkins was convicted of assaulting Gladys Jeffries while she was on her way home from a movie. Both the girl and her parents later identified Perkins as the assailant.

Louis Prepared To Defend Title

Los Angeles, Jan. 25 (AP)—Joe Louis doesn't care who he fights in the next defence of his heavyweight championship. "Just so he's the one that'll draw the most money," he decided.

The champ, who looked pretty good despite the fact he weighs nearly 218 pounds, is getting ready for a tour of Mexico and Central America, boxing a series of exhibitions.

The first is set for Feb. 5 at Mexico City with Arturo Godoy.

"I'm supposed to fight in New York June 26. I reckon it'll be with the winner of the Baski-Woodcock fight in London in February." Louis calls Joe Baksi "Baski". He went on:

"Baski is all right, I guess. But Woodcock would draw better. It'd give the fight something—yeh, an international angle. That might do $1,000,000 dollars.

"Those other fellas, Baski or Walcott—shucks, that'd only do about $200,000."

What about Bruce Woodcock, the Briton?

"I saw him fight in New York. He's all right. Kinda slow, but not bad."

Yellow-winger Butterfly Is Winter Visitor

FURNITURE AS FUEL FAILS TO SAVE BABY!

Batley, Yorkshire, England, Jan. 25 (CP) — Because their baby was ill with bronchial pneumonia and they had no coal, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Palmer broke up all their furniture and put it, stick by stick, into the fire.

Two days later the fire went out and their baby died. At the inquest Deputy Coroner S. H. Gill advised parents in similar circumstances to use hot-water bottles.

CHILD IS DROWNED

Cobourg, Jan. 24—(CP)—While his mother gave birth to a baby girl yesterday, three-year-old Kenneth McCallum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McCallum, residing north of Grafton, was drowned after falling into a hole in a shallow, ice-covered pond near his father's barn. His brother Malcolm, five, and his grandmother, Mrs. George McCallum, recovered the body.

Timmins Youth Program Cuts Juvenile Delinquency

Reduction of juvenile delinquency in Timmins, Ontario, from an all time high of 105 juvenile court cases in 1941 to 31 in 1946, is credited by the gold town's police officials to the activities of about 30 youth clubs. The number of youngsters sent to reform school in the same period dropped from 9 to 2. The junior Youth Council (top left) presided over by Wendel Brewer, represents youth in the Community Activities Committee which plans and develops recreation and physical fitness programs. Timmins' athletic specialty is hockey. Schools, service clubs, police departments and other organizations sponsor teams for local youngsters. The Timmins Police Boys' Club (upper right) is an active organization teaching athletics, woodworking and scouting. National minority clubs like the Northern Lights, (lower right) Finnish-Canadian Club, add color and variety to a field of 30 youth organizations offering recreational social or athletic advantages.

Congregational Meeting

AIKENS CHURCH

3rd. Sidney — Aikens congregational meeting was held at the church recently and encouraging reports were given by officers of the various organizations. Mr. Hamilton, as treasurer of the church, reported receipts for the year as $712.40 and all expenses paid. The congregation's contribution to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund was $162.20.

The Woman's Association had a successful year, as reported by the treasurer, Mrs. Sam Marshall, with receipts totalling $211.48. Mrs. Ken Jones had efficiently guided the activities of the society for the year, which included among other things, the successful lawn social held in August at home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Bush and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Bush, as well as the twelve regular meetings.

An active Red Cross unit is affiliated with the W.A. with Mrs. S. Westover and Mrs. Fred Moon acting as conveners. An offering is taken at each W.A. meeting for the Red Cross and a generous donation was made to the Belleville Branch at Christmas Time.

Mrs. E. K. Hubble, president of the Woman's Missionary Society, reported nine life members, 18 annual and two associate members with an average attendance of 16 at meetings, and 26 subscriptions to the Missionary Monthly. Twelve regular meetings had been held and the Easter and Autumn Thankoffering services which had all proved helpful. $196.00 had been raised during the year for Missions.

A report of work with the boys and girls was given by Mrs. Perry Hamilton, superintendent of the Mission Band who contributed $14.60 to Missions.

$7.60 was raised by the Baby Band through their mite boxes under the leadership of Mrs. Urvan Perry.

Mr. Ross Marshall, as treasurer of the Sunday School, reported receipts as $176.75 with a good balance on hand.

Deep appreciation for loyal services rendered as pianists, was expressed by Mr. S. Spafford and Mrs. Fred Moon to Mrs. H. Hamilton, Mrs. Lee Grills and Mrs. Murney Jeffrey and to Mrs. Perry Hamilton for her services in song on many occasions.

Officers.

Mr. Harleigh Hamilton was re-elected as treasurer and the following officers were re-elected for the coming year.

Honorary Members of Session —Mr. Geo. Westover, Mr. W. Hamilton and Mr. T. A. Hinchliffe. Active Members of Session—Frank Jeffrey, Fred Westover, Stanley Spafford and Carman Grills. Stewards— Wm. Bush, Frank Hamilton, Murney Jeffrey, Selburn Westover and Harleigh Hamilton. Trustees — Cyril McMullen, chairman; Perry Hamilton, Urvan Perry, Sam Marshall, Everett Hubble, H. REVISED BASIS

In explaining how the government reached its formula for increasing the payments to the provinces, Mr. Abbott reviewed the various offers which have been made and said the government hoped the new proposals would make possible agreement with all provinces.

The minister's statement originally was for release today, but he authorized earlier publication after Premier Drew of Ontario released in Toronto the text of a letter to Prime Minister Mackenzie King which contained the main features of Mr. Abbott's statement.

Calls For New Conference

Mr. Drew, terming the new proposals a departure from those previously proposed, called for a new Dominion-Provincial conference.

The new proposals were understood to have reached Mr. Drew and Premier Duplessis of Quebec Thursday. Earlier they had been outlined to the Premiers of all other provinces. Premier McNair of New Brunswick has already disclosed that he is ready to negotiate a new agreement on the basis of the revised proposals.

At Regina, Premier Douglas said simply that the provincial cabinet would recommend to the legislature the new terms, while Premier Garson of Manitoba said he had no comment on the federal finance minister's statement.

Premier Duplessis of Quebec and Premier McNair of New Brunswick could not be reached for comment last night.

The method of figuring the payments to the provinces is by no means simple to the layman. When the ill-fated Dominion-Provincial Conference first opened, the Federal Government to pay the provinces $12 per capita for exclusive use of the personal income, corporation and inheritance tax fields.

Agreed To Boost Offer

Later during the conference, the Dominion agreed to boost its offer to a $15 per capita, and to share part of the corporation and inheritance tax fields with provinces which desired such division. In addition to these payments the Dominion offered to pay the greater share of the cost of health insurance, public investment and social security programs.

After the conference failed, the Dominion made its next offer in the budget. It proposed to pay the provinces $15 per capita on the basis of the 1941 or 1942 population of 150 per cent of what the provinces received under wartime tax agreements.

Under the wartime agreements the provinces gave the Dominion exclusive use of the income and corporation tax fields in return for payments based on what they received from the taxes in 1941.

New Brunswick, Manitoba and Saskatchewan tentatively agreed to accept the $15 per capita budget offer as the basis of agreement. Later, however, British Columbia accepted the alternative offer of 150 per cent of returns under the wartime agreement. The Pacific Coast Province had made more extensive use of the income and corporation tax fields prior to the war than any other provinces.

The result was that under original tentative agreements New Brunswick, Manitoba and Saskatchewan would receive about $15 per capita while British Columbia and Prince Edward Island would each receive about $20 per capita.

The difference in the subsidy, criticized by the first three provinces to enter taxation negotiations, led to the revised proposals.

Payments Calculated

Under the new offers the provinces could accept payments calculated as follows:

1. $12.75 per capita on the basis of the 1942 population, plus
2. Fifty per cent of the provincial tax receipts from income and corporation taxes in 1940, as determined for purposes of the wartime taxation agreements, plus
3. Statutory subsidies as provided for under the British North America Act.

As an alternative they could accept a subsidy of $15 per capita plus the subsidy payments. Both offers would move up with population increases and with rises in the gross national production. Payments would not fall below a fixed minimum.

Mr. Abbott said the revised proposals were aimed at meeting the needs of the provinces and at meeting the representations of provinces made during the taxation negotiations.

Seven Injured As U.S. Navy Plane Crashes

Halifax, Jan. 25 (CP).—Officials at Eastern Air Command headquarters here today released the names of the persons injured in the crash last night of a United States Naval Air Transport Dakota aircraft near the Dartmouth landing field.

Most seriously injured and described as dangerously ill was the pilot, Lieut. J. Smith of Oakland, Calif.

Also reported dangerously ill was Lieut. D. A. Swanson of Jacksonville, Fla.

Suffering possible fractures was Lieut. F. A. Lawrence, Cambridge, Mass.

Suffering from minor injuries and lacerations were C. W. Fry, Carnegie, Pa.; J. E. Ray, Barbardsville, N.C., and W. Kotsubles of Endicotte, N.Y. whose ranks could not be learned immediately.

The only woman on board, Nurse Blanche Oldridge of Shebeague Island, Cusco Bay, Portland, Me., suffered lacerations and possible fractures.

Meanwhile, an R.C.A.F. guard was posted around the twisted wreckage of the wrecked plane and officials were preparing to launch an investigation into the cause of the crash.

The crash occurred last night in a grove of woods beside a lake three miles from the R.C.A.F. Eastern Passage air base east of Halifax harbor as the transport, on its way from Floyd Bennett Field near New York to Newfoundland, apparently overshot the airdrome in an attempted landing.

Shortly afterward flying control saw distress signals shot from the aircraft.

An ambuance and fire - truck, dispatched to the scene, found the less seriously injured occupants—including the woman—had crawled from the wreckage and extracted the pilot and co-pilot who had been knocked unconscious at the controls.

Fire broke out but was extinguished before much damage was done and no one was burned. Both the plane's engines were torn off and a cargo of mail was scattered over a wide area.

The aircraft had been bound for Argentina, Nfld., and it was scheduled to land here for the night. It had passed over Halifax at a low altitude before arriving over the airport.

Weather Bureau officials said a prevailing ground mist would obscure vision of the ground from the air.

WANTS NO PENSION

Look well at this man. You may never see his like again. He is John C. Scott, New York World War veteran, who is fighting like a trojan to make the U. S. government stop giving him a pension to which he feels he is not entitled. Cheques keep coming to Honest John in payment for partial disability — permanent injury to his right eye. Scott insists the injury occurred prior to his military service and so he doesn't want the government's money. But it keeps coming. Scott has appealed to Representative Frederic R. Coudert, New York Republican, to do something to stop the flow of money. Congressman Coudert is recuperating as fast as can be expected.

Certified Nursing Sisters May Ease Acute Shortage

Ottawa, Jan. 25 (CP)—A new system of "certified nursing sisters" which would ease the shortage of nurses in Canada was announced last night by Hon. Russell T. Kelley, Ontario Health Minister.

Speaking to members of the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society at their annual meeting, Mr. Kelley said it would take five years at least to overcome the shortage of hospital needs in Ontario.

"On the basis that it takes three years to train a nurse, a new plan has been devised, to train 'certified nursing sisters,' uniformed, certified graduates of a nine-months' training course who, while not trained nurses in the usual sense, would be able to do much of the work of the trained nurse."

He said there now existed a shortage of about 4,000 beds in the general hospitals of the province, a shortage of about 3,000 beds in other hospitals, and that 3,900 nurses are needed to meet requirements.

THAW ENDS CLUB PLAN

Toronto, Jan. 25 — (CP) — All was set for the Rotary Club ice carnival of suburban Mount Dennis and Weston Friday but the whole affair — including crowning of the ice queen — was called off. Reason: no ice. A thaw ended the club's plan and now the carnival must wait for another freeze-up.

38 PENALTIES IN HOCKEY

Timmins, Jan. 25 (CP) — Hockey fans of Iroquois Falls believe something of a record was established there in a recent game between Iroquois Falls Kinsmen and Ansonville Fliers.

Thirty-eight penalties were handed out during the contest.

The Kinsmen were tagged with 26 of the 38, an equivalent of playing one man short for 55 minutes of the game.

The game ended in a 3-3 draw.

TURKEY BREEDERS MEET

London, Jan. 25 — (CP)—Turkey breeders from all parts of the province attended their annual meeting here Friday. The session concluded with a banquet — at which the main dish was turkey.

BRITISH JUDGE KIDNAPPED FROM PALESTINE COURT

Fifty-Seven Killed in Weekend Crashes

Prince of Sweden And Grace Moore, Singer, Killed

$2,000,000 Cargo of Gold Scattered in China Crash

By LASSE LEMKOW

Copenhagen, Jan. 27 — (AP) — Royal Dutch Airlines officials hastened today to Copenhagen to investigate a disastrous plane crash which Sunday claimed the lives of American soprano Grace Moore, Sweden's Prince Gustav Adolf and 20 other persons.

Line officials issued a communique at The Hague indicating belief the crash might have been caused by mechanical failure, but added that the reason might be hard to ascertain, so completely was the plane destroyed.

Miss Moore, who began her singing career in a Tennessee choir and won fame as a star in musical comedy, the opera and the movies, was the only American in the ill-fated plane.

The singer had just completed a concert engagement in Copenhagen and was en route to another in Sweden. Valentin Parera, husband of the 45-year-old soprano, heard the news of her death at Mougins, France, where he was convalescing from an illness. A close friend said he was "terribly shocked."

The DC-3 transport plane, with 16 passengers and a crew of six aboard, crashed on the airstrip just after taking off for Stockholm. The liner immediately broke into flames and blazed so fiercely there was no chance for anyone to escape.

The bulletin issued by Royal Dutch Airlines said the plane "took off normally under good weather conditions" but "imme-

Airplane crashes on the world's air lanes during the weekend caused the deaths of 57 persons, including the American soprano Grace Moore and Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden, at Copenhagen.

In China, search planes were sent out today (Monday) to find a Chinese National Aviation Corporation passenger plane missing on a flight from Canton to Chungking. The Chinese Central News Agency had reported the plane found with 18 aboard dead, but later said the report was incorrect, based on a mistranslation of a coded message from its Chungking bureau.

The Copenhagen crash was the costliest of the 14 weekend crashes, eight of which occurred in the United States.

Saturday 12 persons, mostly settlers and missionary Nuns bound for East Africa, died in a crash at London's Croydon airport. Three Nuns among the 23 occupants were killed including one Nun who sacrificed her life to push another passenger to safety from the burning wreckage.

Four crew members were killed and a $2,000,000 cargo of gold bullion and coins scattered when another plane crashed into a Hong Kong peak.

The crash of an R.A.F. Mosquito plane near Kirby Fleetham, Yorkshire, England, Saturday took the lives of the two-man crew Saturday. In another aerial accident when a United States army transport plane crashed 60 miles south of Hamburg resulted in the pilot being fatally injured.

In the United States five men were killed when a seven-place private plane carrying them from a district sales manager's meeting of the United States Machine Corporation, at Lebanon, Ind., crashed into a barn near Rensselaer, Ind.

Two persons were killed in each of four other plane accidents, near Tipton, Okla.; Darlington, Wis.; Taneytown, Md., and Westmoreland, Kas.

A Purdue University student was killed in a crash near Rochester, Ind.; a Wales Centre, N.Y., man was killed when his small plane fell near there, and a man was killed and another injured in a crash near Conway, S.C.

EXTRA POLICE TO HANDLE CROWDS AT TORSO TRIALS

Likely All Cases Will be Traversed to Supreme Court Sittings in March

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, Jan 27 (CP) — The Sheriff of Wentworth County assigned extra police to the old Wentworth County Courthouse today to take care of crowds anticipated for the court appearance of Donald MacLean and William Bohozuk, charged with murder in the torso-killing of John Dick, 40-year-old Hamilton streetcar driver, last March.

Main lure of the crowd was Mrs. Evelyn Dick, convicted of murder in the killing but granted a new trial, and now under subpiena to appear as a Crown witness against her father—Mr. MacLean — and her one-time boy friend.

But in this, it appeared the crowd was due for disappointment. Mrs. Dick, unless a last-minute change in plans developed, would spend the day as usual in her cell at Barton Street jail, awaiting her call to a second trial for the slaying of the husband whose headless, limbless body was found on Hamilton Mountain by youthful hikers last March 16.

The Crown, having decided to ask for postponement of the MacLean-Bohozuk trial, while an appeal is taken to the Supreme Court of Canada for a review of Mrs. Dick's case hardly needed Mrs. Dick in court today.

Expecting a Sepectacle

"But the people are expecting a spectacle and we have to take steps to handle them," said one law officer. In his memory was the picture of the crowds who, to the number of 1,000 to 2,000 or more, jostled and shoved each other last October for a glimpse of Mrs. Dick as the dark-haired girl, now 27, made her daily trips to and from the courthouse and the jail during the nine days of

London Lord Mayor Thanks Hamilton For Air Raid Relief

Hamilton, Jan. 27—(CP) — A letter from the Lord Mayor of London was received by E. R. C. Bower, city treasurer Saturday, thanking the people of this city for air raid relief funds through war years. It read in part, "I thank you for your letter of Dec. 12, 1946, enclosing a sterling draft for £68 . . . This made up a grand total of £19,168 and I would like to add my thanks to those of preceding lord mayors for this most generous help for the people who suffered so severely from enemy bombing. It has continued from December, 1940, to December, 1946."

Wild Skirmish Flares in Windsor Gypsy Colony into Battle Royal

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 27 (CP).—Smouldering rivalry in Windsor's downtown Gypsy "colony"—made up chiefly of two fortune-telling establishments—early today flared into a battle royal on downtown Pitt street.

One man was arrested and charged with assault causing bodily harm to a female.

It was a wild, beer-bottle-throwing, chair-hurling skirmish quelled finally by four car loads of police.

Long-gowned women swarmed to police headquarters seeking to lay charges ranging from attempted rape to wilful property damage, but the two or three men whom they accused principally had escaped the scene of the fight.

Police were told about a score of men, friends of rival fortune-tellers on Sandwich Street East, crashed into the gaily-decorated Pitt street palmistry premises shortly after midnight and some fist-swinging started, the battle moved to the street.

"It seemed as though there were hundreds of them there," said Constable Arnold Burdon. "I grabbed one guy and somebody else walked up and batted him between the eyes. I let him sag and went after the guy who hit him. There were broken chairs everywhere.

DR. HENRY HARRIS GIVEN FIVE YEARS IN PENITENTIARY

Convicted on Two Charges of Conspiracy In Attempting To Obtain False Passport

Ottawa, Jan. 27 (CP) — Dr. Henry Harris, Toronto optometrist, today was convicted on two charges of conspiracy arising from an attempt by Russian agents to obtain a false Canadian passport and was sentenced to five years in penitentiary.

Harris, 54-year-old native of New York, was the 16th. person to go on trial as a result of the Canadian espionage probe and the ninth to be sentenced to prison. Six others have been acquitted and one has been fined.

County Court Judge A. G. McDougall, in sentencing him, said that there was ample evidence to show that he had undertaken to get a false passport and that this was a matter of "extreme danger to the country."

The judge found striking coincidences between Russian embassy documents and other crown evidence to back up two charges, one that Harris had conspired to obtain false passports, the other that he had conspired to forge false passports.

He told Harris, "you are an educated man. You came to Canada and had a considerable chance to make good and you did make good. However, you embarked on a course of conduct which extended over a considerable number of months at least.

Went to Secret Meeting.

"Your secret meetings showed that you knew what you were doing."

Judge McDougall said Harris' explanation of his trips to Ottawa, Montreal and New York with Sam Carr, whom the judge said was a Russian agent, were not credible. He described Harris' statement that they were merely vacation trips with a friend as being "weak."

"It is extremely difficult to believe that you continued to travel to these cities merely to spend a short time with a man you saw every day. It is also extremely difficult to believe that you never discussed politics of the Labor Progressive Party with Carr. It is not credible that you did not know about Carr's activities.

Leaves Extended Parish For Waterloo

Sudbury, Jan. 27—(CP)—Rev. A. R. Cragg, 36, who preached his farewell service at St. Andrew's United Church here Sunday—just five years to the day after he took the church—will have a lot smaller range of activity in his new parish at Waterloo, Ont. While his immediate city parish here numbered 1,400 families, his ministerial duties extended as far as 150 miles in the district.

CAUGHT AFTER ATTACK

London, Ont., Jan. 27—(CP) — Douglas Arthur McLeod Flock, 19, of London, who was captured by Woodstock police early Saturday shortly after he is alleged to have slugged a taxi driver here and stolen his car, will appear in court Tuesday on a charge of assault with intent to rob. He was scheduled for arraignment today, but police investigation is incomplete.

Egyptian Govt. Breaks Off Negotiations For Revision of Treaty

London, Jan. 27 (Reuters) — Foreign Secretary Bevin told the House of Commons today that the Egyptian government has informed him it has broken off negotiations for revision of the Anglo-Egyptian Treaty of 1936.

The Egyptian government had requested the British government to enter into negotiations for a revision of the treaty and Britain, although not bound by the treaty to do so, had "willingly acceded to that request," Bevin said.

Last May the British government had proposed the withdrawal of all British troops from Egypt, and to settle by negotiation the stages of evacuation, with arrangements for mutual defence to take the place of those contained in the 1936 treaty.

At the same time it had been made clear, Bevin emphasized, that in default of negotiations for a new treaty, the provisions of the treaty of 1936 would stand.

"Negotiations in Cairo proceeded slowly, until finally, in the middle of October, the then Egyptian Prime Minister Sidky Pasha visited this country in an endeavor to settle the major difficulties which had hitherto stood in the way of agreement," Bevin said.

"These were: the obligations of the respective parties in the event of their being the object of attack of any threat of war developing in the region of the Middle East; the period within which withdrawal of British forces and the installations from Egypt should be completed, and the question of the Sudan."

Bevin said he had reached "full agreement" with Sidky Pasha on a personal basis on the text of the treaty on the mutual assistance and evacuation protocol, and the Sudan protocol.

Sidky Pasha had undertaken to recommend this text to the Egyptian government, and Bevin had stated he would recommend them to the British Cabinet if endorsed by Egypt.

KING ANNOUNCES REPEAL CHINESE IMMIGRATION ACT

Will Remove Discrimination on Grounds of Race Against Friendly People

Ottawa, Jan. 27 (CP).—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced today the government intends to repeal the Chinese Immigration Act which has drastically limited the number of Chinese allowed into Canada.

Mr. King said a bill will be introduced early in the approaching session of parliament for repeal of the act, which he said was regarded by the Chinese government "as an exclusion act and in the nature of discrimination on grounds of race against a friendly and an allied people."

He added that the effect of the repeal would be to remove "all discrimination against the Chinese on account of race" and to bring Chinese persons under the general provisions of the Immigration Act and no longer under legislation applying exclusively to persons of Chinese origin.

With the repeal of the act wives and unmarried children living in China will be allowed to come to Canada to join their husbands and fathers. Up to now they have been barred.

Mr. King's announcement followed a series of public meetings held last night in eastern Canadian cities at which repeal of the act, which bars all but selected classes of Chinese from Canada and which China has been protesting for years, was urged.

Long Study Given Question

However, the prime minister indicated the decision to rescind the act was the result of long study.

He said a committee of the cabinet had been giving "careful" study to the question of general immigration policy with a view to the introduction of amendments to the Immigration Act at this session of parliament.

"Thorough and detailed consideration were necessitated by the importance and complexity of the question," he added.

His 300-word statement, however, dealt only with the Chinese Immigration Act and made no reference to possibly other changes in the general immigration policy.

Of Chinese wives and children, he said—

"At present, there are a number of Canadian citizens of Chinese origin whose wives and unmarried children under 18 years of age are in China and who, because of the Chinese Immigration Act, have not been allowed to come into Canada to join their husbands and fathers.

"With the repeal of the Chinese Immigration Act, these persons will become admissible under the provisions of an Order-in-Council passed in 1930."

THIRD SESSION, 20TH PARLIAMENT OPENS THURSDAY

More Government Legislation Prepared Than in Last Twenty-Five Years

Ottawa, Jan. 27 — (CP)—Parliament opens this week—Thursday — and at no other time in the last 25 years has so much government legislation been prepared for presentation, it was learned today.

The Commons law branch has been working overtime to get the bills ready.

During the war the government, under the War Measures Act, was given wide powers to function by orders-in-council and these additional powers were continued under the Emergency Powers Act, scheduled to end March 31.

Any permanent powers the government will request in addition to the powers it held before the war must be provided by new legislation and it is learned on good authority that 25 bills have been prepared to cover this situation.

Some of the powers the government will ask, are not expected to be used for any length of time. In this class will be the controls exercised by the Prices Board. Others likely will be used for several years — such as controls to enable the government to fulfil its wheat agreement with the United Kingdom and its agreements for supplying bacon, cheese and other food products.

THIRD SESSION — Page 11

Judge J. A. Valin, North Bay, Dies

North Bay, Jan. 27 (CP)—Judge Joseph Alphonse Valin, 89, pioneer resident of Nipissing district and former Chairman of the Board of Guardians for the Dionne quintuplets, died in his home here yesterday morning. He had been critically ill for several days.

Judge Valin began more than half a century as one of North Bay's most distinguished citizens when he came here in 1894. Although only 35 years of age at the time, he had been appointed judge over one of the largest judical districts in Ontario, and his territory included the districts of Nipissing, Sudbury, Temiskaming, and part of Algoma. He retured in 1933 and after 49 years on the bench, and in the following year was appointed by the Ontario government as Chairman of the Board of Guardians for the Dionne quintuplets. He was a close friend of the Dionne family and was held in affectionate regard by the five little girls.

He is survived by his wife, who as the former Beatrice Provencher had been a nurse to the quintuplets, one son George J. Valin of Sudbury, and two grandsons, both of Sudbury.

COUNSEL ARGUES POSTPONEMENT OF TORSO TRIAL

Crown Wants Opinion From Supreme Court Before Bohozuk And MacLean Trial Starts

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, Jan. 27 (CP) —With Mrs. Evelyn Dick looking on composedly, Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay today adjourned the Wentworth County Assize Court shortly after noon to examine the legal arguments put before him and decide whether the torso-murder trial of Donald MacLean and William Bohozuk should be postponed to the next assizes or proceeded with immediately.

The defence counsel for the two men argued for immediate trial, since Mrs. Dick's father and Bohozuk, her former friend, had been in jail a year.

And, held defence, the question of whether or not court evidence could include Mrs. Dick's statements to police regarding the torso killing of her husband John Dick, last March, had no bearing on the case of the two men, charged, as she is, with the slaying.

Wants Court Ruling

The crown asked a postponement until it has obtained a Supreme Court of Canada review of Mrs. Dick's case, particularly with regard to admissibility of her statements which, in granting her a second trial after she had been convicted last October, the Ontario Appeal Court ruled were inadmissible.

Mrs. Dick's appearance in the court was something of a surprise.

Like all other crown witnesses in this case which grew from the finding of John Dick's headless limbless body on Hamilton Mountain last March 16, she had received a subpoena as a witness while she waited her own new trial in Barton St. jail.

But other witnesses were informed during the weekend they need not appear today and almost to the very minute Mrs. Dick reached the courthouse it was thought she too would not be on hand.

The 27-year-old widow, convicted last October of the torso murder of her husband and granted a new trial, wore the familiar black sequin-decorated skull cap she affected last October.

Her coat was tightly buttoned as she stood before Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay and she looked roundish and dumpy as compared with her appearance last fall, since when she has been reported gaining weight in jail.

Immediately the case of Bohozuk, former friend of Mrs. Dick and that of her father, MacLean, was called, Special Crown Prosecutor T. J. Rigney put forward a motion for postponement of the trial of the two men.

Based on Review Decision.

He based his motion on the decision of the Ontario Attorney General's Department to ask for a review of Mrs. Dick's trial by the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Rigney said the Crown wanted an opinion from the Supreme Court of Canada on the admissibility as evidence of statements given police by Mrs. Dick. The Ontario Court of Ap-

Giant Beast Seen Near Cooksville Mountain Lion, Inspector Thinks

Toronto, Jan. 27 (CP).—Inspector Leslie Anderson of the Toronto Humane Society said today he is convinced an animal he saw a few nights ago at nearby Cooksville is a mountain lion. Mountain lions have been considered extinct in Ontario for the last 70 years.

Inspector Anderson said the beast was 2½ feet high, six feet long and would weigh about 200 pounds. To make sure he hadn't confused it with a cougar, the inspector went to Riverdale zoo and looked at the zoo's cougar. He said it wasn't the same.

Gordon Lambert, Toronto naturalist, and two companions followed the animal's tracks yesterday.

"The giant footprints in the snow measured six inches across," said Lambert. "Make no mistake, that is one giant cat.

"This lion is probably living in some cave in the district. We were able to track it in the heavy bush area but there is too much frozen snow along the ravines of the river. It will probably be quite harmless to humans but it will be a destructive beast as far as animals are concerned. Mountain lions particularly like deer."

Armed Jews Force Way Into Court At Revolver Point

90,000 Palestine Jews Placed Under House Arrest

Jerusalem, Jan. 27 —(CP)— Two kidnappings of Britons resulted today in the placing of 90,000 Palestine Jews under house arrest, and British military forces postponed the hanging scheduled tomorrow of an alleged Jewish underground terrorist.

Simultaneously Palestine radio issued a country-wide warning to all British civilians to stay at home, warning that "you are in danger of kidnapping."

Police officials said the kidnappings of a British banker and a British judge apparently were efforts by the Irgun Zvai Leumi, underground organization, to head off the execution of Dou Bela Groner, alleged Irgun member convicted of participating in an attack on a police station.

Lt.-Gen. Sir Evelyn Barker ordered an indeterminate delay in the hanging of Groner, 33. The delay was granted when a Palestine lawyer acting on behalf of Groner's sister in Lancaster, Pa., Mrs. Helen Friedman, took steps to appeal the case to the privy council, Britain's supreme court.

Called to Conference.

The military clamped a strict house-to-house curfew on 90,000 persons in Jewish sections of Jerusalem and Tel Aviv a few hours after 10 persons — described by police as armed Jews —abducted Judge Ralph Wyndham from the Tel Aviv district court.

Lt.-Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham Palestine high commissioner, called two members of the Jewish agency, Eliezer Kaplan and Mrs. Golda Myerson, to the government house for a conference on the kidnappings.

Police said they had no clues as to the whereabouts of Judge Wyndham, heir to a British baronetcy, or of H. A. I. Collins, former British army major, kidnapped from his home in Jerusalen last night.

Car Found Abandoned.

The automobile in which Wyndham was kidnapped was found abandoned in Ramat Gan, Tel Aviv suburb. This was the scene of the attack on a police station for which Groner had been sentenced to die tomorrow.

Private sources said all of Tel Aviv was surrounded by airborne troops and that all automobiles and buses were being searched as they left the city.

When the alarm sounded shortly after Wyndham's abduction, Tel Aviv's Mediterranean beach was crowded with thousands of promenaders on the warmest day of recent weeks. Within five minutes the beach and promenade had been cleared and downtown streets emptied.

There was no immediate clue to the whereabouts of the former officer seized last night.

British authorities blamed the Jewish underground for the kidnapping, which they said apparently was planned in retaliation for the scheduled execution tomorrow of a member of Irgun Zvai Leumi ,convicted of participating in a recent attack on a Palestine police station.

Windham was reported to have been wearing his black judicial robe when the gang, wielding revolvers and tommy guns, escorted him out a rear entrance to a motor car. The abductors were believed to be eight men and two women.

The abduction of the heir to a British baronetcy from his own court marked the second kidnapping in London in an effort to ease tension between Arab and Jew.

Police said Wyndham was taken as hostage for Dov Groner, a member of the underground organization, Irgun Zvai Leumi. Groner, who served with the British army during the war and had no previous police record, is to be executed tomorrow for participating in an attack on a Palestine police station.

Obtaining Hostage.

The same motive—obtaining a hostage for Groner—was attributed by police to the kidnappers of H. A. I. Collins, retired British major and director of the Jewish-owned bank in Palestine. Collins was seized from a Jerusalem residence shortly after sundown last night.

Announcement of Wyndham's abduction came as police conducted a house-to-house search for the terrorist kidnappers of Collins, 48-year-old, six-foot, one inch former British cavalry officer.

Details of Wyndham's seizure were unofficial.

Witnesses were said to have described the kidnappers as well dressed. They apparently arrived at the Tel Aviv court building in three taxis, addressed the judge in Hebrew and ordered him to accompany them. The courtroom was partly filled, but no case was in progress.

Wyndham, 42, is heir to the ancient Bowyer-Smyth baronetcy. President of the Tel Aviv court, he has been in colonial service 15 years.

Search Instituted For Missing Plane With 18 Aboard

Nanking, Jan. 27. (AP) — Search planes covered the rugged Szechwan province area southwest of Chungking today, seeking the Chinese National Aviation Corporation passenger plane which disappeared Saturday with 18 persons aboard on a flight from Canton to Chungking.

The Chinese Bureau of Civil aviation ,organized only recently in the face of numerous commercial airline crashes, began an investigation. CNAC officials were ordered to submit full details of the flight.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Jan. 27 (CP).—Skies are clear over Southern Ontario and temperatures are unseasonably mild. Over Northern Ontario temperatures are also above normal but skies are overcast and light snow mixed with freezing drizzle is falling in many sections. This precipitation is caused by a disturbance centred near Kenora which is moving slowly eastward. In the wake of this storm colder weather has come to the prairies accompanied by minor blizzard conditions in many sections. A disturbance now developing over Texas is expected to cause rain and some snow over Southern Ontario on Tuesday. By Wednesday much colder weather will prevail over all of Ontario.

TESTIMONIAL BANQUET TO HONOR L. FAIR

Commodity organizations of agricultural Hastings County along with representatives of urban governments will tender H. L. Fair, county agricultural representative who has been transferred to Ontario county, a testimonial banquet on Monday, Feb. 3. The function will be held at the Community Hall in Stirling, and it is expected that upwards of 250 will be in attendance.

MAYOR FOLLWELL OUT OF THE CITY

Mayor Frank Follwell who left the city today on official business expects to be out of town for the next three days. In his absence Alderman H. J. Clarke will be the acting mayor.

GAME CANCELLED

The Intermediate "B" hockey game scheduled for tonight at the Memorial Arena has been cancelled due to the wet condition of the ice, arena manager Walt Gerow announced at noon today. Mild weather over the weekend left the ice in a watery condition and despite the fact the weather turned cooler today it was decided that the ice would not be in sufficiently hard condition to warrant the game being played.

MAN WOUNDED WITH KNIFE DURING ARGUMENT

Aftermath of an argument over a pool game at the Pappas Pool Room late Saturday night Clarence Lewis, 24, of 1 Moira St., West, received a knife wound in the leg and was admitted to hospital following medical treatment by Dr. J. J. Robertson.

Result of the fracas, Eugene Loft, City, was arrested at a West Bridge Street address and formally charged with stabbing Lewis, and has been remanded for trial. According to police the knife wound which Lewis received in the leg was not of serious nature.

CHARGED WITH THEFT OF TYPEWRITER

Larry Stuart, 25, no given address, was arrested this morning by Inspector Clare Haynes on a charge of breaking and entering the residence of Major E. Earle Henry Street, last week and stealing a small amount of cash and a portable typewriter. Stuart was arrested at the local employment service office.

Police believed the youth sold the typewriter at Kingston and is also believed to have entered a residence in Brockville. Stuart had stayed at the local police station on Sunday night where under an assumed name he had asked shelter for the night.

ROTARY CLUB TO ATTEND MEETING

The Rotary Club of Belleville will join with other clubs of the district at a special inter-city meeting tonight being held in Batawa. Other clubs include, Picton, Napanee, Trenton, Campbellford and Brighton. Dinner will be served in the cafeteria and the general meeting will be held afterwards. A high-ranking Rotarian from the Toronto club will be the guest speaker. A large number of clubmen from this city will take in the meeting while the Napanee club will travel as a whole by chartered bus.

OILERS NOW SECOND

Forth Worth, Tex. Jan. 27 — (AP)—Tulsa's Oilers regained second place in the Southern Division of the United States Hcokey League by trimming Fort Worth Rangers 3-1 last night before 3,500 fans. The victory placed Tulsa one point ahead of Fort Worth.

Ralph Wycherly scored the Oilers' only earned goal in the first period with Doug McCurdy assisting. The other Tulsa counters, credited to Wycherly and McMurdy respectively, came on freak plays in which the puck struck a Fort Worth player and rolled into the Rangers' net.

Les Sawyer scored Fort Worth's lone goal.

Five British Tommies Complain Of Yugoslav Neglect

Vienna, Jan. 27—(AP)—Five British soldiers, whoE r British soldiers, who said they wandered accidentally across the Yugoslav border five months ago, told British authorities in Vienna Saturday they had received harsh treatment from their captors until their release Jan. 10.

The soldiers said their efforts to get in touch with British officials during their imprisonment were unsuccessful and that at one prison their daily diet consisted of soup at two meals and coffee for breakfast.

Although wearing light khaki uniforms and shorts when arrested, the British soldiers said they were not given warmer clothing until the day of their release. They said they were issued only one blanket apiece and frequently had no beds.

They charged that although all of them suffered from heavy colds, they never were visited by a doctor.

During part of their internment, they said, they were with Roy H. Stoeckel, United States War Department civilian employer who served a jail term of nearly six months in Yugoslavia for having crossed the border without authorization.

Stoeckel, 24-year-old former soldier, is in hospital here. Thus far he has declined to tell reporters the story of his imprisonment and the U. S. Army has made no statement.

Youth Committed For Trial To Higher Court

Arraigned on four charges of breaking and entering with theft and on one charge of theft, Ralph Wright, 16-year-old local youth, was committed for trial to a higher court when he appeared in local police court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills Monday morning.

The accused elected trial on all charges at the next court of competent jurisdiction with Magistrate Wills committing Wright for trial on all charges following introduction of preliminary evidence. Wright was charged with breaking and entering the Belleville Collegiate, the Belleville Creameries and the York Trading Company warehouse, and also with stealing a radio from a car parked at the Collegiate.

Two juveniles were also arraigned on several charges of breaking and entering and were likewise committed from trial to a higher court.

R. A. Pringle, local barrister, appeared for Wright on behalf of Reg. E. Nourse of Picton, while Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson acted for the Crown.

Several other local youths charged in connection with the same series of offences pleaded guilty at a previous court.

MAY BE OUT FOR SEASON

Windsor, Jan. 27 — (CP) — Mike Hruss and Carl Evon, hard-working forwards on the Windsor Spitfires' junior "A" team received knee injuries when Windsor defeated St. Catharines 6 - 3 Saturday, and both may be out for the season, it was learned today. The club has been without George Chin, Chinese-Canadian player from Lucknow, away since Dec. 20 with a broken wrist. Some consolation was the word that Captain Paul Monforton, out with a knee injury since Jan. 4, may be back for the game with Galt next Saturday.

TaxiDriverAgrees To Pay Costs For Splashing Offence

George DeVuyst, local restaurant proprietor, escaped injury Sunday evening when as he was motoring home to Belleville from Kingston his auto went into a skid on a curve five miles east of the city and overturned into the ditch. The car was badly damaged, but the occupants of the auto escaped injury.

Theft of a quantity of channel steel from the stock pile at the Fruit Machinery plant on Front Street has been reported by the manager. It is believed that local youths were responsible for the thefts with the steel being carted to a local dealer and sold for junk.

With the mild weather over the weekend splash artists caused pedestrians to be on the look-out for puddles of water being splashed over their clothes by passing motorists. Two Charles Street residents complained to police of having been splashed by a local taxi, the driver of which later agreed to pay for the cost of having the soiled clothing dry cleaned.

Icy roads were responsible for a second accident over the weekend when a car owned by Robert Mitchell, Coleman Street, crashed into the guard rail on the Bay Bridge Road and broke off several posts. No one was injured.

Britain Digging Herself Out From Heavy Snowfall

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 27 (CP) — Britain, digging herself out from unaccustome d snowdrifts — some were reported 10 feet deep — found cold comfort today in weather reports predicting more snow and continued marrow-chilling east winds.

Some Yorkshire villages — Thixendale, Hugge, Fridaythorpe and Kirby-Under-Dale — were isolated by drifts which blocked roads and covered hedgerows, obliterating highways. In the south, notably in Hampshire, fog added to the traffic difficulties.

Snow plows were cutting roads clear in Kent, Sussex and Somerset after a fall lasting 48 hours. At Southend, Essex, milk deliverymen used sleighs.

Winds approaching gale velocity pounded coastal shipping yesterday and 50-mile-anhour gusts churned the English Channel, making the DoverCalais crossing unusually rigorous. Two small vessels were driven aground on the Isle of Wight and drifting mines were reported in the Irish Sea.

Enjoy Winter Sports.

Londoners who weer not huddled over gas fires in often-unsuccessful efforts to be warm enjoyed a weekend of rare Winter sports, tobogganing in parks and skating on frozen ponds.

Four children drowned in accidents at Woodcote, Shropshire, and at Holyport, Berkshire, when the ice on which they were playing gave way.

Temperatures ranged around 27 degrees Fahrenheit but newspapers carried a fair number of tall stories about "intense" cold, topped by an East Anglia report of sea spray freezing in midair.

Farmers son the North Downs reported digging sheep out of 10-foot drifts.

The 25,000 residents of the Isle of Sheppey near the mouth of the Thames were cut off from the Kent mainland, except for a single-track railway. Rising drifts barred most bridges and the last bus which attempted to reach the island ran into a deep drift and was abandoned.

No immediat break in the weather was predicted. The forecast was for moderate to fresh winds carrying snow to "many districts."

Drew to Speak On Hydro Matters

Toronto, Jan. 27 (CP) — The situation in respect to the reported resignation of Dr. Thomas H. Hogg, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission is expected to be clarified by Premier Drew in a province-wide broadcast over radio station CBL, here from 7.30 to 8.00 p.m. E.S.T. tonight.

Dr. Hogg could not be reached for comment but previously he declined to confirm or deny rumors of his resignation, holding that any announcement must come from the Ontario Government. One report said that Premier Drew requested Dr. Hogg's resignation as a result of the power shortage during recent storms.

Joining the commission in 1913 as assistant hydraulic engineer, Dr. Hogg became chief hydraulic engineer in 1927 and was named chairman of the Commission in November, 1937.

Warden A. A. Harvie

Archie A. Harvie, reeve of Mayo township, who was the unanimous choice for Warden of Hastings county for 1947 as members met for their inaugural session last week.

Active Season Planned by Fish And Game Assoc.

Actively interested in the local association for a number of years, Mr. Elmer Sandercock was elected as president of the Belleville and District Fish and Game Protective Association at directors' meeting held over the weekend.

Mr. Sandercock succeeds Mr. Joe Shortt who had been president of the association since its inception 15 years ago. During Mr. Shortt's term as president, the membership increased from 15 to 668.

Vice presidents of the association are J. H. Legate, Sandy Lummiss and I. G. Hefkey, while J. E. Shortt will act as secretary and Mr. Hefkey as treasurer. Dr. Van Blakslee was returned as chairman of restocking committee; George Wallbridge as membership committee head. Fred Croft will head the committee for arrangement of the fishing contest and George Brown for the hunting contests. Reforestation will be looked after by J. H. Legate.

The president and secretary will represent the association at the annual meeting of the Ontario Federation in Niagara Falls on February 5-6 where several recommendations will be presented for the improvement of fishing, hunting and wild life conservation in this district.

To Organize Hunts

The Association will co-oparate with farmers and land owners in disposing of predatory animals. Organized hunts for fox and jack rabbits are being planned. Plug and fly casting instruction and practice will be resumed, while fishing parties down the Bay will be held during the coming Summer and Fall fishing seasons.

The Association will hold a banquet and interesting program in St. Andrew's Church Sunday School room on February 12th. when Hon. Harold Scott, minister of Lands and Forests, will address the meeting.

Farmers desiring the help of the Association members in cleaning their property of fox, rabbits or other undesirables are asked to get in touch with the Secretary, J. E. Shortt, at the Y.M.C.A. in Belleville, or with George Brown, in care of the Ontario Hydro office at Belleville. Persons requiring restocking of lakes or streams are asked to notify the Secretary or Dr. Van Blakslee at 111 Victoria Ave.

Honorary president of the Association is Honorable Harold Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, while honorary vice presidents are J. Fred Wilson, M.P.P.; Roscoe Robson, M.P.P. and J. deC. Hepburn, M.P.P.

Regular Services Held in Citadel Despite Damage

Despite the damage to the building when fire last week was discovered in the bandroom at the Salvation Army Citadel on Pinnacle Street, regular Sunday services were held in the building over the weekend, it was stated this morning by Major E. Earle, local Salvation Army head.

Several offers of other accommodation to enable Sunday meetings being held were received by Salvation Army officials following the fire, but new electric wiring was installed and other emergency repairs made permitting services to be held at the Citadel.

Band instruments owned by the Salvation Army were seriously damaged as result of the fire with the entire base section, including four drums, being a complete loss. Some of the instruments damaged cannot be replaced at the present time.

Bone Surgeon Cites Miraculous Examples of Healing During War

Toronto, Jan. 27 (CP) — Sir Reginald Watson-Jones, knighted for his bone surgery work in the Royal Air Force during the war, concluded a five-day series of lectures Saturday at the Sunnybrook hospital when he told a group of 800 Ontario doctors of miraculous examples of healing performed during the war.

One airman suffering 15 fractures when his parachute failed to fully open and he hit the ground, digging a three-foot hole. The trailing 'chute caught in some tree branches and the recoil jerked the man back and left him hanging in the branches where he was found badly injured, but alive.

Dr. Watson-Jones said that careful physiotherapy and recent knowledge of fluid replacement in the body aided his recovery and within 10 months he was flying again and within 18 months was back on operations.

One airman lay in the mountains of Scotland for three days with a broken neck and broken shoulder before being discovered. He himself applied a tourniquet, on recovering consciousness, to stop the bleeding when he saw that the broken end of one of his shinbones had torn through his flying suit. Gangrene of the foot set in — it was mid-winter — but he was back at his flying nine months later though part of the foot had to be amputated.

Dr. Watson-Jones cited other examples to show the advancement registered during the war in the repair of broken bones.

DR. HENRY HARRIS

The judge referred to coincidences in dates between Russian Embassy documents which reported meetings with agents and hotel restrictions showing Harris to have been in Ottawa twice and two Russian officials to have been in Toronto once when such meetings were held.

Pleaded For Leniency

A. W. Beament of Ottawa, defence counsel, pleaded for leniency, saying that the accused had "a completely impeccable past". He compared him to Dr. John Soboloff of Toronto, who has been sentenced to pay a $500 fine for signing his name to a forged passport.

Mr. Beament described Soboloff as a "very much greater offender" and suggested that Harris should be fined only $200.

B. W. Howard of Ottawa, Crown counsel, said that the evidence clearly indicated that Harris appreciated the illegal aspects of the scheme to get a passport and said his sentence should rank with those of other espionage accused whose activities had been found prejudicial to Canada.

Evidence and argument in the 16th trial connected with Canada's espionage probe ended Friday after Harris had taken the witness stand in his own defence and denied any connection with Russian activities in this country.

Charged With Forgery

Harris was charged with conspiring to obtain false passports and to forge them in violation of the Official Secrets Act of 1939, the charges being based upon the Criminal Code.

He testified after Judge McDougall rejected a defence motion for dismissal of the case in a ruling which held that the fact that Harris had come to Ottawa with an alleged Russian agent — Sam Carr, former national organizer of the Labor-Progressive Party—constituted an overt act.

Harris said he had met Carr 10 years ago and said they had become close friends. It was not uncommon for them to spend weekends together in cities such as Ottawa, Montreal and New York. This was the one form of vacation Harris could get from his office.

Australia Marks 158th Anniversary Of Settlement

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Canberra, Jan. 27 (CP).—Australia today observed with a public holiday the 159th anniversary of the landing in1788 of Capt. Arthur Phillip and the establishment of Port Jackson, first British settlement on the Australian continent.

"Australia Day", as the anniversary now is called, was celebrated with holiday making in many parts of the country through the coastal section of Queensland State, in the grip of the worst floods in 50 years. Inland sections and parts of the neighboring New South Wales State still are ridden by severe drought.

There were few official functions to mark the anniversary while the country awaited the announcement from Prime Minister Chifley on the appointment of an Australian-born governor general to succeed the Duke of Gloucester who returned to Britain last week.

McKell Likely Gov.-General

Practically everyone expects the new governor-general will be William James McKell, 55-year-old Labor Premier of New South Wales who was a boilermaker's apprentice at 13 and by studying in his spare time obtained a law degree and established himself as a popular figure in politics.

Since his name was first mentioned as the Duke of Gloucester's successor, McKell has been in the midst of a newspaper controversy over what has been called the proposed "political appointment". However, his chances for the post are not thought to have been altered. McKell would be the second Australian-born governor-general.

Anniversary Day was the subject of a national broadcast Sunday by Sir Thomas Blamey, commander-in-chief of the Australian forces during the war who urged expansion of Australia's popultion now estimated at about 7,500,000.

"The vital factor in Australia's future," Sir Thomas said, "will be the overflow of Japanese to Indonesia for the Greater Asia Movement is sure to be revived in a new form."

C.C.F. Outlines Party Program

Ottawa, Jan. 27 (CP) — The CCF Party, announced plans last night to stage a dominion - wide campaign for old age pensions of $50 at age 65 and to carry the matter to the floor of the House of Commons, which opens next Thursday.

At the concluding session of a three-day meeting, the national council of the party, sitting jointly with a caucus of the party's 28 members of the Commons, endorsed a resolution making these demands in regards to old age pensions:

1. A pension of not less than $50 per month at age 65 without a means test.
2. Such a pension to be paid in full by the Dominion Government.
3. The pension to be paid together with a cost-of-living supplement, an invalidity supplement and free medical, dental, optical and hospital care.

The CCF old age pension program compares with the present general pensions of $25 per month at age 70 with a means test, the cost shared by federal and provincial governments, and with the dominion proposals of $30 pensions at 70 years of age with a means test, to be paid in full by the dominion, and old-age assistance with means test for those aged 65 to 69, shared by the dominion and the provinces.

Finance Minister Abbott has warned that these latter proposals will have to be reconsidered because of the recent higher subsidy payment proposals made to the provinces in dominion-provincial financial talks.

The council meeting ended with a discussion of foreign affairs. National Leader M. J. Coldwell, who was a member of the Canadian delegation to the United Nations last fall, reported on the New York meetings. Council members complained of "inadequate coverage" of UN by the press of Canada and the executive was instructed to take steps to provide information on UN and other international developments to members of the CCF.

The council declared that the federal government's draft Industrial Relations and Disputes Act to replace wartime labor legislation "failed in numerous respects to meet the needs of labor," and pledged its determination to fight for a full-fledged national labor code.

Scene of Air Fatality Familiar to Canadian Airmen — Copenhagen Airport where Grace Moore (left), opera and movie singer, was killed yesterday, was port of call for many Canadian airmen flying transport in the last stages of the war. Dakota, wartime sister ship of DC-3, which crashed, is seen (right) being serviced there.

JUDGE KIDNAPPED

One of the areas selected for the search was the Schneller quarter, an all-Jewish residential section in the northwest part of Jerusalem about a mile from the residence from which the kidnap victim, N.A.I. Collins, was snatched shortly after dark last evening.

Armored cars swept into the area about 9.30 a.m., with loudspeakers blaring a warning to residents to stay in their houses "until further notice".

A similar operation was launched simultaneously in the Geula quarter, a small modern Jewish section where, police said, the Jewish underground held a kidnapped British officer for a time last June.

Troops had spent most of the night searching an ancient Moslem Cemetery into the catacomb mazes of which Collins had been spirited by his abductors—four men and a woman. Police expressed doubt today, however, that Collins actually was hidden in the cemetery.

"They probably lured us into the ceremony while making their getaway in another direction," said one officer.

SWEDISH PRINCE

diately after the take-off rose steeply upward in a very unusual way, becoming unnavigable."

Bodies All Charred

Airport officials said the bodies of all those aboard were so charred and mutilated they were virtually unrecognizable.

Sweden went into national mourning today for Prince Gustav Adolf, popular grandson of King Gustaf, who met death while going home from a hunting trip to Holland, where he was a guest of Prince Bernhard, husband of Crown Princess Juliana of The Netherlands.

The 27-year-old heir to the Swedish throne was considered one of the best horsemen in Sweden and was known to his people as "the rider prince."

As a result of Gustaf Adolf's death, his nine-month-old son, Karl Gustaf, becomes second in line for the throne.

Surviving the prince are his son, four daughters and a wife, the Princess Sibylle of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. He was the stepson of the Princess Louise, British-born sister of Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten.

Known as 'Glamor Girl'

Miss Moore was born in Slabtown, near Del Rio, Tenn. Slim, blonde and pretty, she was known as the "glamor girl" of the opera. She made her debut in musical comedy and starred in several motion pictures, but her first love was grand opera.

During the war she sang for troops both here and abroad, paying her own expenses and sacrificing many concert engagements.

G. J. Geysendorffer, pilot of the Dutch ship, was once noted as a racing pilot. The 54-year-old flyer, who was the oldest pilot with the Royal Dutch K-L-M line, had been private pilot for Van Lear Black, publisher of the Baltimore Sun, during 1927-30.

Frontier Bunyans Were Widely Read On Fashion Hints

Vancouver, Jan. 27 (CP) — Strong, silent men of the north—men who roamed the forests for furs and the hills for gold—came home at night to their cabins and there, by the smoky glow of an oil lamp—read adventure and travel stories, yes, and even genteel women's magazines on etiquette and fashion.

Madge Wolfenden, the retiring president of the British Columbia Historical Society, read a paper entitled "Books and Libraries in Fur Trading and Colonial Days," at the annual convention held here.

In it, she quotes from the diary of a Daniel Williams Harmon, who visited B.C. trading posts in 1801.

Daniel commented favorably on the "silent companions" which the Northwest and Hudson's Bay Companies selected for their employees.

He mentions such magazines as "Blackwood's Punch, the Gentleman's, Argosy," and a then-popular women's magazine "Household Words."

However, Miss Wolfenden says, the widest-read writers of the 1820's were Shakespeare, Alexander Poe and Sir Walter Scott, with Capt. George Vancouver's "Voyage of Discovery," a close fourth.

Plan "Godmothers" For U.K. Orphans

London, Jan. 27 (CP)—Expansion of social services in Britain and increased attention to child care have so broadened the scope of the Women's Voluntary Services that they will be converted to a permanent peacetime organization.

Under chairmanship of Lady Reading, this million-strong army of women gave magnificent service to their country during the war.

It has been decided to set up a corps of "godmothers" to look after neglected children and it is hoped eventually to provide a "godmother" for every child in every institution in Britain.

They will take personal interest in the children, invite them to their homes, and generally give them personal attention and love to compensate for loss of their mothers.

EXTRA POLICE

that trial.

Court opened at 11 a.m. for the case of MacLean and Bohozuk, both men having been in jail 10 months awaiting trial, and their counsel told newspapermen they would press for immediate trial on the grounds that statements Mrs. Dick made to police — the contentious point in the Ontario Appeal Court's decision to grant her a new trial — had nothing to do with the case against the male accused.

Oppose Postponement

Walter Tuchtie appeared for MacLean, G. A. Martin for Bohozuk, 27-year-old steel worker and one-time oarsman. Counsel for the two served notice they would oppose a postponement vigorously. Failing that, they said, they would apply for writs of Habeas Corpus for release of their clients.

All signs before opening of court however, pointed to Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay granting a postponement with indications that leave to appeal would be granted by the Supreme Court of Canada rapidly and a probability of the review of Mrs. Dick's case getting cleared in the highest court of the land by early March.

May Be Tried In March

That would then pave the way for the Dick torso murder case in its entirety before the Wentworth County Spring Assizes, now called for March 17.

On basis of evidence brought out at Mrs. Dick's trial this case which has gripped the province still remains a mystery. Judges of the Appeal Court at Toronto expressed themselves at a loss to ascertain, on the basis of trial evidence, with motive Mrs. Dick would have had for doing away with her husband. They also expressed the view that it had not been yet shown how John Dick actually died, although they granted that it appeared Mrs. Dick knew a good deal about the slaying.

The view of the appeal court was that the trial judge, Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow, had erred in admitting to evidence the statements Mrs. Dick gave police in which she said that John Dick died from bullet wounds inflicted by Bill Bohozuk during a lonely automobile ride last March 6, when she drove a borrowed car with her husband sitting beside her and her former friend sitting, armed, in the back seat. She said her father provided the gun.

Main courthouse preparations were for the appearance of Maclean and Bohozuk, who last October were hustled, handcuffed together from police cars into the back entrance of the courthouse Their appearance alone was enough to draw a large crowd.

Soft Coal Demand A Big Factor In Miners' Earnings

Hourly Wage Rates in U. S. Bituminous Coal Industry at High Mark in 1946

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Jan. 27 (CP) — Fate of the close to 400,000 soft coal miners in the United States is rapidly moving to a climax, apart from the current supreme court consideration of the $10,000 and $3,500,000 fines imposed respectively on United Mine Workers' president John L. Lewis and the union itself as a result of the November strike.

The truce proclaimed by Lewis in December expires at midnight March 31 and little or no progress has been made in drafting new contracts or turning back to the owners the mines seized by the government during the strike of last Spring.

Present high levels of earnings and opportunity to work will depend in a large measure on the volume of business activity among the consuming interests, and in the opportunity of transferring to other occupations, says a bulletin of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The failure of continued high demand for soft coal might bring about the long layoffs and low returns to which the industry dropped in the depression years.

The number of miners employed during the 1939-1946 period has ranged from 450,000 to around 325,000, not counting the strike periods.

The B. L. S., bulletin surveys the period from before the First World War up to the fall of 1946. It shows that in 1923 the average hourly earnings at the "face" were about 85 cents, more than twice the rate in 1914. Average hourly earnings in October 1946 were $1.48 as compared with about 88 cents in 1939.

Depression Years.

But the miners faced difficult times between the wars. Hourly earnings dropped to 30 cents in 1933 and during a long period the opportunity to work was well below 200 days a year. Conditions improved steadily from 1933 although work days remained under 200 a year for the most part until the Second World War brought heavy demands for bituminous coal.

The war also brought a return to the six-day week until the new contract of last May when it went back to five days with opportunity to work a sixth day, portal-to-portal pay and other benefits.

Average weekly hours of work and average weekly earnings, reported by the B.L.S., for the year ended October 31, 1946 (latest figures available) were shown as follows:

1945	Hours Worked Wky.	Weekly Earnings
Nov.	44.9	$56.29
Dec.	45.7	58.09
1946
Jan.	43.3	54.16
Feb.	45.5	57.37
Mar.	45.9	58.30
April	26.4	30.15
May	27.3	34.20
June	43.4	64.44
July	36.0	52.27
August	42.4	63.37
Sept.	41.4	61.00
October	42.9	62.54

The greatest number of miners at work in any period since 1939 was in October, 1941, when the wage earners in this industry reached 450,000.

During the 12-month period for which figures are given above the highest employment was in March, when the bureau showed 348,888 actually working.

The lowest figure was in April (75,300) and in May (248,000) when a work stoppage brought seizure of the mines by the government and an 18½ cents an hour increase.

U.S. Social Worker Aids Aussie Girls

Canberra, Jan. 27 (CP) — Brown-eyed Finetta Norton has joined the Australian Junior Red Cross to establish youth camps in Australia for 'teen-agers.

She came to Australia with the American Red Cross as a hospital visitor in 1943, and was stationed in Brisbane before she was sent to New Guinea and the Philippines. At Port Moresby she heard much about Australia from Elizabeth Larke of the Australian Red Cross.

After the war Finetta went to the United States but decided to return to Australia on holiday to learn more about Commonwealth ways, especially youth movements and social service work. She had not been here long before the Red Cross offered her the job of starting their big new youth camp venture.

At 33, Finetta Norton has acquired a wealth of experience in leading young people. After leaving high school, she studied social work at the University of Minnesota, taking her bachelor of science degree in social work. Her main work since has been with the Girl Scout movement in the United States.

With the scouts Finetta handled every type of youth problem, and, as an executive director of the movement, she organized camping and general activities in various communities in New York State.

"The Hope and Glory"

Wartime Prime Minister Churchill was touched to the heart and to tears as five hundred blind ex-servicemen cheered him as he appeared to make an address at St. Dunstan's New Year Ball last Friday.

Here the great leader of war days saw again the spirit of the men who passed through World War II and World War I and those who lost their vision as a result of service. His words as he presented a token gift of a walking stick to Sir Ian Fraser, M.P., blinded in the first war with Germany, thoroughly described the spirit of the men. Mr. Churchill said the stick was a symbol of gratitude for showing the means to "hope and glory" and the way by which such injuries as blindness can be conquered.

What these blinded ex-servicemen have achieved does show the means to "hope and glory."

The same spirit is shown by other ex-servicemen who like their blinded comrades carry disabilities in a heroic spirit, because of the honor of the cause in which they fought.

Mr. Churchill, having in the most trying period of the war known the burden and prophesied "blood, sweat and tears," in the cause of victory over the aggressors, also knows what veterans of the epic struggle have borne and achieved in the British spirit of a just cause.

Police Chief's Report

Belleville's good name as a law-abiding community is sustained as a survey of Chief Probert's report shows for the year 1946. It is an interesting commentary on the life of the municipality and the events and incidents of a year from the standpoint of the enforcement of law and order. In 1946 the city was free from major crime.

It is true there was a larger number of cases brought before the court by the police, an increase of slightly over fifty per cent over the previous twelvemonth but the report makes it clear that the increase consists mostly of traffic violations, disorderly conduct charges, offences against the Highway Traffic Act and Liquor Control Act.

Police today have a more complex task to carry out than formerly was their duty for this is a more complex age, due in part to the motor car and the surge of traffic, and the advent of radio. Police today have work of enforcement to perform much of which was unknown not so many years ago.

In the motor age there are unfortunately accidents and Belleville is no exception. Last year there were 80 motor accidents with 43 persons injured, one fatally. These figures show an increase of 16 accidents, but five less persons injured and two less persons fatally injured than in the previous year.

Investigation of car thefts was so successful that every stolen car was recovered last year. 289 of the 346 bicycles stolen were recovered.

The Chief Constable has a good word for the work of radio in helping the enforcement of law and the detection of crime. "During the past year radio was an important factor in the apprehension of eight persons who had broken into business places. These persons were arrested right at the scene of the crime. Three of these persons were found to be wanted in other cities for serious crime. Therefore I feel that good radio equipment is of vital importance in the efficient functioning of the police department."

Chief Probert commented on the closer co-operation between the public and the police. He thanks sincerely those who have given invaluable assistance in the past and assures them that "their confidence will not be betrayed."

That co-operation is one of the essentials of a successful police department. The police represent the citizens and the spirit of the municipality and co-operation with those who enforce the law wins not only the gratitude of the police but also of the entire community of law-abiding citizens.

Formosa, China's Prize Island

President Chiang Kai-Shek in reviewing the Government's work during the past year, declared that Taiwan (Formosa), after more than one year under Chinese administration, has made rapid strides toward economic recovery and progress.

The Chinese administration, now headed by Governor Chen Yi, returned to Formosa in October 1945 after the Island had been under Japanese control for half a century. Among his first deeds, Governor Chen released all "thought" criminals imprisoned by the Japanese and at the same time, placed under arrest all known collaborators. Then he turned his attention to Formosa's 500,000 Japanese prisoners of war and civilians. With American help, he had all of them shipped back to Japan, with the only exception of some 2,700 technicians, teachers, government employees, factory supervisors and their families. These people have been allowed to stay for the time being until there are enough trained Chinese personnel to take their places.

Another of Governor Chen's early measures was to replace the Japanese opium monopoly with a suppression campaign.

The return of the Chinese rule means a new deal for Formosa's aborigines, totalling some 160,000, who speak different dialects and live as hunters or as unskilled farmers in the hills. Some of these aborigines have already adopted the Chinese language, Chinese dress, and customs. The Kaosha tribe people, confined to the hills by the Japanese, are now permitted to live side by side with the Chinese.

Re-education in Formosa has proved to be a considerable problem to the new administration. Even to keep the schools open has not been easy, on account of the shortage of teachers. At the end of the war there were over 2,000 Japanese teachers and only 200 Formosans. All classes were conducted in Japanese. Chinese was taught only as a subject of advanced study. Since September 1946, the schools have stopped using Japanese. Despite numerous difficulties, school attendance has actually increased. Today 70% of the school-age children are in school. Last September, 209 high schools were functioning.

Taiwan was first discovered by the Chinese in the Third Century. Chinese settlers began to arrive on the Island in the seventh century. By the twelfth century, it was already an integral part of the Chinese Empire.

Dutch and Spanish adventurers occupied part of Taiwan in the fourteenth century. In the early days of the Manchu Dynasty, Taiwan was again recovered by the Chinese and became a strong bulwark against the Manchu rule in China. Beginning with Chang Chen-kung, there were thirty-two attempts made in Taiwan aiming at the restoration of the Ming Dynasty. The pioneer and frontier spirit of the people of Taiwan has sustained throughout history their national consciousness.

This national consciousness rose to a new high level when in 1895 the defeated Manchu Dynasty agreed to cede Taiwan to Japan under the Peace Treaty of Shimonoseki. The people of Taiwan refused to accept Japanese rule. They declared themselves independent and established in 1895 the first republic in the Far East. They fought the invaders for half a year before the republic was overthrown by the Japanese. Within the last fifty years the Japanese had succeeded to a great extent in exploiting the natural resources of Taiwan and building its strategic position as a spearhead of invasion to the South China and the South Pacific Islands.

Taiwan was returned to China by the agreement of the Cairo Conference held in December 1943 by the heads of the Big Three of the Allies.

Most people would succeed in small things if they were not troubled by great ambitions.—Longfellow.

NEEDLESS FEAR

From all the books that I have read,
And books can teach a man a lot,
The wise of every age have said:
The world is surely going to pot.

The pessimistic wise have viewed
Approaching change and liked it not,
And muttered in a dismal mood:
The world is surely going to pot.

The young have always scared the old—
Who have their youthful dreams forgot.
The best of life we've known, they've told:
The world is surely going to pot.

The past unto the old appears
The best than can, by men, be got;
But notwithstanding all their fears,
The world has never gone to pot.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How did the Sam Browne belt originate?

The Sam Browne belt, a broad leather waist band with a light strap over the right shoulder, received its name from its originator, General Sir Samuel James Browne (1824-1901), an India-born British army officer, who distinguished himself in the Indian service.

In the fall of 1858, during the Indian Mutiny, Browne, then a captain in a Bengal regiment, had his left arm severed at the shoulder by a Sepoy's sword while engaged in hand-to-hand fighting in a skirmish near the village of Philibhit. Browne continued in active service, received numerous decorations and rose to the rank of general. His bravery in battle became a by-word among the natives, who called him 'Sam Brun Sahib."

Just when and why Browne devised the belt that bears his name is not known. According to one story he sought merely to improve the clumsy method of carrying the sword by British officers, and according to another he was prompted by the loss of his left arm to devise a new belt to aid in supporting his own sabre.

At that time officers carried their sword loosely in a scabbard hung from the left side with two slings. When walking the officer had to keep his left hand on the hilt to prevent the sword from dangling between his legs and tripping him. It is generally supposed that since General Browne had no left hand he devised a belt that would hold up the sword firmly against the left side and parallel with the left leg.

The Sam Browne sword belt, with some modifications, became standard for British officers in 1900, the year before General Browne's death, and was adopted in the French, Italian, Belgian and other armies. It was widely worn by American officers long before it was officially sanctioned by both the U. S. Army and Marine Corps during the First World War, when commissioned officers in both services were ordered to wear Sam Browne belts to enable Allied officers and enlisted men to distinguish them from American enlisted men.

On July 10, 1919, General John A. Lejeune, commander of the Second Division in France, ordered all officers to wear Sam Browne belts when travelling with troops. In 1921 this belt was made standard equipment and became "Belt, Officers' Model, 1921." The U. S. War Department in 1941 ruled that the Sam Browne belt was to be worn by officers only when unarmed. The next year this belt ceased to be a required article of uniform, and officers were given the option of wearing cloth belts in lieu of it because the solid leather and brass buckles were made of critical materials.

It is erroneous to suppose, as many writers do, that the Sam Browne belt was devised by Colonel Samuel Haslett Browne, who was born in 1850 and who also distinguished himself in the Anglo-Indian service.

Five Stabbed In Demonstrations

Bombay, Jan. 27 — (AP)—Authorities reported today that at least five persons were stabbed and several others seared by acid throwers in Bombay during Sunday's celebration of India's Independence Day. Polic fired several times to disperse Hindu-Moslem rioters and police snipers manned rooftops in the Tempe area with orders to shoot acid-throwers on sight.

Few disturbances were reported elsewhere in India, where the celebration conisted mainly of flag raising ceremonies and mass recitations of a pledge to achieve complete Indian independence.

Dispatches from Lahore said that Segen Moslem League leaders who were arrested Friday night during a police raid on the office of the league's national guard were released Sunday night.

Six of the Moslems refused to leave prison until more than 100 other league members, arrested for remonstrating against the raid were also released. Finally they were "pushed out of jail," they said.

CAPONE DIES

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 27 — (AP) — Scarface Al Capone, 48, gangland leader who feared a mobsters' death, died Saturday night amid the luxury of his private villa with his family gathered around.

"I don't want to die, shot in the street," he once said.

When death came at 7:25 p.m. of pneumonia and heart failure, complications of an apoplectic stroke, he was in his own bed with expert medical care at hand—and behind high protective walls that long had guarded him from possible revenge.

EX-R.C.A.F. HERO, NOW DRUGGIST, HEADS PATHFINDERS' CLUB

A squadron leader at the age of 21, member of the famed Pathfinder squadrons and winner of both the D.S.O. and DD.F.C. — one of the few Canadian airmen to receive both decorations — John Perry, Woodbridge, Ont., has been elected president of the Canadian Pathfinders' Club, which hopes soon to have chapters in cities from coast to coast. All former Pathfinders, whether air or ground crew, are eligible; the Toronto chapter now has well over 100 members. Not less interesting is Perry's rehabilitation record. Just out of school when he joined the R.C.A.F., he chose pharmacy as a profession on return to civil life, and serves as a druggist-apprentice in his home town. At LEFT the youthful veteran is pictured at his new profession; at RIGHT in his R.C.A.F. uniform.

YESTERDAY AND TODAY

IN THE LIVES OF FAMOUS FOLK

SIR WILLIAM BEVERIDGE

Britain's "cradle to the grave" insurance plan almost pushed the war off the front pages of London's newspapers when it was announced in December, 1942. Named for its author, Sir William Beveridge, the Beveridge plan went into effect in 1945 and provides universal social security, national medical service, training benefits, children's allowances and funeral benefits. Economist Beveridge says it's the completion of what was begun more than 30 years ago when David Lloyd George interested him in national health insurance and Winston Churchill, then president of the board of trade, in unemployment insurance. Nearly 67, Beveridge was born in Rangpur, Bengal, India, where his father was with the Indian civil service. Educated at Oxford, he started out to be an astronomer, but changed his interests to sociology and economics. Since 1905 when he became a member of the central (unemployed) body for London, Beveridge has held numerous government and economic positions. He was director of the London School of Economics and Political Science from 1919 to 1937, and is the author of numerous publications on social problems. Latest of these are "Full Employment in a Free Society," "The Price of Peace," and "Why I Am a Liberal." A confirmed bachelor until the age of 63, Beveridge was married in 1942 to Mrs. Janet Mair. He likes hill walking and bridge and promises to prove when he is 80, that it is possible to forecast weather through statistics periodically.

POOR CIRCULATION

By whatever name you call it, heart trouble frightens or worries you more or less, and perhaps the less you know about it the more you worry about it. I say perhaps—I mean this is just my conjecture.

There are all kinds of heart trouble, from the simplest weakness, flabbiness or softness of the heart muscle to the most—well, never mind, but the point is that the important question in any on every case of heart disease is how does it affect the circulation?

I hate to even mention the condition here but I must name it in order to prevent confusion. Coronary occulsion means partial or complete blocking of a branch artery in the heart wall—a branch of one of the arteries that supply blood to the heart muscle itself, the right and left coronary arteries (coronary, I must explain, means pertaining to or adapted to form a crown or wreath). When such partial or complete occlusion occurs the area of heart wall supplied by the branch involved is nearly or entirely deprived of its blood supply, except the limited amount of blood that may still reach the affected area through the vessels of Thebesius, small vessels which open from the ventricles and auricles (four heart cavities) directly into the capillary spaces in the heart muscle.

I'm telling all I can about coronary occlusion for the sole purpose of cheering you up if you have or think you have any such trouble. Ask your doctor for any further advice.

If I had coronary occlusion I'd remain more or less at rest for a week or two, or, if temperature remained above normal longer than that, for a month, perhaps. But as soon as my temperature remained normal for as long as three days in succession, I'd resume moderate activity—moving without hurry about the house for a few days, then out in the yard or for a short stroll up the block and back every day, and so on, gradually increasing my activity until I were back on nearly if not quite my ordinary schedule, of course short of strain, effort or any unduly prolonged activity.

It is becoming good medical practice to limit the prolonged absolute rest that the old timers prescribed for patients who had had one or more episodes of coronary occlusion (it was commonly called coronary thrombosis—thrombosis meaning clotting, and of course more or less clotting of blood in the arterial branch or in the muscle substance involved occurs in nearly every case of coronary occlusion.)

I have no information or advice to give concerning the theory—it is purely theory—that deposit of cholesterol in the arterial wall from the blood has anything to do with this or other arterial disease. Even if it were possible to exclude from or limit the proportion of cholesterol—containing foods in the diet, which is a silly notion at best, it is now thirty years late. You should begin that sort of thing a good thirty years before your arteries being to—say, bother you.

There are too many victims of psychic trauma—young men and young women with a functional heart murmur and a machine diagnosis (electrocardiographic record the brass specialists misinterprets) but no actual heart disease; and too many men walking on eggs just because they have had an episode or two of poor circulation, although it would be much better for them in every way if they snapped out of it and resumed a reasonably active scale of life that affords enjoyment without indulgence in excesses.

Welfare Council Concerned Over Sex Crimes

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 27 — (CP) — A paradoxical situation exists in Canada's criminal courts where a man involved in an automobile accident reaps an additional penalty if evidence shows he was intoxicated while driving. But let him become convicted of a sex crime and drunkenness has been known to serve as sufficient excuse to lighten his sentence.

Alarmed at the apparent increase in sex crimes and the legal methods with which they are being dealt, the delinquency and crime division of the Canadian Welfare Council has opened an inquiry into the situation.

"Drunkenness shouldn't be taken into consideration when a man has been charged with a moral offence against a child or adolescent," said Nora Lea, assistant executive director of the council.

Instances Cited

Miss Lea cited two instances in which a man had been acquitted of a sex offence because it had been proved he was intoxicated at the time it was committed. In the first case a man in British Columbia had been given 20 years for having carnal knowledge of a child. His appeal was heard and his sentence suspended because it was shown he had been intoxicated. A similar case occurred in eastern Canada, where a man was acquitted of an indecent act on the grounds of drunkenness.

The council has received a copy of a resolution which an Alberta women's organization has forwarded to the Minister of Justice asking that necessary steps be taken to have legislation enacted whereby scientific examination and treatment be given sex perverts with a view to preventing them from committing the same crime once they have served their sentence and are allowed to go free. The petition also asked more severe sentences for those guilty of such offences.

Effect on Victims

"One of the greatest concerns of social workers is the children who are the victims of these crimes," said Miss Lea. "The harmful effect, both physical and mental, usually lasts throughout life."

"Generally the courts have nothing but the child's word to go on, and the judges are reluctant to hand out sentence on so little evidence . . . the criminals may get a year or so in jail and then return to society and possibly commit the same acts again."

She suggested that psychiatric treatment should be given persons for whom a cure is possible. The others should be put in institutions.

Better screening of persons allowed out on parole also was recommended by Miss Lea.

Second-hand Store Proprietor Shot By Two Gunmen

Montreal, Jan. 27—(CP)—Three revolver shots killed 74-year-old Leon Feigenbaum in Montreal's first murder of 1947.

Proprietor of a second-hand store on downtown Craig Street, Feigenbaum was slain when he defied the shouted command of Hospital early yesterday, four hours after the Saturday night appearance in his store of two young men who first wanted to look at watches, then pulled a gun. One of the pair opened fire when Feigenbaum ran toward the door to summon aid.

Feigenbaum, who had been in the second-hand business 25 years, had been warned by police against keeping his store open late at night.

Detectives of the homicide and holdup squads obtained descriptions of the gunmen before Feigenbaum died.

The slaying was one of three holdup incidents over the week-end. Police fired shots at Jean Mault, 21, as he fled the scene of an alleged fruit store holdup. He was unhurt. Two youthful gunmen fled the eastside restaurant of Louis St. Arneault after a scuffle. They obtained no cash.

Salem

Salem—On Thursday evening approximately eighty-five friend and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Robinson to spend a social evening and to bestow congratulations and best wishes on Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parrott (nee Bernice Robinson).

During the evening community singing was enjoyed and Master Garnet Sills delighted those present with a well rendered piano solo. Mr. and Mrs. Parrott were given seats of honor and Mrs. Clarence Hagerman read an appropriate address. The presentation made on behalf of the community by Messrs Roy McLaren Glenn Milligan, Clarence Hagerman and Ed Lazier, consisted of a Duncan Phyfe coffee-table, Duncan Phyfe drop leaf utility table and a well filled clothes basket of kitchen ware and other gifts. "Jack" and "Bernice" graciously thanked their friends and invited all to visit them in their home on the Front Road. Refreshments were served and the guests departed wishing the newly-weds the best of everything for many years.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

(By The Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Jan. 27 (CP) — Dr. Hugh L. Keenleyside will be returning soon from his ambassadorial post in Mexico City to take over the deputy minister's chair in the Federal Department of Mines and Resources. Appointment of the 48-year-old history-professor diplomat to the Mines and Resources post, announced recently by Prime Minister King, becomes effective March 15.

The appointment provided plenty of corridor-discussion at the recent annual convention of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy. And the general opinion among the mining men seemed to be that it was a good one, that Dr. Keenleyside's diplomatic experience would serve him well in a department which guided the destinies of Canada's second industry and which, the mining men felt, should be energetic and far-sighted.

Dr. Keenleyside, who lectured in history at various colleges and the University of British Columbia, joined the External Affairs Department in 1928. He served as first secretary of the Canadian Legation in Tokyo in the 1930's and was promoted to ambassadorial rank in 1940 and appointed to Mexico four years later.

As deputy minister of Mines and Resources the post also carried appointment as commissioner of the Northwest Territories—Dr. Keenleyside follows one of Canada's most highly-regarded figures in the Canadian mining world—Dr. Charles Gamsell—who recently retired after years of service.

The mining men paid high tribute to Dr. Camsell, announcing his selection as president-elect of the institute, an office that will become effective just about the time Dr. Keenleyside takes over his old mining department deputy's chair in the west block.

Commission—A question that will come in for considerable discussion at the forthcoming session of parliament is that of the establishment of a Maritime Commission for Canada.

The government has been receiving representations from both shipping operators and labor engaged in deepsea and coastal shipping, all urging the appointment of a body similar to the Maritime Commission in the United States.

The chief advantage of such a body, it is argued, would be the concentration into one agency of all authority to deal with marine matters, which now is scattered through a number of government branches. It is understood the government favors the proposal.

Surveyors—Parliament will be in session then, but the Canadian surveyor will have his say in Ottawa February 5-6 when the 40th. annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Surveying is scheduled to be held. The institute luncheon meeting February 5th. will hear Col. E. A. Baker, managing director of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Moscow Charges U.S. Testing Bombs in Canada

New York, Jan. 27 — (CP) — The National Broadcasting Company last night reported the Moscow radio charged in a broadcast that the United States is testing V-bombs in Canada.

The Russian broadcast, as monitored by NBC, also asserted that the United States has turned the port of Churchill, Man., into a major naval and land base for Arctic warfare.

It added that the United States was re-enforcing American bases in Iceland and Greenland and had placed 18 "army camps" along the Alaska highway which Moscow asserted now is patrolled and guarded by Canadian soldiers.

The commentary was signed by Rusakov.

50-Mile Gale Whips up Snow Banks at Regina

Regina, Jan. 27 (CP)—Another in a series of blizzards which have beset southern Saskatchewan this winter today had re-blocked highways and forced bus and automobile transportation to halt in many districts.

While snowfall was not heavy, it was borne on a 50-mile gale which cut visibility to a few feet and whipped up deep banks.

About 100 Regina members of the reserve army who had gone to Lumsden, 18 miles northwest of here, on weekend ski manoeuvres, were forced to take shelter in the town hall there when their trucks were unable to pass snowbound automobiles on the two gunmen: "Hands up and give us your money."

They said the storm struck with little warning.

A light plane was forced to land in a field when visibility became poor. It was piloted by Gerald English, whose passenger, Jean Hodgson, a teacher, had chartered the plane to fly back to her school at Northam.

Meanwhile, residents of about 50 towns and villages which had been short of fuel and food until trains finally broke through to them last week wondered whether the storm again would isolate them. Some residents had just reached their homes after being stranded elsewhere in the southern part of the province for two weeks.

Elsewhere in Saskatchewan the snow was intermittent and did not reach blizzard proportions. Sub-zero temperatures, however, were predicted all over the province for today.

Public Confidence

Canadians contracted with this Company for one hundred and ninety-seven million dollars of life insurance during the past year ($197,819,000). These purchases exceeded those of any previous year by over a million dollars a week.

The total amount of financial security which London Life policyholders have provided for themselves and their families is now more than one billion, two hundred and eighty million dollars ($1,281,101,000).

Reports of the Company's stewardship presented at the recent Annual Meeting show that the growth in size has been accompanied by a further increase in financial strength. The assets of the Company are two hundred and forty-eight million dollars ($248,782,000), and to safeguard the interests of policyholders, making "assurance doubly sure" for them, contingency and surplus funds amount to 8 per cent of the assets.

The strong position of the London Life is evidenced by the fact that, in spite of the general decline in interest rates, it has been able to maintain its tradition of low cost insurance to policyholders. In fact, many owners of policies on "protection plans" will receive increases in dividends during 1947. The Company's record over the past half century for low cost life insurance has been unexcelled.

The healthy and rapid growth of the Company is the best possible assurance of continued satisfaction to policyholders, and one of the reasons the London Life merits public confidence in full measure.

A copy of the 1946 Annual Report will be mailed upon request to any Branch Office.

WEDDINGS

HOPKINS—KELLETT

On January 18, the United Church parsonage, Bridge Street E., was the scene of a very pretty marriage ceremony when Rev. D. C. Amos united Miss Winnifred May Kellett, daughter of Mrs. Kellett, and the late Mr. C. L. Kellett, Belleville, with Mr. Philip C. Hopkins, son of Major P. Hopkins and the late Mrs. Hopkins, of Toronto.

The bride was very attractively gowned in a dress of grey crepe with embroidery on peplum and sleeves a flower hat in cerise shades with matching accessories ,and a corsage of deep red roses and forget-me-nots.

Miss Reta Ellis, as bridesmaid, wore a gown of pale blue crepe with rows of fagotting, a flower hat in darker shades of blue, matching accessories and a corsage of roses.

Mr. Wallace Goltz, of Pembroke, acted as groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride for a few intimate friends and relatives. For travelling Mrs. Hopkins chose a beige wool suit with Mouton fur trim and brown suede accessories.

Prior to her marriage the bride was entertained at several showers, the hostesses being Mrs. Goodfellow and Beverly for a linen shower; Miss Reta Ellis and Miss Ada Moore for a miscellaneous shower; Miss Betty Barr and Mrs. Ford for a presentation by neighbors. And during their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins were the recipients of a number of beautiful gifts at a shower in Toronto given in their honor by friends of the groom.

THOMPSON —WANNAMAKER

A very pretty double ring marriage ceremony was solemnized in Bethel Hall, Belleville, at high noon on January twenty-fifth, when Audrey Zelma Jean, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Wannamaker, became the bride of Mr. Wilfred Clayton Thompson, son of Mrs. Myrtle Thompson and the late Mr. Thompson of Mountain View, with Mr. Simon Bronson officiating.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. Vinal Clarke, of Halloway, cousin of the bride. During the signing of the register, she softly played "I Love You Truly".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a floor-length dress of white sheer with full skirt, high neckline and long sleeves. Her long veil of embroidered net, ending in slight train, was caught to her hair with a matching halo headdress and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. She wore the groom's gift, a strand of pearls with matching earrings.

Her only attendant, Miss Alice Young, of Belleville, wore a gown of poudre blue taffeta with puffed sleeves and sweetheart neckline. She wore a matching shoulder length veil and carried a nosegay of pink carnations.

The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Kenneth Thompson, of Belleville, while the ushers were Mr. Milton Wannamaker and Mr. Roy Thompson, brothers of the bride and groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for about seventy-five guests, the bride's mother receiving in a two-piece dress of navy crepe with a corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother wearing a royal blue dress and a corsage of red roses.

Later the happy couple left by motor for Toronto and Buffalo, N.Y., the bride travelling in a blue wool dress and muskrat coat with brown accessories. Her corsage was of red roses.

On their return they will reside in Oshawa, Ont.

Cup-and-Saucer Shower Given Miss D. Evans

On the evening of Jan. 21st, Miss Dorothy Evans, bride-elect, was the guest of honor at a delightful dinner party and cup-and-saucer shower given by Mrs. Barbara Bowman, Mrs. Ruth Sheridan and Miss Mary Lloyd as joint-hostesses, the interesting event taking place at The Lanthorn Inn.

The table was laid with a white cloth centred with a bouquet of Spring blossoms including tulips, iris and narcissi; it was flanked by tall white tapers whose light shed a rosy glow over all. The gifts were attractively arranged on a side table, decorated with brass candlesticks holding white lighted tapers.

Following the delicious dinner the bride-to-be was led to the gift table by Mrs. Barbara Bowman. Miss Evans was the recipient of many lovely gifts, and expressed her delight and appreciation in a fitting manner.

Paranuik Family Holds Reunion For Parents

Marmora. (Special.)—The Paranuik family held a family reunion this weekend as the parents on Friday celebrated their thirtieth wedding anniversary. They took their marriage vows in Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox Church, Long Point, Montreal, with Rev. Ghenadie Gheorghin officiating. The groom was born in Roumania, while the bride came from Poland. Theodor Paranuik or "Tom" as he is known to his fellow employees has been an employee of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company Limited for twenty-eight years and for the greater part of that time has been the chief arsenic worker. He is a member of the Quarter Century Club and his chief Summer pastime is angling. He has been living in his present residence, which is owned by him, for the past four years. Previous to that he resided for six years in Marmoro Township. Before that, he lived for ten years in Marmora Village and nine years in Deloro. The Paranuiks have nine children—Costan and John, Marmora; Mary, Peterborough; George, Madoc; Mrs. Kennard Baker (Ann), Marmora; Michael, Lakefield; Jennie, Peterborough and Elizabeth and Tommy, at home. Mr. Paranuik became a naturalized Canadian on January 17, 1929. It was expected most of the children would be home on Sunday to honor their parents.

Celebrate 80th Birthday

Mrs. Mary McGrath celebrated her eightieth birthday on Monday, January 20. Her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James McGrath entertained a number of relatives at a birthday party at Tipperary House, Crowe Lake in her honor. Mrs. McGrath is enjoying excellent health and is most active for her age. She can sew, play bridge and paint pictures without the aid of glasses. A daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Connor her whole life has been spent in this district.

Women's Activities

GILEAD W.M.S.

The January meeting of the W.M.S. of Gilead United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Yorke. The President, Mrs. Guy Leavens, opened the meeting. The worship service as suggested in the Missionary Monthly was used with Mrs. Leavens leading; Mrs. Rollins, Mrs. Clare and Mrs. F. Yorke assisting with Bible readings. Mrs. Jas. Huffman offered prayer, "that all members be true disciples of Jesus Christ, and loyal members of His church". The program was in charge of Mrs. Rollins. Splendid New Year readings were given by Mrs. Balcanquel, Mrs. Huffman, Mrs. Bertrand and Mrs. Earl Yorke. A duet contributed by Mrs. Clare and Mrs. F. Yorke, and a solo by Mrs. J. Lawrenson were much appreciated. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction after which delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

A special feature of this meeting was the attendance of Mrs. Rhoda Huffman, who celebrated her ninetieth birthday anniversary on one day of the same week. The other members joined in wishing her "many happy returns".

Deep Dark Glamour

By ALICE ALDEN

ONE HOLIDAY GIFT selection that increases in popularity each year is the glamorous black nightgown, not necessarily the sheer type, but beautiful gowns of black silk crepe with fine touches of embroidery. Yolande who does hand-made lingerie with such superb assurance, is responsible for this really beautiful black nightgown. Appliqued flowers in dramatically contrasting pastel colors, outline the deep V neckline and are scattered with knowing acrelessness on the high-waisted skirt.

Y.P. Unions Of Conference Conclude School

The twenty-second Winter School of the Y.P. Unions of Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church, held last week in Bridge Street Church, was an inspirational success for participants who faithfully attended all the sessions and took part in its activities.

Rev. Lloyd Shorten, of Foxboro and Rev. H. Lackey, of Frankford, conducted interesting courses in "Bible Study", while courses in "Methods" were given by Rev. A. W. Seaton, of Sydenham and Rev. W. G. Fletcher, of Yarker, Ont. Rev. Thos. Buchanan, returned missionary on furlough from India, brought interesting first-hand information of the work of the United Church in "The India of Today".

Morning Worship was conducted by Rev. D. C. Amos, of Bridge Street Church, and the afternoon Worship Services were conducted by different students of the school.

Number Of Tours Made

Afternoon entertainment consisted of tours conducted through the Broadcasting Station, 'CJBQ', Albert College, Deacon Brothers factory and The Ontario Intelligencer Printing plant. To all who gave of their time in arranging these tours, and to those in charge of these local points of interest the students are very grateful.

Evening programs were varied and instructive, covering addresses by Rev. Bruce Gordon, of Peterborough, on "Horizons"; one on "Radio Broadcasting" by Bill Arnold of "CJBQ"; an illustrated address on India by Rev. Thomas Buchanan and Rev. D. C. Amos gave an informative talk accompanied with slides of "The Alaska Highway Project". Tuesday evening, five members of the student body gave a fifteen minute broadcast over the local station, for which they are indebted to the "Junior Board of Trade" which sponsored the program.

Play Party Held

On Friday evening a "Play Party", under the direction of the National Convener of Recreation, Miss Beulah Maitland, of Queen's University, was much enjoyed by all the students. Following the party the president and dean of the school gave an inspiring "charge" to the students, and twenty-seven certificates were presented to those who had satisfactorily completed their courses. Refreshments were served by members of the Bridge Street Y.P.U.

During the week delicious meals were served by ladies of Bridge St., Holloway St., and Tabernacle United Churches. All the young people registered for the "school" enjoyed a week of wonderful fellowship, inspiration and fun, and wish to go on record as having appreciated all that was done to make their stay at the school profitable and enjoyable, including thanks to the officers, the speakers and the hostesses in the various homes where they were entertained.

Miss Winnifred Stirland, W.M., presented Mrs. Jean Ingram with a Life Membership in grateful appreciation for many years of faithful service cheerfully given as special refreshment convener. Each of the recipients replied, expressing sincere gratitude for the honor conferred on her.

Chapters represented were Bancroft, Madoc, Tweed, Unity, Toronto, Napanee, Trenton and Belleville 55.

Following the meeting, refreshments were served from tables placed at each end of the chapter room, beautifully decorated with lace cloths centred with silver candelabra and rose bowls. Presiding over the silver tea services at one table were Mrs. Jean Ingram and Mrs. Charlotte Stirland, while Mrs. Hazel Wilson, P.W.M., and Mrs. Alice Jobson, P.W.M., were at the other table. Refreshment conveners for this special occasion were Mesdames Flossie Mason, Rose Gillett, Edna Dobbs, P.W.M.

Dancing brought another memorable and happy evening to a close.

Arrowhead Course For Boy Scouts Held in City

The first Eastern Ontario Bronze Arrowhead Course was held in the Belleville Armouries, Friday and Saturday. The course was sponsored by the Belleville Boy Scout Association and was under the general direction of the Field Commissioner for Eastern Ontario Mr. A. Jackson.

The main object of the course was the instruction of patrol and troop leaders in better methods of Boy Scout leadership. Instruction was given by specialists from Peterborough, Kingston and Toronto. With over 100 patrol leaders and scoutmasters from Peterborough, Port Hope, Brighton, Batawa, Trenton, Napanee, Kingston, Picton, Madoc and Grafton taking the course, it is anticipated that these leaders, who are the keymen in the Scout organization, will in turn impart the information gained to over 2,000 Scouts and Cubs throughout the district.

One of the highlights of the two-day conference, which delighted the many adults who accepted the open invitation to attend, was a demonstration Cub meeting Friday evening by the 1st Napanee Cub Pack under the skilled leadership of Cubmaster F. Barnett.

Interesting Sidelight.

An interesting sidelight was the information about world achievement in the field of Scouting. Commissioner Jackson said that Scouting was the only external social influence which had succeeded in overcoming the barriers of the centuries old caste system in India. The Commissioner also told of a Canadian-trained Norwegian Commando who parachuted into Norway with one of his objectives the securing of Boy Scout training books in the Norwegian language. Those books secured were to be reprinted in Canada and held in readiness to be sent to Norway at the earliest possible moment after victory over Germany in order to aid the organization of Norwegian youth to help in the rebuilding of their country.

The two-day conference concluded with a banquet at Christ Church Parish Hall. Assistant Commissioner of Training for Peterborough, Mr. G. Groombridge, was the speaker at the banquet, Commissioner Groombridge spoke of the value of Boy Scout organizations in reducing juvenile delinquency.

THIEVES STEAL BOND AND EAT BANANAS

Welland, Jan. 27—(CP)—Just to emphasize the lushness of their haul, thieves who broke into the home of Mr. G. Herring Saturday night ate a few bananas as well as removing $24 in cash and a $100 victory bond.

They were happy to take only $64 from Mike Petrina,poolroom proprietor, when they robbed his home at Port Robinson, four miles north of here.

Boy Scout Organizations Great Help in Combatting Local Juvenile Delinquency

At a banquet in Christ Church Parish Hall, Belleville, Saturday evening, the Boy Scout Assistant Commissioner of Training for Peterborough stressed the strength of scout and cub groups in overcoming juvenile delinquency, as he recollected some of his personal experiences as a scout in England under the leadership of General Sir Charles Lorne.

The banquet was the concluding event of a two-day Boy Scout conference stressing the improvement of scout leadership through special instruction for patrol and troop leaders.

During the banquet, served by the ladies of the Christ Church Parish Guild, the President of the Belleville Boy Scout Association, Mr. Maurice Button, welcomed the visiting scouts and cubs and thanked all those whose co-operation helped make the conference a success.

Colonel B. C. Sisler was presented with an attractive pen and pencil set by President Button in appreciation for Col. Sisler's efforts to help scouting while commissioner of the Belleville Boy Scout District. Col. Sisler has been forced to relinquish the commissionership due to his transfer to St. Thomas.

Counteract Juvenile Delinquency

Mr. G. Groombridge, the Scout Assistant Commissioner of Training for Peterborough, while addressing the large group of scout and cub leaders, indicated it was his firm contention that with stronger support of scouting by the general public in Canada, more could be done to further the work of scouting which in turn would materially assist in counteracting the forces tending to create juvenile delinquency among Canadian youth.

As well as support by the public, Commissioner Groombridge believes that another significant factor in resisting the inroads of juvenile delinquency is the attracting of boys to scout and cub groups. Speaking of his experiences in Peterborough, Commissioner Groombridge indicated that probably the most important action that would create interest and attraction to scouting for boys in Belleville would be the providing of a Belleville Scout Headquarters Building. Such a headquarters building for the use of all boy scouts in Belleville might include properly equipped meeting rooms gymnasium and equipment storage rooms.

Want Headquarters

The speaker was introduced by District Commissioner for Peterborough, E. Wolff and was thanked by Mr. A. Simpson of Belleville In thanking the speaker, Mr. Simpson expressed the desire of the local Belleville Scout Association to successfully meet the challenge of establishing a Belleville Scout Headquarters building and a Boy Scout Summer Camp in the district.

Entertainment at the banquet featured the typical scout get-together formula, hearty singing led by Rover Scout R. Gynane of Peterborough and two humorous skits enacted by the Boy Scouts of Belleville. The entertainment furthered the genial comradeship felt throughout the two day conference; that comradeship which is the true spirit underying scouting and necessary to the continued progress of the scouting movement.

Ladies Aux. Branch Of Canadian Legion Installs Officers

At the regular monthly meeting held last Thursday, the Ladies' Auxiliary to Branch 99 Canadian Legion, (Belleville), carried out their installation of officers for 1947.

Mrs. Charles Jeffs was in the chair. Besides the regular business there were reports for the year 1946. The financial statemen by Mrs. Dave Bradford was very well received and showed over $1,500.00 raised and over $1,300.00 distributed in Legion and other welfare work. The auditor's report also showed the books to be in excellent condition.

Plans were made for a visit to Picton Branch early next month also the arrangements for a Valentine's night were completed.

Following this Comrade Frank Gardner, Zone commander for this district of the Canadian Legion was asked to install the officers, this he did in a most capable manner and concluded with a short talk on the work of the Legion and congratulating the ladies on the work they were doing and expressing surprise at the volume of same.

The officers for 1946 were presented with gifts in appreciation of their co-operation during the past year and the meeting was closed with the serving of dainty refreshments served by the Social Committee.

Breathing Deep Peps You Up

Lying on your back is the best position for costal breathing.

By HELEN FOLLETT

IF THE WORD exercise puts a girl's teeth on edge, because she can't bear the thought of a daily muscle work-out, she can at least put in a few minutes of lung-washing. The benefits to her complexion, her figure and her state of mind—if a bit depressed—will be manifold. Don't fancy you can preserve an appearance of youth without doing something to keep the blood streams dancing.

Try costal breathing, just for fun. Clasp your hands behind your back, pressing them into the waistline. Inhale slowly through the nostrils, lifting the chest, at the same time pulling in the tummy muscles. Keep drawing the abdominal muscles in further and further and up higher. Exhale through the lips with a sort of whistle. Fine for doing away with shelves formed by protruding collar bones; the skinnies had better make it a practice. Ten minutes in the morning, ten at night, before an open window. Good too for strengthening back muscles that have sagged.

Lift The Shoulders

By clavicular breathing is meant the lifting of the collar bones and the shoulders with each intake of air. This will force you to extend your spinal column, giving you pleasing lines of the back. It expands the apices of the lungs and is recommended for girls with concaved chests who would develop the bosom.

Those women who are always on the gallop, who say they never have a minute to spare, can do their exercises just after awakening in the morning and before going to sleep at night. It will help them to carry on their active lives.

Lie flat on the back in bed, hands at the sides. Take a long, slow breath, lifting the chin slightly as you inhale. Exhale slowly. Try to think of nothing at all, so you will relax. You'll find wonderful refreshment in air-washing the lungs. In time it will bring a glow, a sense of well-being.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Am I Poisoning Your Minds, Girls?

A man reader writes in to take this column severely to task.

In his opinion, it's doing a fine job of messing everybody up, the women particularly. He charges that it sides in partisan fashion with the ladies, flatters them, and puts all sorts of false ideas into their heads, not the least of these being that marriage is, or should be, a 50-50 proposition.

Here is his complaint:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"After reading your articles, I have concluded that yours is one of the most ferocious attempts at poisoning the minds of young American womanhood that I have ever read.

"First of all, you fall into that obvious pattern (subconsciously) of the 'security hunter.' This is readily depicted by your ideas in your articles. You assume that a wife should be some 'pampered idol' to be prayed to. Apparently you are not cognizant of male-female relationships in a happy medium.

"Do you realize that a woman must of necessity be subordinate to the man? There is no truth to this fallacious 50-50 proposition. A man must be master. I detest a woman with independence, belligerence and arrogance.

"You will notice my many corrections in this letter. They arise out of the anger your articles create in me.

"In closing, let me say that many women will flock to your cause. You are flattering their very beings. Why shouldn't they?

"Women are mostly emotional, irrational creatures. Egotistical, too. They are in a terrible state of decay at this time. Please, please do not support their neurotic tendencies. Take the man's side just once.

"You will of necessity have to disregard this letter. It was not meant to be detrimental to young womanhood but rather directed at a sincere attempt to better relations.

"N. A. G."

If this is an attempt to better relations between the sexes, "N. A. G." your tactics remind me of the man who punched his bride in the jaw, knocked her down and jumped on her, saying: "That's for nothing. So watch out!"

So far as your charges against my articles are concerned, all I can say is that I don't believe you read them very often. If you did, you would surely have noticed that I frequently take the man's side; that the only women I "flatter", as you put it, are those who seem to have the character and the courage to do their best to solve the problems that come their way; that I encourage no one's "neurotic tendencies", whether male or female; that my sole interest is in giving what little help I can to those sincerely in earnest about trying to make a success of marriage.

And as for your charges against women in general, perhaps some of my women readers would like to speak for themselves.

Girls Should Be Decorative, yet Know When to Stop

Dame Fashion seems to be going in for costume jewelry in a big way. Huge necklaces, many bracelets clanging on one arm, lapel pins of unusual size and design. When selecting these details, a woman must draw on good taste and discrimination. It is easy to look cheap and junky, to wear the wrong ornament, or to wear too many. And there is something else to keep in mind; brooches, clips, necklaces and earrings can change the contour of the face, sometimes to advantage, and sometimes for the opposite effect. They should harmonize with the design of the frock. They should be considered in conjunction with the hat.

Wide necklaces, worn close against the throat, will add width and fullness to the feminine portrait; for that reason Mrs. Plumple should never use them. A long chain with pendant, worn with the frock with a V neck, will make the wearer's face appear thinner and longer; that is the effect that Plumple is after. If she must wear a choker, let it be composed of small units—or those of graduated size—rather than large ones. If she is wise, she will dispense with it altogether. It just isn't her beauty dish.

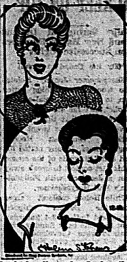
The choker belongs to the girl with the thin, long face. It serves the purpose of concealing a too-thick neck.

It was a smart individual who first designed clips. These useful ornaments can be used in a variety of ways, often imparting precisely the right touch to a frock that otherwise would be too plain. When attaching clips, keep adjusting them until you get the most becoming effect.

A single clip, placed in the centre of the neckline, has a slenderizing effect upon the neck that has adopted a policy of expansion. It should not be so small that it will look lost and lonesome, but large enough to give the effect of a brooch. A clip at either side of the neck makes the shoulders look wider.

A smart effect can be attained by placing both clips on the same side, one slightly lower than the other. How these ornaments are to be used in the hair depends, of course, upon the hair-do. When used in this way, they should not be heavy, or the wearer will look overdressed. As a rule, beautiful hair, beautifully arranged, looks best with no ornaments at all.

All earrings tend to increase the apparent width of the face.



A single clip, placed in the centre, has a slenderizing effect upon the neck.

Engagement Broken . . . Should She Return Shower Gifts?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

About six months ago I was engaged, and we were to be married my closest girl friend gave me an engagement shower, and the gifts were gift for the home. During the course of our engagement my fiance and I quarrelled quite a bit, and although he insisted he was happy in our engagement, his increasing moodiness convinced me that it would be best to break the engagement. I sent back the engagement ring to him, we are still good friends, but I don't intend to resume our former basis.

I had every intention to return the shower gifts to the givers, but the girl who was the hostess of the shower and her mother also said I could keep their gifts. Then I mentioned to some other friends that I was going to return their gifts shortly, and they too said that I didn't have to return the gifts, that they were given to me. All the gifts, except one personal one, were for the home. Is it a usual procedure to return engagements gifts after the engagement has been broken? I had always thought it was, inasmuch as the reason for which the gifts were given did not materialize. I would appreciate your advice as to what I should do.

J. M.

When an engagement is broken, not only is the engagement ring returned at once to the man, but all engagement or wedding gifts which have been received by either the girl or the man should be promptly returned to the givers. This is a proper and sensible procedure, and for the reason you yourself mention—that the reason for which the gifts were given no longer exists. However, it is true that some people think it is proper for the girl to keep the gifts if her friends wish her to. I never could understand how she would know if her friends wanted her to return the gifts. . . . would your friends ask you to return their gifts? Naturally when you mentioned to them your intention to do this, they replied they didn't want the gifts returned. But if you really want to return them, don't discuss this with your friends; just return each gift to the giver with a brief note of explanation.

A Wedding On the Informal Side

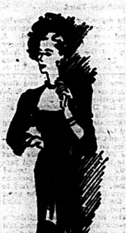
Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning my wedding for a Sunday afternoon soon; we are to engage a small hall and will invite about sixty guests. Although I prefer to have a simple affair I would like to wear a wedding dress and veil. I had thought of wearing a trainless gown of possibly white crepe or moire. Would it then be correct for the groom to wear either a tuxedo or a dark-blue business suit, and would business suits be appropriate for the best man and for my father? Also, may my one attendant correctly wear a street-length dress in pastel shade? And, to spare my mother the expense of having to buy a long dress, could she also wear a street-length dress?

J. M.

For the type of wedding you have in mind, these plans would be correct: you to wear a white wedding gown, trainless, and a short veil; the bridegroom to wear a dark-blue business suit (a tuxedo is not correctly worn before six o'clock in the evening, at the earliest, and the best man and your father also to wear dark business suits; your one attendant to wear a floor-length dress (her dress should be long, if your dress is long) of pastel shade; and it will be correct for your mother to wear a street-length dress.

Velvet is Black



By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

BLACK VELVET, long absent from the sartorial scene—is back again for afternoon-into-evening wear. This most attractive frock has a deep, wide neckline draped over the bosom and caught with tabs, lined with gray satin, at either side. The skirt is flared front and back and flat at the sides. Gray satin lines the self sash. The fabric is permitted a chance to shine, rather than being obliterated by all sorts of trimming which is a new and smart touch.

BRITISH SERVICEMEN RETURN KINDNESS OF "LADY BOUNTIFUL"

British servicemen stationed in the United States during the war found a hospitable welcome always awaited them in the home of Dr. Alice North, of Castine, Main, whom they nicknamed "Lady Bountiful." As a gesture of gratitude some of her former guests arranged for Dr. North to travel to England and gave her a bang-up party in one of London's poshiest hotels. "Lady Bountiful" is pictured here with some of her hosts, holding a silver tray presented to her as a token of appreciation.

Yellow and Pink Fashion Colors for Spring Hats

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 27 (CP) — The new Spring hats are on the way and they are designed to make you look as pretty as a picture.

In tribute to the beautifully-costumed Broadway production of Oscar Wilde's "Lady Windermere's Fan," the new high fashion color is Lady Windermere yellow. In the play Penelope Ward in the title role wears gowns and hats of this hue designed by Cecil Beaton.

In the Spring and Summer fashions shown to the fashion press, John Frederics features the sunny color in the crown of a dramatic, swashbuckling felt hat which has an American blue mushroom brim. A scarf of harmonizing tones is fastened at the back of the hat with a steel ornament—just as it would have been in the Gay Nineties.

Sally Victor manipulates the deep yellow color in a cute straw hat for debs and sub-debs. The hat, "Little Filly," is trimmed with bright red roses and grey wings. It sits on the back of the head and exposes the forehead below its roller brim.

Its running mate, "Big Filly," a silver grey straw, is trimmed with yellow wings and yellow striped taffeta ribbon.

Romantic shell pink is the color of a group of exquisite silk and straw hats for dress-up occasions. It is repeated in the trimming of others.

Calot a Feature.

One of the prettiest is a deep calot of pale pink roses by Sally Victor. Designed to turn heads, it fits snugly down over the ears and is destined to become a high point in the Spring millinery picture.

This designer has taken heart with the return of the romantic for evening and shows a lovely, wide-brimmed model of pink baku and black lace. A pink satin bow tied around the crown in front adds a dash of glamor. This hat will carry its wearer thru' Spring and into Summer.

Another pink hat is the rose petal bonnet created by John Frederics of palest pink satin on straw with a draped band of leaf green taffeta ending in bows in the back. It fits snugly and frames the face with the silk petals. The same designer uses a silver-threaded veil and two pink roses to trim a mannish black straw.

Lilly Dache uses less trimming on her elegant Spring models and depends on beauty of line for charm.

One all-white silhouette cloche frames the face with its rolled-back brim high over the right eye and low around the left cheek. A pair of white dove wings decorate this hat just at the point where the high roll of the brim narrows down.

Miss Dache uses another magnificent rolling brim in a big silhouette beret of black hair straw. The wide off-the-face brim is caught with tiny black velvet ribbon bows at one side to form an unusual line.

One of Lilly Dache's "signature silhouettes" is dramatically breath-taking but not for everyone. A Watteau sailor of rough straw, it almost takes wing on its sky-rocketting multiple bow of taffeta ribbon over the side of the brow.

British Fabrics Called Too Dull

Manchester, Jan. 27 (CP) — Appeal to the government to free the furnishing fabrics industry from the "shackles of wartime restrictions" so it can brighten Britain's homes has been made by W. Turnbull, chairman of the fabrics section of Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

"The building program is providing standard homes and standard equipment," he told the Board of Trade. "We are living in a dull era of standardization.

"The furnishing fabrics industry is eager to present to the harassed but home-loving housewife the opportunity of reflecting her personal taste in the choice of curtains and furniture coverings, thereby making her home distinctive and beautiful.

"We hear people say 'Away dull care.' This might well be changed to 'Away dull furnishings'."

INDIA-SOVIET CONTACT

New Delhi (CP) — In keeping with the government's policy of extending diplomatic contacts throughout the world, the government has appointed K. P. S. Menon, agent-general for India in China, as special representative to Moscow. V. Krishma Menon was also appointed to visit a number of European countries to establish diplomatic relations.

NYLON FOR HAIR IN LATEST WIGS

London, Jan. 27 (CP) — Wigs may become popular once more, with nylon used instead of hair, say London fashion experts.

A demand for nylon in preference to hair wigs is reported in theatrical circles, since the white fibre can be dyed to the most delicate shades without losing its lustre.

Stabilize Lives Of Girl Truants

Toronto, Jan. 27 (CP) — Stabilization of lives not condemnation and iron-clad discipline is the aim of St. Mary's Training School for Girls here.

With an annual turnover of 60 to 100 girls, some of whom are termed "chronic truants," some whose parents ask educational advantages and life training not to be gained at home, the school's program is flexible and varied.

Majority of pupils are between 10 and 17 years old. Some have been placed in the institution by law authorities. Many are orphans.

Nuns in charge are quick to deny that their pupils are definite "types" and because of their strong personal tendencies are "troublesome." The school's aim, they say, is not to make a girl conform to one pattern of living, but to bring out the best in her thus establishing a satisfactory "norm" of her own.

"When a girl comes to us," said a teacher, "we look not for weaknesses, but for the best instincts, abilities and interests. Once you determine what a girl is most interested in, it is a fairly easy task to work on her better nature through this medium."

Each girl is examined once a month by a doctor, once a year by a dentist and a psychiatrist. Their reports enable teachers to form opinions of the girl's physical and mental state during her stay and at the time of her release.

"Many of the girls want to marry early," it was revealed. "Who can blame them? We do not attempt to discourage or bind them. If they are happy, healthy and useful citizens after they leave here, that is all we ask."

Airman's Children Move to Santaland

Winnipeg, Jan. 27 (CP) — 3-year-old Kenneth Schoor of Winnipeg thinks he may be able to help Santa Claus next year. He is moving to the Yukon shortly with his family and is sure they will be living somewhere near the old gent.

Ken's new home is at Watson's Lake, 1,700 miles north of Edmonton. His father LAC. Leo Schoor, is a member of the RCAF and has received a two to four year posting in thet Yukon. Mrs. Schoor and the two children are excited about the trip and have been busy getting equipped with felt boots, parkas and all that goes with life in the north.

The Schoor children, Penny-Maria and Kenneth, will be the first white children to live in the Yukon outpost. Penny-Maria will celebrate her second birth day shortly after the family's arrival at Watson's Lake. There are five other RCAF men's wives at the post but no children.

The family is to travel to Edmonton by train and then fly to Watson's Lake.

"It will be the first airplane ride for myself and the children, and we're excited about that too," said Mrs. Schoor.

SIMPLIFY RATIONING

Stockholm (CP) — Instead of the "deck of cards" which Swedish housewives had to carry when going marketing a few years ago, one single card now has been devised to cover all rations, foods and products. Current rationings include: bread, flour, meat, edible fats, sugar, paraffin candles and soap.

Tension Personified — Here is the last play of Saturday night's pro hockey game at Maple Leaf Gardens when that great goalie, Chuck Rayner, climaxed his brilliant 1-0 shutout for New York Rangers by lumbering from his net to beat the grim-faced Leafs to the puck and shoot it down the ice. Note the fighting faces, especially that of Toronto's Ted Kennedy, as he makes for the puck from behind grey-haired Neil Colville (6). The picture was snapped a split second after a face-off in the Ranger end.

Definite Maple Leaf Slump Coincides With Rapid Rise Of New York Rangers in N.H.L.

Toronto Beaten 1-0 by the Rangers on Saturday and Tie Hawks 6-6 Sunday

By HARRY ECCLES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

What looks like a definite Toronto Maple Leafs slump coincided today with the rapid rise of New York Rangers in the National Hockey League.

The league-leading Leafs were beaten 1-0 by Rangers at Toronto Saturday, then at Chicago Sunday Leafs blew a 5-1 advantage to wind up in a 6-5 tie. Montreal Canadiens walloped Boston Bruins 4-1 Saturday, and Bruins went on to gain a 4-3 victory at home over Detroit.

Now the Rangers, who have beaten Leafs in their last three games, largely through Claude Rayner's flashy goal-tending and stout defence work, are sitting pretty in the fourth and last play-off spot, three full games ahead of Detroit, six ahead of Chicago.

The standing today shows Leafs just five points ahead of Canadiens and Boston another 11 points back in third spot. But Rangers are only a point behind Boston, and travelling fast. It's none too early for the pace-setters to start worrying over who's going to have to take on Rangers in the play-offs.

Rayner Stymies Leafs

The Leafs for one want no share of the Gothamites when the chips are down. Before a packed house of 13,869 at Toronto Saturday they fired 37 shots at Rayner, and clicked on none of them. On two face-offs in the dying seconds Leafs had six men up and still couldn't get the puck past the Kenora kid.

Worse than that, Rayner threatened to add insult to injury by personally making the score 2-0 for New York, on top of the first period goal that was slammed past Broda by Hextall of Rangers on a pass from Moe, laid down right in front of the net and giving Turk no chance to save.

It was from one of the last-minute face-offs that the agile Rayner flashed 30 feet from his goal to grab the untended puck and slam it toward the empty Toronto nets. He missed by some feet, but that didn't cheer the irate Leafs any. The final bell no sooner rang than Grant Warwick, who had skated after Rayner's last gallant effort, and had been felled by Jim Mortson, came up swinging and both teams and the odd spectator joined in a scramble at the Toronto end. No damage was done.

Had 3-0 Lead

At Chicago Stadium 17,673 saw the Leafs take a 3-0 first period lead on goals from Mortson, Stanowski and Ezinicki. Jackson got one for the Hawks in the first minute of the second, then Kennedy and Apps made it 5-1. Toronto's good rookie, Howie Meeker, was waved off for tripping and the Hawks rammed in four goals before the period ended—Max Bentley getting two, Doug Bentley one and Gadsby one, all in the space of one minute and 50 seconds.

Sticks were carried high in the third period and Leafs couldn't score when Hawks were two men short. Then Kaleta made it 6-5 for Chicago, and Kennedy's second goal of the night tied the count with ten minutes left. Neither team could get the winner and the final bell marking the tie was signal for another free-for-all which saw more pushing than punching, although Mariucci went to the showers with an injured left hand.

Rough Encounter

There were 11,488 at the Montreal Forum and practically all of them moaned as Bill Durnan saw his shut-out gone with the wind on Carveth's shot at 18.35 of the finale. Durnan had handled only 16 shots against Brimsek's 29. Rocket Richard's goal was his 29th of the season.

The Boston Gardens was packed again to its 13,900 capacity as a rough encounter saw the lead changing in Detroit's favor before Bruins finally clinched the tight game on second period goals and everybody went scoreless in the rugged third period. Dumart opened scoring for Boston and Stewart tied it up before Carveth made it 2-1. Howe evened it up and this time Lindsay put Detroit in the lead, only to have Gallinger deadlock the score at 3-3.

Then Carveth came through with his second and pay-off goal in the last minute of the middle frame.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

A fighting mad Belleville "Bees" squad trek to Kingston tonight where they clash with the highly rated Kingston Saints in a scheduled junior "B" fixture. The Saints come well publicized and from what we saw the other night in the Jock Harty Arena where the honorable Wally Elmer and Bill "Squeak" Reason were putting the Limestone kids through their paces, the "Bees" will need to be on their toes.

• • •

However, Doug Whillan's charges have that 4-2 defeat to wipe out and they're not fussy at whose expense the win comes. Tonight, will see them all out ready to go and plenty anxious to come back with a win. They will be up against a big heavy team that has plenty of experience behind it—but after all a guy named David took out a big heavy fellow in a slingshot battle years ago.

• • •

The kids leave at five-thirty from the Memorial Arena tonight and the best wishes of the fans ride with them.

• • •

Here's a red hot tip for you basketball fans. Up at Albert College, there goes on these wintry days some nifty court work under the general supervision of Athletic Director "Pete" Beach, and a starry array of coaches. Up there in the stately halls of wisdom, under the keen eyes of Coach Johnny Hayman, who, incidentally, flips a mean basketball into opposing nets for the Belleville "Y" Intermediate squad, two squads are being rounded out into what appears to be championship calibre.

• • •

And just in case you are in doubt, Albert seniors courters took the Trenton RCAF highly rated Intermediate "B" basketeers into camp the other night by 49-42 score. Johnny Lill, who is a football player of no mean ability scored 18 of his teams points while S. Lipson, son of the Prince Edward County chain store owner, got himself 11 tallies. A gent by the name of Dodsworth contributed 10 points to the common cause while Watson with 14 and Sherwood with 12 were the stars for the lads in service blue.

• • •

And here's a human interest touch. Playing against his old Alma Mamma was Alf. Moulden, now a flying officer in the RCAF, who is a former Albert College basketball team captain, but the best Alfie could do was garner six points against the old school.

• • •

Incidentally, the Albert squad, if you want to go into statistics, made 53 per cent of their shots count. The point is this. The average basketball game sees approximately 30 per cent of attempts at goal effective, and that goes for U.S.A. college games as well as the pro stuff.

• • •

On the other hand, the Albert juniors need not doff their chapeaus to their big brothers. The beardless ones took the "Y" Midgets into camp recently by a 35-16 score with Jimmy Hayman, brother of the school coach getting 15 points and Larry McGaughey (here's that man again) kicking in with an even dozen. McMillan was the best for the "Y" kids with six.

• • •

Bloomfield's Sky Chiefs, smarting under a one-goal score in the first period of the game made Intermediate 'B' hockey history the other night in Wellington when they rammed home three goals in fifty seconds in the second heat to acquire a lead which they never relinquished. The game was played before 800 fans (and this in a village of 987 population). The opposition was the Mountain View Bombers and they tell us the game was a dilly. Bombers fought back furiously but the best they could do was a single counter and they went out by a 3-2 score.

• • •

Platford, Bloomfield defenceman was the hero of the piece, slipping a pass to Demille for the first Chief's goal and scoring two within seconds. The game was fast and furious with a perfect sheet of ice, and the lakeshore village fans had a real hockey thrill.

• • •

Athletic Director Pete Beach up around Albert College way has got himself three expert coaches. Looking after the basketball teams is Johnny Hayman, formerly of the University of Western Ontario, with Ed. Connell, (remember?), taking care of the hockey squads. The football master-mind will be none other than Don Huyck, starry half-back of the Western U's gridiron squad of 1946 and who was voted the most valuable player on the Mustang squad and won the George McCulloch Trophy last year.

• • •

And this one speaks for itself. It is from the pen of George H. Campbell, sports scribe of the Oshawa Times Gazette:-

"This one will floor the baseball oldtimers, especially Oshawa's former C.O.B.L. players. You remember that confirmed, self-styled "King of Bachelors," who even took up baseball umpiring and hockey refereeing so that he could "have the last word" in all arguments, and when that failed, used to have it anyway, via his sports column? Well, he's up and "dood it." Yes siree, Ken J. Colling, dean of the C.O.B.L. sport scribes has found himself a gal and she's wearing a diamond. They're going centre-aisling before long. Whatta treat it will be to see "Kennie" have an outside pitch called a strike and get "tossed out of the game" if he dares to argue the point. The good wishes of all Central Ontario baseball and hockey fans went out to Ken when he had to give up his Belleville sports writing position and enter hospital, due to ill health. We extend them again. Obviously, he must be fully recovered to dare entering this "new league" but what a lot of things he's going to have to take back. He baited the sport benedicts of this territory for years with his "single blessedness and independence." We'd give two bucks or willingly buy the rounds, just to have "Jake" Biddle, "Tip" Miller, "Moose" Matthews, Reg. Fair, "Peg" Hurst, plus some of those boys from Peterboro, Belleville and Kingston, like "Bob" Elliott, "Mickey" Compeau, Vinny McQuaid, Hollingsworth, Max Swanston and a host of others all on hand for a 15-minute session. That, my friends, would be truly something. Advice to the bridegroom."

BARONS NEEDED BOTH VICTORIES TO KEEP ON TOP

Whip Springfield Indians and New Haven Ramblers on Successive Nights

(By the Canadian Press)

Sharpshooter Johnny Holota, who would like nothing better than to be called "goal-a-game Holota" isn't far off from rightfully earning that title. For as Cleveland's Barons swept their weekend American Hockey League games, Johnny netted his 33rd and 34th goals of the season in his 41st contest to break away from a deadlock with Philadelphia's Phil Hergesheimer.

While Holota couldn't score when the Barons whipped Springfield Indians 3-1 Saturday night he came back Sunday with a pair to pace Cleveland to an easy 5-2 victory over New Haven Ramblers.

Cleveland broke a 1-1 deadlock early in the second period on Fred Thurier's marker, which apparently gave the proper incentive to Holota for his two goals in succession. Mel Read of the Ramblers cut the margin midway in the third period only to have Lou Trudel rifle home a long shot about a minute later. Ott Heller had put New Haven ahead in the first period until Pete Leswick scored with two seconds to go.

The Barons needed both victories to keep at the top of the tightening Western Division race as the red hot Buffalo Bisons whipped the hapless Philadelphia Rockets 6-1 Saturday night in Philadelphia and then in a Sunday night home game battled the fighting Pittsburgh Hornets to a scoreless tie.

Two Winning Streaks Stopped

The draw interrupted two winning streaks. The Hornets had won their last five games including a 4-1 win over New Haven Saturday night. The Bisons, who have lost only twice since mid-December, had won their last three.

The victory and the deadlock enabled the Bisons to take over second place in the Western Division as the slipping Indianapolis Capitals lost both their weekend games. The Caps dropped a 3-2 decision Saturday to Hershey Bears, leaders in the Eastern Division by 21 points, and were beaten by Providence Reds 6-2 Sunday in a wild game.

Buffalo now is 2 1-2 games behind the Barons and Pittsburgh a half game behind third-place Indianapolis.

Providence Third

In defeating the Caps, Providence took the Eastern Division's third spot from Springfield. A three-goal third-period flurry clinched the game for the Reds as Tommy Burlington tallied twice in succession and Rosy Rossignol added another. Ray Laplante, Carl Liscombe and Guy Roach were the other Providence goal-getters. While Tony Licari and Les Douglas notched the Indianapolis points.

Officials Pat Callighen and Ted Graham were on the receiving end when they slapped penalties on the Caps' Les Douglas and Ed Nicholson seconds apart near the end of the second period. Indianapolis fans pelted them with programs and popcorn boxes. Police and ushers had to escort them back into the game at the opening of the third period.

The Reds, who are fighting a see-saw battle with Springfield for a spot in the coming play-offs, played a 6-6 tie with St. Louis Flyers Saturday night.

Rocky Graziano Must Appear Before Grand Jury

New York, Jan. 27 — (AP) — Rocky Graziano, boxing's second best gate attraction, is scheduled to appear before a grand jury today under a subpoena from the district attorney's office which announced it had been investigating cancellation of his scheduled Dec. 27 bout with Cowboy Ruben Shane.

Other than to say they had questioned Graziano for "more than 12 hours" Saturday night and Sunday morning in connection with "the circumstances surrounding the cancellation of the fight," District Attorney Frank S. Hogan and two assistants, Alfred Scotti of the Rackets Bureau and Andrew Seidler, refused to elaborate.

The fight with Shank, generally regarded as a tune-up for Graziano's March 21 return bout with middleweight champion Tony Zale who knocked him out in September, was called off three days before it was scheduled to have taken place when Rocky said he had injured his back in training.

It would have been the first start for Graziano since he was flattened by Zale in the sixth round of one of the most exciting battles in recent years. Instead, Rockabye Rocky went to Miami for a vacation, returning last week. He was due to start training for the return match today.

Hogan Shatters Par to Win $10,000 Tourney

(By The Canadian Press)

Shooting a 72-hole score of 270, Ben Hogan, golfing's Mr. Big, shattered par yesterday to win the $10,000 Phoenix Open Tournament at Phoenix, Ariz., and successfully defend the title he won a year ago. The United States Open champion, Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, and Ed (Porky) Oliver of Wilmington, Del., tied for second place with scores of 277. In third place was Jimmy Demaret of Houston Tex., one shot behind Mangrum and Oliver with a card 278.

Hogan set a tournament record for the course by shading standard figures by four shots over the four rounds. He finished with 36-33-69.

Elizabeth Snively, brunette skiing ace of the Toronto Ski Club, took top honors at a Collingwood invitation ski meet yesterday, wining the Hiram Walker Trophy in the combined Slalom and Downhill contests.

Boston Braves yesterday announced receipt of the signed contracts of southpaw pitcher Jimmy Wallace and first baseman Vin Shupe.

Heralded as a fistic grudge match, a big show will bring Boston fans flocking to the Mechanics building tonight, to see Toronto's durable veteran Jack (Spider) Armstrong and Timothy (Buddy) Hayes of Boston, New England featherweight title holder, put on a return 10-round clash. Armstrong gave the Bostonian a thorough beating in the first match a year ago.

At Tucson, Ariz., manager Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians, ventured the opinion that high-priced Bob Feller "can't miss" wining 30 games for the tribe this year.

En route from Quebec City to Manchester, N.H., to attend the International Congress of Snowshoers, Jan. 31, through Feb. 2, hikers Joe Michaud and Rosario Dufour arrived at Plymouth, N. H. last night on the 12th lap of their 410-mile trip.

140-game Schedule Adopted by League

Schenectady, N.Y., Jan. 27 — (AP) — The Canadian American Baseball League Saturday adopted a 140-game schedule for the 1947 season, 14 more games than last year.

The class C loop also adopted a player pool and abandoned the former $80-a-month minimum salary rule.

The player pool, to be made up by each club on the basis of one cent for each adult admission ticket up to a maximum of $250 a club, will go to the players of the winning clubs after the close of the season.

At the end of the semi-final play-off, 25 per cent will go to the two clubs eliminated. After the final play-off, the balance will be divided between the two finalists, 60 per cent to the winner and 40 per cent to the loser.

League directors also adopted the new major-minor league rules providing for cutting down their squads 30 days after the opening of the season. For the first month, each club is permitted to carry 22 players. After that, each team can have only 15 active players, plus three national defence list players.

J. Emile Dion, general manager of the Quebec club, said his team would remain in the league and that it had obtained "a reasonable lease" on its park.

He said the club, which had a working agreement with Chicago Cubs in 1946, was seeking an arrangement with some other major league team.

Montreal, Jan. 27 (CP) — With business booming in all sports and the horse racing season in Montreal extended to 35 days this year, there are good times, or bad times, ahead for the little man with the greenbacks—all depending on how you look at it.

There's more time for him to lose his roll, but at least he can enjoy his fun longer.

Racing, which narrowly escaped becoming dead, defunct and otherwise incapacitated here last year, is looking for another surge of popularity to match strides with all other major sports here in the last two or three years.

Montreal fans had only fourteen days of racing last year—and they nearly didn't get that since final plans for the meet were made only a short while before the gee-gees started kicking up dust. As a result, most of the better steeds were already committed to other tracks, and the quality of racing here left much to be desired at times.

Danny's Web.

Little Danny Webb, Canada's lightweight boxing champ, with bait for an Australian tour dangled in front of him, is having a tough time deciding what to do. He'd like $20,000 for the trip, but the reported offer of $6,000 for his first fight and 25 per cent of the gate for the next two likely wouldn't come anywhere near that.

Then there's the income tax to worry about. As Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll reports it: Danny's manager, Harry Sheppard, called up the Australian high commissioner in Ottawa to find out about the Aussie tax laws.

"Is Webb really going to fight Vic Patrick?" asked the commissioner. "I've seen Patrick and he's a very good fighter, you know. One of the best."

Now they're wondering if the commissioner was trying to be kind and suggesting Webb wasn't quite solid enough fare for Patrick.

Kansas City Pla-Mors Still Cling to Top Spot

(By The Canadian Press)

Kansas City Pla-Mors came out of the heavy weekend competition in the United States Hockey League still clinging to the top spot in the northern division by a full game.

The Pla-Mors split their weekend contests, losing to the second place Omaha Knights 3-2 Saturday and then overwhelming Minneapolis Millers 8-3 Sunday night.

Playing at home before the largest crowd of the season—5,704 fans — Kansas City put on a 4-goal flurry in the final period to clinch the game. Dick Butler scored two of the last-period goals in the span of 48 seconds and Larry Silvestri also collected a pair. George Johnston, Bill Omstead, Ray Powell and Russ McDonald were the other Pla-Mor goalgetters while Maurice Vaillancourt, Walt Melnyk and Thompson sank the Minneapolis points.

St. Paul Saints, northern division tail-enders, received some satisfaction in whipping Dallas Texans 9-2 Sunday night. The defeat snapped the southern division leaders' string of 12 games without a loss. Hal Brown, Alex Sandalack and Bob Kirkpatrick scored two goals each for the Saints and Nakina Smith, Gus Schwartz and Morey Rimstad added the rest of the points. Lou Smrke accounted for both Dallas tallies.

In a Saturday game Dallas and Minneapolis played a 2-2 tie.

In the other Sunday contest the up-and-coming Tulsa Oilers took over undisputed possession of second place in the southern division from Fort Worth by playing a 4-4 tie with Houston Sat. and then whipping Fort Worth's Rangers 3-1 Sunday night.

Ralph Wycherley scored the Oilers' only earned goal in the first period. The other Tulsa counters, credited to Wycherley and Doug McMurdy respectively, came on freak plays in which the puck struck a Fort Worth player and rolled into the Rangers' net.

Les Sawyer notched the Fort Worth point.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You frequently see a good bridge player suddenly decide to make an unusual play. On rare occasions it may be from instinct. Usually, however, it is influenced by something in the bidding or discards.

He may start out on a line that seems destined to keep on the same track. Then he may abandon his course and strike out in a new direction. The quick switch may seem odd.

Look at what happened in this deal:

South became the declarer at a small slam bid of six hearts. The opening lead from west was a club. Dummy took the first trick with the queen and three trumps were pulled.

Two more clubs were taken and the three-three break showed up. On the fourth club, dummy sluffed a spade. On this trick, east gave up his seemingly worthless diamond.

Hoping to get another diamond sluff, another trump was led and dumy threw another spade. But each opponent also gave up a spade. So, a small diamond was led from south for a finesse.

When west played the eight-spot, dummy successfully finessed the jack. On this trick, east showed out of diamonds. This placed west with the three outside sparklers. He might get two tricks with them.

However, this declarer was equal to the occasion. He made no attempt to return to his own hand. Instead, dummy led the spade king and south sluffed a diamond on it.

West had to win this trick with his lone ace of spades and was now hopelessly endplayed. With nothing but diamonds left, he had to lead one of them and elected to send forth the ten.

South let this come around to the queen and the rest went to dummy ace and the south trump. Thus, endplaying west rescued a much needed trick. Some trick.

The Movie Column

By TOM KENNEDY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Take a tousle-headed youngster, his animal pet, and some picturesque countryside, film them together in technicolor and you have a hit motion picture—in this case "The Yearling."

Claude Jarman, Jr., is the youngster, Gregory Peck is his understanding father, Jane Wyman takes the part of his broken-spirited mother. "The Yearling" is the boy's pet deer, and Florida's everglade swamp is the scenic backdrop against which they act out the screen version of Marjorie Kinnan Rawling's prize-winning novel of grim farm life enriched by a boy's devotion to his animal friend.

Also Ran Department

"Wake up and Dream," another film slanted for family box-office appeal, lacks the appealing simplicity of "The Yearling." It is the story of a seaman reported missing by the United States navy, his waitress girl friend, his young sister and a crochety old man with a home-made boat 300 miles from the nearest water.

Danger! Good Story

Hollywood will begin shooting "Call Northside 777" soon. The story, taken directly from the newspapers and the police blotter, is that of Mrs Tillie Majczeh, Chicago woman who scrubbed floors for 10 years to get the money to prove the innocence of her son who was serving a 99-year prison term for shooting a policeman. She inserted a classified ad ending "Call Northside 777" in a newspaper and, with the help of some reporters who took up the case, proved her son innocent.

Sports Roundup

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 27 —(CP)— Did you know that Canada has a pitcher in the major leagues with a better record than Harry (The Cat) Brecheen or Howie Pollet of St. Louis Cardinals?... not even Phil Marchildon's admirer in Penetanguishene, Ont. would shrill that shrilly for the Philadelphia righhander, but several precise rows of agate type worked out by Wilbur (N. Y. Sun) would place Marchildon far ahead of either National League pitcher, and as a high as fifth in the American League...Wood's new method, which of course has no official sanction, rates a moundsman on the number of points the pitcher's personal won-and-lost percentage is above or below the won-and-lost percentage of his team..the system has a lot of merit, making allowance as it does for the handicap a weak club can be to a flinger..the present method of evaluating a pitcher on the basis of earned runs allowed is better than the straight won-and-lost rating of yesterday, but it still isn't foolproof.

Class Distinction

Take Marchildon's case, for instance...under the present system he rates 16th in the American League with an earned run average of 3.49, but his record of 13 won and 16 lost with the tail-end Athletics gives him a plus 130 in Wood's figures... only four other American League pitchers own a higher mark... Bob Feller of Cleveland Indians has plus 192, Spud Chandler of New York Yankees rates 149 to the good, Hal Newhouser of Detroit Tigers gets a credit of 146 and Dave (Boo) Ferris of Boston is plus 131, just one point better five of the Canadians' 16 losses were by one-run margins.

Putting the Cat Out

High up on the American League list is Toronto's Dick Fowler, a Marchildon mound-mate who won 9 and lost 16... tops in the National League under Wood's appraisal is Fritz Ostermeuller, with Bucky Walters of Cincinnati Reds next in line... Ostermeuller is rated at plus 156 and Walters at plus 153..surprisingly enough, Brecheen, the hero of the 1946 World Series, stands LAST with minus 128 and Pollet has only a plus 49... the explanation in Brecheen's case is that Brecheen was a "clutch" hurler last year...so possibly even Wood hasn't hit on the ideal system for assaying the precise potential of a pitcher.

Noted Comedian's Antics Enlivens Revival of Operetta 'Sweethearts'

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 25 — (CP) — That man Bobby Clark is back again, this time capering through a revival of the venerable Victor Herbert operetta, "Sweethearts."

The production retains the sentimental Herbert music, and the romantic story of a prince who regains his throne and gains his love.

But, of course, Bobby Clark steals the show, which opened this week at the Shubert Theatre. He prances around the stage in the role of Mikel Mikeloviz, Chancellor of the mythical realm of Zilania. In the slow-moving first act he is extraordinarily funny disguised as a washerwoman.

The second act, in which the modernizing touches become apparent, saves the production from being a flop. Even Bobby Clark has a hard time carrying the first act. But the last half is enlivened by a satirical ballet, and a hilarious version of the pilgrims of love song.

Overlooked Horror

For those who like horror drama there's "Little A," the current attraction at the Henry Miller Theatre. The play by Hugh White deals with a millionaire who unwittingly marries his father's mistress and later finds out that his "son" and heir is not his son. But "Little A" is too over-written a melodrama and its run is likely to be brief.

Invisible Eclairs

Ruth Draper, the character sketch expert, is back in town with some new and some old one-person studies. She displays at the Empire Theatre her customary uncanny ability to create a life-like character on the stage and to convey the illusion that the stage is peopled with other characters. Her current repertoire includes "Doctors and Diets" in which she is an American society woman lunching in a restaurant with 3 of her kind.

Gielgud Back

Canadien theatre audiences now are enjoying John Gielgud and a top-ranking British company in performances of Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest." The company, now in London, Ont., is due in Montreal Jan. 27 and in Toronto Feb. 3. Later American audiences will see the same players, with the United States tour starting in Boston Feb. 10.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Chicago's Max Bentley was the big gainer in the National Hockey League scoring race during the weekend, moving three notches up the ladder on the strength of his two goals and two assists in Black Hawks' lone game. This left him in third place with 38 points, one behind Ted Kennedy of Toronto, who in turn is seven points back of the leader, Maurice Richard of Montreal. Doug Bentley of the Hawks moved back into the select circle with a goal and assist in the Chicago game, giving him 33 points and a tie for the seventh spot with Syd Abel of Detroit.

London, Jan. 27—(CP)—At their annual dinner honoring the Scottish bard, the London Burns Club ate such typical Caledonian dishes as carron kail, nair neeps and oban ingins. The haggis was piped to the table and then the guest speaker addressed them—and he was an Irishman. But they all agreed that the speaker, Rev. Alfred Abraham, was "the best we ever had."

Romance, Preferred

CHAPTER 16

"He's never known anything except cowardice. There are circumstances, Rupert. He reaches out for something better but he's always dragged back. He needs some one to put him solidly on his own feet."

"And he's elected you? Nonsense! You can be anything you want to be if you want hard enough, dream hard enough, and put the dreams into action. Sometimes you have to hurt people you love. When I came east to make my way, with my clothes wrapped in a newspaper and the mud of the prairies still on my shoes, I broke my mother's heart. She wanted me to tend the land my people had tended. Years later she told me I was right and she was wrong! People don't know how to live. Look at them! Milling, hurrying, working their mouths and their feet. Their imaginations are stagnant. They're no conscious of the wind in their faces and they hate rain because it spoils their pretty shoes. And you young people—all mixed up—you want to look like Hollywood stars and live in a Cedric Gibbons set. Don't get me started. When people whine to me I ask them if they're healthy and if they say they are, I tell them to go out and do the kind of work they love and marry a woman for love and buy a house and raise a family.

Rupert Law arched a bushy red brow at Arlen.

"I'm raving? Very well. But don't marry a boy who needs you. What about you? You get nothing. You give everything and get nothing. Live passionately, Arlen. Live with your imagination and your sense open. If you marry this boy, I'll fire you. I couldn't stand the look of a martyr on your face. Some women want only to be needed. You want to be loved."

"My solid foundation was shaken from under me. A very solid one, Rupert." She put on her hat and gave a jerk to it over her right eye. "I'll remember what you said. Hadn't we better go?"

"Not until after dinner."

• •

Elissa was singing under the shower when Arlen came in. "That you, Arlen?" she called. "I'll be right out," and appeared clad only in an enormous towel and a white bathing cap.

"I rushed in to tell you the happy tidings and found your note that you had gone on a party with Rupert. Darling, Julian and I are engaged! Engaged! Do you hear it? He proposed to me over stuffed turkey and an assortment of vegetables and there I sat, crying into my Christmas dinner out of pure happiness."

"I'm glad—glad," said Arlen, laughing at this very moist Elissa. "Just think—if I had been the third in the party as you asked me to be, he couldn't have proposed today."

"Wait till I get some clothes on and I'll tell you about Christa."

Arlen said, "No, don't. I don't like conspiracy, Elissa," and laughed nonchalantly. "Do you suppose I could be ill, not seriously, but just a little too ill to go to that party of Louise's?"

"Thank heaven I wasn't invited.

It occurred to Arlen then that Elissa's announcement of her engagement and her coming marriage meant that she would have to move again.

• •

Between tactfully telling persistent callers that Rupert Law could not be disturbed, tolerating meek little Miss Street's icy snubs, and hearing Elissa's golden plans, Arlen endured a miserable Christmas week that was fast drawing to a close. Often she looked at the dull face of Miss Street and wondered if she were involved with other personalities and burdened by the problems of other people. When, during the Christmas week, she saw a child clutching at a new doll, Arlen thought of Allison in her nursery surrounded by new toys and thought particularly of the angelic-faced doll she had sent her. At this critical stage of affairs it was unthinkable to visit Renny's child and his mother.

She thought, "Christa is back. I wonder if Renny is happy now."

When Elissa paid a second visit to Christa at her hotel and returned with a flushed angry face, still Arlen would not hear the conversation that had taken place. She said, smiling, "My ears were burning, Elissa."

Elissa answered, "I don't wonder."

To make matters worse there was a long pathetic letter from her father. As Renny had tried desperately to hold his marriage together, so her father in pride did not want to admit Arlen's predictions of disaster. How long would it be before Karen left him? Probably not until she had everything she wanted and possibly grounds for a divorce so that she could demand money that had been her mother's.

Silence on Toby's part meant not the proverbial good news. Arlen felt pursued and/haunted by two women she had done nothing except give her friendship to the son of one and give a love he did not even know about to the husband of the other.

At Louise's request she went to the penthouse one evening for dinner. Louise was glowing with health, was beautifully sunburned, and talked excitedly about the party.

"You look none the worse, darling, for working under Rupert Law. Is he such as savage as I hear? Richard, Arlen looks splendid, doesn't she?"

At the end of the long table Richard, said, as usual."

"Now about the party," said Louise. "I know I've invited too many people. Some I simply had to invite and I sent the invitations late, hoping they'd made other arrangements. Not one regret have I received! Arlen, have you heard from Toby?"

"I've heard nothing."

"Isn't that strange? Fanny just stopped writing altogether. I know I haven't offended her. She was coming to town a few days early to do some shopping and I've heard nothing."

Richard said, "You haven't told Arlen the worst."

"Yes, dear. You know Christa is back."

"I know."

"And she's coming, too," said Richard with biting sarcasm. "What do you think of that?"

"I can't hurt Renny," pacified Louise sweetly. "She's his wife. Of course I know that only curiosity is bringing her, curiosity to see you, Arlen! Can you imagine it? She dropped in one afternoon and what could I do? I couldn't insult her."

Richard said dryly, "I think we shall have all the fireworks of the fourth of July on New Year's Eve."

• • •

"I'll be so happy when this is all settled," Louise said wearily. "Renny is so wonderful and he'll never do anything to humiliate Christa no matter how much she' humiliated him. But he doesn't look worried." She looked down the long dinner table and said to Richard, "I know for a fact that he's going to call on her tomorrow and they're going to reach a final decision about their affairs."

"Pure subterfuge," Richard retorted impatiently. "He'll take her back, second-hand or no second-hand, and be glad to have her. He'll defy his mother and all his friends. Constancy that is blind and stubborn is no virtue."

"Now about the party again," said Louise, turning to Arlen. "Toby will call for you, of course There'll be an odd man for Fanny. Come here and if it gets too dull, we have tables reserved at a hotel. Florida was simply marvellous," Louise continued, "but it was the wrong season. Nobody goes until after Christmas. I did nothing, nothing but rest."

• •

The next morning Elissa said, "I want you to look your best that night, Arlen."

"Because I'll be the centre of all eyes? And I've always liked to be inconspicuous. I can't afford a new dress, Elissa. I broke the bank to buy the silver one. Perhaps I ought to go in sackcloth and ashes."

"Darling," Elissa laughed, —"you're a marked woman, a husband-stealer, and a kidnapper of the perennial infant Toby. And you look so naive, sitting across from me in your dressing gown, drinking your orange juice. It's ugly, isn't it? But love isn't ugly. Julian and I, with our shabby clothes and empty purses, find love and life very beautiful. Arlen, go to that party with your head high and looking beautiful."

• •

It was late afternoon when Renny stepped into Christa's hotel suite. He felt that a stage had been set. The drawn blinds suggested a clandestine rendezvous. Cocktails were waiting. Christa, wearing a velvet tea gown, greeted him with sweet cordiality and poured him a cocktail.

"I think you might have come to see me without my having to send for you," she said. "After all, Renny—"

"I didn't come here to play a game, Christa. There's no use in going over again what has passed. We know it. You what you left, whether it had troubled your conscience or not. Your sensitiveness when other people slight you and snub you must make you conscious of theirs. You've had time—a year—to decide what must be done."

He leaned forward and said intently, "this is between you and me, Christa. Whatever gossip you may have heard, put from your mind. Not the past but the present concerns us now."

Her eye shad a queer contracted look. Renny's eyes, stark with realism, seemed to strip her of veneer. She had made up her mind to stand her ground; she would never go back to the little Jake had to offer. Now she was reaching out and holding Jake's love as a solace, knowing that Renny no longer loved her. Anything — anything was preferable to his attitude of respect and duty!

"What do you want me to do?" she asked sharply.

Renny glanced up as he filled his pipe. "You were the dissatisfied party, my dear. I came to ask you that."

SAYS GIRL'S CURSE BLIGHTED TEN YEARS

London, Jan. 27 (CP) — A London woman who married a native chieftain in New Zealand blames a 10-year spell of bad luck on the curse of a jealous Maoir girl.

The former Bertha Williams, now Mrs. Karehana-Koruarua, said that after her marriage in New Zealand in 1923 she was cursed by a native girl and "until she died ten years later my life was dogged with misfortune."

She claims to be the only white woman with full rights as a princess among the Maoris, to whom she is known as Mihi Moana, or "Sweet Weeping Cloud."

BRIDEGROOM'S DILEMMA

Clearbrook, Devonshire, Eng.—(CP) — Arthur Blake had difficulty getting names straight when his bride's relatives came to their wedding. Fifty-four of them turned up.

COUNSEL ARGUES

peal had ordered a new trial for the woman and held the statements had been improperly admitted last October by Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow.

"The application for leave to appeal, will be expedited," said Mr. Rigney to His Lordship.

"I feel this case would be seriously prejudiced from both the point of view of the Crown and the defence, if proceeded with today."

The delay should be short, Mr. Rigney said.

"The consideration of the rights of justice should be paramount at all times," said the special crown prosecutor as he moved the trial of the three be postponed "to a later date."

Mrs. Dick, sitting beside her father, looked straight ahead of her as the argument was conducted.

Donald MacLean leaned back, hooked his elbows over the back of the prisoner's bench. Bohozuk, crossed his legs, sat with his hands folded in his lap.

G. A. Martin, counsel for Bohozuk, submitted that the trial should proceed so far as his client was concerned.

"Any appeal the Crown may plan in connection with Evelyn Dick is of no consequence to Bohozuk's case," said Mr. Martin.

"The accused (Bohozuk) has been in custody for nearly a year. It is shocking that a man should be taken from his home, incarcerated for that length of time, denied bail, and be denied the right of a trial. I know of no crown witnesses that are ill or unable to attend."

Mr. Martin cited the act of Habeas Corpus as a reason his client's case should be proceeded with or the accused should be discharged.

"The limit of the Crown's obligation is to indict at the first Assizes (after charge) and proceed at the second Assizes," said Mr. Martin.

"If there is evidence against him (Bohozuk) then let's get on with it and learn what it's about".

Walter Tuchtie, counsel for MacLean, associated himself with the remarks of Mr. Martin.

"Something must be done," he said. "This cannot go on from Assizes to Assizes. There is no ground for postponing the trial of Bohozuk and MacLean. In our case there are no statements for the Supreme Court of Canada to rule on as in the case of Mrs. Dick. There is no reason why the trial of the men should not go on.

"If British justice is to be upheld the trial of these two men should go on and relieve the feeling in the minds of the public that they can be arrested and their case postponed from Assize to Assize and never know when they may come to trial."

Mr. Rigney disputed Mr. Martin's contention that Bohozuk should be discharged on a writ of Habeas Corpus and reiterated —"the rights of justice are paramount."

THIRD SESSION.

25 Bills Prepared

The 25 bills will be in addition to the routine bills that normally confront parliament. There will be the redistribution bill, the bills concerning the budget and the amendments to statutes.

The bill to change Dominion Day to Canada Day likely will come up again and it is possible some private member will seek action this session to implement the recent decision of the Privy Council and make the Supreme Court of Canada the final court of appeal. So far, it is understood, the ministry has taken no steps to make this change by a government bill.

Talk has it that parliament will sit until at least July.

The normal procedure would be to introduce the four new members of the Commons Thursday, after the Throne Speech opening parliament, then adjourn until Friday when the address on the reply to the Throne Speech will be moved and seconded.

Debate Starts Monday

Then the Commons would adjourn until Monday, when the debate on the address would be started by political leaders—John Bracken for the Progressive Conservatives, Prime Minister Mackenzie King for the government, M. J. Coldwell for the C.C.F. and Solon Low for the Social Credit group. After that the debate would proceed from day to day.

The four members taking seats for the first time are Gerard Cournoyer, Liberal member for Richelieu-Vercheres, Real Cangette, L'Association De Electeurs member for Pontiac, and Cal Miller and Harold Timmins, Progressive Conservative members for Portage La Prairie and Toronto Parkdale, respectively.

It has been the practic for th finance minister to bring down the main estimates as soon as the address on the Throne Speech has been passed. If the debate lasted only two or three days it is doubtful whether Finance Minister Abbott would be ready to bring in his estimates, although the treasury board had been working on them steadily during the last few weeks.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Jan. 27 (CP) — Confidence evaporated on Toronto Stock Exchange today and stocks went back in the early session nearly as far as they rose Friday.

Senior golds were back substantial sums. Junior golds were trading heavily but the trend was down and base metals gave up Friday's gains.

Industrials weakened. Papers joined the downward move.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 27—(AP) — Scattered stocks attracted timid bids in today's market although many leaders were neglected at slightly lower levels and dealings continued apathetic.

Declines of fractions to a point or so were plentiful near the 4th hour.

Canadian issues lost fractions at mid-day. Canadian Pacific was down 1/4 and Hiram Walker and Distillers Seagram also were off 1/4 while Dome Mines was down 1/8 and McIntyre was unchanged. Curb issues were quiet.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 27 (CP) — Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs were unchanged at Brantford, $21.66 delivered, in market reporting early today.

Hull was unchanged $22. delivered.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, Jan. 27 (CP)—Produce prices in the spot market here today —were reported as follows:

Eggs: Receipts good, stocks in wholesaler's hands reduced, market has firmer undertone, prices unchanged; wholesale to retail, A large 40-41, A medium 38-39, A pullet 35-36, B 34-35, C. 32-33; country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free, A large 35-36, A medium 34-35, A pullet 32, B 32, C 29.

Churning cream was unchanged No. 1 lb fob, 45 delivered, plus 10 cents subsidy.

Butter: Unchanged, 1st grade solids 40, 2nd grade solids 39; prints, 1st grade 42, 2nd grade 41, 3rd grade 40.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Jan. 27 (CP) — Cattle trade was fairly active with sales mostly to small buyers at prices generally 15 to 25 cents hundredweight higher on livestock market here up to mid-session today. Calves, hogs and lambs were steady. Sheep were firm.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 2,460, calves 190, hogs 600, sheep and lambs 100.

Weighty steers were $12.50-$14.60; butcher steers $12-$13.75; heifers mostly $12-$13.50; butcher cows $9-$11-50; canners and cutters $6-$8.50; bulls $9.50-$11.50; fed yearlings $12-$15.

Calves were $16-$17 choice, medium to good heavies $12-$15; common lights downward to $11.

One car of Western lambs left from last week brought $15.75, good locals $15.25-$15.50.

Sheep were $5-$9.75.

Hogs were: dressed, Grade A $21.75, Grade B1 $21.35; sows $19 dressed.

O.H.A. COMMITTEE SUSPENDS EMMS OF BARRIE CLUB

Coach Will Not be Allowed to Act Until He Appears Before Governing Body

Toronto, Jan. 27. (CP)—After calling three times during the longest meeting ever held by the O.H.A. sub-committee yesterday for the appearance of Coach Emerson (Happy) Emms of the Barrie Intermediates, the committee suspended Emms from all activities of the Barrie team until such time as he appears before the Association and explains charges of misconduct at a hockey game held in Windsor.

Coach Cassidy of the St. Thomas Intermediate "B" entry was reprimanded by the committee and the ruling of the referee who awarded a game to the opposition when Cassidy called his team from the ice six minutes before the end of a scheduled game was upheld. Executive members said that aCasidy avoided suspension only because of his war record.

Hamilton Tigers, Senior O.H.A. League Leaders were granted permission to play the New York Rangers at Kingston Jan. 28, in a benefit game to raise funds for the Hockey Hall of Fame. They will also be allowed to play the Ottawa Senators in Hamilton, February 11.

Player Mitchell of Whitby Junior "C" Club was suspended for two games as the result of a match penalty he received in a game against Port Hope, Jan. 20.

Reprimanded By Members

Player Montgomery of Peterborough Juniors was reprimanded for his unsportsmanlike conduct and will be asked to appear at a later meeting. He struck a spectator at a game at Haliburton after he had "taken a ride" from the heckler.

Nick Phillips who left the Stratford Seniors to join the Washington, D.C., hockey club had a suspension issued by the Stratford Club upheld by the O.H.A. A protest and notification of the suspension is being forwarded to the East Coast League secretary.

Vice-President J. J. McFayden of the O.H.A. has given permission to the Brantford Chiefs, victims of two bus accidents within three days, for time off from their playing schedule to allow them to recuperate.

Granted Transferrs

A number of players were granted transfers and permission was given for the Kingston teams to use Queen's University players if they were waived by the university.

Port Dalhousie Intermediate "A" requested permission to revert to "B" rating but this permission was denied "if they continued to use St. Catharines players."

Palmerston Intermediate ("B") Club was given permission to play Harold Heolcher of Elmira. They must get necessary waivers from Kitchener to play Don Shirk of that city. J. D. Woodside was declared a member of the Owen Sound Intermediate "A" Club and refused permission to play for Collingwood.

Discuss Grouping Problem

A large delegation from Whitby, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Haliburton and Lindsay was present to discuss its grouping problem. Other clubs desired that Lindsay should remain in the "B" group and if it wins the group will advance to "B" playdowns with the second and third teams playing off in a group contest, the winner to move on. Harry Smith, of Hawkstone was given permission to play Junior "B" for the Barrie Colts.

The question of a Senior "A" hockey franchise for London was laid over until a further meeting.

A representative of the Acton Junior "B" Club was present to explain that unknowingly they had played an over-age player against Georgetown in the belief the age limit, as in baseball and lacrosse, was 21 for juniors. The game was awarded to Georgetown and no further action was taken by the committee.

Goalie Lorne Evans appeared at the meeting, explained why he wanted to revert to intermediate "B" rating although he had played mercantile hockey, rated Senior. His request was granted.

Granted Permission

G. Edward McMunn, Percy E. Banks and H. T. Wilson of Bu - lington were granted permission to play with Milton Intermediates. Niagara Falls Intermediate "A" and Junior "B", Stirling Junior 'C" and Penetanguishene Junior "C" clubs were granted franchise in the O.H.A. in a special concession by the committee.

Don Barrett who played ten games for Stratford was not allowed to play Intermediate "B", but George Marinoff, Hamilton, was allowed to play for Brantford as both Hamilton Clubs waived him.

Windsor Spitfires and St. Catharines were denied permission to enter the playoffs as it had been decided early in the season that only six teams could enter the finals.

Toronto Staffords were granted permission to sign three additional players providing other clubs in the Senior O.H.A. circuit give their consent.

A game that remained unplayed because of the inability of Mitchell to get to the rink for a scheduled game with Listowel, was ordered played later.

GALT RED WINGS WALLOP OSHAWA GENERALS 6 TO 0

St. Michael's Majors Win 27 Out of 28 Games in Season by Beating Marlies

(By The Canadian Press)

Counting the occasional four-point game as two contests, Toronto St. Michaels Majors, eastern junior hockey champs, today had brought their O. H. A. junior A season's record to 27 victories out of 28 games.

Their victory at Toronto Saturday over Toronto Marlboros by an 8-1 count boosted their point total to 54, a full seven games in front of the second-place Galt Red Wings, St. Mikes' old rivals who kept in step by walloping Oshawa Generals 6-0.

Saturday's two other contests saw Stratford Kroehlers garner four points in defeating Toronto Young Rangers 3-1, while Windsor Spitfires also took four points in their 6-3 victory over St. Catharines Falcons.

Marlboros remain alone in 3rd place at 38 points, while three are tied for fourth another two points back — Oshawa, Barrie Flyers and Stratford. Of the four tailenders Windsor went in front with 18 points to 14 for St. Catharines, 12 for Hamilton Szabos and eight for the Young Rangers.

In the first half of the Maple Leaf Gardens doubleheader neither Stratford nor Young Rangers scored in the first period, and they were tied 1-1 after the second in which Mitchell got his second goal in the third frame, and Robertson added another to make it 3-1.

When St. Mikes and the Marlies took the ice, the eastern champs rapped in four first period goals and two more each in the second and third. Raglan got Marlboros' only goal in the third period. Ed Sandford and Winslow each scored twice for St. Mikes, the others coming from McLellan, Costello, Hannigan and Migay.

At Galt the Wings were always on top and while Terry Sawchuk in the Galt nets chalked up his fourth shutout Crodis at the other end was deluged with pucks. Jimmy Uniac scored two of the Galt counters, and Scott, Mineault, Pavelich and Anderson got the others.

Windsor Spitfires broke a tie for seventh-place with St. Catharines Falcons in their 6-3 four-point win at Windsor, a hard-fought tussle in which majors were given Gord Astles of Windsor and Bob Twaddle of Falcons for fighting. Rightwinger Gord Haidy got three of the Spitfire goals, Kavanagh, Marchand and Astles the others, while Currie had two and Goegan a single for Falcons.

Albert Teams Open COSSA Hoop League With Wins

In the tee-off games of the Bay of Quinte section of the C.O.S.S.A. Albert College of Belleville, took both ends of the double-header from the rangy lads from Trenton high school. The Junior game finished 43 to 23, and the Senior game 44 to 28.

Rough play and lax officiating might have led to difficulties had it not been for the fact that there was a clear margin of ability between the two teams in each game.

Albert Juniors led by Jim Hayman of London, Ont., and T. Yates of Deloro, Ont., pulled away to a lead in the first quarter. The foul shooting of the college boys being on, 5 out of 5 finding the hoop. At the half the score stood 26 to 16 for the ultimate winners. In the second half Taugher and Zanchin pushed in two baskets each for Albert, and Hanna and Prettie of Trenton got pretty baskets to keep the homesters in the running. Final score Albert 43, Trenton 23.

Close rugged checking marred the first half of the senior game, and each team was guilty of rough play, John Lill of Kapuskasing, Ont., Albert's 6 ft. 2 centre, was a constant threat under the basket, and tossed in three quick baskets, with Doug Nettleton of Ottawa, and Johnnie Dodsworth of London, Ontario, also netting two each, Blovey and Whitney of Trenton each found the hoop twice, to put Albert ahead 19 to 10 at the half. In the last half Whitney of the home team ran wild and netted 6 baskets for 12 points, but his team mates were not able to play up to his pace. Lill, Dodsworth and Merkley of Albert all contributed to Albert's score and J. Woodrow of Orillia, and Don McCullough of Kingston got onto the score sheet. Final score Albert 44, Trenton 28.

JAP FLAGSHIP BECOMES PIER

Matsuyama, Japan, Jan. 27 — (AP)—The 33-year-old battleship Haruna, erroneously reported sung by United States Army Air Forces Dec. 10, 1941, is going to end her days by doing some useful work at last.

The one-time proud flagship of the Emperor's fleet will be converted into a floating pier at Imabari, a small inland port 20 miles northeast of this Shikoku Island city.

The 29,330-ton Haruna was found tied up, battered but generally intact when Japan surrendered.

CANADA-TO-MEXICO GOLD SHIPMENT GETS CHECKOVER

This transport aircraft is virtually floored with gold, for the solid mass of crates you see are jammed with gold ignots being transferred from the Bank of Canada to the Bank of Mexico. The fortune in gold was pictured when the plane stopped at Newark, N.J., airport where Customs Officer Richard Magerkurth, RIGHT, checks it over with Elmer R. Jones, LEFT, of the Wells Fargo Company who are protecting the treasure during its transfer.

THEY FORGOT THEIR OWN LANGUAGE

Trapped in Germany when they went to visit their grandmother's farm in Buchenbronn, Germany, in 1938, Fred and Marion Schiller, 14 and 13, respectively, are shown on their arrival from Europe at LaGuardia Field in New York. The children are pictured as they run to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Schiller, of Philadelphia, Pa., crying "mutter-vater." They had been in Germany so long that they have forgotten how to say "mother and father" in their native English. They'll go right back to school now.

Thos. J. Bateman Re-elected Pres. Of Fair Board

Marmora—Thomas J. Bateman and Vincent Lynch were re-elected as President and Secretary-Treasurer respectively at the meeting of the Board of Directors of Marmora Agricultural Society which followed the annual meeting convened in the Council Chambers on Thursday evening. Also elected were Allan McComb as 1st Vice President and John McAvoy as 2nd Vice President. The financial statement presented by V. Lynch at the annual meeting revealed that 1946 was a prosperous year for the society which revived the fair after three years of dormancy.

Total receipts were $2,116.58 and the balance on hand at the end of the year was about $75. $600 was paid as a reduction on the mortgage and $361.95 was allotted for repairs and improvements to buildings and grounds. The Society decided to send the President and Secretary Treasurer as delegates to the convention of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies which is being held in Toronto Feb. 13th and 14th.

Directors Chosen

The directors chosen for 1947 were: T. J. Bateman, F. L. Johnston, O. Lynch, Gordon Moffatt, John McAvoy, Gordon Jones Ray Brown, John Doyle, J. Finnegan Carl Heath, C. Lajoie, Irwin McCoy, H. W. Sabine, Harry Neal, A. Sheridan, Ray Bonter, Allan McComb W. McComb, E. Post, G. Aunger. E. C. Prentice and Miss M. Savage were reappointed auditors.

Following the election of officers at the resultant meeting of directors a hearty vote of thanks was extended Messrs. Bateman and Lynch for their energetic labors last year. The gathering was reminded that September 25th and 26th have been decided upon as the tentative date for the 1947 fair.

Messrs. Irwin McCoy and H. Sabine were appointed delegates to the Central Ontario Fairs Association meeting. It was decided to launch a membership drive in the early summer. With other minor items of general business having been attended to, the meeting adjourned.

Albert Nudges Esquires In Close Game

With never more than 1 or 2 points separating the two teams Albert and Esquire put on a rugged battle on the Albert floor Saturday night in a fast and close checking exhibition game.

The game had unusual interest in that John Hayman and Jack Willard of Albert were playing for the Esquire team. Albert College won the game by a single point in the dying moments 36 to 35.

Johnnie Dodsworth was the high scorer for Albert with a total of 14 points, Hayman, Albert's coach and Dr. Faulkner of the Esquires tossed in five baskets each as did Mason.
